4. There shall be representatives of the shop nucleus on the branch (old style) executive committee and vice versa. This necessary for working purposes, even tho the shop nucleus members are already attached to various branches. Every effort and chance must be given to the shop nucleus members to influence the work in the territorial branch. Other transition steps will be found, but carrying out these will help toward that end.

Funds Available for Propaganda Among Foreign Workers.

On the matter of finances the shop nucleus secretary collects the dues from the members, keeps a record of those members who belong to a language branch and reports same to the higher bodies. The national office takes care that the federations are reimbursed. This is in order not to hinder language propaganda activity. However, this is not a permanent situation. It is only put forward as a temporary, transitorial remedy. In another article the matter of the kind of language activity and organization which will remain during and after the shop nuclei form of organization is established can be taken up.

AUTOMATISM IN EDUCATION

do we manage so successfully to weed out non-conformists—that is, persons who can, and do, think for themselves—and to weed in meek conformists? The answer is amazingly simple. No matter what excellence a candidate may attain in the written examination; no matter what excellence he may achieve in the oral test (as far as knowledge can epitomize excellence); no matter how deep and sincere his love of teaching; we reserve the precious right to mar his destiny and his natural ambition, if we find his personality "deficient."

Inasmuch as personality is as various, as changing, as indeterminate a concept as goodness or wickedness itself, we arrogate to ourselves a marvelous prerogative; as a court of last resort (plaintiff, judge and jury, sitting like a holy trinity), we interpret personality arbitrarily to fit in with our ideal of the meek conformist.

Hence (within the limits of examiner's omniscience) we weed out unconventional persons, unique individualities, eccentric thinkers, frank talkers, dissentients in general; and we weed in quietists, kow-towers, conventionally dressed and conventionally mannered and conventionally subordinate personalities. We make mistakes, to be sure. However, we can easily rectify our misjudgments by later and recurrent checks upon "personality." If a lion in sheep's garb is hunted down, or a thinker in gentleman's dress, it is easy to oust him by marking his personality down.

The constant aim throughout is to reduce our vast educational system to a smooth-working mechanism. Obedience, quietism, conventionality, agreement, are the guarantors of "efficiency."

Automatism in education (the greatest mechanical efficiency with the least human friction) is the ideal. The personality test is the imminent threat to oust non-conformists. Why marvel that the educational system of America turns out countless "educated" persons whose one ambition in life is to advance not one step farther than their socially myopic "superiors"?

Education deliberately hampers originality—deliberately!

A great secret transpires. The examiner, who is coerced by his position of super-dignity to assume the pose of omniscience and to play the clairvoyant to a credulous public (he is supposed to read your soul or personality within seven minutes or so, depending upon his vision), is really in no need of ample knowledge or wisdom or insight.

His mask is shockingly simple. He must be of all sweet accord with his superior, and prove his loyalty by weeding out non-conformists. That task is not onerous. Thinking is minimal; obedience maximal. The machine works beautifully.

siderably in size. When the English write with apprehension of the enormous strength of the American navy, the American naval experts inevitably retaliate: "Why, did we not build up our navy for sole purpose of defending your islands from the German submarines?" This, you see, is the reason why America built up her navy. Of course, incidentally that navy may serve other purposes, too.

Why, then, did the United States call that Washington conference? Not because they could not build their warships fast enough, or because they could not make their liners big enough. No, America has no competition in that field. The main question was that of trained men—power. It is impossible to create over night a well-trained, well-disciplined navy personnel. That requires time. And therein lies the cause why the issue of a ten years' breathing spell was raised at the Washington conference. While insisting upon a limitation program in the construction of new liners, American military-naval publications made it known to the world that if that program was not accepted, America could show that she can turn out warships as speedily and efficiently as she can bake her celebrated pies. To this the leading English military-naval magazine answered approximately thus: "Why all these threats? We are always ready for a peaceful agreement." This is something new in the psychology of official England. England is fast learning to submit to America and the most she is demanding of her is politeness and good manners. Good manners. That is the maximum of what the European bourgeoisie may expect in the future from American capitalism.

In this struggle between England and the United States the former has only one alternative: to retreat, to compromise. That is the price English capital has to pay for the privilege of sharing in a measure in the fortunes of American capital. Thus is being produced a certain semblance of a coalition of Anglo-Saxon capital. England is thus able to save her face at the same time securing a goodly share of the spoils. But whatever England is getting she must pay for it by retreating before the onward march of American capital. And while politically the world position of America is growing stronger, that of England is becoming weaker and weaker.

Only recently England had to give up her plan to fortify Singapore. Singapore is the most strategic point between the Indian ocean and the Pacific. It is the most important base for English politics in the Far East. But these politics in the Pacific, England can pursue either in alliance with Japan against America or with America against Japan. A choice which was very difficult for McDonald to make. Hence his decision to give up the plan of fortifying Singapore regardless of the fact that large sums of money have already been assigned for that purpose. Of course, this is not yet the last word in the imperialist policy of Great Britain. The matter may be reconsidered later. For the present, however, it means that England has begun to recede from an independent policy of action on the Pacific.

And who, do you think, has ordered (yes ordered) England to sever her alliance with Japan? Of course, America. This demand was a virtual ultimatum to England, and England obeyed. So far England is retreating and retreating. But does it mean that England will continue this policy of retreat and that the possibility of war between England and the United States is excluded? Not by any means. On the contrary: Thru her present policy, England is getting only into greater and more difficult contradictions in her relations with the United States. Under the disguise of co-operation there are being accumulated contradictions between England and the United States of an unusually explosive nature. War between the two countries is not only a probability, but seems inevitable. It can hardly be expected that England will peacefully turn over her empire to America and serenely retreat to a secondary position in world affairs. The psychological moment will arrive when England will be forced to mobilize all her forces and make an attempt at armed resistance. But in an open struggle, too, all the chances seem to be on the side of America.

England is an island. America is also an island in a way, but a good deal larger. England is depending almost entirely upon other countries for her daily existence. America, on the other hand, has everything that is necessary for life and for the waging of war within her own borders. England has colonies in all the seas, and America will be "liberating" them. In case of war with England, America will immediately appeal to the millions of Hindus to rise in revolt against the British yoke and to defend their unalienable national rights. In the same way she will arouse Egypt and Ireland. There are many to be liberated from the yoke of British imperialism. Just as America has at present attired herself in the cloak of pacifism in order to sap the vitality out of Europe, she will in the coming war with England, appear on the arena as the great savior of the oppressed peoples of the colonies.

Old grandmother-history is serving as an oracle to American capital supplying it with ready made "humanitarian" slogans for every one of its intended robberies. With regard to China, America's policy is that of the "open door." Japan wishes to dismember China, to subjugate by force of arms certain Chinese provinces, because Japan needs the iron, coal and oil in which those provinces abound. Japan can neither live nor engage in war without iron, coal and oil. These are the three outstanding disadvantages in her struggle with the United States. She is therefore, trying to secure for herself the mineral wealth of China by means of conquest. But altruistic America says, "No, we want an open door in China." America pursues a similar policy with regard to navigation. She wants "freedom of the seas." But what does "freedom of the seas" mean in reality? It means this: "You, English fleet, move out of my way, please." And the "open door" in China means this: "You, little Jap, step aside and let me in." The whole affair is one of economic loot and plunder. It is only due to the specific development of the United States that this brutal business of American imperialism takes on the appearance of pacifism.

Of course, England too, has some important advantages resulting from the specific character of her historic development. England has mighty, fortified naval bases all over the world which America lacks. America, however, will be able to overcome this difficulty. She can build up and develop bases of her own or else seize them by force from England. It must also be remembered that England's sea bases, because they are intimately connected with her colonies, can therefore, be easily attacked. America will find allies and friends all over the world—the strongest always finds friends and thus be able to establish the necessary bases.

Already now America is gaining the confidence of Canada and Australia by championing the "interests" of the white race against the yellow race, thereby justifying her claim to supremacy on the sea. We shall not be a bit surprised, if in her next move, which may take place in the very near future, America will make a pious declaration that after all, the yellow people, too, are created in the image and likeness of God and, consequently, they possess an unalienable right to substitute English sovereignty by American economic rule.

The position of America in case of war with England would be that of a sure winner. America would from the very first day call upon the Hindus, Egyptians and other colonial nations to rise in revolt against English oppression supplying them at the same time with arms and ammunition and giving them general assistance. England will have to think ten times before she decides upon war. But without war England will have to retreat step by step before the pressure of American capital. For the conduct of war the English bourgeoisie needs the Lloyd Georges and Churchills, for a policy of retreat without battle the MacDonalds can be made use of.

The above picture of the relations between the United States and England, with a few changes and on a slightly smaller scale, could also stand for the relations between the United States and Japan. A miniature size of the same picture will show the relations between the United States and France and other secondary European governments. While Europe is busy quarrelling about some bits of land and strips of territory, such as Alsace-Lorraine, Ruhr, the Saar Basin, Silesia, etc., America is making plans to put all of Europe on a ration. Unlike England, America does not intend to establish in Europe an American army and an American administration. America will "allow" the people of Europe to maintain at their own expense reformist, pacifist, powerless governments composed of social-democrats, liberals and other petty-bourgeois parties, and the people will have to be grateful to America for a time at least, that she has not robbed them entirely of their "independence." Such are the plans of American capital and such is the program upon which the Second International is being re-established.

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. COMMUNISTS FLAY LA FOLLETTE

Foster Denounces Senator's Leaders and Program as Capitalism's Last Reserves

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING, the most authoritative political liar on the staff of the Chicago Tribune, invaded the realms of free verse in his attempt to extol the United States, which is at this moment—according to the republican party—basking in the reflected glory of Calvin Coolidge. Henning saw bricklayers going to work in flivvers, fields heavy with grain (he did not mention the grain growers heavy with worry over what the grain speculators and elevator owners would do to them), and a young lady returning from college—perhaps a coed from Northwestern University, kissing a rustic male at a village way station. Everything looked good to him, including the osculation.

• • • •

HOW different all this is to the condition of the people in Europe, says Henning? Well, what of it? The wealth of this country was not created by the Chicago Tribune and the parasitical capitalist class. The flivvers, flivvers, Pullmans, even the kisses on the cheeks of the girls who kissed the rustic, were produced by the workers, not by the class whose pied pipers, Henning and his co-workers in the field of journalistic harlotry, are. Who does all the work rightfully belong to? To the producers or to the exploiters of the producers?

• • • •

SIMPLY because this country is wealthy is no reason why the few should be allowed to grab off all the wealth while the workers exist on the crumbs that fall from the tables of the rich. It is an additional reason why they should get busy and take what rightfully belongs to them. The impudence of the American capitalists and their fugiemen merits adoration. To attribute this wealth to the wisdom of Calvin Coolidge and the political sagacity of the republican party is even more so.

• • • •

FOR ourselves, we will admit that this country is rich. But we ask the five or six million of unemployed how much of this wealth they have got. I should have said "unemployed workers." There are two kinds of unemployed. Those who are out of work because the boss does not see fit to employ them and those who don't work because they are too busy trying to spend the profits from the labor of others. Henning may see anything his paymasters want him to see. Capitalist journalists like allen-jus look at things thru the spectacles provided by their masters. But the workers are also beginning to see things. There are many Tribunes today and only one DAILY WORKER. But the Tribunes will be on the decrease while the DAILY WORKERS will increase. And this is a good time to suggest that our readers send a brick flying back to the business office of this paper with the name of a new subscriber on it.

• • • •

LOOKING for arguments to use against the capitalist system is not in itself a reason for eyestrain. Nevertheless, the author of this column was obliged to visit an optician and thereby hangs a tale. The white collared slave who waited on me remarked that in his opinion Calvin Coolidge would be our next president. My answer perceptibly narrowed his collar. As his bile was passing that portion of the human anatomy known to the laity as Adam's Apple, he managed to inquire how Calvin hit the bottom of my estimation.

• • • •

SUCH a superfluous question almost rendered me bereft of speech so I resorted to the dirty Yankee trick of asking him how Calvin Coolidge happened to win his approbation. He was knocked much more speechless than I was, if you will pardon the "bull." In order to break the deafening silence. I began to limber up by linking Calvin with Wall Street, assuming that my auditor did not know the dictionary definition.

SPOTLIGHT IS THROWN ON BIG LABOR FAKER

His History Marvel of Crookedness

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY
(Article 1)

The DAILY WORKER in the performance of its duty to the revolutionary movement for the freedom of the workingclass, not only is obliged to fight the capitalist system and the capitalist class who are the direct beneficiaries of that system but also the labor lieutenants of capital or better known as labor fakers.

This slimy crew of treacherous capitalist auxiliaries are very useful allies of the capitalist class in the latter's incessant war on the workers. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say that but for the aid of these hirelings, the capitalist class in every country would not hold power for a week.

The labor faker is not a purely American phenomenon. He can be found in every country in the world. But he can be seen in the United States at his worst because the capitalist class of this country can afford to pay their agents better for service rendered than any other collection of capitalist robbers in the world.

There are degrees of treason even among labor fakers. It is not the purpose of this series of articles to pick on any particular specimen of the species and hold him up to public scorn in order to satisfy a desire for vengeance against the breed, but rather to make use of the career of as odious a political leper as ever existed in the United States in order to enlighten the working class in general and the miners of Illinois in particular of the nature of the situation with which they are confronted so that they may be able to meet it.

The Horrible Example.

The specimen we have selected for our attention is no other than Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Miners' Union, also known as District 12 of the United Mine Workers of America.

The time for making the exposure is opportune as it coincides with the election campaign that is now being waged inside the miners' union of Illinois. Farrington and his henchmen are seeking re-election to the offices which they have disgraced by their presence, and which they have used to serve the interests of the coal operators of Illinois rather than the miners who are paying their salaries.

The Farrington machine having long ago lost the confidence of the Illinois miners is now in desperation resorting to the same illegal methods in getting rid of its opponents that

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS CONTINUE TO GROW IN SAME OLD SWEATSHOPS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Sweatshop conditions in the artificial flower industry in the United States do not seem to have disappeared, if statistics reported by the department of commerce in its census of manufacturers for 1923 are a fair index.

These figures show that $4,501,701 was paid in wages to an average of 4,695 persons in the industry last year—an average yearly wage of $958. Salaried workers to the number of 654 received $1,395,659, or $2,134 each.

The work done for these wages and salaries resulted in a gross profit to 223 establishments of $4,564,469. Of the 223 shops, 168 were in New York.

PARTY ON RHODE ISLAND BALLOT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 12.—The Workers Party candidates for president and vice-president of the United States have gone on the ballot with a bang in Rhode Island. The Communist standard-bearers, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, received many hundreds of signatures more than the amount required, John J. Ballam, district organizer, tells the DAILY WORKER.

"Now the oppressed textile workers of Rhode Island and Massachusetts will have a chance to voice a concrete protest against all the capitalist exploiters who have oppressed them in the dust-filled mills," Ballam declares.

In order to make doubly sure that no excuse can be made for throwing the Foster-Gitlow electors off the ballot, Comrade Ballam will file four hundred more signatures Tuesday. The workers of Rhode Island, who brave the open shop wages and working hours, and the occupational diseases so prevalent in the textile mills, are now given a chance to support the only candidates in the field who represent the control of the government by the working class.

BIG CLOTHING WORKERS' MEET FLAYS SIGMAN

Reactionary Officials In New Plot

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Thousands of rank and file workers in the cloak and dressmaking trades assembled in Cooper Union hall yesterday to protest against the czarist tactics of the officialdom of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which for two years, under the direction of President Morris Sigman, in New York, and Vice-President Meyer Perlstein in Chicago, has depleted the union treasury, has expelled the fighting union members who have attempted to put thru progressive measures, has choked off every effort at real gain for the workers, and has surrendered the rights of the union to the arbitrary demands of bosses and government agents who were backing up the bosses.

A resolution calling for a huge mass meeting in Madison Square Garden and another resolution denouncing the latest move of the officials—the foisting of an increase of fifteen cents in dues without even a pretense at consulting the membership—were carried by acclamation. A sum of over six hundred dollars was collected to carry on the fight and a committee of one hundred and fifty elected to circulate the petitions against the action of the machine.

Overflow Meeting.

Hours before the time for which the meeting was announced, workers were flocking direct from the shops to Cooper Union hall. A big overflow meeting was held in the Stuyvesant Casino, and hundreds of workers stood outside, unable to gain admittance.

The workers made it clear that it is not so much the increase in dues which they mind as the fact that this increase is enforced over the heads of the membership and against their will. They have lost faith in the officials and know that the funds which are to be raised will be used, not to gain the demands of the workers against the bosses, but to enforce the decisions of the bureaucracy and to build up the machine.

To Drop Dictators.

The anger of the rank and file workers in the needle trades, which has been aroused by the tactics which the Sigman machine has been using for the past two years, has now reached a point where they are ready to overthrow the official dictatorship.

Ever since the beginning of its term in office, the Sigman-Perlstein "socialist" officials have tried to lead the union along the path of reaction.

At the national convention of the needle trades held in Boston, the machine expelled the militant workers—some of whom had prove themselves the best fighters during the Chicago

FIRST COMMUNIST CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT PREDICTS DAY WHEN WORKERS WILL RULE IN AMERICA

"The last reserve troops of capitalism," was William Z. Foster's characterization of the LaFollette leaders and program in the presidential campaign, in the first big meeting in Chicago of the Communist presidential candidate.

Mercilessly flaying the shallow reforms advanced by the "third party" as a sure cure for the ills of the working class, Foster pointed out that LaFollette in America is performing the same historical role as that of the social-democrats in Germany, the left bloc in France and the MacDonald government in Great Britain.

"Each of these four movements," said Foster, "has but one task to perform, namely, to save the capitalist system from being overthrown by a revolutionary mass movement of the working class.

Calls It "Hopeless Mulligan."

"The differing characteristics of the German social-democracy, the labor party of Great Britain, the left bloc in France, and the LaFollette movement," said Foster, "only serve to emphasize their common historical function.

"The first is a party of workers built on individual membership with a long history, the second is a federation build mainly on workers' economic organizations with a more brief historical background, the third is a parliamentary combination of labor and petty bourgeois parties and groups, and the last, the LaFollette movement, is a hopeless mulligan of all class elements without any definite form.

"But above all these differences, their common element and their common social function stand out with startling clearness. All are the blinders put upon the masses, the embodiment of the 'democratic illusions,' by means of which capitalism perpetuates its rule.

"I have the great honor of being the first Communist candidate for president," said Foster, in opening his speech. "I will tell you a secret—that I do not expect to be elected." The laughter of the crowd quickly changed to enthusiastic cheers as Foster went on to say: "But some day a Communist will head the government that rules over America, only when that time comes the position will not be called president—it will be chairman of the All-American Soviet."

Must Organize Advance Guard.

Mobilization of the advance guard of the workers was stressed by Foster as a fundamental aim of the Workers Party in its election campaign. The strengthening and building of the Workers Party, thru the enlistment of all workers who realize that the only road for their class leads to the overthrow of the capitalist system was emphasized by Foster. He appealed to all such workers in the hall to put in their application for membership in the Workers Party.

"The DAILY WORKER is the greatest single weapon of the American workers in their struggle against oppression," declared Foster, and he called for united and energetic efforts to extend its circulation to the millions of workers who have not yet seen it.

"Our biggest task today," said Foster, "is to combat and destroy the LaFollette illusion, which is the greatest obstacle to the development

CONSTABULARY STARS FLASH IN HERRIN RIOTS

Glenn Young Exposed as Cossack Officer

By KARL REEVE.

That the Illinois department of constabulary, with offices at 104 West Monroe Street, is composed almost entirely of Ku Klux Klan members, with a sprinkling of Chicago politicians, and that it was organized as a basis for a legal state constabulary in case the employers succeed in putting a state constabulary over on the people of Illinois, is disclosed in an investigation of the organization by the DAILY WORKER.

Members of this private corporation disclose to the DAILY WORKER that over two hundred klansmen in Herrin are members of the state constabulary, and that S. Glenn Young, the southern Illinois klan raider and law breaker, is an officer of the state constabulary.

The state constabulary is a private organization composed of gangsters and thugs, with a number of honest workers who are roped in to believing that the slogan of the organization to "reduce crime," is the real reason for its existence.

Recent Herrin Killers Are Members.

Most of the klansmen who took part in the recent klan riots at Herrin, when six men were killed as a result of klan lawlessness, are prominent in the state constabulary. Carilary. Harry Herrin, klansman who drove up in an automobile and shot at sheriff Galligan during the recent klan outbreak in Herrin, is a "sarg

GITLOW AND DUNNE ALSO SET FORTH WORKERS' POSITION IN THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

The biggest Communist rally ever staged in Chicago was held yesterday in the Ashland Auditorium, when an audience that packed the great labor amphitheater to the limit heard William Z. Foster, noted strike leader and Communist candidate for president of the United States on the Workers Party ticket, state the Communist program and exposed the pretensions of the capitalist pseudo-reformer, Robert M. LaFollette, to represent the masses of workers and exploited farmers.

Tremendous enthusiasm was aroused when William F. Dunne, Communist candidate for governor of Illinois, introduced the first Communist candidate for president in the history of the United States.

"I have the great honor of being the first Communist candidate for president," said Foster, and then with a merry twinkle in his eyes he continued, "but I will tell you a secret—I do not expect to be elected."

This sally brought gales of laughter from the audience but Foster had them cheering immediately after when he said:

"But some day a Communist will head the government that rules over America, only when that time comes the position will not be called president, it will be chairman of the All-American Soviet."

Foster Full of Vigor.

Foster was in excellent form and full of vigor after his arduous cross-country campaign. The fact that he did not travel in special trains, accompanied by honorary guards of police and delegations from the American Legion, as is the case with his opponent LaFollette and the two other capitalist hackeys, did not seem to have detrimental effect on his health. Foster is accustomed to hard campaigning.

Foster sailed into LaFollette with enthusiasm. "Our biggest task today is to combat and destroy the LaFollette illusion, which is the greatest obstacle to the development of the working class and its struggles."

He called the LaFollette movement "the last reserve of capitalism" and points out that it was performing the same historical function in the United States that the MacDonald government performed in England, the Herriots in France and the social democrats in Germany.

The illusion that LaFollette upheld working class interests or could save the workers from the coming imperialist war, was particularly attacked by the speaker, who asserted that only when the workers established a proletarian dictatorship can imperialist wars be ended.

Communists Enter National Struggle.

William F. Dunne, who recently returned from Russia where he attended the Fifth Congress of the Communist International as a delegate from the Workers Party, declared that the placing of the Communist ticket on the ballot for the first time in American history was an event of historic importance.

"It marks the entry of the Communists into the national struggle as a potential force with which American capitalism will have to reckon," he declared.

He pictures the United States as the headquarters for the world-wide conspiracy of the capitalists against the rising tide of working class revolt.

"The Dawes' plan makes America the center of world counter-revolution and it holds over the heads of the world's workers the constant threat of imperialist war."

Big Welcome for Gitlow.

Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for vice-president on the Communist ticket was given a rousing welcome. He declared that capitalism in the United States was going thru a crisis and this winter would see factory after factory shut down and workers in every line of industry would have their wages reduced.

"Every attempt on the part of the workers to resist the exactions of the capitalists will be brutally suppressed by the bosses," declared Gitlow. "The crisis in agriculture will not be ended owing to the slight increase in the price of wheat because it is based on the economic demoralization of Europe."

He declared that the republican and democratic parties are servants of Wall Street and that LaFollette represents the small exploiters of labor. "LaFollette will be used to stave off the workers' revolt, to turn it into reformist channels and to so save the capitalist dictatorship."

Hail the DAILY WORKER.

The great labor auditorium, flying banners hailing the DAILY WORKER, the only real working class newspaper in the English language, was packed to its capacity and then some.

It was a great gathering of men and women from the rank and file of labor who had come to greet their spokesmen.

The union groups were out in full force. Many packing house workers, who remembered Foster's organization work among them, came to hear him. There was a large representation from the membership of the Amalgamated Food Workers' Union, carrying their banner.

Many Unions Represented.

Other union groups were conspicuous for the beautiful colorful bright red kerchiefs around their necks and every few minutes loud and long cheers were given for Foster and Gitlow.

An outstanding feature of the meeting is the large representation of Negroes. No other political meeting in the city of Chicago was so largely attended by Negro workers. With them is seen Joseph Bibbs, editor of the Whip, a Negro weekly.

Everybody Reads "THE DAILY."

Nearly everyone in the audience carried a copy of the Special Chicago edition of the DAILY WORKER. Outside the hall, in front of the Auditorium building, passers by on their way to other gatherings, bought the DAILY

STATE CONSTABULARY IS PRIVATE VENTURE OF BOSSES AND KLAN

When the ordinary worker hears of the activities of the "State Constabulary of Illinois" he jumps to the conclusion that this organization is a part of the state machinery such as the state constabulary of Pennsylvania. The DAILY WORKER discloses that such is not the case.

The state constabulary of Illinois is a private organization backed by Chicago politicians, the Ku Klux Klan, and those employers of labor who allow it to shake down the workers because it shouts Americanism and builds up the skeleton for a state militarism.

S. Glenn Young, the notorious Southern Illinois gunman, uses the state constabulary as his sole authority for his lawbreaking activities. Politicians use the organization to push militaristic propaganda and to aid them into office. The workers pay the expenses and all they get in return is a tin star and organization which will shoot them down in times of strikes and wars.

This issue contains the first of a series of articles exposing the militaristic, Ku Klux Klan activities of the state constabulary.

JUDGE ADMITS SACCO, VANZETTI ATTACK IS WEAK

Lawyers Finally Get Copy of Decision

By ART SHIELDS
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 12.—A copy of Judge Webster Thayer's opinion denying a new trial to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti has just been received by defense attorneys Moore, McAmorney and Thompson.

It contains the startling admission that the murder case against the two young radicals must rest on circumstantial evidence.

State's Evidence Shaken.

The state's direct evidence had been badly shaken by affidavits of Lola Andrews and Louis Pelser confessing perjury, and by numerous other affidavits attesting the criminal record or general unreliability of other witnesses.

It was further shaken by the affidavit of an important new defense witness, Roy B. Gould. This witness stood so close to the murder car that one of the bandits shot him thru the overcoat. He got an excellent description of the man and gave his story to the police at the time but was not called by the state. The gist of Judge Thayer's argument disposing of the Gould affidavit which clears Sacco, was that after all the testimony of another eye witness made little difference—that the state's case depended on circumstantial evidence.

Judge Builds Up Case.

Judge Thayer devotes several pages of his opinion to an argument for the place of circumstantial evidence which he considers the strongest. This is simply the fact that Sacco and Vanzetti gave the police erroneous information about themselves when they were arrested. The two Italian workingmen made the explanation afterwards that they were seeking to avoid persecution as radicals—they were arrested at the height of the Palmer anti-red hysteria—but Judge Thayer brushed this explanation aside.

Yet persecution of radicals had been especially marked in Massachusetts and many arrested workers had adopted the policy of mystifying their captors for their own protection.

Thayer Acts Like Prosecutor.

Judge Thayer's long opinion reads like special prosecution's pleading thruout the 210 pages. There is no dispassionate judicial tone. The man on the bench is ardently trying to get the two men before him for execution. He meets strong defense testimony by slurring defense council or passing the buck to the jury. The defense affidavit, signed by Louis Pelzer, in which this star state's witness admits he lied when he said he saw Sacco firing is entirely passed over in the text of the certified copy of the opinion turned over to the Sacco-Vanzetti attorneys.

The judge comes out as a protector of Lola Andrews, arch perjurer and censures Fred H. Moore, senior defense lawyer, who got the woman to swear that she had testified falsely under the coercion of the district attorney when she identified Sacco. Later the district attorney got hold of Lola Andrews again and obtained another affidavit repudiating the one she gave Moore. Judge Thayer insists that she is now telling the truth. He says nothing concerning a prior affidavit that Lola Andrews made before the trial, stating that she positively had not seen Sacco at South Braintree.

Before Court in January.

Again he scolds the defense for what he terms "cruel and atrocious" treatment of a certain Goodridge, another star state's witness who sought to swear Sacco's life away. The defense dug up the fact that Goodridge had served two prison terms and had two indictments still out against him. Thayer alleges that the defense has attempted to persecute Goodridge on the basis of his criminal record. He agrees that Goodridge's testimony had already ben sufficiently impeached at the trial. But the theory of the judge is that the veracity of the state's direct witnesses doesn't matter so much—that the case rests on circumstantial evidence. So, if Sacco and Vanzetti go to the chair it will be another victory for circumstantial evidence.

The case will probably come before the January term of the supreme court.

FALL BRINGS NEW INCREASES IN RETAIL COST OF OUR FOOD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—With the advent of fall the retail cost of food took another jump in 20 cities during September, the highest increase amounting to three per cent, being reported at Bridgeport, Fall River, Mobile and New Haven, the department of labor announced today.

WORKERS PARTY IN NEW YORK IS PROUD OF ITS ACHIEVEMENT IN FILING 22,000 NAMES FOR TICKET

By HARRY M. WINITSKY.
Campaign Manager Workers Party.

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 12.—It was on Tuesday, Oct. 7, at the stroke of midnight, that Comrade Charles Krumbein, the organizer of this district, and Comrade Edward Lindgren appeared at the office of the secretary of state at Albany, and filed over 22,000 signatures to put the presidential and vice-presidential as well as the candidates for governor and the entire state ticket of the Workers Party on the November election ballot.

The task of putting over our ticket has been an exceptionally difficult one and the comrades and district office can be justly proud of its achievement. Every possible effort is made by the capitalist class to make it almost impossible to have a class party put its candidates on the ballot and the law therefore, requires that we file at least 12,000 signatures to put our national and state ticket over. However, the Workers Party filed over 22,000 signatures instead of the 12,000 required by the law. The laws of the state of New York further require that we file at least 50 signatures from each and every one of the 62 counties in the state and we have filed at least 100 from each and every county.

In addition to the above 22,000 signatures filed in the office of the secretary of state in Albany, Comrade Harry M. Winitsky, the campaign manager and Comrade Benjamin Lipshitz, the chairman of the campaign committee on outside activities, filed over 31,000 signatures at the office of the board of elections in the city of New York to put on the ballot of this city 20 local candidates of the Workers Party.

The Workers Party of this district has filed over 55,000 signatures in the state of New York and we are confident that our candidates will go on the ballot this year.

Now that our candidates will go on the ballot and the tremendous task of gathering and filing the petitions is over, the campaign committee is now planning a whirlwind finish for the COMMUNIST campaign in New York. In addition to the open air meetings held thruout the city every night, over 30 indoor meetings have been arranged for thruout the city in all the congressional districts, and the committee has also arranged for monster "RED NIGHTS" in each congressional district in addition to the indoor rallies. The first red night was held in Williamsburg, Oct. 10.

The second red night was held in Harlem, Saturday night, Oct. 11, where eleven meetings were held with 58 speakers participating. The "RED NIGHT" will wind up with a grand rally to be held at 110th street and 5th avenue, and will be addressed by Juliet Stuart Poyntz, William W. Weinstone and Abraham Markoff, candidate in this district and Harry M. Wicks, Harry M. Winitsky and Rose Pastor Stokes.

Red Nights in Other Districts.

Oct. 17—Bronx, 23rd congressional district.
Oct. 18—East Side, 14th congressional district.
Oct. 25—Lower East Side, 12th congressional district.

WHEELER DODGED THE CLASS ISSUE AND GOT MESSED UP IN CESSPOOL; IOWA DEMOCRATS SCENT VICTORY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Oct. 12.—The democrats are making a big effort to sweep into power because of the notion being spread that many regular republicans will bolt Senator Brookhart in view of his open attack on the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

In line with this aim the democrats have produced a certain Al Fink with a big story. The story aims to let the cat out of the bag and tell some of the so-far untold phases of the recent Daugherty investigation. This Fink is now coming forward with an affidavit which shows that Wheeler and Brookhart bribed Roxie Stinson in order to secure evidence in the Daugherty case.

Daniel Steck, the democratic candidate for senator, is trying to break the old belief here that a democratic victory in Iowa is as rare as a hen's tooth. The strategy is good. The democrats know that the whole Daugherty investigation is so steeped in political filth and corruption that is not at all difficult to prove that everyone connected with it is tainted. All the witnesses who were called, the questions investigated, the general atmosphere surrounding the examination—all furnish fertile soil for such suspicions and recriminations.

It is interesting to note that when the Daugherty investigation was begun, an effort was made to have the so-called progressive leader, Wheeler, look into the strikebreaking and spy activities of Burns and the Attorney General. Plenty of evidence was offered Wheeler to convict Burns and Daugherty of the worst charges. But Wheeler spurned everyone who even suggested that the anti-labor activities be examined. Mr. Wheeler did not want to talk about the workers because he felt then he would be open to attack along class lines. Instead he limited himself to whiskey scandals, prostitution and debauchery. Today Mr. Wheeler seems to have gotten into a cesspool himself.

New Orleans Traction Ring Tries to Sell Stock Thru Workers

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—That disreputable old harlot the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., which was obliged a short time ago to change its name from the New Orleans Railway and Light company in order to prevent being run in by Guy Maloney's men on a "D. & S." charge, is at it again.

Not content with charging the public seven cents for a ride in the things called street cars, is now unloading twenty five thousand shares of its preferred stock on an unwilling public and its employes at one hundred bucks a share.

Conductors, motormen and track walkers have been pressed into service to sell their friends—not forgetting themselves. This also saves commission to salesmen.

Attack Pa. Sedition Law.

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 12.—The United Trades Council of Western Pennsylvania meeting here, heard representatives from Allegheny county savagely attack the Flynn sedition law of the state, especially in connection with the persecution of Farrell Communists. Allegheny county representatives, speaking to the one hundred delegates, hurled cutting invectives at district attorney Leroy Rickard for his activities in bringing about the conviction of the five Communists in Farrell.

FIVE INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN WORK DAYS FOR PHILLY

Young Workers Help Party Put It Over

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 12.—Owing to extraordinary circumstances, Philadelphia Workers Party branches had to postpone their mobilization day to Sunday, October 19.

Sunday will be the first of five intensive days of agitation and propaganda that will end up with the huge mass meeting in the Labor Lyceum, 6th and Brown streets on Friday, Oct. 24.

On October 19, party members of Philadelphia will be given 50,000 copies of Special Philadelphia Edition of the DAILY WORKER for distribution to be followed within a day or two by a distribution of 30,000 party platforms. The October 19 Red Sunday mobilization day will include the Young Workers League branches who have shown a splendid activity in the campaign.

The concert and ball of the city central committee which will take place on Saturday, October 18, at the Eagles Temple, will be a fitting prelude to the hardest week of Communist work that Philadelphia comrades had yet undertaken. The excellent concert program which cannot be included here owing to the lack of space will be a real inspiration to our comrades.

The distribution of 10,000 platforms and cards for the Rose Pastor Stokes meeting was a test that convices us that the big distribution will be a real success.

Yowls Actiye.

The Young Workers' League of this city has been an important factor in our campaign work and especially in the industrial work.

The splendid co-operation and the astounding ability of these young comrades has been a real contribution to every campaign and move that the party organized in Philadelphia.

A special column in the Philadelphia edition of the DAILY WORKER will be devoted to the activities of the Y. W. L.

A mass meeting of young workers has been organized by the Philadelphia City Central Committee of the Y. W. L. in the Eagles Temple for Thursday, October 30, with Jack Stachel from New York as one main speaker, who will be preceded by local speakers of the Y. W. L. recently developed on the party platforms. 20,000 cards and circulars will be distributed at the shops employing young workers to assure the success of this mass meeting.

Open Air Meetings in Chicago.

WAGE SLASH IS HELD UP UNTIL ELECTION DAY

Then Workers Don't Know What'll Happen

(By The Federated Press)

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 12.—The general wage reduction which employers have been insisting was inevitable has been put off in all but a few cotton mills of this state.

In fact the Blackstone Valley mills of the Manville-Jenckes corporation are the only important ones attempting the new polley. Talks of wage cuts hangs in the air but it is very doubtful if the majority of the manufacturers will risk the new program.

Wait for After the Election.

What will happen after election is problematical but the slightly improved demand for cotton goods seems to be giving the unions a somewhat better strategic position.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers' Union, told the Federated Press in his Pawtucket office that the organization is taking in new members every day. He declared that a restoration of the wages will be forced.

"We propose," said Mr. McMahon, "to restore not only the ten per cent but the rest due us from the 22½ per cent cut of January, 1921."

The United Textile Workers' executive is meeting the manufacturers' propaganda for the alleged economic necessity for a wage cut with five rebutting arguments, which he summarized for the Federated Press as follows:

1. During the past year employers have increased per capita production 25 per cent at the most conservative estimate, with an average reduction in overhead costs of 25 per cent.

2. Cost of cotton materials, the most important cost factor in the industry, has gone down more than 30 per cent in the last six months.

3. The entire labor cost in textile mills is only 17 per cent of every dollar spent by the American cotton consumer.

4. Practically all textile corporations have in the last few years increased capitalization from 100 to 300 per cent by stock dividends, entirely taken from profits, without additional investment for new machinery.

5. The ten per cent cut, which means as much to the textile workers who average about $18 when on full time represents a cost saving of only one-third of a cent a yard, which the consumer does not get.

Play with Tariff Situation.

McMahon is emphasizing the fact that the manufacturers, now urging a wage cut, control the republican machine which promised the workers full time at high wages after the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill passed In spite of these promises the republican textile manufacturers are now seeking to put wages below the level existing before the passage of the tariff law which protects them from European competition.

NEW 'PEACE' HOAX IS PEDDLED BY RADIO MEETING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—A new "peace" hoax is being peddled in Washington these days. This time it is not a conference that is being proposed, but a real business-like approach is being put forward.

The biggest business interests controlling the radio industry of the company in an air-tight monopoly are on the job to pacify the universe. They are working overtime trying to sell the idea that the establishment of super-power broadcasting stations in the principal capitalist countries of the world will bind the "nations" closer and inspire them with a spirit of brotherly love.

It is proposed to broadcast the music, politics, the art, the literature of the big powers as a means of promoting an international culture and brotherhood.

Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany, the United States and the South American countries are to be linked. The radio conference in session here is working on details of the plan. Soviet Russia has not been mentioned. Nor has it been decided whether stock exchange news and secret treaties and alliance between imperialist powers will be broadcasted.

Schwab Drives Miners From their Homes and Into Communist Ranks

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, more coal miners, with their families, are being driven from company-owned shacks, called "homes," at Dakota and Barracksville, near Fairmont, West Virginia, capital city of the most brutal white terror dominions of the home state of John "Wall Street" Davis, democratic candidate for president.

Davis does not protest. It has been his job in the past, and may be again, when election day has passed, to aid on the legal side of these ruling class attacks on the workers. Davis is a lawyer.

• • • •

But the yellow officials of the United Mine Workers of America, who are kissing the feet of "The Strike Breaker" now occupying the White House, thought this Coolidge could be urged to break his silence. It would be good campaign stuff!

Van A. Bittner, of Pittsburgh, official "red baiter" of the John L. Lewis administration in the international miners' union, sent the telegram to the ivory domed sphinx in the White House, that was to draw a protest from him against the West Virginian evictions.

• • • •

President Lewis is a political lackey of the Coolidge administration. Lewis wants "The Strike Breaker" re-elected.

International Organizer Bittner also wants Coolidge re-elected. He is also for "The Strike Breaker."

But the coal miners want to know what they are getting out of it. They want to know how the million coal miners of the nation are benefitting thru this alliance of their highest officials with the "open shop" administration in Washington.

• • • •

Bittner is in West Virginia for the Lewis administration. He has to show some results. A telegram from Coolidge, the republican, protesting against capitalist misrule in democratic West Virginia, would help.

Bittner, in his fondest dreams, saw republican votes sprouting everywhere in the mining camps. It would also help in the coming referendum in the miners' union for the election of international officials.

But the White House was as silent as ever. Coolidge's brain refused to function as Bittner had hoped. Labor officials are accepted as bootlickers. But they must never ask favors.

They are given a kick in the face occasionally, to keep them in their places. If they are very, very good, under these circumstances, they may get a cheap meal ticket, in the shape of a government job.

But they must never ask favors on behalf of the workers, not even to keep themselves in the good graces of the rank and file of their respective unions. That is treason to the capitalist master.

• • • •

The coal miners of West Virginia may starve. Their children may sicken and die, under the open skies, with winter coming on, with no homes and no work. But Coolidge remains silent. When he speaks it is only on the side of the mine owners.

The coal mines at Dakota and Barracksville are owned by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, headed by Charles M. Schwab. Schwab is typical of the American capitalist class. Bethlehem, Pa., Schwab's home town, is a typical American industrial hell.

Coolidge is silent because he is for Schwab and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. He can afford to remain silent because he knows the deputy sheriffs of West Virginia will do their duty, as interpreted by the mine owners.

The coal miners are being driven from their homes because they object to a wage cut. Schwab is trying to slash wages fifty per cent. This huge wage cut is in violation of the union agreement signed at Baltimore by the Schwab interests.

But wage contracts are only pieces of paper, to be torn to shreds by the mine owners, whenever they wish. Only the workers must consider wage contracts "sacred" and never violate them.

For 61 years, since 1863, the coal miners of West Virginia, thru their toil, have been sending forth coal to the rest of the world by the hundreds of millions of tons. They dig coal in 51 of the 55 counties of the state. They labor in one of the largest continuous coal fields in the world. The Fairmont field is one of the richest. West Virginia stands only second to Pennsylvania and Illinois in production. But it is the label "non-union" that is put upon most of the coal produced. It is put there by the mine owners, successful in their long war against the mine workers.

But the coal miners of West Virginia, dispossessed, out of jobs, hunted by mine guards, fight on. Their record is one of the most militant in America's labor history. They will build their economic power, thru their union, in spite of Coolidge's bootlicking lackeys, Lewis and Bittner. They will achieve their 100 per cent union, like the coal miners of Illinois. They will see the need of class political action. They will realize, more and more, in the days to come, like the coal miners of the Ruhr, in the valley of death between France and Germany, that their interests demand that they join the Communist ranks.

• • • •

Miners of West Virginia! Let the days of begging favors from the mine owners and their political puppets pass!

Stand erect and fight thru your union, and your party, the Workers (Communist) Party, for the seizure of all power. Only in this way can you achieve your emancipation.

Shop Collections Show Fine Results

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Subscription lists of the shop collection drive, when they arrive at campaign headquarters look like dirty, greasy, crumpled scraps of paper, but each carries a story of its own.

List No. 20,843, returned by Ed Sonntag, is well covered with names and carried a total of $22.10.

Herman Gund returns List No. 16,441. He has made a collection among the workers employed by the Fleishman Cake Baking Co., the total of which is $10.50.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers are now employed at part time. Their earnings are not large but List No. 20,165 brings in $8.80 from the fifteen workers employed in the Pinchuk Bros. shop. This collection was made by Max Novick.

Other lists come in, but there are too many to be dealt with individually.

The campaign committee is badly in need of funds now. We call on every holder of a list to finish his shop collection and turn it in now.

ONLY MANSION IN THE SKIES, WORKER LEARNS

All Promises Forgotten After Publicity Stunt

By SYDNEY WARREN.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 12.—Here's the story of how a worker was bunooed out of a bungalow he was supposed to have won in a building fair contest promoted for free advertising purposes by the British Columbia Manufacturers' Association.

About a year ago this organization started a campaign to make British Columbia products by offering a bungalow worth $5,000, as the first prize in a lottery contest.

Two Bits a Throw.

A 25 cent ticket admitted the holder to view an exhibition of canned fruits, bricks, tiles, wood veneers, bottled pickles and other displays of gastronomic and artistic value.

The ticket also entitled the person to a chance in the lottery. For $1 four tickets of admission and five chances on winning the bungalow were given. Under certain conditions the winner of the bungalow also would receive a piano and $500 in furniture. It looked good to everyone in Vancouver and most of them bit—some to the tune of several dollars.

D. G. McDonald, a purser aboard the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Alice, was among those who bit and when he came into port one day and was told that he was the lucky man and had won the $5000 bungalow and in addition the piano and $500 in furniture, he felt that either he was receiving his heavenly reward or at least that his planets were exceedingly well-aspected, speaking in the manner of astrologists.

For some days he had no peace. He was announced as the winner in the local Brass Check Press and his photograph appeared with several interviews from a bevy of sob-sisters. A few days after the furore McDonald received an invitation to attend a banquet to be given by the British Columbia Manufacturers' Assn. at which he supposed he would be formally presented with the prized key that won. But such was far from the case. After the eats, the chairman, J. A. Cunningham, president of the association, broke the news to McDonald gently. He prefaced his remarks by saying that he didn't wish them to get beyond the four walls of the banqueting room and then bluntly told McDonald that, so far as getting the bungalow, he thot he had won—but, well the association was financially hard up and that he would have to wait for his bungalow until it took the shape of a mansion in another world.

Forget Their Promises.

McDonald then asked the secretary of the aggregation of business pirates what about the piano and the furniture he had also won and was informed that the firms that had offered to provide these articles as prizes had decided, now the contest was over, that it was hardly necessary to live up to their promises, certainly not profitable; the excuse offered was that if they gave these articles they exposed themselves to a violation of the laws against lotteries. This happy thot only came after weeks of free advertising.

The association in an outburst of generosity then suggested that McDonald buy a lot in the expensive Shaughnessy subdivision and that the association would build him a house on the lot for $10,000, putting in their materials at wholesale prices. McDonald asked what about the $5,000 bungalow he had won but at the question the association lost all further interest in him.

In order to spar for time the members of the association assured McDonald that they would individually if necessary, pledge their names and mortgage their properties to see to it that he was fairly dealt with. Shortly afterwards the organization went out of business—before McDonald could take legal action.

Moans Departure of Ancient Customs of New Mexico Indians

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. — "A hundred helpless Indian tribes are caught in the net of the U. S. Indian bureau," John Collier told the Indian Defense Association. Collier denounced the recent attempt to kill the religion of the Pueblos, and the constant drive to substitute American customs for the ancient tribal life of the Indians. Witter Bynner, the poet, who is in San Francisco after a long sojourn in New Mexico, says that the tribal habits and traditions of the aborigines are being slowly disintegrated by officials greedy for the natural wealth owned by the tribes. All the Indians of California are backing a festival in San Francisco the proceeds of which are to go to the tribes in northern counties, many members of which are said to be starving.

Great Throng Hears Communists Outline Workers' Struggle For All Power of the working class and its struggles."

WORKERS PARTY RAISES SLOGAN OF CLASS FIGHT

Show Daily Worker Is Powerful Weapon

LaFollette Accepts Capitalism.

The LaFollette program, Foster pointed out, accepts capitalism as its starting point. It completely ignores the fact that all the ills of the working class spring from the capitalist system and can only be abolished with the system that causes them. LaFollette wants to tinker around the capitalist machine and repair it. He wants to soften some of its more glaring evils and make it more beautiful and palatable to the masses. He wants to extend the democratic forms, and lead the workers to look to their reforms for relief, instead of struggling to establish their own power to control society.

"Never, however, does LaFollette or his program touch the vital question of power—which class is to rule. He throws a mask over the brutal and obvious fact that the present system is a dictatorship of the capitalist class. He does not propose a single measure that so much as hints at overthrowing that dictatorship. Foster drove home this point with great emphasis and clarity to a crowd that was attentive and which greeted his sallies with appreciation.

No Blows at Capital.

"LaFollette's backers boast that 15 out of 15 measures formerly advocated by him have been enacted into law. They were all of the same sort that he advocates now. One would think, from the boasts of his boosters, that these measures had been a blow at the rule of capital. Nothing of the sort. Capitalism is stronger today by a hundred times than it was when LaFollette began his work, and his measures, so far from weakening the capitalist dictatorship have strengthened it.

"Take, for exmaple, the direct election of senators," said Foster. "Formerly senators were elected by the legislatures, and the corruption, the open purchase and sale of votes by means of which the capitalists determined who should fill the offices, constituted a festering sore and an incitement to revolt to the masses. LaFolletteism "cured" this sore, but did the capitalists lose their control of the offices? Not a bit of it. With their control of party machinery, of the press, of the schools, of the ideas and the means of spreading ideas to the masses, with their complete and undisputed control of industry—the capitalist class continues its dictatorship undisturbed, while the masses are fooled into thinking that something has been fundamentally changed. But it is the same old capitalist system, fitted out with a new dress by LaFolletteism.

"It is a great mistake to suppose because the big capitalists oppose LaFollette now, that this proves LaFollette represents the workers. Capitalism is still arrogant, and thinks it can rule thru a Coolidge. German capitalism also used to oppose the social-democrats of Germany; they hounded and outlawed the socialists; but when their hour of crisis came, and capitalism could have been overthrown in Germany, the ruling class turned to the social-democracy, which deliberately saved capitalism, which shot down revolting workers by the thousands, and turned to patching up the shattered system. The capitalist class of America will similarly turn to LaFollette, and LaFollette will perform the same service for them in America that Ebert and Scheidemann performed for the German capitalist class."

"War Referendum" Is Joke.

LaFollette says he is against war, declared Foster, but his program leads directly to war, just the same as that of Coolidge or of Davis. He proposes a referendum on war, but not the slightest move to control and remove the cause of war, capitalism. Such a referendum is more than a ghastly joke; it is designed as an instrument of war itself, for it will become merely a means of more effectively mobilizing the masses for the coming world imperialist war, by fooling them into thinking that they have something to say about the decision.

Even now, Foster pointed out, so early in the game, the capitalists are quite widely beginning to recognize how valuable LaFollette is to their class interests, and their antagonism to him is being softened a great deal, while a few big ones, like Spreckles and Vanderlip, actually go along and receive decisive voices in LaFollette's councils. But the workers are building up a Frankenstein, by supporting LaFollette, that will turn and devour them, just as did the monster of social-democracy with the German workers in 1918.

"Again all this reformism and class collaboration the Workers Party," declared Foster, "raises the slogan of the class struggle. We know from history that ruling classes cannot be driven from power by a slow process of reform. In every case that a ruling class has been disposed in the past it has been thru the open struggle by the rising class. Capitalism itself came into being thru a series of revolutions, that made one world revolution against the prevailing feudal system. American, German, French, Italian and British capitalism were all born in civil war.

"We live under the most ruthless, the best organized, the richest, the most intelligent and militant ruling class that world history has ever recorded. It can be absolutely depended upon that our ruling class will not yield its power without a struggle. Even if the workers should elect their own men to office, the capitalist class would throw aside its mask of democracy and resort to force to maintain its rule. We saw this happen in Italy, where, when the workers threatened the capitalist system, the murderous Fascisti, agents of capitalism, restroyed even the pretense of democratic government and drowned the workers' movement in blood. The same thing is being prepared by the capitalist class of America, behind the protective mask of "progressivism," and the American working class must prepare itself to meet it.

Workers Must Take Power.

"There is but one way in which the workers will ever gain power, and that is thru sufficient organization, intelligence and militancy, to take power from the capitalist class in open struggle.

"The world war was a crisis for capitalism. The working class could have won its freedom at that time and to so save the capitalist dictatorship.

Capitalists Use Progressives.

"In the past the capitalist dictators have made excellent use of the progressives. A progressive, Woodrow Wilson, a peace president, engineered the country into the war in the service of Wall Street. A progressive, Herriot, is at the head of the French government, loyally saving the face of the French militarists, reactionaries and imperialists. MacDonald, a progressive, in power in England keeps the workers from developing a revolutionary movement against capitalism and so becomes the biggest defender of British capitalism and imperialism.

LaFollette Not For Workers.

"LaFollette in power will not serve the workers. He will not oppose wage cuts. He will do nothing to remedy unemployment. He will use his power to betray the workers. He will do with them what he has always done, fool them by fake reform issues and false promises.

"For forty-five years LaFollette has served the Wall Street gang inside of the republican party as a progressive. He will continue under the cloak of progressivism to do the same thing. That is why so many bankers, manufacturers and multi-millionaires support him.

All Power to Workers!

"The only party that is organized to battle in the interests of the workers is the Workers Party. It is the only party in the United States in the face of the crisis developing in the United States that has the courage to come out flatfootedly for the working class.

"The Workers Party proposes to lead the workers in a struggle against unemployment, wage reductions and the attempt of the capitalists to smash workers' organizations.

"The slogan of the Workers Party is work or relief for the unemployed at the union rate of wages. No wage cuts under any price. The solidification of the union thru the organization of the unorganized and the amalgamation of the existing unions as a means to fight against the open shop war. Against the capitalist dictatorship, a workers' and farmers' government with all power in the hands of the workers and poor farmers.

"The Workers Party is also part of the international Communist movement. The Workers Party, the Communist Party, is proud to adhere to the Communist International because the Communist International is more than an expression of international working class solidarity.

Organize World's Workers.

"The Communist International is a militant, revolutionary, international organization of the working class. It is preparing and organizing the workers of the world for the final struggle to wrest control of the earth from the capitalist exploiters and butchers of the workers.

"The Communist International is that world organization of the proletariat that points out to the workers of the world the lessons of the last world war.

"It shows the workers that war is the final culmination of capitalist glory, that it results in the butchery of the workers, and in the creation of untold misery of them. The Communist International shows the workers of the world how capitalism is leading the workers of the world into another imperialist world slaughter.

For the World Revolution.

"And the Communist International is the organization that will turn such a world war into a war against the capitalists. It will help the workers turn the war into a world revolution to abolish capitalism the world over."

GITLOW SHOWS LaFOLLETTE FAILS TO TAKE STAND ON VITAL ISSUES CONFRONTING NATION'S WORKERS

Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidate for vice-president on the Workers Party ticket, was received with cheers. He said in part:

U. S. Going Thru Crisis.

"Capitalism in the United States is going thru a crisis. The winter of 1925 will see factory after factory shut down. The streets will be full of hungry men looking for jobs. About seven to eight million workers will be unemployed.

"As a result of all this situation poverty and untold misery is confronting the workers. The campaign to reduce wages will be pressed with renewed vigor by the capitalist class. Workers in every line of industry will have their wages greatly reduced.

No Relief for Agriculture.

"Every attempt on the part of the workers will be brutally suppressed by the capitalists. The crisis in agriculture will not be ended because of the slight increase in the price of wheat because it is based on the economic demoralization of Europe.

"The crisis in industry in America coupled with the crisis in agriculture will greatly intensify the class conflicts going on in capitalist society. The producers, that is, the workers and farmers, in desperation and revolt against the intolerable conditions that the crisis will produce, will become factors in big mass struggles against the capitalists who dominate the economic and political life of the country.

"The workers in this campaign must know what the attitude of all the political parties will be to the struggles of the workers that will ensue as a result of the conditions. What will be the attitude of the republican party?

Republicans Use Mailed Fist.

"The republican party will use the mailed fist against the workers. That is all the workers can expect from that party, a party that has for its presidential candidate 'the Strike Breaker,' Coolidge, and for its vice-presidential candidate, 'Hell and Maria,' Dawes, the agent of J. P. Morgan and company, the arch-Fascist in the United States.

"The republican party in power means wage cuts, Daugherty injunctions and the most brutal suppression of all strikes. The republican party in power means that the open shop crowd that is out to smash the unions will dominate the government 100 per cent.

Democrats No Better.

"The democratic party will be no different in power because the democratic candidate is also owned and dominated by Morgan and his Wall Street gang. The candidate of the democratic party is John W. Davis the chief counsel of J. P. Morgan and Co. Morgan does not care which way the workers vote because if they vote republican, his good man Friday, Dawes, will be elected; if they vote democratic then his legal counsel, Davis, will be elected.

"The capitalist dictatorship, with its unemployment, wage cuts and brutal suppression of the workers, is safe with either the republican or democratic parties in power.

"If the workers in the United States want to continue in power their enemies, the open shoppers, the millionaires and billionaires, they can do nothing better than vote and support the two old parties.

LaFollette Silent on Big Issue.

"But then the workers will ask me, 'How about LaFollette? Won't he serve the interests of the workers?' In the face of the crisis developing in the United States what has LaFollette to say on the question of unemployment and wage reductions? Not a single word. He is as silent as a clam in this respect. Why? Because LaFollette represents that section of the capitalist class that has not yet succeeded in reaching the pinnacles of wealth that the Wall Street kings have reached.

"He represents the small business men, the small exploiters of labor. But he will be used, he has for 45 years been used, as an upholder of the capitalist order of society. In the face of the rising tide of revolt against the capitalist system, LaFollette will be used to stave off the workers' revolt, to turn it into reformist channels by a bold and courageous struggle. But the LaFollettes, the Eberts, the Hendersons, the Vandervelden, were controlling the workers' organizations. Instead of leading the workers to the battle against capitalism, they took up the battle for capitalism. They betrayed the working class, just as LaFollette will betray the working class.

"But since that time a new power has arisen in the world. In all countries Communist parties have been organized, and have been crystallized in the Communist International. This is the greatest fact in history. For it means that when the next great war, now definitely in preparation, is launched upon the world by capitalist imperialism, the Communist International will raise the slogan of world-wide proletarian revolt, will lead the working masses against their oppressors, and smash once for all the capitalist dictatorship and the capitalist system, and will establish thruout the world the rule of the workers."

HARPER SCHOOL STRIKE SHIFTED TO THURSDAY

Give Moderwell, Dever 2 Days to Make Good

The strike at the Harper school at Englewood has been shifted two days, from Tuesday to Thursday, Oct. 16, to give the board of education one more chance, this time to make good on its latest promise to install new facilities capable of handling the overflow caused by crowding the junior high school classes into the school.

The children in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades, ages from 9 to 11, have been ousted to make room for the new junior high school. The parents are fighting the board decision of the board. They charge that this move was made without any regard for their wishes. As parents and tax payers, they have something to say And they are saying it straight from the shoulder. They say they will not subject their little children to the dangers of one mile and a half of travel with its precarious crossings and the resulting evils to health from cold lunches put up in the morning and kept for several hours.

Mass Meeting For Strike.

Mayor Dever's advice not to strike against the autocratic rule of Charles M. Moderwell, who he said was a friendly gentleman, but to try to settle this trouble thru negotiating with the board of education brought a loud voice of protest from the entire committee of 200 hundred who waited on him. This indignation was further shown at the parents' mass meeting held immediately after the conference with the mayor when the meeting voted to go on with the strike.

Clothing Workers Meet in New York Flays Sigman Rule

strike of the garment workers—and tied up the entire union in such a way that attempts to introduce any progressive measure could be choked off.

Expelled Active Workers.

The anger of the membership at this ruthless expulsion of some of the most active workers Sigman tried to soothe by a pretense of putting up a fight for the ten demands formulated by the left wingers, led by the Trade Union Educational League. That the proposed fight against the bosses was nothing more than a pretense was proved by the subsequent surrender of Sigman and his aids to the demand of Al Smith, governor of New York, that the entire problem be submitted to a mediator, to whom the union officials proceeded to sell out.

The holding of mass meetings in this city against the dues increase marks the beginning of the mass struggle against the autocratic methods of the union bureaucrats, both in New York, and in Chicago.

DAILY WORKER GIRLS SELL MANY PAPERS AT LA FOLLETTE MEETING

Gertrude Walsh, Bessie Siegel and Kitty Harris sold hundreds of copies of the DAILY WORKER at the LaFollette meeting last Saturday night. They stayed right on the job and continued the sale of the DAILY WORKER after the meeting was over.

DUNNE SHOWS SIGNIFICANCE OF COMMUNIST PARTICIPATION IN NATIONAL POLITICAL STRUGGLE

William F. Dunne, Communist candidate for governor of Illinois, who acted as chairman of the great Communist election campaign gathering, told of the significance of the participation of the Workers Party in the present national political struggle.

Dunne said in part:

"The entrance of the Workers (Communist) Party into a national campaign for the first time, the placing of Communist candidates on the ballot for the first time in American history, is an event of greatest significance, not only for the party itself but for the world revolutionary movement. It marks the entry of the Communists into the national struggle as a potential force with which American capitalism will have to reckon. The program of the Communist International for the organization of the working class for the conquest of power is heard for the first time by thousands of workers whom we could have reached by no other method at a time when they are agitated by the problems arising out of the decay of world capitalism.

"Never has there been a time when so many American workers were questioning the more manifest evils of capitalism. Never has there been such a disgust with and distrust of the parties of capitalism. Never before have millions of workers and farmers shown in the American capitalists the solid front of a revolt that with all its confusion and floundering represents the first stirring of broad masses of the American working class aroused to action by oppressions which they feel, but whose causes they do not yet understand.

"Never has there visualized the cure and to give them knowledge of the underlying causes of their misery, to convince them of the necessity for clear thinking and clean cut and militant action, to harden their resolution with the doctrine of the class struggle, to organize them for the conquest of power, to mass them behind the slogan of the dictatorship of the working class, is the revolutionary task of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

Aids Europe's Ruling Class.

"The American capitalist class is furnishing the depleted commissariats of European capitalism with the munitions of counter-revolution. The American capitalist class has given the ruling class of Europe new hope that it may be able to prevail against the forces of social revolution. The American capitalist class has exacted the price for this and most of that price it expects and plans to have refunded thru the sweat and blood of the workers of Europe and America that it hopes to coin into dollars.

"The Dawes plan makes America the center of world counter-revolution and it holds over the heads of the world's workers the constant threat of imperialistic war.

"The American ruling class challenges Japan in the Orient and it challenges Great Britain for world supremacy.

"But first of all it strives to crush the world revolution.

Opposition for Capitalism.

"No party in America except the Workers (Communist) Party understands or cares for the interests of the working class in this great historic period. A right wing, a center and a left wing of American capitalism are represented by the republican, democrat and LaFollette parties. All wish to preserve American capitalism, some to maintain the status quo, others agitate for some slight changes that will serve to further fool the workers, but all are for American capitalism first, last and all the time.

"The LaFollette movement represents in America the social pacifist movements that have arisen in Europe, MacDonald in Great Britain, the left bloc government in France, the petty bourgeois social-democratic governments of Germany, Sweden and Denmark. Because it ostensibly fights big capitalism, the politically backward American working class see in it the expression of all their indictments of big business, their hope and their salvation.

"The working class is doomed to disappointment. The LaFollette movement cannot and will not, because of its middle-class character and leadership, fight for the interests of the working class.

Future Belongs to Communism.

"The Workers (Communist) Party has this revolutionary field all to itself. Ours is the opportunity, ours is the duty and ours is the responsibility in the hands of the Communist Party of America is the future of the American revolution.

You remember, comrades, when the election campaigns were on in England, Germany and France. You remember how anxiously we waited for news of the struggles of our comrades abroad and you remember how jubilant we were when the news of their splendid achievements reached us.

"They watch us just as anxiously today. The Communist International and every party of it, is watching today our conduct on the field of struggle. They want to know how far we have travelled on the path of Leninism, they want to see by our actual achievements in the struggle, how much of the teachings of the great master we have absorbed and translated into action. The Russian workers and peasants, holding the first line trenches in the world revolution, while they build a Communist society, are also watching us. They know what role the American capitalist class plays and they want to know how well we wage our war against it in the most powerful capitalist nation in the world.

"We will not disappoint these comrades.

"Under the crimson banner of the world social revolution, led and inspired by the words and deeds of Lenin, bound in unbreakable ranks by the discipline of the Communist International, we go forward in this struggle with the battle cry of fighting Communists the world over:

Forward to Workers' Rule.

"Down with world imperialism!

"Forward to the dictatorship of the working class and the Communist society!"

WORKERS PARTY CLAIMS NEW ADDITION TO ITS OWN LOCAL COMMUNIST LEAGUE OF NATIONS

A new branch of the Workers Party has been organized in Chicago, this week, this time among the Spanish-speaking workers. Eight members, seven of them Mexican laborers employed in the stockyards, have formed the nucleus around which a large Spanish branch will be built.

Members of the Greek branch of the party co-operated wholeheartedly in arranging the meeting at which the new branch was organized.

Comrade Manuel Gomez, who is taking the initiative in the formation of the new branch, spoke to the workers. At the conclusion of his talk, nearly all of them asked to join the Workers Party.

J. Espinosa was elected secretary of the newly-formed branch and Cruz Borunda delegate to the city central committee.

Williamson Gives Third Lecture for Industrial Class

The third lecture in the Young Workers' League industrial class of eight lectures conducted every Monday at 2613 Hirsch boulevard, by John Williamson, takes up, "Chicago—Its Immediate Problems of Reorganization," covering (a) Survey of Past Activities; (b) Industries to be concentrated upon, and (c) Tasks of city organization, its separate units and members.

Inasmuch as the league is now being reorganized, every active comrade will have to do a bit more than his share during the reorganization period. He is expected to attend this meeting and become better fit to carry out the task set before us.

The first meeting of area branches takes place this Friday. Meeting places are listed elsewhere in this paper. League members who are working in industries and have not yet enrolled in the class should do so at this meeting of the class.

Gannes Speaks on Dawes Plan Before German Party Branch

Harry Gannes, member of the national executive committee of the Young Workers' League is speaking today on "The Dawes' Plan and Its Effect Upon the Workers of Europe."

Comrade Gannes has made a special study of this subject and will give a very interesting talk on this timely subject.

The German branch of the Workers Party, at which this lecture will be delivered, meets at 1665 Bissell street.

Request Funds for Library.

Request for a bond issue of $200,000 to be used for the construction of a combination community house and branch library in Holden park, Lake street and Central Park avenue, was made on the mayor today by representatives of the Austin library association.

tion of "capitalism." My fears were well founded.

To him Wall Street was a horrible monster, and Calvin Coolidge the Knight of the Terrible Silence, who simply scared the monster back into his lair with a sniff of the nose and a biblical quotation, "thot that Mr. Coolidge had no connection whatever with Wall Street," he declared. Business of proving the connection. "Furthermore," I remarked as my quarry was retreating toward the window, "we are on the sixth floor of a busy office building—"not alone is he a faithful tool of capitalism, an enemy of the workers—with brain and brawn," glancing phrenologically at the counter jumper, "but his mind makes a vacuum congested in comparison." This was almost too much for him. "Why," he moaned, "I would not believe that of him even if I knew it to be true." He was now near the window and I had my glasses, so I took a parting shot. "My favorite candidate for the presidency is William Z. Foster, the Communist——" As I spoke the last letter my ears heard the noise of an opening window I waited for the tell-tale thud, but perhaps he only needed more air.

If Messers. Fitzpatrick and Nockles are not whiling away the hours which they are obliged to spend in their chairs at Federation headquarters, solving cross word puzzles, they might try their brains on the latest mind twister, turned loose in the political bedlam of Illinois. Nockles and Fitzpatrick are experts in the art of proving a united front between William Z. Foster and Dawes because Dawes, who is playing "Tarzan of the Apes," in the O. P. jungles, took occasion to swat Fitzpatrick and Co. because in the sulphurous mind of Hell an' Maria, the labor fakers seemed to be "agents of Lenin and Trotsky," as the formula goes. Foster slammed them because they were, indirectly of course, agents of Dawes and the capitalist class of which Dawes is a very vocal and class conscious member.

That Dawes hates Foster more than an Irish devil is alleged to hate "holy water," goes without saying. Even an ordinary moron knows that. And a moron would feel insulted at being placed on the same intellectual footing as some of the labor fakers that draw big salaries in the American labor movement. Yet, we dare say that it would not tax the intelligence of the most mentally bankrupt to prove a united front between Fitzpatrick and Hell an' Maria Dawes. LaFollette is the image around which these political medicine men do their dance.

The labor fakers from Farrington to Fitzpatrick are supporting Len Small in Illinois. Small is so crooked that he could sleep comfortably on a corkscrew. A skunk would suffer from paralysis of the olfactory nerves in the vicinty of Len Small. Yet this is the gentleman behind whose banner the labor fakers are marching—the same colection of skazes who support Robert Marian LaFollette.

Walker, Olander and Farrington, plus the holp-up men who were refused admittance to Joliet by Small, made a political deal with the governor. At this time Len was on the outs with the Dawes-Brandage-Crowe-Deneen-Tribune-News sections of the republican party. This group represents the open and above board open shop element in the republican party. But Small licked them in state politics and now in order to save this state for Coolidge they buried the hatchet, which they formerly aimed at Small's neck, and took Small to their respectable bosoms. It is true they still disinfect their political homes when Len is a visitor and after the first week in November, they may again try to quarantine him. But for the moment he is in the Dawes' camp and picking his teeth with the tail of the LaFollette lamb after having eaten the fatted calf.

Now, what is the situation? As the editorial in the DAILY WORKER pointed out, the deal between the labor fakers and Small prevented the LaFollette crowd from placing a candidate for governor in the field against Len. Thus the LaFollette movement in Illinois is behind Small. Fitzpatrick and Nockles are supporting Small. The Chicago Federation of Labor endorsed his candidacy. Small is supporting the national republican ticket. He is supporting Silent Cal and Noisy Charlie. A vote for Small is a vote for Dawes. How about it Messrs. Fitzpatrick and Nockles? But for the labor fakers this kind of political company is preferable to that of "Bill" Foster, the Communist candidate for president.

OWENS SPEAKS OF PROBLEMS OF NEGRO WORKERS

WORKER from the newsies. People on their to the meeting were greeted by others coming in the opposite direction reading and talking about the Communist daily.

Swabeck Opens Meeting.

Arab Swabeck, district organizer of the party, called the meeting to order. Comrade Swabeck briefly introduced to the crowd the chairman of the meeting, William F. Dunne, Communist candidate for governor of Illinois, who has recently returned from the sessions of the Fifth Congress of the Third International at Moscow, to which he was a delegate.

Comrade Dunne made a short introductory speech striking the key-note of the afternoon's rally. Then came musical selections by the Freiheit singing society.

Owens Speaks On Negro Question.

Gordon Owens, Negro candidate for congress in the first congressional district in a short speech outlined the party program on the Negro question. He told the Negro workers present that the real cause for race discrimination is economic; that the real issue is a class issue and not a race issue. He said that the Workers Party is the only political party that stands for the recognition of the Negro race on an absolute equal footing with all emancipated workers of the world.

Stress Need to Read.

The necessity of supporting the DAILY WORKER, the Workers' Monthly, and other literature of the party was stressed by Comrade Dunne who urged all militant workers to take active part in the drive for subscriptions for the DAILY WORKER, to be carried thru during the fall and winter.

Next on the program was the orchestra of the Young Workers' League which rendered revolutionary selections in which the audience joined.

Owens Given Ovation.

A tremendous ovation greeted the appearance on the platform of Gordon Owens, a colored comrade, who is running for congressman from the first congressional district. For fully five minutes after Owens had been announced, the cheers and shouts of an enthusiastic audience prevented him from speaking.

Comrade Owens spoke of the twelve million Negroes in the United States, who present to revolutionists a problem that is complex in the extreme.

"The great majority of the Negroes are proletarians, but thru the insidious influence of the schools, the press, and false leaders, both black and white, they have been prevented from becoming class-conscious," said Owens. "Even some of their most influential leaders teach them to look on the Negro problem as a race problem, rather than as the class problem that it really is.

"Today all this is changing. The Negroes are leaving the capitalist parties by the hundreds and coming into the Communist ranks. They are beginning to understand that their real enemy is the capitalist, both the black and the white capitalist, and that their real task is the overthrowing of the capitalist system with its law of hunger, war and death."

A thunderous burst of applause greeted the announcement that Robert Minor, one of the party's best-known cartoonists, writers and speakers, was to address the rally.

Building Bolsheviks—the D. W. B. U.

John L. Lewis used against Alexander Howat and the miners of Nova Scotia. His latest victim is the well-known and universally respected miners' leader, Duncan McDonald.

But the coal operators cannot always save Farrington from the wrath of the rank and file and the main purpose of these articles is to supply the coal diggers of Illinois with the necessary material to expose this charlatan in his true colors and send him back into obscurity or into the open service of the enemy, he is now serving from the offices of the Illinois Miners' Union.

Romance Given Cold Shoulder.

In gathering the facts on which this series is based the DAILY WORKER disregarded everything except what could be proved before a working class court, and what deals with his relations to the organized coal miners of Illinois. Farrington's life is interesting in many ways, but let a DeMaupassant or a Dumas weave the garland of romance around those incident which have to do with his more or less unconventional relations with the opposite sex. We do not care whether Farrington in this connection played the role of a Tom Jones or a Herman Pupick. We are not writing a new moral code, but because Farrington has betrayed the miners of Illinois to whom he pledged his loyalty, we propose to place him in the pillory and bring forward every shred of evidence at our disposal, that will make the charges stick.

The material gathered for the purpose of writing these articles was secured thru the aid of bona fide members of the Illinois Mine Workers' Union.

Gha Masks Wanted.

Accustomed as we are to discover new evidence of perfidy on the part of the labor misleaders of America, yet the writer cannot adequately express his amazement at the panorama of crookedness that was revealed in the documents concerning the unholy work engaged in by Frank Farrington while paid to function in behalf of the Illinois mine workers.

And the remarkable part of the story is that Farrington was able to get away with it. Others who had played the game on a large scale were caught with the goods, but the Parks, Brindells and Murphys allowed their greed to get the better of their judgment. Evidently Farrington was wiser than his prototypes in treachery to the workers.

He Counts the Votes.

How Farrington succeeds in getting elected has always been a mystery to the uninitiated, but these articles will help to clear up that matter. The coal operators are for him one hundred per cent and have given Farrington a powerful club to use against those who would like to vote against him. He also counts the votes which is a factor that should not be sneezed at, as any labor leader could testify to. In fact, during his campaign for election he often makes the statement: "I don't give a God damn whether you fellows vote for me, I'll be your next president anyway." Needless to say, this crooked autocrat is a bitter foe of the proletarian dictatorship in Russia. And why not? There are no Frank Farringtons under the red flag of the Soviet Republic.

Some Juicy Morsels.

In making the investigation of the career of Frank Farrington in the miners' union, the DAILY WORKER ran into some juicy morsels relating to the activities of John L. Lewis which will look just as well all by themselves when the opportune time comes. Suffice it to say that it is not surprising that labor fakers with a "past" should not feel very kindly toward the DAILY WORKER.

We have followed Farrington's career since he first went down a mine at Streator, Ill., up to the present day. He has been going steadily downhill ever since in the estimation of the honest coal diggers of this state, but his relations with the banking business show that otherwise the business of being a labor leader does not pay so badly. Few coal diggers have an orange grove in Alabama, or can afford two homes in widely separated cities.

Farrington has violated the constitution of the miners' union whenever he felt like doing so, and whenever it was to his advantage to do so. This charge will be proven by documentary evidence. We will place the criminal in the box to testify against himself.

Wizard at Figures.

The not a literary man, Farrington is quite handy with the pencil, particularly when it comes to putting in a bill for expenses. Like the villian in Victor Hugo's "Toilers of the Sea," whose honesty "was almost painful until he was favored with a big opportunity, the "villian" of this series made his debut in union politics by attacking a sub-district president for charging up one dollar a day for a hotel bill. We will show as we go along that Farrington not alone was generous in his estimation of his own traveling expenses but was equally generous in allowing the union to pay the bill for the fare of his fair companions, when he felt that members of the opposite sex were indispensable to the comforts of his journey. This predilection for female companionship is set down here to prove a point and not to make a point against Farrington's orientation away from Anthony Comstock, for whom we have no particular love.

Watery-Eyed John.

The lachrymal squirt can, John L. Walker, shares honors with Farrington for a few brief paragraphs during this series. In this article we merely announce the goods.

We will show how "Brother" Farrington went to bat for a notorious judge in the Collinsville district.

During the same period the president of the Illinois Miners' Union endorsed Col. Frank L. Smith, of Dwight Ill., for governor on the democratic ticket. What he said about the Small forces in the letter of endorsement makes interesting reading today. We have a copy of the letter.

A Crooked Trail.

Farrington's trail from the time he entered the coal mine at Streator, until he turned over the political machinery of his office to the crook, Len Small, will be gone into. The story of his conduct during the "outlaw strike" of 1919 makes nasty reading. So does the correspondence between himself and the other notorious labor crook, John L. Lewis, over the Lester mine, of Williamson county ill-fame.

If the miners of Illinois who are cursed with the leadership of this Napoleon of labor fakers do not take steps to replace him with a man who will use his office as it should be used, to direct the never-ending struggle of the miners against the bosses, it will not be the fault of the DAILY WORKER.

The next aritcle of this series will deal with the early days of Farrington's career in the miners' union, when he was preparing for the role which he has since played, with so much damage to the interests of the miners.

FAMOUS MOVIE FILM, "POLIKUSHKA," WILL RETURN TO CHICAGO

The famous story, "Polikushka," by the immortal writer, L. N. Tolstoy, which was made into a moving picture by the Moscow Art Theatre, is coming back to Chicago for one evening only. The picture was shown in Chicago at the Orchestra Hall only once last winter. Thousands of workers who were unable to see the picture at its first showing are anxiously awaiting its coming back. Final arrangements for showing the picture again in Chicago are now being made. The date and place will be announced in the labor press.

DEMAND CROWE PUSH CHARGE IN LYNCHING CASE

Demand Will Be Made on State's Attorney

Attorneys for the family of William Bell, the Negro lynched by a mob at Maxwell and 14th Streets, last week, will visit state's attorney Crowe today and demand a speedy indictment of the two white men identified as participants in the attack on Bell.

These two men, Otto Epstein and Irving Rockowitz, were held to the grand jury by the coroner's jury on charges of murder after an inquest.

Demand Immediate Indictments.

"We are going to insist on indictments in this case at once," George Adams, attorney for Ernest Bell, brother of the murdered Negro, told the DAILY WORKER.

"We are going to point out to state's attorney Crowe that speedy indictments were issued in the Loeb-Leopold murder case, and in the Foster robbery case.

"The men were indicted the next day. We see no reason why a speedy indictment should not be issued by the grand jury in the case of the brutal murder of Bell."

Cab Driver Disappears.

Adams told the DAILY WORKER that the lives of Negroes in the city of Chicago must be protected.

"The fact that Jack Pasch, after being called as a witness, did not show up, and that "Sodie" Ginsberg, the cab driver, has been missing since the lynching, points the finger of suspicion strongly in their direction," Adams told the DAILY WORKER.

Mrs. Goldblatt, mother of Betty Goldblatt, one of the girls who gave the alarm which caused the lynching of Bell, and later admitted a white man in a Ford car had first approached her, told the DAILY WORKER about her daughter.

Never Had Any Trouble.

"Betty is only eighteen years old," said Mrs. Goldblatt. "She has had the burden of supporting the family, as my husband has been out of work for five months. I have a family of five, and my younger daughter is just recovering from an attack of pneumonia. I am sorry the whole thing occurred.

"I have lived in this section for 15 years, and have had no trouble of any kind with the Negroes.

"I am the only white family living in this house (1071 Maxwell street) and have had no trouble."

Leaves Wife and Baby.

Bell, the murdered man, who leaves a wife and baby without support, had a splendid reputation among the Negroes of the neighborhood, and the police declare the mob lynched the wrong man.

According to prominent Negro shop keepers in the neighborhood, of the lynching, the wine shop where Epstein worked is a notorious bootleg joint. They charge that the police in the Maxwell street police station, only a block away, have never raided the place altho they are well aware of the law-breaking activities going on. Many of the Negroes complain that the police in this district greatly exceed their authority in their treatment of the Negroes.

"I was going home the very evening the lynching occurred, Wednesday at five o'clock," a young Negro who attends the Wendell Phillips High school, said to the DAILY WORKER. "I was near the scene where the murder of Bell occurred, when a policeman called out to me, 'Hey there Nigger, have you got any dice in your pocket? You better look out.'" This lad who works in a shop near the Maxwell street police station, charged that police often make insulting remarks to men and women of his race who are peacefully walking the streets. He declared that there used to be Negro policemen in the Maxwell street station, but that the white police had "Succeeded in running them out."

Epstein did not testify at the coroner's inquest. He refused to stand up and take his coat off to be identified by an eye-witness.

Samuel Davis, who heard the evidence, refused to permit the attorney for Irving Rockowitz to heckle the Negro witnesses.

"This is not a trial but an inquest," Davis declared. "I have been under the impression that you were Epstein's lawyer and I refuse to permit your cross questioning to go any further."

Police Search Only Negroes.

Testimony of Maxwell street police officers who answered Epstein's report that there was trouble on the streets Wednesday night, brot out the fact that the police immediately went to the Negro poolrooms and restaurants and started indiscriminate searching, while Bell was lying dead on the street. John J. Foley testified he went out at 11:20 p. m. and searched about twenty Negroes in a pool room on Miller street. "I found no guns or knives on any of them," Foley admitted. Then Clark came in and took the police to Bell's body.

Negro Attorney Interested in W. P. Program.

George Adams, attorney for the Bell family, told the DAILY WORKER that Bell had a good reputation. Adams had heard of the DAILY WORKER. He was wearing a Coolidge button, but told the DAILY WORKER reporter, "I am anxious to get in closer touch with the Workers Party. They seem to have a clear cut program on the Negro problem, and the Negroes don't seem to be getting much out of the republican party."

Al Friedmann, who testified he was in the wine shop when the lynching occurred, was badly scratched and cut on the right cheek. Rockowitz appeared at the inquest with a badly discolored left eye.

Rockowitz, who is a driver for the Yellow Cab company, testified he was actively mixed up in the fighting.

THE POWER COLUMN

Twice every week—this column uncovers to your view the motive power behind the DAILY WORKER. Here for the interest and inspiration of every reader—and especially the DAILY WORKER agents and committees—are tried and proven suggestions and accomplishments to drive the DAILY WORKER to further conquests.

Here is POWER—the power of brain and effort of men and women of the working class who not only believe but ACT.

Have You Ever Heard of Hanna?

If you haven't, you had better learn about it—it is some place in Wyoming. It is also the stamping ground of A BRICKLAYER—and what a bricklayer! This town in the wilds of Wyoming is the home of Fred Williams, branch agent for the DAILY WORKER in the only branch in Hanna, Wyo.

A week ago Comrade Williams was elected to replace another agent unable to serve. He had no sub blanks, not even information on how to procede. But he had the energy and the perseverance of the instinctive, born BRICKLAYER and the desire to build the labor movement by building the paper best serving labor's interest.

So he took sample copies of the DAILY WORKER and "went out to get 'em." His first letter to us brought a money order for $23.50 for five 6-months and one 1-year sub. AND HE WANTED INFORMATION ON HOW TO PROCEDE about his work! He also wanted some sub blanks. Within a few days and before he could have received his supplies (he needed no information on how to get subs) we received another letter from Comrade Williams enclosing $26.00 worth of subs including two for 1 year and four for 6 months. And just as we were writing this, a third letter arrived with three more yearly subs and one for 6 months. For good measure he includes two yearly subscriptions for the organ of the little fighting Johnny Reds "The Young Comrade."

In ONE WEEK and by himself he has secured $71.00 worth of "subs" for the DAILY WORKER—six for 1 year and ten for 6 months! You will notice he has not sent a single "sub" under six months. Here's a member of the D. W. B. U. (DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union) to boast about. And we are doing it whole-heartedly. We are also asking Comrade Fred Williams to give our other DAILY WORKER agents advice on HOW TO PROCEDE! . We want him to tell our bricklayers "How In Hanna" he does it!

An New York Bricklayer, Comrade G. E. Kellas, is a kicker. Unlike the chronic one we read about he's a wicked but good, constructive kicker. He tells us about what he thinks are loopholes in our system and then offers some practical suggestions. He says:

"I hate like hell to complain but when I think that complaints will help I am doing them gladly."

And then after he gets the kick and suggestions "off his chest" he continues:

"I am one of the very first readers of the DAILY WORKER and when I missed it I felt like a crime was committed and if the public library wasn't here, where I went and read all the copies I hadn't received, I wouldn't have known what to do . . . .

"After that complaint and suggestion I am enclosing my "brick" for a six month subscription and as I am now in New York and a member of the DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union I'll try to do my best to send you more bricks to build up "The National Labor Daily." Scab never I was and never I expect to be."

Atta boy! No scabbing on the D. W. B. U.!

Girls Join Strike at Shop of the Flow-Meters Co.

The girls working in the Flow-Meters company shop at 2040 Diversey Ave., came out on strike yesterday, joining the striking men machinists and specialists who struck this week against a ten per cent reduction in wages.

The foreman also came out on strike, refusing to work in the same shop with scabs, and declaring his loyalty to the strikers. Only one or two scabs were able to get past the pickets yesterday. About two hundred men looking for work were turned away by the pickets yesterday and warned that there was a strike on.

All signs point to a further spread of the strike, as the tool makers and other departments are known to be restless.

Vote Communist This Time:

TEACHERS WILL GO IN BODY TO BOARD MEETING

Plan Fight for Action on Teachers' Councils

Charging that members of the board of education are deliberately postponing action on the Teachers' Councils and other important measures for reasons of their own until after election, Miss Margaret Haley has instructed the members of the Teachers' Federation to be sure to be at 650 South Clark Street, at a committee meeting of the Board of Education at 4 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, to insist upon immediate action.

When the recommendation of Superintendent McAndrew requiring principals to meet with teachers goes thru it will also mean that notices of meetings cannot be circulated to the teachers by the Teachers' Federation, or any other body, Miss Haley made clear to the meeting.

McAndrew at "Big Biz" Dinner.

It will mean that only notices of the superintendent sent thru the principals can be brought before the teachers in the schools.

Miss Haley charged that the superintendent's speech at the chamber of commerce dinner at the LaSalle Hotel last week, where sat the president and four members of the board of education and the mayor in the person of his representative, Francis X. Busch, shifted the fight on the teachers' councils from the teachers on to Ella Flagg Young.

"And we are perfectly willing to leave the fight where he has put it," she added.

Lauds Ella Flagg Young.

"Ella Flagg Young stands before this country today as an educator. McAndrew has not yet made his reputation as an educator. In the words of a certain distinguished gentleman, 'An irritator is not an educator.'" This remark brought applause from the teachers that lasted for several minutes.

"Mr. McAndrew has shifted the issue from the teachers' shoulders to one able to bear it tho in her grave.

"And we'll take this Ella Flagg Young theory of education to the club women who asked us for $10 for a memorial for Mrs. Young and we will say to them: 'Do they want brass, do they want marble, or do they want something that is going to live.'

"Ella Flagg Young said: 'The voice of authority or position not only must not dominate the councils, but must not be heard.'

Carry Fight to Legislature.

"When we go before the legislature in Springfield, we will say to those gentlemen: 'Do you want to go back to a system of education that was stamped a failure by that great educator, Ella Flagg Young, or are you going to say she was not fit.' The fight is no longer McAndrew against the teachers, it is now McAndrew and the board and the business interests dominating the board, against Ella Flagg Young."

Miss Haley then went into a detailed explanation of the real cause of the fight on the teachers. The order has gone out to cut down public education because it is costing too much. There is a standing deficit and the board of education is bankrupt.

"This is a fierce attack upon you. If they break your resistance power it will be easier to break the resistance power of all the teachers in the United States. There is only one way to meet this issue and that is to get the money from those who are keeping it from the board of education, the wealthy tax dodgers.

"Some interesting facts will come out in this fight before we are thru. We will expose certain gentlemen who are being paid large salaries just to protect the interests of these rich tax dodgers. That is the reason why we want this fight to be brought to a showdown now and the board is putting it off until after the election."

Another mass meeting was authorized for next week, full particulars as to time and place to be given in a notice to the teachers later.

First Campaign Ball.

The Communist youth of New York will greet our Workers (Communist) Party candidates at a ball given by branches one and six at the Park Palace (The Carlton), 6 W. 111th St., Saturday, Oct. 18, at 8 p. m.

This is the opportunity that the New York comrades should not miss. All of the comrades whom you worked so hard to put on the ballot will be present, among them Comrades Alexander Trachtenberg, H. M. Wicks and the generalissimo of the N. Y. State campaign, Harry Winitzsky.

A large percentage of the proceeds of this affair will go to the campaign fund of the Workers Party. The Red Revellers will furnish the music.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. RAIL LABOR'S WAGES BRING STARVING KIDS

Demand More Money at Rail Board Meet

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Deficit wages was the striking term used by President E. H. Fitzgerald, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, to describe to the rail labor board the wages paid to members of his organization. He demands restoration of 1920 wage rates.

Saving money on existing wage rates, said FitzGerald, may easily be an immoral practice for workers because it can only be done by denying the families such essentials as sufficient milk for the babies.

Undernourishment is Result.

Infant deaths and undernourished children are the result of thrift practiced on such inadequate wages. These assertions he supported by figures from the recently issued cost of living bulletin of the U. S. department of labor which is based upon a house to house study of the annual expenditures of more than 12,000 typical wage earners' families, previously reviewed in the Federated Press economic news service.

Discussing the minimum amounts required to enable wage earners to maintain a decent standard of living the railway clerks argue that "No man can support a family with three children on less than $2,000 a year unless he sacrifices many of the decencies and comforts which go to make up the American standard of living. And $2,000 a year is inadequate for the maintenance of such a family on the scale expected of workers in clerical occupations."

New Departure.

A new departure in the wage case which Fitzgerald is presenting to the board was the submission of a series of budgets adapted to the prevailing requirements of the various classes of employes covered by the case. These budgets ranged all the way from that for an unmarried clerk up to that for the married employe with three children. These budgets, which represent the minimum satisfactory living standard in each case, were prepared by the University of California.

The contrast between the wages required to meet the budgets and the actual wages of railway clerks and other station service employes was shown as follows:

Per Year	Minimum budget	Actual wage
Chief clerks and assistants	$2,925	$2,118
Clerical specialists	2,925	1,861
Clerks (B group)	2,236	1,454
Clerks (C group)	1,255	1,159
Mechanical device operators	1,914	1,288
Stenographers and typists	1,914	1,395
Telephone switchboard operators	1,277	902
Baggage agents and assistants	2,236	1,366
Baggage and parcel room employes	1,817	1,062
Callers, loaders, sealers, etc.	2,001	1,249
Freight handlers	1,817	1,078

MILITANTS OF DISTRICT 5, MINERS' UNION, SENDING OUT CALL FOR ACTION IN COMING ELECTIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 12.—A drive to elect militants to the official positions in the coming district and international elections of the United Mine Workers of America, on a platform which calls for the formation of a fighting organization and the reinstatement of Alexander Howat, Jim MacLachlan and Thomas Myerscough, the fighting miners who were forced out thru the machinations of the corrupt and reactionary machines of Lewis and Farrington, is being put thru by members of the locals of District 5.

These miners demand also the nationalisation of the mines with workers control, the election of organizers, the six-hour day and the five-day week, higher wages and better working conditions, the formation of a labor party, amalgamation, and express opposition to dual unionism, secession movements—such as those engineered by Ben Legere and his One Big Union—and discrimination against Negro and foreign-born workers.

The call sent out by members of District 5 to all locals in the Pittsburgh district follows:

To all sincere members of the U. M. W. of A. in the Pittsburgh district:

Brothers:

The district and international elections will soon be held, and the locals of District 5 are now nominating candidates for district officers.

The election this year finds the organization in bad straits in more ways than one. The treasury is nearly bankrupt thru the corps of "organizers" and officials continually draining it. So bad indeed that the district offices cannot pay the death claims to the dependents of our deceased comrades. Thru their reign of reaction and corruption the organization has suffered, and if it is to continue, the organization will fall.

Two years ago the progressive miners had a ticket opposing the administration. The rank and file supported this ticket solidly, but thru the medium of the "blue sky" locals, corruption of the ballot box, boose, boodle and bribery it was announced we lost. However we cannot let the opportunity pass by not opposing them. Militants of this district have nominated an entire ticket to oppose the official family and call upon the miners who believe, and want officials to fight for a fighting organization, reinstatement of Howat, MacLachlan and Meyerscough, nationalization of the mines with workers' control. Election of organizers, 6-hour day, 5-day week, higher wages and better working conditions. A labor party unemployment relief, protection of foreign-born, amalgamation, alliance with railroad workers. Organization campaign, and all the platform calls for, and those locals who are against exorbitant salaries for officials, spineless and reactionary leadership, dual unionism and secession movements, no discrimination of Negro and foreign workers and many other issues which space does not permit to be mentioned should be enough to convince the membership to nominate and endorse this ticket from top to bottom.

Oust the union wreckers and expense account artists. Put in honest, clean and efficient men who will lead the miners to victory and power. A platform stating the views, aims and pledges of this ticket will soon be printed. Order your share and pass it around. Individual contributions and assistance needed to carry on the work of ousting the faithless gang now in power. Do your share. Write for any information you need. The ticket is composed of men known to be fighters of the working class, and pledged to fight for the platform is as follows:

For president, William A. Guiler, local 155, Charleroi; vice-president, Mike Brajdich, Local 3257, Wyano; secretary-treasurer, John Rafferty, Local 4426, Harmarville; International board member, Andrew Harmison, Local 1724, Houston; board members of sub-district No. 1, Louis Dufour, Local 1973, MacDonald; No. 2., James Douglas, Local 2125, Houston; No. 3., Ralph Bernabe, Local 1190, Ellsworth; No. 4., Walter Jones, Local 2399, Dalsytown; No. 5., John Indof, Local 2353, Fits Henry; No. 6., James Hickey, Keller; No. 7., George Solomon, Local 4126, Harmarville; auditors, Pat H. Toohey, Local 1724, Houston; Chas Resnick, Local 2353, Fits Henry; tellers, Alfred Fillipelli, Local 235, Hazard, Peter Wekick, Local 1829, Meadowlands, Joseph Biscoe, Local 818, West Newton.

Miners, support this ticket, get your local to nominate the candidates. Notify the undersigned of the action taken. Send for the platform. Help us make the U. M. W. of A. a militant fighting organization. Line up the miners in your territory with the ticket.

Hoping to hear from you at the earliest opportunity, I am, fraternally your, Pat H. Toohey, secretary campaign committee, Room 5, 805 James St., N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

U. S. DELIVERS ITALIAN REBEL TO MUSSOLINI

Nigra to be Deported to Land of Terror

By LAURENCE TODD.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Pietro Nigra, Italian subject, one of the victims of the I.W.W. hysteria trial at Chicago during the war, will be deported to Italy for such tender reception as the fascist sluggers may give him, in November. They murdered Matteotti, the Italian socialist leader.

He will be deported altho assistant secretary of labor White has been fully informed as to the likelihood that he is sending Nigra to death or maiming.

The Reason Why.

The chief reason why the gentle-spoken White is going to do this is that it is easier to agree with a fanatical reactionary who acts as his legal adviser than to follow his own humane impulses. The law permits the secretary of labor, in whose stead White is acting in these deportation cases, to determine whether an alien is such an undesirable person as to justify the punishment of deportation.

When the Federated Press correspondent went to see White, to learn why he proposed to return Nigra to Italy, Nov. 18, he found that White was unfamiliar with the case, which he had finally decided last April. He thought chief justice Taft had rendered a decision in the I. W. W. cases which made deportation necessary. The decision, rendered last January, in the cases of Nigra, Mahler, Oates and Moran, the four ex-prisoners now awaiting deportation, upheld the right of the government to send these men back to the countries from which they came.

Oh, No!

White first suggested that "We are not passing on the radicalism of any alien." Then he thought that he might permit an alien to depart at his own expense to a country other than his own, if that country would receive him. So, if Nigra could get assurances that he would be permitted to enter England, that solution might be arranged.

Presently the legal adviser came in. He was asked whether Nigra could legally be permitted to depart to England.

"I wouldn't let him," explained the adviser sharply. "This fellow is an undesirable citizen, he was one of that Haywood gang, and they were convicted of destruction of property, sabotaging the war and all sorts of crimes. He's an anarchist and the law requires that you deport him.

When reminded that Nigra was never convicted of being an anarchist, and that the issue was simply his legal right, the adviser again displayed wartime hysteria against all labor radicals. White joined the chorus and it was suggested to him that Sen. Pepper, at the invitation of president Harding, investigated the evidence in these cases and pronounced it wholly insufficient for conviction.

Not Even As 'Good' as Teddy.

The record produced by White showed that he had already, at the advice of his departmental lawyer, decided that Nigra and the three other I. W. W. trial victims were undesirable aliens who must be deported to their countries of origin. He withdrew his promise that Nigra might go to a country where his life would be safe.

"President Roosevelt refused to let Elihu Root send Rudowitz back to Russia to be hanged by the czar," he was reminded.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT TRIES TO LENGTHEN WORKDAY OF SEAMEN

By SYDNEY WARREN.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 12.—The Canadian government merchant marine is attempting to reduce expenses by forcing seamen on government vessels to work longer hours with time off in port in lieu of overtime pay. It also blacklists seamen who complain of food and other conditions. The Gray, which the government chartered from a private company, is the first vessel on which the new policy of longer hours and less pay is being introduced. On this vessel the men are hired for deck work at $65 a month and are compelled to take the wheel. This is $5 less a month than is paid by any other company in British Columbia and apart from this reduction in wages men employed on the Canadian government vessels are compelled to work overtime without pay and should a member of the crew refuse to work overtime he will be discharged at the first port and blacklisted.

Overtime Without Pay.

Coasting vessels of the Canadian government have been paying overtime to donkey-men aboard until recently an order came to compel these workers to work overtime without pay and receive time off in port, and on arrival in port if the man has more than a few hours' leisure time coming to him, he is discharged on some trivial excuse and gets nothing for the overtime he has worked.

Apart from the poor wages and long hours aboard government boats, the food is poor and on some of the vessels the men's quarters are filthy. These conditions forced the unsuccessful strike of the Seafarers' union last year. Following their defeat after a three months strike, the government employed a special agent to ferret out active union men and to see to it that as few union men as possible were hired on the company's vessels. One of the blacklisting schemes inaugurated by the government shipping board was the listing of all seamen who made complaints against food or living conditions.

Union Keeps Alive.

In spite of the defeat of the union during the last strike, the organization has succeeded in maintaining itself, due largely to its aggressive secretary, W. Donaldson. The membership has increased and has men on practically all the coastal and deep-sea vessels to further the interests of the union.

Textile Mill Crisis in Poland

With approximately 32,000 textile workers unemployed, 100 plants in Lodz, Poland, closed, only two or three mills working full time, and virtually the entire reminder operating with a reduced number of working days in the week, the crisis in Poland's textile industry is steadily growing worse reports the department of labor bureau at Washington.

YOU'RE OUT OF LUCK IF YOU GO BROKE IN NEW ORLEANS, LA.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—Philip De Vault, aged 18 years, of Washington Court House, Ohio, who claims he has traveled 1,800 miles in the past three weeks, was arrested on his arrival in the city on a charge of vagrancy. When confronted by the judge he was asked how much money he had in his possession. On being assured that the boy was penniless hisxonner fined the wanderer $10, or in the event of being unable to pay same to serve thirty days in the house of detention.

In the prison the boy fainted for lack of food arriving there after dinner was served, having fasted for the past forty-eight hours.

Capt. Rennyson, the warden took the lad under his personal care and will send him to his parents.

Int'l Printers' Meet Reports no Progress on Unity Proposals

(By The Federated Press)

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 12.—Thirty delegates from 17 countries attended the 9th International printers' congress at Hamburg in September. The principal problems related to obtaining new national affiliations and amalgamation of the many crafts into a single industrial printers' union.

The congress, which is affiliated with the Amsterdam International Federation of Trade Unions, failed to get the British and American unions to join. The International Typographical union will not affiliate unless the American Federation of Labor reenters the Amsterdam body. The British unions object to some of the fraternal provisions. The Russian union applied and will be admitted if it agrees to observe the international rules.

Little progress was reported in amalgamation. Rules adopted by the congress safeguard the autonomy of both the primary and the auxiliary organizations in the printing trades.

MERRICK CASE, TWO YEARS OLD, UP FOR TRIAL

Even Prosecutor Weakens in Frame-Up

(By The Federated Press)

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 12.—After nearly two years' delay the case of John E. Merrick, member of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union who was charged with planting an infernal machine near the shoe factory of Knipe Bros. in Ward Hill near Haverhill, is coming up in the court of Essex County.

Merrick, who was running an auto repair shop after having been blacklisted by the shoe manufacturers, was arrested in January 1923, and all but the charge of "being an accessory before the fact" of the planting of the suitcase containing a clockwork mechanism and 79 sticks of dynamite were dismissed.

Merrick is Arrested.

Merrick has always been an active union worker. He was well liked everywhere—by workers—but the employers didn't agree. Three weeks after the dynamite suitcase was found outside the shoe factory, half-buried in snow, Knipe Bros. offered $3,000 reward for arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for putting the bomb at their plant.

The reward was offered after one of the Knipe brothers had conferred with Sergeant Joseph U. Ryan and officer Hussey of the police department.

Ryan and Hussey came into Merrick's repair shop several times and looked around. Ryan admitted he had been in at least four times. Finally Merrick was arrested and the back of an old alarm clock which the police claimed was like the one in the suitcase and several pieces of wire and metal such as are found in any garage were introduced as evidence against him. In the preliminary police court hearing the circumstantial evidence was not enough to sustain the charge of Merrick's actual planting of the suitcase. But he was held on the other charge.

The suitcase actually contained enough dynamite to blow the town off the map but it would never have exploded and had as a matter of fact lain at the factory for two days before its discovery was announced. There were two wires leading outside of the suitcase and these would have had to be joined to make the necessary connection to permit the mechanism to work its deadly intent.

The criminal court has convened five times since Merrick's arrest and the district attorney has refused to prosecute. He does not see the case against Merrick but the officers want their reward and Merrick wants to be freed of the charge.

Haverhill is the capital of the women's novelty shoe manufacturing requiring highly skilled workers. Every shop in the city except that of the Knipe Bros. works under agreement with the Shoe Workers' Protective union. Fellow unionists of Merrick believe implicitly in his innocence and charge "frame-up" against Knipe brothers and the police officers.

The Low-Down on Courts

Next to an open demand for the confiscation of natural resources now held by the capitalists nothing arouses such intense antagonism from the most powerful sections of the capitalist press as a criticism of the courts or proposals to curtail their powers in any way.

It is common knowledge that the courts are bulwarks of the capitalist system but the exact manner in which they function in America, the all-important role they play, is known to but few.

In Professor Beard's "American Government and Politics" we find the following statement made by ex-President Hadley of Yale University—an acknowledged authority on American jurisprudence:

When it is said, as it commonly is, that the fundamental division of powers in the modern state is into legislative, executive, and judicial, the student of American institutions may fairly note an exception. The fundamental division of powers under the constitution of the United States is between voters on the one hand and property owners on the other. The forces of democracy on the one side, divided between the legislative and executive, are set over against the forces of property on the other, with the judiciary as arbiter between them.

This theory of American politics has not often been stated. But it has been universally acted upon.

The general status of the property owner under the law cannot be changed by the action of the legislature, of the the executive, or the people of a state voting at this polls, or at three put together.

This is fairly clear. The courts are the only authority that legally can change the existing relationships between property owners and the propertyless. They are the obstacle, powerful because accepted, between the masses of workers and the minority of landlords, financiers and industrial lords. Back of their decisions there stands of course the armed forces of capitalist government but the courts are the first line of American capitalism's defense.

It is their task—and they do it well—to give the proper sense of error to any rash person or group that challenges the right of the few idlers to rob the many toilers—to preserve the legal fiction of democracy in a nation where by no possible legal enactment can the natural resources and the machinery of production come into the hands of the masses.

Any agency whose sole task is to legalise robbery is too sacred to be tampered with. Therefore the wild howls of rage that arise from capitalism's spokesmen whenever courts are criticized.

Our Imperialists Eye Brazil

Natural resources of other lands and naval propaganda go together.

Scratator, financial writer for the Chicago Tribune, tells of the discovery of great tracts of land suitable for rubber production on the lower tributaries of the Amazon.

Then comes the inevitable reaction of the imperialist mind:

If one will take a map of the Amazon valley and of the Atlantic ocean and note how the mouth of the river projects toward Africa and Europe the thought occurs that a great Brazilian naval base in one of the many numerous harbors of the Amazon estuary wouldn't do any harm, provided Brazil adheres to her tradition of diplomatic co-operation with the United States.

The mouth of the Amazon may be close enough to the Caribbean to insure control to any power dominating the Caribbean, but a naval base in the mouth of the river would be a nice little lock on the door of what is probably the greatest source of future wealth on this globe.

The parrots who put down for print ideas like those above, emanating directly from the publicity centers of the robber band which owns America, are never backward in finding the splendid enterprise and courage of the American businessman. Here, is proof that these entrepreneurs, though they long for the rich rubber lands of Brazil and the profits to be made therefrom, consider the risk too great unless they can oppress and plunder native labor under the protection of the guns of a mighty war fleet.

In the light of these disclosures the fact that forty or fifty American army officers are now attached to the Brazilian army in the capacity of "instructors" is of considerable significance.

The largest and richest, as well as the most reactionary of the South American nations, Brazil will make a fine base for the conquering forces of American imperialism.

The protection and expansion of business abroad by actual or threatened force of arms becomes more and more the basic policy of American capitalist government.

Unemployment

The director of the New York City Industrial Aid Bureau announces that there are least 300,000 out of work in the metropolis. In reality the total number of unemployed much greater, for at least 60% of this figure represents union members. Unquestionably there are many out of work in the ranks of the unorganized. Most surveys do not take adequate account of the disemployed in the ranks of the non-unionized. The later, of course, consisting primarily of the unskilled and less skilled, are the worst sufferers from this dreadful scourge.

It is further reported that this condition is more acute than any time since the great depression. The employment bureaus are besieged with job-seekers.

Let no one mistake this situation. The condition pictured is not abnormal. It arises out of the very system of production and exchange. It is not merely a Marxian hypothesis that capitalism rests on the maintenance of a huge industrial reserve army. It is a fact of capitalism itself—a dreary but irrefutable fact. The Russel Sage Foundation has just announced the partial findings of an employment survey it has been making for the last five years in the various industries of seventy cities in 31 states. Its findings add further proof to the mountains of evidence already piled up in substantiation of the Marxian analysis of the capitalist system.

We are told by the Foundation investigators that on the average, the good and bad years included, there are continually several million men out of work. Every year there are from one to six million workers jobless for weeks or months. One out of eight workers are thus affected.

And the social degradation is the worst feature of the acute condition. Says the report:" There is something which we are just beginning to recognize, a resentment on the part of the workers against an industrial situation in which such insecurity and uncertainty are possible. It is not only unemployment but the fear of unemployment, the knowledge that any joy is uncertain and insecure, subject to the fluctuations of economic change, which are responsible for much of our present industrial unrest."

These are the facts. This is what we have with us. No communist critic could paint a blacker picture. And the workers, the sufferers, alone can change conditions for the better.

Militants Win in Nova Scotia

The long, bitter struggle waged by U. M. W. of A. District 26, (Nova Scotia) for the return of its autonomy has ended in victory for the militant rank and file and the revolutionary elements who would not concede defeat.

The workers had to fight not only the British Empire Steel corporation and its coal company subsidiaries but the Lewis machine of the United Mine Workers as well. Openly and shamelessly, Lewis, who now betrays his own union and the whole labor movement by the support of Coolidge, when troops and gunmen were brought in to terrorise the striking Nova Scotia miners, revoked the charter of the district and cooperated with the corporations and Canadian government to drive them back to work.

A provisional board of Lewis' lackeys and capitalist tools was set up to rule the district. Every effort was made to break the spirit of the miners but at the special convention they forced from Lewis, they have elected militant officials who represent them and who will fight their battles.

The Nova Scotia miners face now another wage cut and the lack of desire on the part of Lewis to fight his coal company allies is probably one of the contributing factors in his surrender to the rank and file of the district.

The policy of the Communists and the Canadian section of the Red International of Labor Unions in the Nova Scotia district has been proven correct. It has triumphed over the disrupters and kept the miners together. This is a remarkable achievement in the present period of reaction.

America—100 Per Cent

Two hysterical girls and and a mob seeking excitement have murdered a harmless Negro.

The girls claim that following their conversation with two men in an automobile, around mid night while they were crossing the street, a Negro spoke to one of them and took hold of her arm. They reported the matter to the proprietor of a nearby sacramental wineshop—a euphemism for bootleg joint—and the murder followed.

Negroes who were on the scene and who escaped say that no one spoke to the girls after they left the men in the machine and the girls are unable to identify the dead man.

We give our opinion of this typically American atrocity for what it is worth as follows:

We do not believe that any Negro spoke to the girls. We believe that they went to the wineshop and said that they had been accosted by a Negro either because they thought it would be a good joke, or because they were hysterical and thought a Negro had spoken to them. Psychology has scientific explanations of these cases and the two girls should be examined, not by ignorant prosecuting attorneys, but by trained psychologists.

The murder occured in a neighborhood that is populated jointly by Jewish and Negro people. The mob that committed the murder was almost exclusively Jewish.

Race hatred has reached a high pitch when one oppressed race becomes the executioners of another. The whole affair is illuminating in its disclosures of the violent nature of American mobs and the influence over them of the capitalist press with its constant appeals to racial prejudices.

A Three-Cornered Deal--Smith, LaFollette and Hillquit

By WILLIAM WEINSTONE.

LaFollette is entering into a deal with the Smith forces in Tammany Hall, and the socialist party is on the inside of this deal. The deal consists of an exchange of votes in the present elections. Smith is to knife Davis and LaFollette is to hand over the progressive and socialist votes to Smith in his contest with Teddy Roosevelt, the republican candidate. The socialist party is a willing tool in the furtherance of this Tammany Hall and LaFollette election alliance; an alliance which will sacrifice the socialist party candidate. It is an alliance which may have more far-reaching effects in the New York political situation than may appear at first glance. It is an alliance which may result in a more permanent combination and a broadening out of the present LaFollette movement to include a section of Tammany Hall in this state.

Who is Al Smith?

Who is Al Smith? Smith is the political chief of Tammany Hall in New York state; the candidate of the democratic party for re-election as governor. Al Smith during the war, not only threw his full support to the Wilson administration, but it was during his first term in office that the first prosecutions of the Communists in this state took place. It is the Tammany Hall of Al Smith that was responsible for putting into use the Criminal Syndicalist Law, which was a dead letter since 1901, for the conviction of Ben Gitlow and the other Communists. It is Tammany Hall, lately led by Charlie Murphy, arch corruptionist and servile tool of the capitalists, the Tammany Hall of ward heelers and crooks of all varieties, of which Smith is now the political leader.

Tammany Hall is the sinister, political force which kills every spark of class-consciousness in the local labor movement. Tammany Hall has bolted the door of the trade unions to every voice expressing the interests of the workers. The labor movement of New York state with its Jimmy Hollands, Peter Bradys and Coughlins, is a political machine corraling the votes of labor for Tammany Hall.

Socialists Eager for the Alliance With Smith.

The socialists have been playing for this three-cornered deal for some time. They voted for the resolution introduced in the Schenectady convention of the New York State Federation of Labor, declaring Smith to be "a friend of labor." With their vote, the resolution was adopted unanimously.

Norman Thomas, the socialist party candidate for governor of New York wrote a letter to Smith, published in the New York Times of September 29, that was a direct bid to Smith to accept LaFollette and throw over Davis. Pretending to call upon Smith to clarify his position, Norman Thomas declares that in view of the report that representative Carew had been to Washington seeking a LaFollette endorsement of Smith's candidacy, that Smith must therefore choose between LaFollette and Davis. The letter further declares that "With much of the platform of the democratic party adopted at your behest progressives generally, including socialists, are in sympathy." The whole tenor of the letter is but an indirect endorsement of Smith, placing him on many issues in a most favorable light. This letter is but one of the links in the policy of a rapproachment with Smith.

Norman Thomas, speaking at Schenectady on September 17, declared, according to the New York Leader, that 'Smith has a good record" and is a miracle in Tammany Hall.

LaFollette, speaking at Madison Square Garden, surprisingly touched upon local issues, and clearly made a bid for Smith's support by touching on those very same points upon which Smith will claim support from labor.

Frank P. Walsh, who backed Smith for president at the democratic national convention and is today an elector and supporter of LaFollette, at a meeting in Town Hall, spoke of the favorable record of Smith, altho Norman Thomas, the socialist candidate for governor who supports LaFollette was on the platform.

These facts indicate clearly that the socialist party and LaFollette desire an understanding with Smith and that Smith himself is not averse to such an understanding being reached. This deal may not come into the open either in a direct endorsement of Smith by LaFollette or an open disavowal of Davis by Smith. It will work out, by Smith giving only lukewarm support to Davis and having his machine knife him in the actual vote. The socialists and LaFollette will sacrifice Norman Thomas.

What is Behind the Deal.

LaFollette knows that without the support of the cities in the East, he cannot hope to make a great national showing or build up a strong base for his future third party support.

LaFollette knows well the lesson of the Roosevelt campaign of 1912, which failed precisely because it could not secure the support of the eastern cities. These votes Tammany Hall in large measures controls.

The deal which LaFollette will consummate with Smith is typical of the politics being played by LaFollette in other parts of the country. In Montana the LaFollette-Wheeler forces entered into an alliance with the local machine democrats. In Wyoming, according to the New York Times, a similar deal was made with Judge Rose, running for senator on the democratic ticket, in which local democrats are to let the national ticket shift for itself, thus indirectly supporting LaFollette, and in return receiving the backing of LaFollette for their candidates.

On the other hand, the middle class followers of LaFollette are really class brethren of the followers of Smith. Both rely upon the middle class for support. While Smith may talk the demagogic phraseology suited to "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town," LaFollette speaks the same demagogic language but suited to "field and farm." Both pronounce themselves as friends of labor, and both represent minorities in the old parties. Important the Tammany Hall may be in the democratic party, the old guard interlocked with Big Business holds the deciding influence.

Smith this year is particularly awake to the necessity of an alliance with LaFollette and the socialist party. The republicans hold the upstate farming sections and Smith can win only by securing the overwhelming support of the industrial cities. In this respect the socialist party is a competitor and can cut into his vote because the socialists too draw their support from the industrial cities.

What the Treachery of the Socialist Party Means.

The attitude of the socialist party toward Smith reveals the full treachery of the socialist party when it is borne in mind that labor in New York state is held to capitalist politics chiefly by Tammany Hall and can be freed only by the destruction of Tammany Hall. The Smith-LaFollette-socialist party alliance during the elections will have far reaching effects upon the LaFollette movement after the election, by bringing in these Tammanyites into the third party. This will still more destroy the independence of labor in the LaFollette movement. Even the mirage of a labor party which has been propagated by the socialist party, will fade from the scene. The socialist party is dealing its death warrant as a labor organization in furthering such a deal.

The socialist party in New York state maintained that it would build its local organization as a result of the endorsement of LaFollette. But in reality it has steadily given way to every demand of LaFollette. It has withdrawn its most prominent local candidates, London, Lee and Panken, it withdrew its own candidate in the 20th congressional district, a former socialist stronghold and endorsed La Guardia, the war jingo, LaFollette's candidate, whose name appears today under the arm and torch. It has accepted a reactionary condition on the local and state directing committees. Now it has gone still further backward, completely giving up a fight against Smith, thereby sacrificing Norman Thomas and its state ticket. In place of increasing the socialist vote, it will cut its vote in half. The socialist party, having abandoned the class struggle and independent political action, comes as a beggar to the table of LaFollette, enthusiastic over every crumb that this lord of the middle class throws in its direction.

It is the duty of the Workers Party to increase its agitation against the socialists to expose fully this treachery and to win over every honest socialist supporter to the Workers Party.

ent" in the state constabulary. Carl Neilson, who was recently found guilty of assault after a jury trial in the Herrin courthouse, is a "captain" of the state constabulary.

The state constabulary has found difficulty in finding excuses for going before the public and carrying on secretly illegitimate activity, when it makes its alliance with the klan and with those employers who want to institute a Cossack militarism in this state such as prevails in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. The Illinois state constabulary is founded on a law passed in 1787 which allows "officers of the state to call to their aid peace officers of the state in accordance with law in the pursuit of stolen property and apprehension of criminals."

But the only thing those who become members are privileged to do is to apprehend criminals in the commission of crime—and every private citizen is authorized to go that far. The state constabulary, however, gets in its real work in drumming up militaristic sentiment and entering activities such as are carried on by the klan to divide the workers.

Claim 28,000 Members.

The workers who join are made to pay $24.50 in return for which they receive its star and permission to carry a gun. The organization was formed, "under the state laws of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin," and now claims 28,000 members in Illinois. Practically every member, the DAILY WORKER learns from a reliable source, is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. The few who do not belong to the klan are attracted to the constabulary because of its activities to stir up militarism.

The state constabulary, in spite of its exhorbitant charges, is constantly running at a deficit. But the capitalist press, the large employers, one hundred per cent Americans, and thugs clinging to the skirts of the capitalist system find the state constabulary very convenient for their use.

Seek Control Thru Politics.

The constabulary has frequently entered politics. At the present time the organization is backing not only ex-governor Deneen in his race for the senatorship from Illinois, but has also put up J. M. Leventhal, a democrat, as its candidate for judge of the municipal court. Leventhal is secretary of the constabulary.

Dennis Eagan, bailiff of the municipal court, is listed as a vice-president in the "Constabulary News," official organ of the state constabulary. Other vice-presidents, as announced in literature of the organization, are: Fred Sterling, lieutenant governor of Illinois; Joseph J. Meresnsky, assistant United States district attorney; Howard Hayes, judge of the municipal court, Theodore Steinert, member of the house of representatives; Edward Litsinger, chairman of the board of review; Robert M. Lee, city editor of the Chicago Tribune; Homer Hogan, city editor of the Herald and Exam iner; Robert Thomas Loughran, official editor of the United Press, and Edward W. Geiger, assistant editor of the Chicago American. Some of these men, when interviewed, declared their names had been used without permission.

The state constabulary, which has no lawful connection with the state of Illinois but is a private organization formed by James R. Howe and his backers, in addition to mixing into politics, and its alliance with the klan, makes one of its principal aims the building up of the organization to act as a foundation for a state constabulary which employers hope, will officially be sanctioned by the state of Illinois.

S. Glenn Young an "Inspector."

The Constabulary News appoints "inspectors" in each locality, which are supposed to send in news and build up the organization in their locality. S. Glenn Young is the "inspector" for the state including Cook county, Illinois. In addition to the "inspectors" and the news items in the Constabulary News, the membership is held together by an occasional banquet where law enforcement and militarism is preached.

"I really don't know what excuse the state constabulary has for its existence," a high official of the organization told the DAILY WORKER in a confidential moment. "We give away a tin star, but in reality it does not give the wearer more privileges than an ordinary citizen. Perhaps those who buy these stars exceed their authority, I don't know."

In the next article I will tell of the activities of the state constabulary during the Defense Day celebration on September 12.

Our Readers Views on Many Subjects

A Veteran Revolutionist.

To the DAILY WORKER: Since 1887 I have been active in the International revolutionary movements of many countries. Today I look over the records up to the present time of those stalwarts of my early days in Manchester, England and other British cities with whom I fought shoulder to shoulder in revolutionary battles. Such men as George Lansbury, Jack Jones, Keir Hardie, Ben Tillet, J. R. Clynes, Ramsay MacDonald and a host of others.

Some Betrayers of Workers.

I look back today and see the treachery and betrayal of many of these comrades of past days when I helped with my voice and pen to carry their victory into the House of Commons. Especially that one Judas and lickspittle of capitalism, J. R. Clynes. With him I class Ben Tillet whose name and portrait was revered and hung up in thousands of homes of the British workers in the 90's but who today to the revolutionist and Internationalist he has gone like my old time but despicable comrade, H. M. Hyndman. They both betrayed the workers of Britain in their hour of crisis during the world war and sold themselves, bag and baggage, to the capitalist oligarchy. They made the Social Democratic Federation of Great Britain, of which I was once a member, stink in the nostrils of true revolutionary class conscious proletarians of the world.

Communism Hope of the Workers.

But comrades, both of America and of all other countries, the Red Star of Russia is a beacon light to the real revolutionary units who are fighting in every capitalist country under the banner of the Communist International against great odds and the treachery of the Amsterdam International. The future is bright with hope. The doom of capitalism is fast approaching in every country of the world and it behooves the workers to so mobilize their forces that Communism, the hope of the workers of the world, shall stand triumphantly on the ramparts and ruins of decayed capitalism. Yours fraternally,—Vincent Brown, Seattle, Washington.

Everything To It.

To the DAILY WORKER:—After reading Comrade Buchwold's impressions of a LaFollette meeting entitled "Nothing To It," in the Los Angeles Special, I feel duty bound to write about my impressions of a Foster meeting.

Some 1000 tickeets were sold at 25c a piece for admission to the Gamut Club where Comrade Foster spoke here. Every seat was occupied and many people were turned away because the house could hold no more.

Tore Capitalist Institutions to Ground

Comrade Foster attacked the institutions that support capitalism, and believe me, he tore them to the ground. He not only proved that the government was "the executive board" of the capitalists, but convinced the dullest of us that the army and navy, the schools, newspapers and the churches were all used to poison our minds and force the workers to lead the lives of semi-slaves. Mobilization Day was explained and also the Japanese Immigration Law.

He diagnosed the different parties in the political field and showed their relation to the class conscious workers.

Lifts LaFollette Illusion.

After quickly dismissing with the republican and democratic parties, Comrade Foster swept the LaFollette illusion from the people's eyes as one might a spider's web. The program of the Workers Party was well delivered, added to which was an appeal for new members for the local. This was the cause for another of the spontaneous bursts of applause which punctuated Foster's entire speech.

The defunct second international did not escape Foster's denunciation. He predicated a Communist president of the United States who would be called the Chairman of the People's Commissars of the United States, in the near future amidst thunderous applause.

It was the most inspiring meeting I have ever attended.

Isadore Spenser,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Will Russian Student Correspond?

To the DAILY WORKER: There are a few good comrades here who enjoy reading the DAILY WORKER. After reading my copy I pass it around to comrades who can't afford to subscribe. This section of the country has been very hard hit by bank failures, a low cattle market and a very dry season—all these and many other conditions make it very hard to raise cash.

We were very much interested in the recent article from Kuzbas as we once thot of joining that colony. We are glad to note they are making a success of it.

My daughter wishes to correspond with some Russian students who would be interested in writing to an American student. This is her third year of Deming High School. She is sixteen years old.

The news of Russia interests us very much. We enjoy reading the DAILY WORKER and I spend all of my spare time reading it. I hope it will continue until the revolution and then too.

Yours for Communism,
Mrs. S. M. Calkins, Deming,
New Mexico.

TO A CAPITALIST ORATOR.

You say we are free with no masters to serve,
But I think you're a fake and a fraud,
I surely admire your cast-iron nerve,
But know not the reason you laud.
I'm not even free for for a master to choose,
From a master I cannot be freed,
I'm in bondage forever, I cannot get loose,
I'm in bondage because I'm in need.

For, those who can rise upon others who toil,
For THEM, there is freedom and light,
But for the poor toiler, the son of the soil,
There is nothing but darkness and night.
He cannot aspire to knowledge you know,
For in science he never can train,
Altho his muscles continue to grow,
He must suffer reduction in brain.

When the workers will all of their products receive
There is never no need to be poor,
It is while we for others' great fortunes retrieve
That the wolf is on watch at the door.
When only the worker has right to dictate
What share to the loafer shall fall,
Then industry reaches the perfection of state
And the end to the living on GALL.

NEW LA FOLLETTE CRIME BARED

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Federation News, organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, has untied things to say of the editor of the Mid West News because of his desertion of LaFollette for Coolidge. The DAILY WORKER was the first to wield the hammer over editor Lochray. We flayed him when he deserted the Farmer Labor party movement. It was then Lochray's foot slipped, not when he dropped one capitalist candidate and picked up another—for a consideration. The Federation News is also one of the betrayers of the working class movement. There was a time when it—under its old name—defended the principle of working class political action, but Gompers closed the feed bag and the directors of the Federation News, nee The New Majority, dropped their principles like so many hot coals and became regular again. The only legitimate charge the Federation News could make against Lochray is that the Omaha editor was a little bit late in selling himself.

IN Utica, New York, Catholics and Masons have joined in a local organization known as the Hamilton-Jefferson Association. Prominent members of the Knights of Columbus are leading the Catholic wing. The members of the new organization are professional and business men. As far as we know there are no priests involved in the movement. It is not likely that there will be. The Catholic hierarchy in America is not very well pleased with the attitude of a section of the Knights of Columbus. As this organization has grown in power and influence a tendency is developed to act independently of the clergy. This kind of thing has reached the point where the Bishop of Detroit, Michael Gallagher, hinted that the pope might be obligated to place the Knights under the ban as he did a similar organization in France.

THE so-called "atheist" element is now in control of the organization. It is an open secret that many

EMIGRANTS ARE FLEECED BY THE STEAM AGENCIES

(By Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Be sure your friends and relatives who are trying to get to the United States from Russia are still in the ports to which you were sending money before you send any more, is the warning of the Soviet consulates in Riga and Libau, which the Central Bureau of the Society for Technical Aid to Russia is broadcasting thruout America.

Thousands of Russians who were waiting in these ports for the American consuls to vise their passports have given up trying to emigrate to the United States under the new immigration restrictions which cut the Russian quota from about 26,000 last year to about 2,000 this year. These Russians have returned to their homes or gone to other places in Russia and money from relatives and friends in America is going to the steamship ticket offices and to the consuls in Riga and Libau who promised to get the prospective emigrants their tickets and visas. Thousands of dollars are being lost to these hole-in-the-wall offices which are not forwarding the money nor informing the senders that their friends and relatives have left the port.

SUPREME COURT AGAIN BRINGS MAILED FIST DOWN ON WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Supreme Court of the United States in a decision handed down today threw its weight into the scales against the striking railroad workers of the Atchinson Topeka and Santa Fe railroad who refused to run a train during the shopmens' strike of 1922, while it was protected by troops.

The train crew sympathized with the striking shopmen, who were hit by the Daugherty injunction. The railroad brotherhood leaders however, openly sided with the authorities against the crew who struck in sympathy with their fellow workers.

They when were indicted and convicted and the decision of the Supreme Court upholds the decision of the lower courts

FARRINGTON WAS FOR INJUNCTION JUDGE HADLEY

His First Start in Trading With Enemy

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Two.)

"All the coal Frank Farrington ever dug would not keep a gas heater from freezing to death." This was the comment made on Farrington's coal digging activities by a miner who once held an important position in District 12. But in order to be eligible for election as an official of the United Mine Workers of America a candidate must at least show that he has some acquaintance with the subterranean depths where the black diamonds grow.

Farrington did not like coal digging worth a cent and shortly after his father introduced him to the work at Streator, Frank discovered he had a vocation as a railroad worker. However, after he had risen to position of night yardmaster in his business his relations with John Barleycorn got him into difficulties, with the result that he had to sever connections with this line of work. He went back to the mines only to be followed by Mr. Barleycorn. John and Frank were close friends those days.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—In view of the intervention of the great powers in the Far East, the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions has proposed to the British Trade Union Congress to jointly found a labor society—"Hands Off China," in order "to avert by the joint forces of the workers of both countries a new war and defend the national independence of Chinese toilers."

On its part, the All-Russian Central Committee of Trade Unions has set to work to establish the said society in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

COMMUNIST VOTERS OF CHICAGO! BE SURE TO REGISTER TODAY!

Communist voters of Chicago!

Today, Tuesday, October 14, is the last day on which you can make good your signature on the petition which has helped to put William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow on the ballot. Today is the last day on which you can qualify to vote for the candidates of the working class on Nov. 4.

Today is the last registration day. The polls will be open from eight o'clock in the morning until nine o'clock at night. Remember—if you placed your signature on a petition nominating the candidates of the Workers Party and fail to register, your signature will not count.

The republican and democratic parties, and the LaFollette "party" are dragging obedient, the blind and deluded voters to the polls today by the thousands. They know that 1924 is a significant year.

We do not expect a large vote! We know that hundreds of party members and hundreds of sympathizers are disqualified for some reason which the ruling class has made to keep the revolutionary elements from the polls. Many of our foreign-born comrades are disqualified because they have not taken an oath of allegiance to the red, white and blue dollar protector. Many more have lost their vote thru having served sentence in jail for their militant activities among the working classes. Hundreds more have been disfranchised on some technicality.

We do not expect a large vote! But we expect every Communist who is a voter to register his sympathy with the working class cause this fall. Especially do we expect those who signed the Workers Party petitions to make good their signatures by registering today.

A vote for Coolidge is a vote for Wall Street and its capitalist government.

A vote for Davis is a vote for Wall Street and its capitalist government.

A vote for LaFollette is a vote for capitalist government by small exploiters, rather than by large exploiters. A vote for LaFollette is a vote for a bit of padding to the toe of the capitalist boot that kicks the working class.

A vote for Foster and Gitlow is a vote for the overthrow of capitalism, and for the establishment of the rule of the working class.

Forbes Trial Starts.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 13.—The case of Col. Charles R. Forbes, former director of the veterans' bureau, under indictment here on charges of conspiring to defraud the government, began today before Judge Soper in federal court on a motion for a bill of pleas.

WORKERS PARTY CANDIDATES GO EAST AND WEST

Fresh from a triumphant meeting where they gave the Communist message to four thousand people in the Ashland Auditorium, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, Workers Party candidates for president and vice-president of the United States, departed on their speaking tours yesterday.

Foster, who has just completed a whirlwind tour of the Pacific Coast, will speak in Detroit tonight at the House of the Masses, while Gitlow is speaking in Seymour Hall, Omaha, Nebraska.

Paths Cross in Chicago.

Gitlow has completed a speaking tour of the east and his path crossed that of Foster, who was traveling east, at the monster Chicago meeting, where both candidates spoke.

Close to one thousand dollars was collected for the Communist campaign fund, after a collection appeal by Bob Minor, eighty dollars worth of campaign literature was sold and one hundred people subscribed to the DAILY WORKER. Thousands of copies of the special campaign issue of the DAILY WORKER were distributed.

The future dates of the Communist presidential candidates are as follows:

Foster Dates

DETROIT, MICH. — House of the Masses, 2101 Gratiot, Tuesday, Oct. 14, 8 p. m.

TOLEDO, OHIO—Labor Temple Auditorium, Michigan St. and Jefferson, Wednesday, Oct. 15, 8 p. m.

I.W.W. DELEGATES MEET HERE IN ONE CONVENTION

Rank and File Opposes Idea of Two Gatherings

Delegates to the two conventions of the Industrial Workers of the World, scheduled to open yesterday, took matters into their own hands and served notice on the officials representing both factions that there would be one convention on what they termed "neutral ground" and invited them to come to the Phoenix Hall, 405 W. Division Street, at 2 p. m.

Within the last few months a controversy has arisen in the national office of the I. W. W. over leadership which resulted in one faction, the Griffith-Rowan-Bowerman group, resorting to capitalist court injunctions to restrict the other faction, in the persons of Tom Doyle and Joe Fisher, from conducting the work of the organization.

The membership all over the country was aroused over this method of procedure, of taking an I. W. W. organizational matter into the capitalist courts, and both sides were compelled to issue a call for a convention to convene Oct. 13. As the time approached for the convention the line between the two factions, represented by the different groups of leaders, became more tightly drawn and it developed that not one but two conventions might be held. The halls rented for the two conventions were the Emmet Memorial, at Ogden and Taylor Sts., and another at 180 W. Washington St.

Halls Rented and Deposit Paid.

But yesterday when members of the I. W. W. came to both these halls, they found no convention and no sign of one to be held. At both these halls the janitors told the DAILY WORKER reporter that the halls were rented and a deposit paid.

It developed later in the day that the whole matter had taken an entirely new turn. The delegates had taken the matter into their own hands and served notice on the bickering officers that there would be one convention.

Rank and File Meets.

"On Sunday night," a delegate informed the DAILY WORKER, "the delegates held a metting by themselves without any officers and decided to call off the two conventions and take charge of this matter in their way. They rented the Phoenix Hall and served notice on their officers that they were invited to attend the convention called by the delegates

WORKERS CONTRIBUTE TO FUND TO CARRY ON COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

Money has been coming in regularly into the local office of the Workers Party from the various Amalgamated shops since the LaFollette officials in the Amalgamated began prosecuting those who refused to give dollar donations to the LaFollette campaign fund, and are instead purchasing Workers Party campaign fund stamps which are being circulated by our comrades in the shops.

In spite of the drastic measures which the LaFollette representatives are taking to pull the dollars from pockets of the workers for the LaFollette campaign, in many of the shops with very little effort our comrades are able to collect more money for the Communist Campaign Fund than goes to the LaFollette campaign with all their big guns.

RANK AND FILE BALKS PLOT TO DELIVER FARMER-LABOR PARTY IN MINNESOTA TO DEMOCRATS

By C. H. HATHAWAY
(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 13.—The corrupt, reactionary leadership of the group in the Ramsey County Farmer-Labor Federation led by Frank T. Starkey and Fred E. Tillquist was smashed last night by the rank and file under the leadership of the left wing.

For weeks resentment has been growing against the corruption and alliances with old party bosses that have been fostered by these men.

The matter came to a head two weeks ago when at a convention packed by non-delegates an endorsement was given to Oscar Keller, the republican candidate for congress in the fourth congressional district.

Show Endorsement Stolen.

At a meeting of the executive committee held October 4, it was clearly shown that the endorsement had been stolen with the result that the executive committee ordered another convention for last night. The executive committee came into the convention prepared to make a complete report on the manner in which the campaign was being conducted. Fred Tillquist called the convention to order.

It immediately became apparent that he and Starkey were going to try to prevent the transaction of any business, when Starkey took the floor and claimed that non-delegates were present and that the convention could not go ahead.

Delegate Carlgren, of the carpenters, then proposed that visitors take seats in the galleries, that all delegates retire to the rear of the hall, that the roll be called and as each name was called the delegate go up and take his seat. This carried.

The roll call showed 206 legal delegates present.

Starkey again objected to the proceeding on the grounds that the convention was not organized in conformity with the state constitution. Delegate Carlgren again took the floor pointing out that for five years the county organization had been constituted in the same manner and that no objections had been raised but that the left wing stood for constitutional procedure and therefore moved that the convention adjourn and reconvene Monday night in conformity with the state constitution.

While Carlgren was talking, Starkey and Torgerson rushed up to confer with chairman Tillquist. The conference resulted in Tillquist ruling the motion out of order, adjourning convention and telling the delegates to go home.

The delegates refused to leave and called up executive board member Gipple to take the chair which he did. The reactionaries then turned out the lights but upon being informed of the state fire laws turned one light on again. Secretary Wangerin was then called upon to read the report of the executive committee, but as soon as he started to read the report the one light was again turned out. A flashlight was secured and the report read.

This report showed clearly why the reactionaries desired to break up the convention. It showed clearly how the previous convention had been packed and it further showed that the O'Connor political gang that for years controlled the democratic party was now firmly in the saddle of the farmer-labor party.

Show Sinister Alliances.

The headquarters being used jointly by the farmer-labor party and the LaFollette forces, which normally rents for $375 a month was being donated by the Hamm Brewing company; the office furniture was donated by the Louis P. Dow company, a real estate supply house whose printers have been on strike for two years; the heat and light was donated by the North-

SOVIET GEORGIA TELLS OF FIGHT WITH REACTION

Reply to Lies of Kept Press in U. S.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Only recently the American kept press was filled to the brim with reports of the counter-revolutionary movement in Soviet Georgia. Some of these subsidized sheets saw in the alleged insurrections against Workers' Rule in Soviet Georgia a movement that would threaten Soviet Rule in Russia itself. The DAILY WORKER has just secured a Manifesto issued by the enlarged Plenum of the Tiflis, Georgia, Soviet, and addressed to the workers and farmers of all countries. It reviews the situation in this part of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and gives the lie to the malicious and misleading accounts that have appeared in America's daily newspapers. The manifesto in full is as follows:

The enlarged plenum of the Tiflis Soviet has unanimously addressed the following manifesto to the proletariat and to the peasantry of the whole world.

FOR three and a half years Georgia has lived under a Soviet regime. In these three years the country has made enormous strides forward on the road to economic and national-cultural restoration. In the atmosphere of assured international peace which was set up along with the Soviet rule, both internally and in the foreign relations with the neighboring republics, the workers and peasants of our republic have revealed a zest for work and a heroism unexampled in history.

The productive forces, which were fettered by the czarist regime and the imperialist war as much as by the chronic state of war in the years when the country was under the administration of the social-democratic menshevist party, are now rapidly developing both in industry and agriculture. The economic and cultural interests of labor are under the sure protection of the effective social legislation of the Soviet power.

Education Is Fostered.

Never in the history of our country has there been such an eager work of construction carried on in all the spheres of the cultural life of the people.

Under the Soviet power Georgia has realized for the first time the complete nationalizing of all organs of

STATE POLICE BACKBONE OF DRIVE FOR WAR

It Is 100 Per Cent Brand of Americanism

The "state constabulary of Illinois," a private corporation which claims to exist as a "law enforcing body," in reality has as one of its chief functions the establishment in this country of an autocratic militarism.

The state constabulary of Illinois was the backbone of the Chicago mobilization day program of Sept. 12, over 2,500 members of the constabulary taking part in the military exercises. The state constabulary furnished the largest delegation to honor militarism of any participating organization.

Looks Like "Skin Game."

On the surface the state constabulary looks like any ordinary "skin game." There is the same blustering trade magazine, the "Constabulary News," which holds the membership together by boosting the organization. There is the same "good-fellowship" spirit which officers of the organization try to promote by banquets and meetings.

However, less than one tenth of the membership of the state constabulary attends the metings and social functions, the DAILY WORKER is informed. Most of the members of the state constabulary, as explained in the first article, are members of the Ku Klux Klan who joined in order to use the organization as a tool. Those Chicago politicians and large financial interests which back the constabulary, allow the officers of the organization to carry on their petty graft, to charge members $24.50 for nothing, because the employers know that when they need the constabulary to put over a job, the constabulary will respond. Such was the case on September 12.

"Rain or shine, the 218th department of constabulary cavalry, the 465th department of constabulary field artillery and the official band of the day, constituting 2,087 of the 2,500 men that president James R. Howes, has promised to have on the drill field at Grant Park, Sept. 12, will report for duty, by the orders of mobilization issued early last week." Such runs the call of the state constabulary for its members to take part in mobilization day.

It Heads the List.

"Newspaper clippings from all over the state concerning Defense Day have arrived at the executive offices and in all, where civilian participation is mentioned, the department of constabulary heads the list. But there is a reason, a larger number of men will represent the constabulary than those sent from any other organization—commercial, political, or patriotic."

"What the department of constabulary will do on that day," the statement, written under the title, "The Member's Duty," further states, "will be entirely up to the members. If the department of constabulary is to be lauded as patriotic to its country and law abiding, there must be a demonstration of its patriotism."

In all these statements of the "department of constabulary," not even a pretense is made of doing anything for the workers. On the contrary, it is constantly stressed that "the business man must be protected." "The membership has grown," states a full page advertisement in the Constabulary News, "until today there are 28,000 members in the state of Illinois who are attempting to prevent the criminal from robbing the small business man. They are doing their duty."

"Like an armed band of criminals taking away our life and property, like vermin, difficult of control, yet noxious and destructive is pacifism," states the department of constabulary. "The preservation of peace thru the preparation for war and a preparation to insure lasting peace, as well as to test the patriotic sentiment of the country is the entire cause of the program of he Defense Day in a nutshell. These tin-horn pacifists who call themselves anti-gun-toters can bend themselves into anti-anything. They will do nothing to help the small business man or citizen to protect his life and insure property against loss."

It is 100 Per Cent.

The department of constabulary is admittedly an organization which promotes 100 per cent Americanism, which promotes militarism to protect the business men and insure property against loss. It does the bidding of the Ku Klux Klan, of which it serves as an auxiliary, and promotes the political advance of crooked politicians.

The thugs and criminals of Chicago, as is well known to newspaper men, use the organization to buy gun permits. These gun permits are sold by the department of constabulary at an exhorbitant price and many of the guns are used in the commission of crime. The department of constabulary is permitted to sell gun-permits for $24.50 because it drums up militaristic spirit at the bidding of the capitalist class.

STATE CONSTABULARY IS NOT A PART OF STATE GOVERNMENT

The "state constabulary of Illinois," contrary to the general impression, is not a part of the state government, but is a private corporation. The state constabulary, "claiming 28,000 members, is composed almost wholly of members of the Ku Klux Klan.

This issue contains the second of a series of three articles by Karl Reeve, exposing the state constabulary as the tool of the Ku Klux Klan, of the employers who are trying to stir up militarism, and of cheap Chicago politicians.

The state constabulary was founded many years ago under a law permitting private citizens to apprehend criminals in the commission of crime. Members of the state constabulary have to pay $24.50 in return for which they receive permission to carry a gun and a tin star. The star gives the members no more rights than a private citizen, and the gun permit costs only a few dollars.

In the first article Comrade Reeve showed how the state constabulary aids the Ku Klux Klan to perpetrate its lawlessness. Glenn Young and over 200 Herrin Klansmen, some of whom took part in the recent Klan murders in Herrin, are members of the state constabulary.

In this article Reeve tells of the activities of the state constabulary in stirring up militarism for the employers.

LABOR TROOPS CLASH WITH TROOPS OF MERCHANTS IN CANTON STREETS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Serious fighting between the merchants' volunteer corps and Sun Yat Sen's labor troops occurred on the Rund in Canton on Saturday, General Douglas Jenkins reported to the state department today.

Ten or fifteen were killed, and as many wounded. The consul general reported that practically all of the stores in Canton are closed and that many streets are barricaded. The situation, he reported, appears tense and more fighting seems probable.

UNITED STATES DOUGH BUYING GERMAN BRAINS

Zeppelin Costly Symbol of Morgan's Power

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 13.—The crew of the naval air station here were "standing by" today for the arrival of the dirigible ZR-3 on Wednesday from Friedrichshafen, Germany. Four hundred sailors and marines are ready to seize the mooring lines of the world's largest rigid airship and "warp" her into her hangar.

To Score John Bull.

After the ZR-3 becomes an official part of the United States navy, she will make a trans-oceanic flight, probably to England sometime before Christmas, according to Lieut. Commander Jos. M. Deem, executive officer at the Lakehurst aviation field. As soon as the huge airship has been refilled with helium to replace the inflamable hydrogen she now contains she will cruise over the country with passengers and mails in a number of test flights, commander Deem said.

The twenty-eight members of the German crew will stay at the station until after certain trial flights have been made. After these tests have been concluded the greater part of the crew will return to Germany leaving behind a few mechanics and engineers to familiarize the American airmen here with the Maybach engines with which the ZR-3 is equipped.

Zeppelin is Wet.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—All stories to the effect that the ZR-3 was "dry" on her trans-Atlantic voyage were disposed today by monster advertisements in the German newspapers today of champagne. Firms boasting that the dirigible carried cases of their brand of wine. In this case, the "dry" can only mean dry champagne.

MORTA, Azores, Oct. 13.—The ZR-3 is now over the Atlantic, having travelled more than 1,700 miles since leaving Friedrichshafen, Germany, yesterday morning.

I. W. W. Delegates Meet in Chicago in One Convention at the Phoenix Hall for two o'clock in the afternoon.

Go Into Executive Session.

At Phoenix Hall the convention was called to order by one of the delegates. The delegates were seated in the center of the hall and the officers and the members of the I. W. W. sat in the back and along the sides. The only ones partaking in the convention with voice or vote were the delegates themselves. In the side seats were seen Joe Fisher and Tom Doyle, but the injunctionites did not put in an appearance.

As soon as the convention was called to order they went into executive session excluding all outsiders, including reporters, from the meeting. The question arose that the reporter from the DAILY WORKER should be permitted to remain and after speeches from several of the delegates, it was decided not to permit any but their own members at this closed session.

Injunction Menace Not Removed.

Meanwhile, the threat of split is still hanging over the I. W. W. and the menace of the injunction is not removed. This results from the insistence of the lumber workers' delegates who, after refusing to meet with the other delegates, went into convention at 180 W. Washington St., at 9 o'clock in the morning, yesterday.

There were seven of these, and with them an unrecognized delegate from the building construction workers and a delegation from the Bowerman faction of the metal machinery workers.

P. J. Wellinder of the lumber workers was elected temporary chairman but when a motion carried that this group constitute the 16th general convention of the I. W. W., Wellinder, and one other lumber workers' delegate, bolted the meeting and declared that they were going with the other delegates. When our reporter called at 180 W. Washington St., later in the morning, there was no meeting and no delegates anywhere in sight.

The delegates at the Phoenix Hall thus far have shown good judgment in taking the initiative to correct this trouble which is one more threat at working class unity.

Cotton Workers' Wages Slashed.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 13.—Wage reductions amounting to 12½ per cent are posted for the workers in the Renfrew Manufacturing Co., makers of cotton goods. About 1200 workers are affected.

DAILY WORKER REPORTER SEES DAVID, PRINCE

Lives on Ham, Egg and Liquor Diet

By Ye Olde Soolete Editore.
(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

The Stock Yards, Oct. 13.—"Pigs will be pigs." Thus grunted Louis F. Swift, Chicago packer and entertainer in chief to His Royal Highness, Edward Albert Christian George Patrick David, etc., Prince of Wales and heir to the crown of England, Liverpool and the North of Hireland, as the young prince dove into a plate of bacon and eggs which was served to him on a silver platter by a dozen husky, fumigated bootleggers from the "Valley," specially dragooned for the occasion.

Pig-Hen Alliance.

Whatever it cost the packer Swift to put up the prince for the day will come back to him one hundred fold in the increased sales of ham. Unless the hens go on a general strike, a combination of pork and chicken, modified, will make a fortune for the osteopaths and raw food enthusiasts.

Six months on a straight diet of ham and eggs should send our ruling class flying for relief to the enemies of cooked food in general and meat proteins in particular.

But before the wealthy admirers of the Prince of Wales are knocked eggless, so to speak, a considerable dent has been made in the 1924 census. Perhaps it is a dirty English trick to kill off the American bourgeoisie with ham and eggs so that the slipping British aristocracy may have room to live when Trotsky's prediction comes true. (Read last week's magazine supplement of the DAILY WORK.)

Lucky Burglar.

The prince has more aliases than an up-to-date burglar, but what a burglar he is! The people come to him begging to be robbed of everything. It appears the franchise has not accomplished everything promised for the women by the Alice Pauls. It left the brain enjoying the status quo. But then there are women and women just as there are men and men. There are working class women and parasites. That is the big difference that Alice Paul could not see.

But to return to the prince. Ye Olde Soolete Editore had not much difficulty in getting quite close to H. H. How did he do it? Leave it to him. You should worry how your humble scribe succeeded in getting the material for a darn good story.

Acted Like Labor Faker.

Edward was rather peeved on seeing a newspaperman and on learning my identity he almost fainted. "This bounder will not leave anything untold," he cried to the bootlegger. "His stuff about my Long Island trip was hawfull. I simply will not recognize him."

It was beginning to look bad for me, but the bootlegger, who was a member of the Friends of Irish Freedom, growled: "If this guy gets no interview, Your Royal Highness may whistle for his booze. Not as much as would make the eye of a hummingbird blink can be released in this town without my consent. You talk or all the rabbis in Chicago could not wet your windpipe." This worked. The prince became quite affable.

His Grasp Wonderful.

"What do you think about the prospects of the tory party in the British elections?" was my first question.

"It suits me fine," the Honorable Percy Hootmon, that the Reptile's Crawl is getting out of fashion. For my own part I prefer the Elephant's Shuffle. I intend to introduce it into England this season—if I have time."

"The readers of the DAILY WORKER would like to know what you think of the Chinese question."

"You must pardon me, but I never look after my laundry. My Chamberlain does all that kind of thing you know."

"What do you intend to do with your time when you are king, in the event of such an event taking place during your lifetime?" I asked.

"I am really not at liberty to discuss such a distressing subject, as all my statements are written for me by the Honorable Ramsay MacDonald, but unofficially, as Lord Renfrew, I might hazard the observation that in the event of my succeeding to the throne, I would place Lord Philip Snowden or Baron MacDonald—I intend to so honor them—in charge of the King's Household and I would commute regularly to Long Island. Your liquor has a wonderful kick to it and so have your girls. They are——"

Prince Kept Moving.

At this moment I was seized roughly by thugs employed by the society girls who were getting cramps and chills waiting to get warmed up on the ball room floor. As I was being ejected from the room I could see the prince with a glass of whisky in one hand, a piece of bacon in the other, in the process of being twirled around the Swift ball room in the arms of a millionaire packeress.

A good time was being had by the prince in Chicago.

St. Paul Labor Reveals Black Reaction That Is Supporting La Follette

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, LaFollette is out in the grain and corn belt on the west side of the Mississippi valley.

Let every farmer, in every audience that he addresses, demand of the Wisconsin senator an explanation of the crime that his loyal henchmen tried to commit against the Farmer-Labor Party in Minnesota.

• • • •

The DAILY WORKER today publishes the story of how the LaFollette political gangsters tried to deliver the Ramsay County (St. Paul) Farmer-Labor forces into the hands of the most corrupt elements—the O'Connor gang—in the democratic party, now without a home of its own.

• • • •

LaFollette is telling his audiences that his campaign fund is small because of the meager contributions coming in from "the people." His St. Paul headquarters, however, seem to have established valuable connections. Note these facts:

The offices of the St. Paul LaFollette headquarters, with a $375 per month rental, are donated by the Hamm Brewing Company.

The office furniture is the contribution of the "open shop" Louis F. Dow Co., scab office supply dealers, whose printers have been on strike for two years.

Heat and light is the donation of the Northern States Power Co., Minnesota subsidiary of the Byllesby power monopoly, with headquarters in New York

The Bell Telephone trust supplies the phone.

The democratic state headquarters furnishes the stenographer.

THIS IS THE ST. PAUL HEADQUARTERS OF LA-FOLLETTE, THE SELF-CONFESSED BATTLER OF TRUSTS; TAKING CONTRIBUTIONS FROM THE PHONE AND POWER COMBINES.

• • • •

All these facts the black reactionist, Frank T. Starkey, LaFollette agent in the St. Paul labor movement, tried to hide from the rank and file of the workers.

It was this same LaFollette agent, Starkey, who did his utmost to disrupt the June 17 National Farmer-Labor Conference, held at St. Paul, carrying out the Gompers-LaFollette policy of seeking to divide and destroy the militant forces of the workers demanding class political action.

Starkey failed on June 17. He led a lone bolt. His corrupt leadership received another blow on Sunday when the rank and filers, at the meeting of the Ramsay County Farmer-Labor Federation, repudiated him and his outfit. The rank and file of the workers handed the double-dealing LaFollette campaign a black eye, and the job performed was a good one.

• • • •

Labor in St. Paul has shown that it is not blinded by the LaFollette illusion. It has shown that it will not willingly submit to the LaFollette betrayal. It is now the plain duty of the St. Paul Trades and Labor Assembly to endorse the action of the Ramsey County Farmer-Labor Federation, especially in removing its offices from the subsidized LaFollette headquarters, and returning them to the Labor Temple, where they belong. The best time to fight for the class party is during the campaign. The alliances that the LaFollette forces are making, in Minnesota, in Montana, everywhere, best show the nature of the movement that is backing the Wisconsin senator.

• • • •

In New York State the LaFollette campaign is the supporter of Al Smith, the Tammany Hall governor, who has accepted John Wallstreet Davis, the Morgan lawyer.

In Illinois the LaFollette boosters are urging Len Small for re-election as governor. Small is a republican and stands back of the candidacy of "The Strikebreaker" Coolidge.

In Montana, the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket fights the Farmer-Labor Party and hopes for the re-election of U. S. Senator Walsh, permanent chairman of the national democratic convention.

And in Minnesota the LaFollette forces ally themselves with the O'Connor democrats, bitter enemies of the class party of the workers and farmers, and allies, in every crisis, of the bankers, landlords and grain gamblers in the republican party.

• • • •

That is the situation is only four states.

It is duplicated to greater or less extent, in every state in the nation where the LaFollette campaigners are active.

It is a sordid picture. It presents a black outlook. But it is the inevitable result when the workers allow their strength to be dissipated among the political expressions of the propertied interests, whether led by Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette.

• • • •

The only clear working class note in this presidential campaign is sounded by the Communists.

In St. Paul the rank and file of the Farmer-Labor Federation repudiated the LaFollette offering, Oscar Keller, republican candidate for congress in the fourth district.

These workers endorsed the candidate of the Farmer-Labor Party, J. F. Emme, a Communist, selected in the primaries.

Minnesota's workers move forward in spite of their misleaders. Labor prepares for the class fight in spite of the LaFollette betrayal. Labor struggles, thru its own efforts, for its own emancipation.

Rank and File Balks Plot to Deliver F. L. P. to Democratic Party

ern States Power company, the Minnesota subsidiary of the H. M. Byllesby power trust with headquarters in New York City; the telephone was donated by the Bell Telephone combine; the office stenographer was loaned from the democratic state headquarters.

The report further brought out the fact that in conformity with the constitution, party pledges had been sent to all candidates. These had all been signed and returned by all candidates with the exception of Oscar Keller and Frank Starkey who had both refused.

Demand Break with Scabs.

The executive committe reported that they had instructed the officers to immediately remove the headquarters to the labor temple and not to accept any more favors from public utility corporations or scab business firms. The report of the committee was unanimously adopted by the 185 delegates remaining in the meeting, twenty-one having bolted with Starkey. The executive board was instructed to meet at once and take charge of the campaign from now on. A motion was also unanimously passed rescinding the endorsement of Keller for congress and endorsing the full farmer-labor ticket which includes J. F. Emme, members of the Workers Party, for congress in the fourth district.

Threats to clear the hall with police, the turning out of the lights, an attempt to intimidate the delegates were all of no avail The rank and file came to this convention with the intention of making themselves heard and they could not be shaken from their purpose

MORGAN BACKS WRONG STEED IN CHINESE WAR

Wu's Troops Knocked for a Row of Pigtails

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, Oct. 13.—The central government is panic-stricken over the continued victories of General Chang Tso-Lin over the Wu Pei Fu armies. The Manchurian war lord is confidently marching on Peking and nothing short of a miracle can prevent him from reaching his goal. Wu forces are deserting to the winner.

Chang's victory is looked on with considerable misgivings in British and American capitalist circles. They bet on Wu Pei Fu and they are now realizing that they backed the wrong horse. Japan is chuckling as Chang is the Mikado's man, but the dollar is mightier than the yen.

Playing With Lives.

Already signs are not wanting that American agents are beginning to pave the way for a deal with Chang. England is playing second fiddle to the United States in the devious diplomacy that plays with the lives of millions as tho they were only so many chips on a poker table.

The Wu Pei Fu victory over the Shanghai defenders is not considered of more than temporary importance if Chang continues to sweep on as the present rate, this gain will not make much difference in determining the result of the war.

The Shanghai defenders left for Japan after deciding they could no longer hold out against Wu Pei Fu and his American and English allies.

General Chang's second army advancing thru the great wall threatens to cut Wu's line and capture the Chihlian fleet. Wu is reported to have taken the field to lead his demoralized armies in person.

Soviet For Masses.

Soviet Russia is not playing with any of the reactionary generals. The Workers' Republic expresses its own open sympathy with the people of China and the cordial greetings given to the soviet consuls and ambassador shows what a deep hold the Soviet government has upon the minds of the Chinese masses.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 13.—As American marines and those of other nationalities stood guard about the International settlement tonight, news came that fighting of the most intense character was continuing at Huang Tu, Liuho and Kiating, despite the surrender and flight of Lu Yung Hsiang and Ho Feng Li, Chekiang leaders. The Chekiang forces, commanded by Chwang Tse Ping, have refused to surrender.

More than 100 wounded arrived here tonight. There are already 3,500 in the hospitals.

An attempt to re-open the railway line to Nanking will be made tomorrow.

Only a small garrison awaits the arrival of the Kiangsu conquerors at Lung Hua arsenal, everything portable having been removed.

Flier Plans to Quit.

TOKYO, Oct. 13.—It was announced today that Major Zanni, Argentine round the world flyer, expected to abandon his flight here. Zanni, who arrived Saturday at Kasumigaura flying field, has been honored here by a continuous round of fetes.

LIFE IN U. S. A. IS JUST ONE MURDER TRIAL AFTER ANOTHER—MAYBE?

GENEVA, Ill., Oct. 13. — The state's effort to show that Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer-horticulturist, is sane and legally responsible for the murder of his wife, Lena, and her brother, Byron Shoop, was resumed today with eight lay witnesses and three experts scheduled to take the stand to picture the confessed butcher-slayer not as a hopeless imbecile as the defense has called him, but as a man of exceptional mentality, a shrewd, intriguing murderer.

MIDDLESBURG, Pa., Oct. 13.—Spurned by her acquaintances, rejected by her friends, condemned by the casual curious, Mrs. Annie Willow, 38, alleged to have driven 15-year-old Ralph Shadel to the brutal murder of her husband today faced the state's grim demand for expiation —death in the electric chair.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Oct. 13.—Murder indictments by next Wednesday will be returned against Reverend Lawrence Hight, unfrocked minister of Ina, and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, confessed "love pact" poisoners of their respective mates, by the Jefferson county grand jury which convened here today, according to announcement made by state's attorney Frank G. Thompson.

GERMAN ENTRY TO LEAGUE STIRS DIPLOMATIC POT

Berlin Aid Wanted In Anti-Russ Pact, But—

By ISRAEL AMTER
(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN (By Mail)—Capitalist Germany is aroused. The Dawes report has just been accepted—on terms that the German bourgeoisie does not exactly like, but they were dictated and the Dawes Commission was the last hope of peace in Europe.

A loan was to be forthcoming—and the dollar-sign became the star of a new morn for Germany. Not that the German workers regarded it in the same light. The social-democratic "Vorwaerts" recently had a cartoon with a sun marked with a dollar-sign as the symbol of the new day. But the workers do not look at it that way. The capitalists are closing the factories; wages are going down. Till funds come in thru the loan, they declare they will not be able to operate again. The Dawes' plan means reparations cut out of the hide of the workers—but the German government has accepted it, so that is an end of the matter. Ebert can do no wrong—and he has the assistance of the best minds of the bourgeoisie in running the government.

Serious Problem.

Then arose another momentous question. Should Germany enter the league of nations? Stresemann, secretary of foreign affairs, was in England and had a conversation with lord Parmoor. (Yes, yes, children, the labor government, too, knows how to make use even of lords.) Then arose the grave question: Did he or did he not? Did he what? Did Stresemann speak to Parmoor about Germany entering the league of nations or not? Stresemann said no, Parmoor said yes. This was a fine spectacle: Two foreign ministers—and neither knew what their conversation was about. Finally the mystery was solved by the explanation that the gentleman who did the translating forgot to translate this most vital point. Still Germany could not be restrained from considering the matter, especially as Fritjof Nansen, the league of nations' enthusiast, had called on Chancellor Marx—all on his own initiative—and convinced him that Germany's place is in the league. Ebert and his governmental colleagues got together on September 25, and decided to approve the step. Not that Germany will now request admittance. These things have to be well considered, for many things are at stake. What is Germany to get out of the league? As a member of the league, are the questions that are supposed to have been settled by the Dawes' report still debatable?

Well, who would have believed it? Here Germany was given an open door by which to get back into the "society of nations," and now she is putting conditions. But that was not all. If Germany is to be given equal rights, is she also to get mandates over colonies, by which is meant the colonies that she once possessed in Africa? The impudence of the question—or the suggestion! Was the war fought so that Germany, the defeated might come back and put herself on a plane with the other imperialists? But Germany must have some way of restoring her economic situation. She needs colonies the same as England, France, America or Italy—otherwise she is no equal.

French Ire Aroused.

French politicians immediately declared that such rude questions required equally brusque answers: The sessions of the league of nations are about to come to a close and Germany's entrance cannot any longer be considered. Even in England, the suggestion created consternation. Had not Nansen assured the French and British delegates to the league that Germany would be glad to enter—and now she is daring to put conditions? Well, this is Germany to a "t." Germany will get no seat in the council, it is stated—and the Dawes' report will be put into effect. And as for colonies—where do you get that stuff? Very little of the world is left, and what there is in Africa, Asia, and South America is being fought over by America, England, France and Japan. So, in the words of the wise philosopher, forget it, Michel.

The Real Issue.

Hanover, Germany must be brought into the league, but, of course, not on her own terms. Germany is altogether too friendly to Soviet Russia. The little affair in Berlin was arranged only to please the imperialists and demonstrate that Germany was not being led by the nose by Soviet Russia. But there is the Rapallo treaty and the historical association of Germany and Russia, and the natural alliance of Russian agriculture and German industry. This must be broken up—for business reasons. It must be broken up also for an altogether more important reason—a united front must be established against Soviet Russia—against the proletarian revolution. Poland, Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria, and Hungary are in the counter-revolutionary line. Germany is in the doubtful column—at least ostensibly. This must be ended. Germany must join the league—then the offensive against Soviet Russia may begin with full force.

If Germany is to join the league, she wants compensations for the chances she will lose for trade in Soviet Russia. This accounts for the dickering that is going on. Will the league pay the price? It may or it may not—but Germany will be forced to join—unless, of course, revolution breaks out in Germany and the sanitary cordon will have to be raised further west. So the league may discuss Germany's joining, and the imperialists may begin enforcing the Dawes' report. The workers have the final word.

WORLD'S BIGGEST COTTON MILL; BRUTAL EXPLOITER OF LABOR; WANTS HALF MILLION TAX CUT

By ESTHER LOWELL.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 13.—Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, largest cotton mills in the world and dominant influence in Manchester, is continuing its fight for half a million dollars tax reduction.

Justice Robert Doe, of the superior court, has granted the concern's attorneys 20 days in which to prepare a bill of exceptions taken in the recent hearing before a board of referees.

Amoskeag is not satisfied with the tax abatement of $132,948 won by their suit. The mill owners acted with Kidder Peabody Acceptance corporation of Boston and New York brokers and bankers, want $500,000 cut from the 1922-23 taxes on company property.

Big City Only Company Town.

Manchester, largest city of New Hampshire, with a population near 80,000 in the last census, is practically a company town—the property of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company. A history of the development of the concern and the testimony of residents of the city and of Edgar D. Mank, vice-president of the Manchester Textile Council, agree on this.

For two miles on both sides of the Merrimack river the red brick mills of Amoskeag are built, several rows deep. Cotton and worsted mills, machine shops, foundry, hydro-electric development plant, steam engine heating plant, warehouses, offices, dye works line the banks of the river which first gave the mills the power by which they were run. Old water wheels are still in use in one of the mills and turn a shaft nearly 200 feet long which sends the power up to each of the five floors by long belts.

Built Up Thru Century.

Amoskeag has been built up over more than a hundred-year period. It acquired the water rights all along the Merrimack from Concord down to Nashua at one time and still holds most of them. Its directors are in the Manchester Electric company and other public utility concerns.

Amoskeag owns most of the land of Manchester. It planned the town, the company historian claims. Its red brick tenements fill the western section of town. They are the workers' homes. Officers live up on the eastern hills in finer places. The play grounds and parks of Manchester belong to Amoskeag. The land upon which all churches, schools, and public buildings, the courthouse and city hall, is Amoskeag's and is never sold. All the buildings west of Elm street, the main street, are on Amoskeag land and no one will buy them for that reason.

Employ 17,000 Workers.

More than 17,000 workers are employed in the Amoskeag cotton and worsted mills and subsidiaries when the concern is going "full." For the last year the company has been operating at about 40 per cent capacity and thousands of workers have been unemployed. But the company continued to take rent from the workers and its profit in the stores which sold workers goods. Workers who had attempted to buy homes from the company—there were a few—lost them when they couldn't make payments.

NEW ORLEANS CARMEN BITE ON STOCK SCHEME OF TRACTION PIRATES

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13. — The New Orleans Public Service, Inc., have placed in the market 25,000 shares of its seven per cent preferred stock, using the three thousand conductors and motormen as salesmen. Company employes to date have personally purchased 5,600 shares at $96 a share, mostly on the deferred payment plan.

BORAH'S SPEECH CONFUSING AS BIBLICAL TEXT

Did He Boost Cal or Did He Not?

By LAURENCE TODD,
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Sen. Borah has been the author of the victim of one of the strangest mysteries of this campaign. Telegrams from old friends and from labor spokesmen and newspapers in the east are bombarding his office at Boise, demanding that he solve it at once. Does he hold that Cal Coolidge "is the greatest man in the political history of the United States," as the local correspondent of the Associated Press at Idaho Falls reported he said in his speech on Oct. 7, or did he denounce almost every official act of Coolidge while refraining from mentioning the name of the G. O. P. nominee?

Didn't Mention Cal.

The New York Times printed a long account of the speech at Idaho Falls, from a "special correspondent" who presumably was a local man, and this account specified that Coolidge was not mentioned at all. The burden of the argument, as shown by his dispatch, was all anti-Coolidge.

Yet the Washington manager for the A. P. vouches for the fact that their Idaho Falls man quoted Borah as paying this fulsome tribute to Coolidge, and asserting that Coolidge had curbed public extravagances by vetoing the postoffice workers' salary bill. Moreover, the A. P. said that Borah would "at the request of chairman Butler" of the G. O. P., campaign in California, Oregon and Washington.

Flaherty Quizzes Borah.

Secretary Flaherty of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks has wired Borah, asking why Borah, when praising Coolidge for his attack on the $200-a-year increase in pay for the underpaid postal workers, did not deplore the fact that Coolidge signed the bill giving $7,500 a year to the departmental chiefs who had been getting $5,000.

Most of Borah's friends here, while admitting that he is the most inconsistent and uncertain individual in the senate, cannot believe that he endorsed Coolidge. It is common talk that before he left the capitol he met a spokesman of the progressive party of Idaho, who told him the progressives would nominate him as their senatorial choice on one condition—that Borah stay out of the Coolidge-LaFollette contest. It is not claimed that Borah gave a formal pledge—he is a master of indecision in politics. But he did accept the progressive nomination and he did assail, in his Idaho Falls speech, the attempt of the administration to cover up the Fall and Daugherty scandals. That he said that Coolidge "is the greatest man in the political history of the United States" is so preposterous as to raise an immediate question regarding the Associated Press man's work on the occasion of this speech.

Bank Robbers Escape.

ALEDO, Ill., Oct. 13.—Armed posses were scouring Mercer county today for a trace of Joe Dawsie and John Ryan, who escaped from the Aledo jail where they were being held with four others in connection with the $4,000 robbery of the New Boston Bank. The fugitives sawed a bar in the jail bull pen and dropped 20 feet to the ground.

ROCKEFELLER OIL PROPAGANDA IS SENT OUT AS "EDUCATIONAL" STUFF BY U. S. GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Secretary of the Interior Work, replying obliquely to a recent disclosure of his having sent out thru the bureau of mines a moving picture film showing the oil company promoter as a heroic pioneer—a picture prepared and financed by the Sinclair Oil Co.—announces that his department has distributed 1,600,000 feet of "educational" films.

"The first industrial picture put out by the bureau of mines was in 1911," his defense asserts. "Since that time practically every large oil and coal company in the United States has co-operated in the production of educational films on these subjects."

In the long list which he gives, of these "educational" films which the bureau has been distributing free to schools, colleges and meetings of scientific, civic, military, and religious organizations, are Petroleum, The Story of Coal, The World's Struggle for Oil, The Story of Gasoline, Safety First in The Petroleum Industry, Gasoline Motors, Natural Gas, Mexico and its Oil, Saving Coal at Home, Sulphur Water Power, Transportation, Steel, etc.

Propaganda possibilities under this scheme of "co-operation" with the oil and coal companies and the water power trust are endless. Works' confession indicates that these corporations have been working that propaganda, with his hearty approval, during the past three years.

YOUNGSTOWN, O. STEEL WORKERS GREET FOSTER

Other Campaign Meetings to Follow in Ohio

(Special to The Daily Worker)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 13.—It has been pointed out that presidential and state candidates are not on the ballot in Ohio. This has, however, not in the least dulled the spirit of the various sections of the party in the state to put up as vigorous a campaign as possible.

The slogan now is, "Write the names in." And every branch, every city will spread this slogan broadcast over the state to roll up as large a Communist vote as possible.

That the various sections of the party in this state are not lagging behind in their efforts to utilise this campaign to the utmost for Communist propaganda and education is proven by the successful meetings held thus far with Gitlow and Foster. Youngtown has distinguished itself in arranging the biggest mass meeting yet held in the state. Thousands of steel workers who remember Foster from the 1919 steel strike days and look forward to his leadership turned out to hear him. For days afterward the capitalist press of the territory could not forget that meeting. Foster has still to tour a number of Ohio cities and similar meetings are expected. Toledo, Cincinnati and Dayton besides Cleveland, where he speaks on Oct. 16 at the Engineers' auditorium, are preparing for the biggest meetings yet.

Bellaire Miners Hear Gitlow.

The Gitlow tour has also met with considerable success in the state, credit for the best meeting held on this tour going so far as present information goes to Bellaire where miners around came to listen to our vice-presidential candidate.

These last few weeks of the campaign finds the various sections of the Workers Party in Ohio prepared to make the best of the time remaining. A series of mass meetings have been arranged in the various cities with national speakers as listed below. One of the local candidates will be toured thru the state the last ten days of the campaign. Max Lerner, organizer of the Ohio district, will tour the mining section the latter part of this month. In Cleveland the campaign will close on November 3 with a mass meeting at which J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will be the speaker. It is planned to combine with this meeting the annual celebration of the anniversary of the Russian Communist revolution. In the southern part of the state the end of the campaign will be marked with mass meetings at which Foster will speak.

Mass Meetings In Ohio Thus Far Scheduled.

Jay Lovestone—Oct. 20, Akron; Oct. 21, Youngtown.
C. E. Ruthenberg—Oct. 24, 25 and 26, Cleveland.
Max Bedacht—Oct. 24, Toledo.
J. Louis Engdahl—Nov. 2, Cleveland.
Max Lerner—Last week of October, mining section of eastern Ohio.
William Z. Foster—Nov. 1, Dayton, O.
Dates of state candidates to be toured will be announced later.

John McNamara Is Again in Toils of Construction Bosses

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—John McNamara, secretary and business manager of Local No. 22, Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, is being held in jail here on charges of blackmail growing out of a grand jury investigation of his alleged threats to construction contractors and the subsequent wrecking of the Elks club house, a million-dollar building.

An attempt on the part of McNamara's friends to raise $20,000 bond for his release has so far been unsuccessful.

The judge before whom McNamara is to be arraigned some time in November, is James A. Collins, of the Marion county criminal court, the same man who as judge of the city court, sent McNamara to San Quentin penitentiary in 1910 to serve nine years of a fifteen-year sentence in connection with the dynamiting of the Llewellyn Iron Works at Los Angeles.

Rome Rules in Frisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—A slight intimation of the extent to which religious influences hold San Francisco in thrall was given when the Holy Name Society massed to welcome Archbishop Hayes home after a European trip. The ferry building—municipal property—was adorned with a large electric sign welcoming "our archbishop"; and before the public library was erected a huge dais surmounted by a gilded cross. The entire civic center, including the city hall, was decorated for the archbishop's benefit. The parade of 50,000 promised for the event was considerably dampened by the first heavy rain of the season.

AUTO WORKERS, IN 1923, PRODUCED $607,173,103 IN GROSS PROFITS FOR THE 351 CHIEF CORPORATIONS

By LAURENCE TODD.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Workers in the motor vehicle industry in the United States produced $607,173,103 of gross profits for the 351 chief companies, according to the census of manufacturers for the year 1923, as reported by the department of commerce, and for themselves they received wages averaging $1,685. In 1921 they gave the bosses profits amounting to $341,368,712, and took $1,545 apiece in wages.

The census report does not, of course, present figures in that way. It simply shows that in 1923 the average number of wage earners (not including salaried employes and proprietors and firm members) in these 351 establishments was 341,356, as against 143,658 in 1921. It then shows total wages paid were $406,730,278 in 1923, and $221,973,586 in 1921. Moreover, there was paid for contract work in 1923 the sum of $1,961,141, and in 1921 the sum of $982,593.

Next it gives the cost of materials, including fuel, and the total value of the products, and by taking the cost of material and fuel from the total value of the products it finds that the value added by manufacture in 1923 was $1,015,864,522, while in 1921 this added value was $564,324,891. The gross profits are found by taking the wages and contract-work expense from this added value: Gross profits then were 50 per cent more than all the wages paid.

Of the 351 establishments reporting for 1923, 54 were in Michigan, 46 in Ohio, 32 in Illinois, 30 each in Indiana and New York, 28 in California, 26 in Pennsylvania, 20 in Wisconsin, 14 in Massachusetts, 11 in Missouri, 9 in New Jersey, 6 each in Minnesota and Iowa, 5 each in Connecticut, Texas and Washington, and the remaining 24 in 13 states and the District of Columbia. No plant producing less than $5,000 of products was reported.

80-YEAR-OLD WOMAN TURNS BOOTLEGGER TO GET HUSBAND'S GRAVE

(Special to THE DAILY WORKER.)

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Jennie Brown, 80-year-old bootlegger, who told police she made and sold alcohol to obtain money to pay for her husband's grave so that his body would not be moved to potter's field, today began serving a five months' sentence in the county jail in default of a $500 fine. Her daughter also is in jail serving out a $100 fine. The children of the family are being cared for by police while many residents are endeavoring to obtain a pardon for the woman from the governor.

CANUCK SAWMILL BOSSES PLAN USE OF APPRENTICES

Idea is to Supplant Adult Workers

By SYDNEY WARREN
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 13.—The sawmill bosses at a recent meeting of their organization, the Pacific Northwest Millwork Assn., outlined a scheme for the systematic exploitation of boys under the guise of an apprentice system in the sawmills and other wood-working establishments throughout the Pacific northwest.

The meeting deplored the lack of efficiency shown by the adult workers and hit upon the idea of crystalizing the enthusiasm of boys into profits. The system is one that will take the working class boy into a sawmill or woodworking establishment upon his leaving school and place him on probation for three months. If the boy is found satisfactory an indenture is to be made between the boy's parents to cover a period of four years at what is termed "a graded scale of wages." The boy's parents under the indenture system are compelled to deposit $50 which will be forfeited to the employer should the apprentice not serve out his indentured time.

The sawmill bosses were of the opinion that manual training in the schools was useless because the boys who eventually found their way into the sawmill seldom attended high school. L. B. Travers, vocational supervisor for the state of Washington set forth figures to show that only 34 per cent of the boys attending school ever reach high school.

RUSSO-GREEK RELATIONS TO BE CEMENTED

Greek Minister States Official Opinion

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—That he is happy to be the first diplomatic representative of the Greek republic to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and that his mission was to restore the economic bonds between the two countries and which, in view of the common interests of both nations, were bound to be still more consolidate in future—was stated to journalists by Mr. Mavroudis, the newly-arrived Greek minister at Moscow.

Mr. Mavroudis is a prominent high official of the Greek ministry of foreign affairs, his last diplomatic post before coming to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics being Belgrade, the capital of Jugo-Slavia.

Greece Needs Imports

Greece, continued the Minister, needs a considerable amount of imported cereals, and in her the Soviet Republics will thus find a market for disposing of part of their grain. On the other hand, Greece could export into the Union of Soviet Republics vegetable oils, currants, fruit, tobacco and other goods. Besides, there are very many experienced merchants and businessmen in general in Greece, who will be glad to help promote the Soviet export and import trade.

"It is my task"—concluded the Greek diplomat—"to get into touch with the Soviet authorities concerned, with a view to concluding a treaty of commerce between Greece and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and I feel quite confident that I shall meet in this matter with a most sympathetic attitude on the part of the Soviet government."

KLAN TAINT IS SEEN AT MEET OF LA FOLLETTE

Fiery Cross Preacher Speaks at Detroit

By OWEN STIRLING
(Special Correspondence)

DETROIT, Mich. (By Mail.)—The two famous men in Detroit that night were Sen. Robt. M. LaFollette and the Rev. William L. Stidger. And many were surprised when it happened.

More than 7,000 were jammed in the Arena Gardens, at from 50 cents to a dollar a head, to see LaFollette and his son, Robert, Jr., go back to '76. Judge Edward J. Jeffries, of recorder's court here, was ring master. The speakers all rang the cracked bell.

Here's Trick Pastor.

Then chairman Jeffries introduced the audience to someone he said was of importance. The "someone," he said, was on the platform at that moment. Everyone wondered who it was. Then:

"I refer to the Rev. Stidger," Jeffries shouted, pointing at the trick preacher of the "Church of the Golden Cross." And he added at the top of his lungs, "I want you to know him!"

There was applause.

Stidger is the pastor of St. Mark's M. E. Church, on Jefferson avenue, Detroit, and is a member of the state committee of the progressive republican party, the party of the Ku Klux Klan in Michigan. On top of his church an electrically illuminated cross revolves over the traffic jammed avenue. Inside the church at the services the worshippers, under his direction, whistle the hymns. The church is suddenly plunged in darkness and another electric cross blazes forth in the front of the auditorium, —like a Klan cross. A spot light is turned on Stidger as he preaches.

The Klan in Politics

Stidger's assistant pastor was Rev. Caulkins. But Caulkins resigned to become campaign manager for Charles Bowles, the dark horse candidate for mayor in the Detroit primaries. Bowles' phenominal run, landing him in third place, was due to the Ku Klux Klan. Bowles was so close to the second nominee he will be a stiker candidate for mayor Nov. 4.

The Ku Klux Klan faces were conspicuous in the LaFollette audience here. In some parties of the auditorium they predominated, sitting side by side with union men whom officeseeking union officials have succeeded in turning away from a farmer-labor party into LaFollette's march of the marionettes.

LaFollette himself on the platform, reading his speech from manuscript, was a broken old man. His eyes were so dim he mis-read words. His hands trembled. His foot went down weakly and at the wrong moment when he tried feebly to emphasize a point.

He spoke of being elected and inaugurated next November and next March.

"How do you know you will be?" someone shouted.

Fails to Hold Audience

LaFollette, pausing, could only answer, "I feel it in my bones."

"So do we; so do we," echoed others in feeble polyphony.

And the speech went on. The last third of it was inaudible, more than half way back in the hall, because of the steady tramping of men and women leaving the auditorium for affairs more interesting. The meeting more than anything else was a memorial meeting to George Washington Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, such as school masters used to organize in the little red school houses, when our grandfathers went to school.

It is generally agreed here that this tour is probably Sen. LaFollette's last public appearance, of an energetic or even active character. And many think the campaign may incapacitate him altogether much as Eugene V. Debs' last tour caused his collapse.

Review of the White Terror in All Capitalist Countries

Given as follows by the International Red Aid.

BULGARIA.—On August 20, the government of Zankoff issued the order to arrest all prominent leaders of the Comunists and the Peasants' Party. Accordingly in the recent weeks in the whole of South and Western Bulgaria great mass against the Communists have been arrainged. Among the arrested are also the present members of Parliament Grentscharow and Janoff.

In the little town of Stanimaka the Comimunist, Dr. Dexiadis, was arrested. According to police state ments compromising documents were found in his house. The police furthermore reports that a great communist plot was discovered in Lom-Palanka, that 20 persons were arrested and proofs were found for the existence of connections with Communists abroad.

In the beginning of September news came from Sofia that the member of the Communist Party of Bulgaria, Michael Daschine, was murdered during the day in Samokowa St. The murderer is a member of one of those murderers' organizations which were formed by Zankoff specially for this purpose. In the end of August in Sofia the former secretary of the Bulgarian Communist Party, Samokow, was murdered during the day in his room. Comrade Samokowa had been only recently released from prison after having served for one year.

RUMANIA.—After the Communist Party of Rumania has been prohibited, the bourgeoisie directs all its attacks against the trade unions of the workers. All union meetings are attended by a police commissar. A speaker who mentions a political question in his speech is immediately arrested. In this way in the last week of August eight workingmen and two women were arrested in Bukarest. In Braila 600 workers were arrested and transported to Bukarest. In Bazargic, Kichinew and Plosti all trade union officials and all those were arrested who had participated in trade union meetings. In Arad, the industrial center of Banat, Comrade Margarethe Röth was arrested together with her two children of six and eight years and her mother, an old woman of seventy years.

The court martial of the Second Army Corps in Bukarest sentenced our Comrade Dobrogeanu to ten years' of imprisonment.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Also in this so-called "peaceful" country the white terror is at work. The court in Glasgow sentenced several comrades to high fines because they had made speeches without permission. In Birmingham two comrades were sentenced to imprisonment because they had appealed in an unemployed meeting to the workers to conquer the political power. A London court sentenced Comrade T. A. Jackson to a considerable fine because he had given shelter to a German communist who stayed in England without permission.

GERMANY.—In Germany the mass trials against revolutionary workers continue. According to the statistics of the Red Relief, the number of trials fought by the Legal Committee of the Red Relief increased to about 18,000, in the time from the 1st of January to the 31st of August 1924. In the months June, July, and August a total number of 1,700 comrades were sentenced to 1,065 years 10 months of imprisonment (243 years 5 months of hard labor, 748 years 9 months of jail, 73 years 5 months of fortress) and fines of the total amount of 46,290 gold marks. Before the Supreme State Court in Leipzig alone 13 trials against members of the Communist Party and against revolutionary soldiers took place since May 1924. In these 13 trials 104 years 6 months of hard labor, 47 years 9 months of prison, 5 years 5 months of fortress and fines of 20,000 marks were given. In the month of September eight further trials take place before that court.

ESTHONIA.—In the middle of August 30 communists were arrested, among them also members of the Reval Parliament. Against the member of Parliament Kutt an order of arrest was issued. The Communist organ, a substitute of the recently prohibited communist newspaper, has been confiscated by the police. The 149 communists who were arrested in January, have now received a statement of accusation of 188 pages. This immense trial against the Communist Party of Esthonia will take place in the near future.

JUGOSLAVIA.—The new Cabinet of Davodowitch has kept hardly anything of its great promises with regard to the liberation of the political prisoners. Up to the present only a commission has been appointed to deal with the question what political prisoners might be released on probation. According to a statement of the governmental organ "Politica" there are about 3,000 such prisoners in Jugoslavia (soldiers, communists, nationalist Macedonians, Montenegrians, Croatians, ...). The Labor Party has issued an appeal demanding the amnesty of all political prisoners.

The best proof that very little has changed in Jugoslavia since the establishment of the new government is the prohibition of a meeting of the Independent Labor Party in Zagreb at the 10th anniversary of the world war. Furthermore, the police confiscated all appeals issued by the Labor Party on the occasion of this day.

ERNEST TOLLER ADVOCATES USE OF ESPERANTO

Studied and Mastered Language in Prison

By GEORGE SAVILLE.

The Congress of Radical Esperantists recently held in Europe has been attended by 90 delegates from 18 contries under the chairmanship of Comrade Ernest Toller, who has recently been liberated from the "republican" German prison.

Comrade Toller has studied Esperanto while in prison and has mastered the language sufficiently to write in it an essay against capitalistic wars; this has been published in our official paper "Sennacieca Revuo" (Antinationalistic Review).

Officers Are Communists.

All the new officers that have been elected are members of the Communist Party, either in Russia, France or Germany, as the majority of the organization are Communists.

The new editor, Norbert Barthelmess of Leipzig, is also the technical director of our co-operative publishing house. This organization has already published translations in Esperanto of the following books: "The Communist Manifesto" from Marx and Engelman. "The Communist Documents" from Russian. "The Light in the Abyss" from French by Henri Barbusse who, by the way, is himself an Esperantist and member of the French Communist Party, also several other works.

The "Iron Heel of Jack London" is soon to appear, and the works of Upton Sinclair are being translated by Comrade Carl Frading in Rockford, Ill. with permission of the author, who himself is also an Esperantist.

To Be Used in Russian Schools.

Comrade Dresen, vice-director of the all-Russian Central Executive Committee of Soviets, who is an accomplished Esperantist and an active literary member of our organization, reported that the Russian Soviet government will, as soon as more pressing matters are disposed of, introduce officially the universal language Esperanto into the public schools. Comrade Nekrasov, the editor of our monthly in Moscow, reported that under Czarism Esperanto in Russia was only accessible to the intellectuals, but since the Bolshevikі have assumed power thousands of workers have mastered the language and are communicating by correspondence with their comrades in other lands; therefore many Communists, and other radicals are admitting now the importance of a common means of understanding to the World Revolution, altho formerly they claimed that after the revolution was time enuf to think of such unimportant matters.

HERE'S SAD STORY OF BERGER'S INVASION OF KANSAS CITY, MO., ON THE SOCIALIST-LaFOLLETTE TICKET

(Special Correspondence)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 13.—The visit of "Comrade" Berger stirred much enthusiasm here. It should be known that we in Kansas City have a haughty belief that our traitors and fakirs here are the world's worst: (Now don't all speak at once.)

Local fakirs have started two dual unions in past five months and twice in two years the Building Trades Council has organized and given its cards to scabs in co-operation with the Master Builders—once on the plasterers, once on the carpenters. Having seen "Comrade" Berger's hog paunch (which he never got in jail or on the picket line) and having heard his foul and trifling talk, we sympathetically yield the palm to Milwaukee. Tough luck, boys! Our union leaders are unashamed scabs and are paid by the boss—but we don't have Berger!

Sell "Angel's Message"

The meeting was opened by a 40-minute talk by the local socialist party chairman. He quoted the Bible often in support of his beliefs and finally put on sale, "The Angel's Message of Socialism," founded, we were assured, on the Bible.

Berger's talk was in two sections. The first was an incoherent half-hour yowl on his persecution under the Espionage Act, which—and this maddened him—violated our sacred constitution and American tradition. Think of it!

The second half was a long tale of woe on the grafting democrats and teapot republicans. English and German politicians, he assured us, are 99 per cent incorruptible. Only we Americans and to a lesse extent the French are corrupt. To save our fair land for honesty—vote for LaFollette and the socialists. Never a word of the class struggle.

Comparing Meetings.

The Bolshevik outlaws in Kansas City can turn out 200 to 500 for our meetings. The widely heralded Berger, backed by the socialist party and the LaFollette committee, backed by every labor faker in the local movement (including, it is rumored, Sid Barton, the president of the now dead local of scab carpenters), with notices and editorials in the sewer press—got 250. . . . As I passed out I saw a wobbly weeping softly. I touched his arm. He looked up and said: "Say, George, he ain't possible. For twenty years I've soap-boxed about these socialist politicians. I never knew there was one. He's a cartoon of himself, ain't he?" I agreed. He is.

Seeing Is Believing.

I swear by my honor as a Communist this is a fair and sympathetic report. I'd not have believed it myself last week. I have even left out his slimy attack on Lenin, lest the reader be prejudiced and fail to weigh well his "program," "Honesty—and LaFollette."

As Lenin remarked: "The Liebknechts and Varlins made history with heart or head. The Second Internationl makes history with a different part of its anatomy. It manures the soil for rebels." He classified Berger. He is that anatomical part.

Marine Transport Workers.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union, No. 510, of the Industrial Workers of the World, is holding its convention at the transport workers' hall, 158 Carroll St., Brooklyn. Nine delegates from various ports of the United States are present. A communication from the German Sailors' Committee to Protect the Interests of German sailors in America came from Hoboken, N. J., asking that fraternal delegates be allowed at the convention. Action on the matter is deferred until the delegates appear.

Evacuate Mecca.

CAIRO, Oct. 13.—Government troops under King Ali Hussein are evacuating Mecca as the Wahabi tribes advance. The troops have retired to Bahra, midway between Mecca and the seaport of Jeddha.

Don't Need Europeans.

TANGIER, Oct. 13. — The Riff leader, Abdul Krim, in a communique denies that the Riff army is using European officers or has been subsidized by European funds.

GOOD DOG FRIDAY STOPS BARKING; COIN GETS TIGHT

Hard Boiled Plute to Copy Gen. Dawes

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, October 13. — Prof. David Friday, familiar to national conferences as an anti-labor and anti-farmer "expert" economist, threatens a lawsuit against A. H. Mulliken, boss of the so-called Economics Institute, which has been issuing propaganda against the Howell-Barkley railroad bill.

Friday is not sore because the railroad labor bill is being attacked, but because, he—Friday—has been dropped unpaid from his $12,000 a year part-time job as head of the research council which was established in the flush early days of the concern, when it was known as the Transportation Institute. This Transportation Institute was founded by Bird M. Robinson, president of the Short Line Railroad Ass'n and by Sidney Anderson, former renegade progressive congressman from Minnesota, to help put the Esch-Cummins bill through congress and to cut railroad wages. They hired Dr. Friday and a lot of other showwindow material, and spent a huge fund, after which it was discovered that no real research studies had been carried to publication.

Began To Curse

When Robinson could furnish no more cash, it is reported from inside circles that Mulliken, of the railroad supply firm of Pettibone-Mulliken, took the concern over, dismissed Friday and his experts, and turned the institute over to a new crowd, centered around the supply companies and the Santa Fe railroad company. Having changed the name of his enterprise to the Economics Institute, he proceeds to denounce the Howel-Barkley bill in crude fashion, and to snap his fingers at statistics, college degrees, ex-congressmen and all "polite stuff" in general. Mulliken is hardboiled, and proud of it.

Not only is Friday threatening to sue for some $9,000 for himself and staff, but a real statistical concern, the Institute of Economics, is promising to sue to prevent the use of a similar name by Mulliken. He has complained to the American Economic Assn., too, against this trifling with its reputation.

Mulliken has closed his Washington branch office.

PLAN LEFT WING TO GINGER UP THE LABOR PARTY AND FIGHT FOR COMMUNIST SOCIETY IN AUSTRALIA

By W. FRANCIS AHERN.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 13.—At a conference of union delegates representing the industrial wing of the Australian labor party, held at Sydney, it was decided to launch a left wing movement, to ginger up the labor party. The conference demanded that the labor party, when it secures office in New South Wales, should bring about the following industrial reforms:

A minimum wage of $27.84 per week; full basic wage to all workers during unemployment, sickness or accident; 8-hour day, including meal time and travel between home and work; 5-day week; preference to unionists; abolition of all "scab" and non-union labor agencies.

It was also decided to work for shop committees in industries, such committees to be elected by all employes, to voice the demands of the workers, thus forming a common basis for the struggle against capitalism; to summon an All-Australian trade union congress; and to urge all unions to affiliate with the Red International of Labor Unions and group themselves on the industrial union basis.

A further resolution read: "In consideration of the present low intellectual level of the labor movement, the left wing movement shall pursue a strong campaign for education, according to Karl Marx. It shall seek to destroy the workers' faith in the capitalist system, and to turn their eyes towards the establishment of a Communist society towards the dictatorship of the proletariat."

CHICAGO YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE ACCEPTS PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

By AL SCHAAP
Organizer, Young Workers League of Chicago.

The decks are clear for action. This is the result of a membership meeting of the Chicago Young Workers League held Friday evening at which Comrade Max Shachtman reported for the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League of America, the plan of reorganizing the league. Over 200 members were present at the meeting and high interest never waned.

The plan proposed was adopted unanimously. It calls for the reorganization of the Young Workers League of Chicago along factory lines. The 14 branches of Chicago will be consolidated into six branches.

The city of Chicago will be divided into six working (industrial) area districts. Members of the Young Workers League will join the working area branch in the territory where they work.

Twenty Prospective Nuclei.

Each working area branch has been assigned to organize a definite number of shop nuclei and within three months it is expected that Local Chicago of the Young Workers League shall have organized at least 20 shop nuclei.

The first regular meeting of each working area branch will be held this Friday evening. All members of the Young Workers League have already been notified to attend their working area branch meeting.

League Problem Met.

The following recommendations were adopted at the membership meeting for the conduct of work amongst the foreign speaking young workers. It is necessary to adopt these measures as a result of the reorganization of the league upon the basis of the working area groups as a functional one to the complete reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei. The plan is as follows:

1. City Propaganda Committees shall be set up for all necessary languages.

2. These committes shall direct all language work in the city.

3. They shall set up all appartus necessary to carry on language work in the city, or in any special section of the city.

4. These auxiliaries shall be responsible to their respective language propaganda committees.

There shall be no language auxiliary branches attached to the working area branches.

6. The language auxiliary shall not be a basic unit of the Y. W. L.

7. All language propaganda committees shall be responsible to, and under the direct supervision of the City Executive Committee.

This plan has also been approved by the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League of America.

Sent to Desert Isle

SERAFIM MAXIMOS.

COMRADE Serafim Maximos, pictured above, a member of the Executive Committee of the Communist Party of Greece, and delegate from Greece to the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, has been arrested with other Greek Communists and imprisoned on the deserted island of Skiros.

The bourgeois government of Greece is conducting a bitter drive against the Communists of Greece, the world war veterans, who are under the direct control of the Communist Party of Greece, and against the organized bodies of the General Confederation of Labor. Many sections of the Confederation of Labor are affiliated with the Red International of Labor Unions in Moscow.

During the last month the American Tobacco company of Macedonia, in league with the chamber of commerce of Greece, ordered the wholesale arrest of the executive committees of the various branches of the world war veterans, which succeeded in organizing most of the world war veterans on a militant working class basis.

Many members of the Communist Party of Greece have been imprisoned with Comrade Maximos.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the necessary, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. INTERVENTION IN CHINA HAS BEEN LONG PREPARED

Soviet Rule Concerned in Situation in Orient

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—In a press interview today, Mr. Rotstein, member of the collegium of the People's Commissariat of Foreign Affairs, stated that the government was very anxious over the developments reported from the Far East.

The powers, believes Mr. Rotstein, seem to have now resolved upon intervention in China which they had since long been preparing.

Fear Soviet Chinese Treaty.

It may be noted, in particular, that America has thus abruptly departed from her traditional policy of recognition of China's integrity. This has a direct connection with the conclusion of the Soviet-Chinese treaty, for the recognition of equal and sovereignty rights of China as embodied in this treaty has raised the prestige of the Union of Soviet Republics and provoked widespread national enthusiasm in China.

However, in view of these attempts of armed intervention, directed at the suppression of Chinese national liberative movement, against which attempts Soviet Russian public opinion is loudly protesting,—the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics may itself be faced with the entire question generally of the Union's position in the Far East.

Indeed, the appearance on the many-thousand miles long Russo-Chinese frontier of American or any Asiatic imperialists would be fraught with great danger to the Soviet Union.

Workers to Ward Off Danger.

In the circumstances, concluded the Moscow Foreign Commissariat high official, the seriousness of the present situation ought to be fully realized.

At the same time, it should be noted that it is to a large extent up to the working classes themselves of the intervening states, and, first of all, of England, to ward off the danger.

Good Meeting at Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 13.—We had a fine meeting here with "Mother" Bloor as the main speaker. Altho the meeting started out with many discouraging setbacks, it turned out to be one of the most enthusiastic meetings held in Peoria in a long time.

The first hall we rented was at a moment's notice denied us and we had to search about for another place to meet in. We finally found a large loft and what was left of the crowd packed into this loft, and Comrade Ella Reeve Bloor made an excellent speech.

MINERS! KEEP AWAY FROM INDIANA!

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 13.—Despite newspaper reports and statements in the United Mine Workers' Journal, the employment situation in Indiana is very bad for coal miners with no prospect of improvement, according to the executive board of District No. 11 with headquarters at Terre Haute.

The United Mine Workers' Journal explains that its erroneous report was "based on what was believed to be correct information. However, it appears that the information was incorrect."

Indiana miner district officials declare, "We have thousands of mine workers that are continually being exonerated because of mines closed down and others working less than 40 hours per month."

FAKER FOR INJUNCTION JUDGE

job in another mine as cager, Frank secured his election as secretary of Local No. 800, of Streator and started on the road to the office which he now holds.

Even as secretary of the Streator local, Farrington was pursued by an evil genius. After a protracted excursion with John Barleycorn, Frank failed to show up at the union meeting and neither books nor money were accounted for. Some of the old timers at Streator tell of the indignation registered at this meeting. Farrington was denounced in no uncertain terms.

Whetted His Appetite.

This incident instead of having a cooling effect on his ambition, rather proved an incentive to greater efforts. He hung out his shingle as candidate for vice-president of the Illinois Miners' Union. Being elected to attend a sub-district convention at LaSalle, he made his debut, in an attack on the sub-district president because the latter had charged up one whole dollar a day for hotel bill. This modest bill can be contrasted to the conduct of the man who now charges from four to six dollars a day while staying at home.

Frank and John.

Farrington did not make the grade in his first attempt to land a job on the payroll of District 12, but he went over the top the second attempt. From his induction into office his decisions were favorable to the operators and for the first few years his actions stirred up the members of the executive board. In 1909 he ran for president of the Illinois Miners' Union as his friend, John L. Walker, decided to be a candidate for International President against Tom L. Lewis. Both were defeated.

Mutual Aid Society.

The two fakers put their heads together and the result of their collaboration was that Walker was placed on the payroll of the miners' union and Farrington was given a job by the Illinois Federation of Labor, and the hardest work Frank had to perform was to draw his salary.

It is reported that during this time, while Farrington was trying to kill time in Springfield, between pay days, he was an enthusiastic admirer of some of the guests at the Illinois hotel. One of the ladies in that establishment will figure later on in these articles.

But Farrington did not devote all his time to the entertainment of certain guests in the Illinois hotel. It was about this time that he really started on his career of using his official position in the labor movement to sell the votes of the Illinois miners to the bosses. He started in a small way.

The Injunction Judge.

A notorious injunction judge by the name of W. E. Hadley, of Collinsville, Illinois, was placed on the unfair list by the central bodies and local unions in that district. Judge Hadley was (the "Dennie" Sullivan of Collinsville. He issued an injunction on behalf of the Lumaghi Coal company and against the miners of Collinsville.

To have such a judge in office in a big coal district meant something to the operators, therefore, they used every effort to keep him there. What Farrington received for his services on this occasion has not yet come to light, but his subsequent conduct clinches the belief that he got well paid for the dirty work.

Farrington's Circular.

While organized labor was issuing literature denouncing this notorious boss judge as an enemy of the workers in general and the coal miners in particular, Farrington got out a circular over his own signature absolving Judge Hadley of the charge made against him by the organized workers who had first-hand knowledge of the injunction, because they suffered from its provisions.

The following is a copy of the circular issued by Farrington:

"To ORGANIZED LABOR of the Third Judicial Circuit of the State of Illinois:

"A large amount of printed matter having been freely distributed charging Mr. W. E. Hadley, of Collinsville, Illinois, with being instrumental in causing an injunction to be issued on behalf of the Lumaghi Coal company and against the miners of Collinsville and state and sub-district officials of the United Mine Workers of America, on account of which he is unfriendly to organized labor.

"The undersigned being at the time of the issuance of said injunction state vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America for the state of Illinois, and having had in charge the dispute then existing between the Lumghai Coal company and the miners employed at its Number (2) Two Mine, know of my personal knowledge that Mr. Hadley took no part in the preparation of the bill for injunction, its presentation to the circuit judge issuing the same and took no part in nor was present at any conference between the United Mine Workers of America and the Lumaghi Coal company and further, that said injunction was not against any miner employed by said company and was not an injunction to protect non-union labor, but on the contrary, was an injunction against only the officers of the miners' organization to restrain them from calling out the union men employed at its Number Three (3)."

This circular was dated, Springfield, Illinois, June 4, 1924.

Crooked Politician.

The crooked mental twist in Farrington can be seen from a reading of the above circular. In defending Hadley against a charge which he knew quite well to be true, he also defends the injunction itself. It was not to protect non-union labor, he argues, but to restrain the officials of the miners' union from calling out the miners employed at another mine belonging to the same company. Farrington here justifies scabbery of the grossest kind while he goes down the line for an injunction judge.

The next article will deal with Farrington's handling of a strike in Vancouver, and his little tricks with the pencil when sending in a bill for expenses.

PATERSON SILK STRIKERS WAR ON INJUNCTION

Call Upon All Unions for Assistance

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PATERSON, Oct. 13.—A call to 1,200 labor unions and fraternal organizations to come out squarely against the use of the injunction in strikes, has gone out from the headquarters of the New York relief committee for the striking silk workers of Paterson in the form of a resolution condemning unqualifiedly the injunction weapon, especially as it has been used in the course of the Paterson fight.

Appeal for financial help for the silk workers on strike here against the introduction of the three- and four-loom system, and for the establishment of the eight-hour day and recognition of the union, has been sent out from the same body.

The resolution on the Paterson injunction reads:

WHEREAS, the silk workers of Paterson are engaged in a strike for the recognition of their union, the establishment of the eight hour day in their industry and for a living wage,

WHEREAS, the courts of New Jersey have issued several injuctions denying the strikers the right to picket,

WHEREAS, such injunctions, which are becoming ever more frequent, deny to workers the elementary civil right of trial by jury as guaranteed by the constitution and are a standing menace to the entire organized labor movement of this country, and

WHEREAS, the conventions of the American Federation of Labor and all other labor bodies have repeatedly attacked the injunction as an act of judicial tyranny and as a weapon of the open shop movement to destroy organized labor, which if unresisted would defeat the efforts of the workers to improve its living conditions

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:—that goes on record unfalteringly opposed to injunctions in labor disputes, and as being wholeheartedly in favor of a vigorous fight being made on the injunction evil, and pledge our moral and financial support to the Paterson strikers in their fight against the injunctions issued against them, and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED: That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Labor Press and to the headquarters of the Paterson Silk Strikers, Turn Hall, Allison and Cross streets, Paterson, N. J., and to the Central Trades and Labor Council.

Australian Labor Gov't is Great on Promising Reforms

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Oct. 13—The Labor government in South Australia, in its outline of its legislative program, proposes to encourage the co-operative marketing of fresh, dried and canned fruits, establish a fair rents court and provide free legal assistance to persons unable to pay. The medical branch of the education department will be extended by additional doctors, dentists and nurses, to safeguard the health of children.

More adequate provision will be made for teaching elementary agriculture, woodwork and domestic science in country schools. There will be a state-owned insurance office. A comprehensive housing scheme is also being undertaken.

STEAM OF BOILING POLITICAL POT IN STATE CAPITAL HAS EXTREMELY NOISOME SMELL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 12.—If you see an automobile, with the picture of the former Illinois state treasurer accused of taking the interest money adorning the radiator, feel assured the driver is on the pay-roll in some capacity. Thousands and thousands of "workers" are on the inside getting some of the long green for supporting the man under indictment for manipulating the state funds in such a manner as to permit some two million dollars to stick to his fingers.

Payrollites Demonstrate.

Yesterday a republican get-together was held here in which republican prosperity was shouted to the gathering of the klans and heralded by the press.

Most if not all those in attendance were either on the pay-roll or hope to be. Small has the endorsement of the Walker-Farrington Federation of Laborites and Small is now out and out for Kautious Kal Koolidge. In this there is some disagreement as the president of the Springfield federation, John Gaffigan, is out for Jones, the democratis nominee for governor, and he and Walker (formerly bosom companions) are now denouncing each other by mail and thru the local papers.

Walker Rewarded.

Walker is said to have a brother and other relatives on the republican pay-roll and can trade labor votes for the release of prisoners and get you a job if you want it. Governor Small has agreed to permit Farrington to name the members of the Industrial Board and has already placed two or three of his friends on this pie-counter job. One of these has not yet cast a vote in this country, but will exercise that privilege in the coming election. One of the others is said to be able to read and write to the extent that he can make out an expense account that looks important.

Oiling the Machine.

One of the local newspapers is said to have made three hundred thousand dollars in printing during the Small incumbency and even the democrat paper is said to have gotten its share. Under the law all state printing is supposed to be submitted for bids, but all bids are declared off and it is now traded for support at the printers' own figures.

The representative of a supply concern complained because he had not gotten his share of the state's business and was promptly informed that the reason was that his competitor had sent in a contribution of $250 for the Small campaign. A woman whose husband had been sick for some time got a job at the State House and was then ordered to pay in thirty dollars for campaign expenses if she wanted to hold her job. Other State House hirlings were arrested and "kicked" in with a month's salary or take the consequences.

Two Years Bring Changes.

Two years ago Small was so crooked, according to the present president of the State Federation of Labor, he should have been in jail for life. He was unfair to labor, on the blacklist of the Kankakee Federation of Labor but now he is as white as the driven snow. The magic wand of "jobs" for friends and relatives did the trick and while these friends of Small claim to be for La Follette and Small is for Dawes, Coolidge and the entire republican slate it makes no difference. He is a "friend of labor now" and entitled to labor's support. Then some people complain because they are called "labor fakers."

LACK OF JOBS CONTINUES IN STATE, REPORT

142 Men for 100 Jobs Survey Shows

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Depression continues to characterize the employment situation in Illinois, with about 97,000 fewer workers employed in the factories of the state than in September, 1923, according to the September employment report of the state department of labor. Slight gains registered in the last two months have been insufficient to cause appreciable improvement in the general situation.

142 Men For 100 Jobs

Reports from the free employment agencies showed 142 persons for every 100 jobs as compared with 106 persons last September, 102 in September 1922 and 195 in September 1921.

The outstanding improvement since the August report occured at the mines. Six coal mines resumed in September giving jobs to 2,691 workers. Steadier work was also reported and the average weekly earnings of Illinois miners rose 2 per cent to $33.74.

The period is one when seasonal expansion is expected and gains were reported in 25 of the 56 principal manufacturing industries of the state. Industries reporting increased employment included the metal machinery and conveyance group, chemical, knit goods, women's clothing and leather products group. The electrical industry reported a decrease of, 6.6 per cent in number on payrolls and the iron and steel industry failed to show improvement.

Steel Jobs Fall.

The reports says "One of the surprising things is that iron and steel has not improved. In the mills and foundries operation continues at about the lowest point that has been reached in 3 years, and this in the face of reports which have appeared in the press that this industry had begun to recover."

Taken as a whole the gain in employment in manufacturing industry during September amounted to less than 1 per cent and there was little change in the extent of part-time employment, with about 63 per cent of the workers of the state on less than full-time schedules. There was a slight gain in average pay, which rose from $26.96 to $27.19 a week, compared with $27.73 a year ago and $28.33 in June, 1923, the peak of the last 3 years.

Depression in New York

The addition of 40,000 workers to the payroll of manufacturing establishments in New York state between August and September, which broke the back of the depression and approximately 150,000 workers who had jobs in the state a year ago are out of work today. This is the substance of the monthly employment report of industrial commissioner Silentag. The gain of 3 to 4 per cent is stated to be largely seasonal.

Industries reported as increasing operations included automobile plants, steel mills, machinery, textile and clothing. Fur shops, shoe factories and plants making leather belts, bags and novelties as well as clothing factories are showing the effects of the pre-Christmas rush. Furniture, piano and rug factories also reported gains.

The outstanding reductions in employment were reported from the building material industries and railroad equipment concerns where operations were still further reduced. In spite of these the commissioner believes an upturn in employment has been established.

The Chinese Puzzle

We are indebted to the Chicago Tribune for making an open breast of the United States alignment in China. American capital is backing Wu Pei Fu, the Chihlian dictator. It is true The DAILY WORKER had already explained the Chinese puzzle and showed where the big powers stood in the civil war which is now tearing China to pieces, but it is gratifying to have our diagnosis confirmed by such a distinguished capitalist authority as the Tribune.

The Chinese situation is a very good object lesson for those who believe that the capitalist powers are serious in their peace maneuvers. While the League of Nations was babbling over "peace protocols" and Herriot and MacDonald were pledging the love of brothers in their crusade against war, England and America were putting up a united front in China behind Wu Pei Fu, while France and Japan were supporting Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord.

The Chinese puzzle is no longer puzzling. Those who follow the civil war in that country are getting acquainted with the names of the generals. These generals are generally the puppets of the capitalist powers. Dr. Sun Yat Sen is the one outstanding figure who puts the interests of the Chinese masses above his own personal aggrandisement. Sun has the support of Soviet Russia and behind Sun are the great teeming millions of China who now have for the first time in their history a great friendly power as a neighbor. That power is Soviet Russia.

China is now the cock pit of the deadly competition between the United States and Japan over the domination of the Far East. The other powers bear the same relation to the two main combatants, that the allies of England or one side and of Germany on the other bore to the struggle waged between those two giant powers over the commercial supremacy which is now lost by both of them to the United States.

Seeds of a new world war are being sown in China. The capitalists are always sowing the seeds of war. But into the Orient has come a new world power, a power that speaks a new language. It is not the lying language of old-fashioned diplomacy. It carries the message of emancipation to the exploited millions of Asia and calls upon the plundered peoples of the east to break their chains and tread the path to real freedom under the tutelage of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics of Russia.

The red flag flies today in many parts of China and the capitalist powers are "seeing red."

Another "Red Exposure"

Chicago and its environs are soon to be treated to another gigantic "red exposure." This time Chicago's leading evening paper announces that an equally leading ex-secret service man will tell the world about the nefarious doings and plans of the "terrible reds."

There are many reasons why this sort of campaign against the class-conscious workers is bound to fall flat. For one thing the scheme to howl against the "reds" and charge them with fantastic bomb plots, with assassination schemes has been tried so often and failed as often, that even the most credulous can no longer be fooled. Then, the Communists have shown on many occasions to many workers that they are the ones who fight hardest for the interests of the working class and fight openly and courageously. Add to these reasons the fact that the Communists now have a press which helps them considerably not only in stating their own case before the masses, but also in refuting the lies, the vicious canards being circulated against them by the open shoppers, by the employing class.

The new hero who will tell the yarns about the Communists is a notorious detective who has been caught red-handed in many vile misrepresentations against workingmen. The new "expert" is none other than stoolpigeon of the rankest type paraded under the name of Spolansky. He is the same spy who boasted of having sneaked his way over to Bridgeman in order to help organize an attack on a Communist meeting.

It would appear that the spy Spolansky has been fired by the federal department of justice because his services were not needed. Obviously even the Washington red-baiting authorities are thru with the "goods" Spolansky has been delivering to them. The Bridgeman experience alone has proved such a boomerang to the authorities of "law and order" that the agents connected with the attack must necessarily have shown their hands.

The "inside" stories to be told by Spolansky will be the usual tissue of hackneyed lies. They will be woven out of the whole cloth. The DAILY WORKER promises to turn the searchlight on the weird tales and expose them and the "exposer" in their unvarnished ugliness.

On the Road to a Militant Union

They are well on the road to victory, these working class militants in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Neither Sigman, nor Perlstein, nor the whole treacherous crew of labor fakers now in control of that union will be able to stem the tide of rank and file demand for a militant union in the class struggle.

It was good news, indeed, and a telling symptom of a new day, that mass meeting of protest of the workers in the dressmaking and cloak trades, held in Cooper Union in New York, Saturday, October 11. It was a manifestation and proof that the membership of that union will not stand any longer for collaboration with the bosses, secret diplomacy and dictatorial bureaucracy in the affairs of their union.

What is to become of our union? This is the question at present on the lips of nearly every member of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Where are we drifting to? Do we still have a union?

For all practical purposes this organization is no longer an independent working class body. The Sigman machine has developed its so-called arbitration tactics to such a degree as to deliver the union all but completely into the hands of the manufacturers and government agents.

It is no longer the membership that directs the affairs of the union but the bosses working in collaboration with Al Smith, Tammany Hall governor of New York state. Such is the practical effect of the Sigman-Perlstein arbitration schemes.

This state of affair calls for renewed vigor on the part of every loyal member of the union in a concerted struggle against the betrayal of the trade union officialdom. It becomes the sacred duty of every militant in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union to rally to the demands of the Cooper Union mass meeting that the union be restored to the rank and file to serve the workers and not the bosses.

On a Labor Faker's Trail

The series of articles now appearing in The DAILY WORKER, exposing the crooked career of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Miners' Union, throw a light on the technique of this species of pest, which has had such a damaging effect on the trade union movement of the United States.

Farrington is only one of many, but a particularly odious specimen we must confess. Since he first joined the miners' union, he has consistently availed himself of every opportunity to advance his own material interests at the expense of the coal operators, he has maintained his stranglehold to line up with the capitalists and their political agents in the democratic and republican parties. Farrington is a wealthy man today.

With the aid of the capitalist parties and the coal operators, he has maintained his stranglehold on the miners' union. But it appears as if his power to wreck the industrial might of the coal miners of Illinois is about to see the end. There is today thruout the mining fields of this state a well organized body of progressive miners who are determined to rid the union of this crooked capitalist lackey.

The DAILY WORKER expose is a valuable weapon in the hands of the progressive miners in District 12. It will provide them with the ammunition to use against Farrington. It will prove in black and white to the deluded miners whom he has so far succeeded in fooling with his specious falsehoods that if the union is to be saved from annihilation, Frank Farrington, the tool of the coal operators, must be sent into retirement.

"Pacifist" Imperialism

Following the best—or worst—traditions of British imperialism, Premier MacDonald has given scant consideration to the Sudanese demand for home rule under the Egyptian government.

Zaghlul Pasha, the Egyptian premier, has been rebuffed apparently and it is probable that the policy followed in India, that of discouraging demands for independence with airplane bombs, will be extended to include the Sudanese whose recent demonstrations have alarmed the foreign office.

MacDonald has made too many concessions to the British imperialists to be able to change the policy of suppression at this late date, even tho his protestations of concern for the welfare of subject peoples could be taken at their face value. As a matter of fact, the MacDonald government has never attempted to make any change in the personnel or control of the foreign office and the disciples of Curzon have had a freer hand than ever before in meting out punishment to the colonial nationalities.

It is noticable that the liberal journals of the middle class in the United States that laud MacDonald to the skies have very little to say about a foreign policy which convicts this preacher of pacifism for the workers of being more brutal in his attitude toward the oppressed colonial peoples than the most outspoken upholder of the empire.

Intellectuals Join Reaction.

But this prospect which stirred our hearts with joy, infuriates those traitors to our cause, the Georgian mensheviki. As they consider themselves not only to be the outpost of all the forces of Georgian reaction but also an integral part of European reaction the leaders of the Georgian menshevikl, consisting entirely of intellectuals, and abandoned by all the workers and peasants without exception, have entered into a close political and military fighting alliance with the parties of the bourgeois feudal reaction here at home and with the bourgeois imperialist governments of Europe.

For three years the overthrown government of the menshevikl with Jordanija, Tschenkeli, Zereteli, Tscheidse and others at the head has been conspiring with the leaders of the Second International and intriguing with the governments of the capitalist powers of Europe for the overthrow of the Soviet power in Georgia, whereby they promised the imperialists in the event of their restoration to power to give access thru menshevik Georgia to the oil wells of Baku and Central Asia.

This reactionary group whose means was not difficult to discover, has uninterruptedly carried on a disorganizing and provocatory propaganda within the country and is constantly endeavoring to bring to nought all the results of our reconstructive work. These destructive tendencies have particularly increased since the recognition of the Soviet Union by a number of European states and have assumed an outspoken brigandlike character. Before their natural death, before their disappearance from political existence, the intellectuals, the shabby remnants of the menshevik party have put forth all their final efforts in close union with the expropriated feudal owners, traders, parsons and monks and assisted by the armed bands of reaction who took to the forests in order to escape the laws of the workers' and peasants' government, they have attempted to draw the sword against the proletarian dictatorship.

Under the fraudulent slogan of "liberating" Georgia, that is its liberation from the rule of the proletarian dictatorship and for its enslavement to European capital, they intended to stir up the masses of workers and peasants to overthrow the Soviet power.

These attempts took place in a few localities of one of the provinces of Georgia, but met with an equally rapid and inglorious end. Not only the working class of Georgia without exception has actively opposed them, but the whole working peasantry repudiated them, isolated the handful of adventurers and thereby rendered possible the rapid liquidation of the adventure by the Communist forces almost without any participation by the regular army.

Revolutionary Order Reigns.

Was any other attitude on the part of the working masses possible? Could it be otherwise than that the class consciousness of the workers flared up in anger against those who during the two or three hours of rule in one or two small localities, in close union with former landowners, traders, house owners and parsons hastened to decree the restoration of private property in the means of production, in buildings and land? Would it not have been monstrous if the contrary had been the case? It was unavoidable therefore that this attempt at an action became converted into a farce, even tho a dangerous and criminal one.

There now reigns thruout the whole republic strict revolutionary order, which was not even disturbed for an hour either in the capital or in any of the big towns of the republic. The shameful failure of the counter-revolutionary attempt of the Georgian reactionaries had to be recognized even by the fighting organization of the reactionaries, the so-called "Committee for Independence," whose declaration of the 3rd of September we heartily recommend to your attention in order that you should become familiar with this document proving the shame and the degradation of one of the parties of the Second International.

Fellow workers, fellow peasants of Europe!

The capitalist and social democratic press will attempt to deceive you regarding the events in Georgia. They will serve you up hair-raising stories of revolt on the part of the Georgian people, as they have repeatedly done hitherto. Do not believe their lies!

Before the sitting of the League of Nations the reaction has decided to carry out the despicable comedy of a general uprising of the people in order that the meeting of the international slave holders in Geneva could demand the handing over of Soviet Georgia to them under the mask of restoring the rights of a "democratic government" of Jordanija.

But this, comrades, will not happen. We are not going to enter the prison house of capitalism again no more than the peasants of Georgia are longing for the return of the feudal lords driven out by the Soviet government. We are determined to defend the Soviet system with our lives, apart from which we have no hope of favorable conditions for our final renaissance as a class and for our national-cultural development. And we have the right to expect from you, our fellow-workers, that you will allow no fresh betrayal of the broad masses of the workers by the leaders of the Second International, who are conspiring with the former ministers of the Georgian menshevikl against the workers' and peasants' power in Georgia.

The Soviet of the workers, the members of the red army and of the peasant deputies of Tiflis sends you its fraternal greetings and emphasises that the only thing we are longing for is peace and quiet in order to carry on creative work for the up-building of the proletarian state and the great alliance of the workers of the whole world.

Long live the revolutionary cause of the workers of all countries!

Down with reaction, which conspires behind the screen of the Second International!

DECLARATION OF THE COMMITTEE FOR THE INDEPENDENCE OF GEORGIA

The following declaration, issued Sept. 3, is the one referred to in the accompanying manifesto of the Tiflis Soviet.—Editor's Note.

THE Committe for the Independence of Georgia having from the first day of its formation set itself the aim of re-establishing the independence of Georgia was convinced that it would be able to prepare and carry out an armed insurrection of the Georgian nation for this purpose. To this end the committee for independence thru the medium of the parties affiliated to it, in the course of several years, carried on the appropriate work and organized armed groups. On the other hand, thru the medium of an office abroad, it strove to create in the western European states, and particularly in France and England, suitable conditions for receiving help.

But our hope failed to materialize and consequently we suffered a defeat. The organized mass insurrection which we had been expecting did not take place. The broad masses of the people did not support us. We were left alone with those active forces which had been recruited from the upper circles of the nation and which had for the greater part hidden themselves in the forests. Our action, practically against our will, became converted into a mere adventure which was, of course, followed by strong reprisals on the part of the authorities, the responsibility for which lies wholly with us.

In acknowledging its error in preparing this action the committee for independence declares that, beginning from this day, the continuation of armed struggle against the Soviet power appeared to be doomed to complete failure and to be disastrous for the Georgian nation. In view of this, the committee for independence calls upon all parties affiliated with it and upon all armed groups which have dispersed themselves in the remote corners of Georgia, amongst them the armed troops of Kakuts, Tsholokashvili, to cease immediately from any further action against the government, to disband all their armed forces, to give up all weapons to the governmental organs, and by obedience to the government to mitigate that enormous disaster which our insurrection has brought upon the Georgian people.

Beginning from this day we declare the committee of independence to be dissolved, in the center as well as in the provinces.

of the leaders are catholics in name only and rarely attend mass or any of the other Catholic services. This element favors friendly alliance with the Masonic order. The bishops are strongly opposed to this move, fearing its effect on the rank and file who are led to believe that all those who are not Catholics go to hell, after death.

WARREN S. STONE has not yet made any reply to the correspondence published by John L. Lewis concerning the relations between the United Mine Workers of America and the scab coal mines operated by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, thru Stone, the head of that organization. Stone being a leader in the LaFollette movement, which claims to entertain good intentions towards the workers, is expected to put up some kind of defense. But then another scaly mine operator is Oswald Garrison Villard, one of the earliest supporters of "Fightin' Bob." Not alone is Villard operating a scab mine, but he ran the New York Evening Post, open shop, when he owned that paper, and on a recent visit to Chicago, he held a banquet in a scab hotel. We are indebted to the Federated Press for this information.

THE PRINCE OF WALES is coming to Chicago. It is rumored that secret orders have been issued to the police to "lay off" the bootleggers while his royal higness is in town. There may not be any truth in this report of course, but it is only fair that the prince be given the benefit of the doubt. The Swift family was selected to do the entertainment honors. Those of you who have followed the financial gyrations of the big packers will marvel where the Swifts got the money to put on a swell party. All the packers have been declared bankrupt quite frequently within the past two years, yet none of them have yet applied for a berth in the poor house.

THINGS are livening up a little bit in England. It is expected that the "Labor" Party will make some gains in the general direction. A good deal is being made of Ramsay MacDonald's acceptance of the "endowed auto" from Sir Alexander Grant. The DAILY WORKER is informed by a San Francisco correspondent, native of Liverpool, that such things are quite common in England and that we should not apply the rod of castigation too freely to the political hide of Ramsay, because he only did what Lloyd George and other British politicians have done before.

THE DAILY WORKER will not shed any tears over MacDonald's exposure as a political grafter, who hides his treachery under the mantle of a most nauseating hypocricy, but it is a pretty state of affairs when a social democratic renegade is excused for accepting thirty thousand pounds from a capitalist tory politician merely on the ground that capitalist politicians have done the same thing. The saving grace of the incident is that it provides a club with which to hasten MacDonald's political death. The bribe incident is not MacDonald's greatest crime. His utter betrayal of the working class is his major sin. The "auto" is merely a partial payment for his treachery.

THE situation confronting the British Empire is by no means a happy one. Aside from trouble in Egypt, India, Ireland, South Africa, Mesopotamia, and China, the unemployment problem at home is becoming more and more acute. There are 1,500,000 workers without jobs in Britain, and there is no prospect of their ever being employed again under capitalism. The cost of living has risen over pre-war days 184 per cent. The British income from foreign investments has dropped from one billion dollars per annum to 500,000,000 dollars. Britain is losing markets in every country in the world. America is her strongest rival. Even her colonies are now becoming industrialized and are turning up their noses at the "Mother Country." But the men of the "hull dog breed", the ruling class of England, will not quit without a fight. And there will be a fight with America unless in the meantime, the working class of England fight it out with their masters.

SOVIET RUSSIA is getting along rather nicely in the Orient these days. Red flags are flying in many parts of China over Soviet embassies and consulates. The Chinese Eastern Railway is in Communist hands. The tuchun, Wu Pei Fu, backed by British and American gold is getting a good trouncing by Chang, backed by Japan, and not opposed at least by Soviet Russia. It would not be surprising if the British and American capitalists were eating crow instead of rice, before long, as far as China is concerned.

JAPAN is expected to sign treaties with Russia in a few days. France, according to reports will recognize the Soviet government not later than this week. The French vassal states that have not yet established diplomatic relations with Moscow are expected to follow the French lead. This will mean that all the big world powers and most of the small ones will have bowed the knee to the power of the Russian workers. Only Silent Cal and his whiskered secretary of state, Hughes, continue to ignore the greatest revolution in history.

IT appears that France has broken decisively with the Vatican. This is a matter of considerable importance. American radicals are prone to underestimate the influence of the Roman church in world politics, the loons of the Ku Klux Klan type see a papal knight behind every lamp post. The present pope, while stationed at Warsaw was largely responsible for organizing the Franco-Polish offensive against Russia. He was rewarded for his services by the papacy. The Vatican acquired great influence during and after the war. It was a useful agency to keep the cannon fodder from revolting. But it has passed the peak of its influence and is now on the decline. The French deflection is the most severe blow it could receive in Europe, short of an Italian proletarian revolution which would mean the liquidation of the biggest religious opium joint in the world.

MUSIC - LITERATURE - DRAMA

Debut of New Orchestra

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN

ANOTHER small orchestra with the avowed purpose of producing ultra modern works. The Progressive Symphony Orchestra, made its debut at Kimball Hall under the baton of E. F. Harder, whose compositions made up most of the program. Mr. Harder's music is modern enough, but the ultra touch was lacking. There was none of the screaming dissonance of the contemporary Parisians, and not much of their delicacy of instrumentation.

Of Harder's original music, the first number and the last were the most impressive. The first was a symphonic march, supposedly descriptive of an Indian funeral procession. But it was more Russian than Indian, reminding one much of the colorful and rhythmic style of Borodin.

The last number was a small symphony, short, lightly orchestrated, with an expressive and beautiful English horn solo in the second movement.

"The clarinet," said an eminent English theorist to me last summer, "is destined to replace the violin as a solo instrument." If so, that destiny will not yet be fulfilled for a long time. But Harder gave us some inkling of what music will be like then when he played the Weber concertino for clarinet and orchestra. This concertino, so far as form goes, is one of the most perfect pieces in musical literature for a solo instrument and orchestra. Unlike the same composer's concerti for clarinet, it is not filled up with unmusical junk calculated to give the virtuoso a good time overcoming difficulties, but it is a very fine bit of romanticism, expressed thru an instrument of romantic tone quality.

Right in line with the trend of the ultra modernists was a trio for two clarinets and bass clarinet, also by Mr. Harder. Unfortunately I was unable to hear it.

Mr. Harder has started something. There is a lot of music for wind instruments being produced by the modernists that never gets a hearing in these parts. But if the Progressive orchestra gets the support it deserves, there is a great deal in store in the way of new and unusual music that the orchestra can produce.

THE TRUTH ABOUT "THE REDS"

WILD TALES OF U. S. SLEUTH IN CHICAGO DAILY NEWS WILL BE EXPOSED BY THE DAILY WORKER

By MANUEL GOMEZ

The Chicago Daily News, publisher of "The Black Joker," "The Stained Dagger" and other equally blood-curdling "mystery stories" in serial form, has a new thriller for its readers.

It is all about "Reds" and "Red Plots," and what makes its sensational success almost certain is that the "Reds" portrayed in it are as unlike real "Reds" as it is possible to conceive.

The story is called "Secrets of the Reds Told by an Insider," and, strangely enough, purports to be true.

It is written by Jacob Spolansky, notorious anti-labor fink and frame-up man who, "in a series of amazing revelations" pretends to show "how Russian Communism, setting out to overthrow the government of the United States by violence, chose Chicago as the center of all radical activities in the western world, manufactured bombs, and carried out systematic assassinations."

The series began publication in the Daily News yesterday.

Lurid beyond anyhing yet offered to the readers of detective stories, this latest addition to the Desperate Desmond School of Fiction will, to give the exact language of the Daily News advertising man, "bristle with vivid and terrible details."

In other words, it will be the old familiar hoakum, the regular hull, conventional admixture of wild yarns about fake plots, which are manufactured out of the whole cloth by private detecive agencies and out-of-work operatives whenever they think they can scare a rich old reprobate into paying for some heavy sleuthing.

Burns Controls the "D. of J."

For years, the whole detective "industry" of the country has been engaged in faking plots—and then, in order to make good with a client, framing up some poor sucker and railroading him to jail before he realized what has happened to him.

A professional dick once told the writer that two-thirds of his work consisted of executing frame-ups. Especially prominent in this line of endeavor is the Burns Detective agency (a million-dollar corporation, with ramifications extending to all parts of the world); and for a long, long time the Burns agency has controlled the federal department of justice, body and soul.

The DAILY WORKER knows "The Reds" at first hand; it is a Communist organ. It also knows Mr. Jacob Spolansky at first hand, a number of Communists having been victims of his frame-ups. Side by side with the fake revelations in the Chicago Daily News, the DAILY WORKER will publish a series of articles prepared with the assistance of the Labor Defense Council, exposing the would-be exposers. This is the first of the series. Read what the DAILY WORKER has to say and compare it with Spolansky's daily nonsense in the Daily News.

According to advertisements, Spolansky's principal articles will deal with:

The "Group of Avengers" in Gary.

Plots to kill prominent Americans.

The secret of the Wall Street bomb explosion of 1919.

Getting at the Truth.

The DAILY WORKER can tell you something about these topics, even before reading the articles in the Daily News. The "Group of Avengers," otherwise spoken of as the "Knights of the Red Star," is an entirely fictitious organization, conceived in the minds of a group of private detectives, headed by Mike Flanagan, now president of the Thiel Detective Service Co., who used it to frighten Chicago bankers. All sorts of terrible deeds were attributed to this mysterious organization, including the alleged attempt to assassinate state's attorney Hoyne in the summer of 1920, but not a shred of evidence was ever produced to show that it actually existed, except a collection of silly "blackhand" letters, whose very series.

The so-called plots to kill prominent Americans began to be talked about in detective circles early in 1919, in connection with a document purporting to come from Russia, giving detailed instructions for the systematic murder of a number of individuals. Seventeen men of prominence in all parts of the United States were said to be marked for slaughter. The story gained considerable credence among worried plutocrats, and as a result the Thiel, Burns and Smith agencies reaped a happy harvest, until it gradually became discredited, ceased to call forth revenue, and was finally discarded altogether—not to bob up again until Spolansky decided to write his "revelations" for the Chicago Daily News.

Burns' Brazen Hoax.

As for the famous Wall Street bomb explosion, this forms part of one of the most brazen hoaxes ever perpetrated by unscrupulous detectives. The bomb was planted by an employe of a certain detective Agency, and exploded on September 4, 1918, killing four persons and injuring nearly thirty. If there had not been $500,000 lying around loose which the detectives believed could be diverted into their coffers for anti-Red investigations, the bomb never would have been manufactured. Despite the fact that for several years the dicks and frame-up men strove to implicate Communists, they have been entirely unsuccessful, and the Wall Street bomb explosion still remains a mystery, which the police say they cannot solve. The DAILY WORKER intends to aid in the solution. The Labor Defense Council has in its possession facsimile documents and sworn testimony, which it will make public thru the DAILY WORKER, that the whole thing was cooked up by the Burns and Thiel agencies, operating with the connivance of the federal department of justice.

These paragraphs indicate the degree of reliability of the material which Spolansky is weaving into sensations for the readers of the Daily News. Anyone who knows Spolansky's intrepid fiction is assured of all the thrills attendant upon the perusal of a hectic dime novel, but he will learn nothing whatever about the revolutionary working class movement, which does not consist of fantastic "groups of avengers" engaged in planning isolated murders and evolving bomb plots, but it a mighty concerted struggle to free the working class from wage slavery. The Workers Party, which is the Communist organization in this country, seeks to conceal its real purpose; it does not wait for a slimy sleuth like Jacob Spolansky to "expose" it; but it exposes itself day after day in the DAILY WORKER, which can be bought freely from the newsstands.

Spolansky Knows He Lies.

Spolansky knows all this. He knows he is peddling spurious stuff. He is not a young innocent whose distorted ideas of socialism and Communism took shape naturally as a result of seculsion from revolutionary influences. But Spolansky needs money. And his whole career indicates that he could not allow mere principle to stand in the way of material gain. Perhaps he would prefer to write the truth for the Daily News, but the editor would call it "propaganda," and refuse to print it. The Daily News does not want the truth. It does not believe in giving publicity to the Communists, except to discredit them as crack-brained or secret medieval conspirators, and at the same to furnish a few cheap thrills to its readers.

Who is this Jacob Spolansky? Born in Russian Poland, he came to this country, and for a number of years had a bitter struggle to make both ends meet. Before the outbreak of the world war, while still a youth of 19 or 20, he became a member of the socialist party, joining Russian branch No. 1, in Chicago. At that time he was wretchedly poor. He dropped out of the party in 1916, going directly into the employ of the federal department of justice.

During his membership in the socialist party, Spolansky was, for a time, financial secretary of his branch. Aside from that, he was not active, and showed no particular capability in the movement. His talents lay along different lines.

Has Spy Connections.

Spolansky asserts that he is opposed to professional spies in the labor movement and that he did not become connected with the secret service until after he had severed all connections with the socialist party. However that may be, it is quite clear that his negotiations with the police began long before 1916. His uncle, Maike Mills, was for 25 or 30 years head of the "anarchist squad" of the Chicago police department—and it was thru Mills' influence that Spolansky landed the job with the department of justice. There can be no doubt that Spolansky sold out, became a turncoat and capitalized his rather narrow acquaintance with the radical movement because he was poor and he saw a chance to pick up easy money, because he lacked the moral fibre of which staunch working class fighters are made.

The high spot in Spolansky's career as a detective was his organization, under the direction of super-dick William J. Burns, of the brutal raid on the convention of the Communist Party at Bridgeman, Michigan, in the summer of 1922, which resulted in the indictment of William Z. Foster, C. E. Ruthenberg, William F. Dunne and 29 other Communist leaders. While some of thedefendants were imprisoned in the county jail at St. Joseph, Spolansky openly declared that the real purpose of the raid was to terrorize the militant workers thruout the country and thus aid in smashing the big railroad and coal strikes which were then in progress. The attempt to convict Foster (now Workers Party candidate for president) failed. In the case of Ruthenberg, however, the prosecution accomplished it purpose by playing skillfully upon the prejudices of a handpicked jury. Ruthenberg's appeal comes up before the Michigan supreme court this week. It is being financed by the Labor Defense Council, 166 W. Washington St. Chicago.

Shows Sleuths in Real Life.

In the movies, and in popular magazine serials, secret service men are invariably clean-cut, upright, courageous youths, who give their lives unselfishly to protecting the honor and interests of their country. But in real life they are sneaks and turncoats like Spolansky, ever willing to accept a bribe, and without the slightest conception of what honor means. More often than not, detectives are a combination of stool-pigeon and gunman usually with a shady past. They take part habitually in unlawful and violent raids, searches and seizures, cause fraudulent arrests, and use the third degree to force men to accuse themselves or others falsely. In one way or another they have become practiced in the black arts of inquisition. They utilize this training to fasten themselves like leeches on the men who possess wealth, striving to convince them that only by employing "protection" of this type they of for can wealth be preserved in capitalist hands and continued opportunity afforded to plunder industry and exploit wage workers.

If you wish to read the full truth about Spolansky and his associates read the DAILY WORKER. In the succeeding articles of this series, we shall relate some of the notorious frame-ups engineered by Spolansky against labor. We shall expose the connection between the government and the Burns Detective Agency. We shall tell the complete truth about the Wall Street bomb explosion, the "Gary Avengers," the plots to kill prominent Americans, and various other interesting matters—which are advertised for exposure by the Daily News, but which, nevertheless, will not be actually exposed except in the DAILY WORKER.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

MUSSOLINI finds his footing getting slippier every day. He is now forced to request the assistance of D'Annunzio, the crazy playwright, who would feel as happy under the leadership of Mussolini as a hungry cannibal, hogtied within sight of a fat bishop. The Fascist movement is nearing the end in Europe. In Spain the black shirt dictatorship under De Rivera hangs on the Morocco expedition, which means that it hangs on a hair with the Riffian sabre in dangerous proximity. The capitalists have found it more advantageous to work thru the social democratic parties, than thru the more crude Fascisti. It wears better camouflage.

ANOTHER feature of the present European situation is the growth of anti-clericalism, which is chiefly manifested in the Latin countries of France, Spain and Italy. While the Vatican made considerable temporary gains by allying itself with the Fascisti, the fall of that dictatorship will certainly bring down upon the head of the Catholic church the wrath of the masses who suffered under the black-shirt regime. The republican elements in the Latin countries are anti-clerical and the fall of Fascism in Italy and Spain will undoubtedly bring about a state of affairs as far as the church is concerned, as took place in France in 1905.

A CLASS war prisoner in San Quentin sends in a clipping containing the drivel that oozed from the now dried-up brain of one Joseph Wise, in regard to William Z. Foster and the Workers Party. Our imprisoned comrade is extremely angry over the Wise attack, but he would not be if he only knew something about the contemptible nonentity who was used by the big labor fakers to attack a man whose ability as a trade union organizer they envy and who they hate because of his sincerity and the esteem in which he is held by the masses of the workers, even those who cannot yet see eye to eye with him politically. Wise has been already handled in The DAILY WORKER and if he is at all worthy of his name he will keep his fool mouth padlocked, except for the performance of the only purpose nature intended it for—in the case of Wise—to eat his slops with.

JAKE Spolansky, until recently a stoolpigeon of the department of justice, and very likely a stoolpigeon now for some detective agency, is trying to make a name for himself and incidentally make some cash, by competing with Nick Carter, the famous dime novelist. Jake is now a writer, of course—like the Prince of Wales, he gets somebody else to do the literary work for him. But there are so many unemployed stoolpigeons around nowadays that Jakey will have no trouble, we presume, in securing a co-worker to fix up his yarns so that the copy readers will not be under the impression that some moron bit the literary warpath.

COMMUNIST TICKET GOES ON BALLOT IN STATE OF INDIANA

With the filing of one thousand petitions with the secretary of state for Indiana in behalf of the presidential candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party, the workers of Indiana will have an opportunity to vote for William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidates for president and vice-president, in the coming elections.

Arne Swabeck, district organizer, yesterday filed one thousand petitions for electors pledged to Foster and Gitlow in Indiana. This makes the fourteenth state to place the Workers Party national ticket on the ballot.

BATTLE GROUND SHIFTS SCENE IN I. W. W. MEET

Thrash Out Problems at Emmet Memorial Hall

The battle ground of the contending elements in the Industrial Workers of the World shifted yesterday from the Phoenix Hall, 405 W. Division Street, to Emmet Memorial Hall, where all but six members of the Rowan-Bowerman-Griffith group were reported to have agreed to meet and trash out their differences.

These six members of the Rowan group who have already declared themselves the "official I. W. W. convention," are composed of one delegate from the metal workers' union and five delegates from the lumber workers' union.

Delegate Johnson, of the lumber workers has been made chairman of the Rowan-Bowerman convention.

Frame Series of Demands.

The "convention" of the six members of the Rowan group adjourned early yesterday afternoon after drawing up a series of "demands" upon the convention of delegates meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall.

This convention is composed of all the delegates who decided to meet in one convention in the interests of unity. Delegates in the Rowan group, who have so far declined unity, told the DAILY WORKER that they will meet again at 180 W. Washington St., to consider the reply of the large convention at Emmet Memorial Hall to their "demands." They declare unless their demands are met they will remain outside the regular convention, but refused to disclose what these demands are.

Claim Complete Unity.

Reports emanating from the closed session of the I. W. W. convention at Emmet Memorial Hall were to the effect that almost complete unity has been obtained by the I. W. W. delegates. The report of the credentials committee was acted upon yesterday afternoon by the executive session.

The delegates honored the credentials of adherents to both the Rowan-Bowerman-Griffith faction and the Doyle-Fisher group. Only those delegates were seated, however, the DAILY WORKER was informed, who were regularly elected by groups of the rank and file I. W. W.

All but two of those followers of the Rowan group who had been meeting at 180 W. Washington St., are present at the Emmet Memorial Hall unity convention, acording to the I. W. W. delegates. The one delegate who has been holding out against unity, the DAILY WORKER is informed, is delegate Wilson of the lumber workers.

Keep Control on Dispute.

"One of the chief actions to be taken by this convention will be to see that such factional disputes never again get out of control of the organization and go into the capitalist courts," one of the western delegates told the DAILY WORKER. "The big fight will come over the report of the executive board."

A dick from the department of justice demanded admittance to the hall and the I. W. W. were forced to admit him. They declared perhaps he was looking for more material to write another series of capitalist newspaper articles.

LAFOLLETTE'S VOTES IN U. S. SENATE ON IMMIGRATION EXPOSED

Startling revelations of the part LaFollette played in the senate in the recent immigration legislation is made in Alexander Trachtenberg's article appearing on the editorial page today. Read this article, it contains valuable information.

BORAH GLORIES IN HIS ATTACK ON THE POST OFFICE CLERKS

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Senator Borah, replying to an inquiry as to whether the Associated Press told the truth when it qpoted him as calling President Coolidge "the greatest man in the political history of the United States," denies that he made that statement. However, he says he did pay tribute to Coolidge for vetoing the post office employes' wage bill and other "extravagances." Borah called this matter of reducing public expenditures one of the supreme issues of the age, and Coolidge heroic for his action.

He has not yet replied to the challenge of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks as to why he does not censure Coolidge for signing the bill raising the salary of his political chiefs in the postoffice department from $5,000 to $7,5000 a year.

BRITISH ARMS HOLD TURKISH OIL FROM TURKS

John Bull Will Not Trust His Own League

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 13.—Wars are so common nowadays that only a real whopper excites more than ordinary attention. In other days the Turko-British imbroglio would be front page news. But with hundreds of thousands lined up in hostile array in China, the skirmishes between Turkey and England over the Mosul oil fields receives only slight attention.

Big War Threatens.

But it would not surprise seasoned political observers here if a big struggle develops out of the present tension. Actual fighting is taking place right now between Turkish and British troops. Before MacDonald was defeated in the commons, his troops were shedding blood in defense of the oil wells stolen from the people of Mesopotamia by the Lloyd George government, for the British capitalists. He is still in charge of the bloody work.

Turkey Prepares.

The Turkish government at Angora is in extraordinary session. The British are threatening to attack Mosul. Turkey has all the appearance of a country getting ready for war.

Yet war with the British empire is a serious proposition. Turkey will not undertake it lightly, at least not without learning the attitude of France and other big powers.

Won't Trust League.

The British are occupying Turkish territory, declaring they have a mandate from the league of nations to govern it. The natives would be just as well pleased if England dropped the "white man's burden" and left them alone, but there is oil on their native land, which compels them to sleep with strange bedfellows.

The Turks are willing to let the league of nations define the boundary but England will not even trust the league. France is a member of the league and France's vassal states have votes.

The capitalists are in a pretty fix.

Daugherty Contempt Case Goes Over Until Election Has Passed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. — The supreme court of the United States today set for argument December 1, the contempt case against Mal S. Daugherty, brother of former attorney general Harry M. Daugherty, for refusal to comply with orders of a senate investigating committee to produce his bank books and certain memorandums. The lower federal court sustained the banker and the government appealed to test the powers of a congressional investigation committee.

ARGUE ISSUES IN RUTHENBERG CASE ON OCT. 18

Decision up to Michigan Supreme Court

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 14.—The issue, whether "assembling with" can be made a crime in the United States, is to be settled so far as the state of Michigan is concerned by decision of the supreme court here.

The issue comes up in the charge against C. E. Ruthenberg, convicted at St. Joseph, Mich., last year for "assembling with" the Communist party convention at Bridgeman the year before.

Hearing Set for Oct. 18.

The date of the hearing before the Michigan supreme court of the Ruthenberg case has been set for Oct. 18. The defendant's brief was filed some ten days ago and today the attorney-general, Daugherty, of the state of Michigan, filed the brief of the state.

The argument of the defendant is that the Michigan criminal syndicalist law is unconstitutional being in violation of the constitution of the state of Michigan, and that of the United States. The defendant's argument is based upon legal grounds. The answer of attorney-general Daugherty for the state of Michigan is that the Michigan syndicalist law "stands on guard against the destruction of the state and the United States constitutions."

Besides the issue of the constitutionality of the Michigan law, on general principles the defendant's argument is that the application made of this law in the Ruthenberg case is unconstitutional even tho the state has the power to enact such a law.

He Only Assembled.

The basis of this argument is the fact that the only charge made against Ruthenberg was "assembling with" an organization and no evidence was submitted that either Ruthenberg or this organization had committed any act in the state of Michigan which created a clear and present danger for any overt act of any kind.

The state of Michigan will be represented in the hearing by the attorney-general of the state, Daugherty and O. L. Smith, assistant attorney-general, while the defendants will be represented by Frank P. Walsh and I. E. Ferguson.

PORTO RICO, LIVING GRAVEYARD, SUFFERS WITH STARVING INDIA

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—In an election broadside, Santiago Iglesias, labor leader in Porto Rico, recites the report made by a committee of members of the American Federation of Labor, that "We find Porto Rico to be a living graveyard," and asks the Unionist-Republican alliance to tell the voters just what measures they have planned, or would propose, to alleviate the terrible poverty of the mass of the people henceforth.

He challenges the alliance to say whether it will favor a small-holdings law which would break up the big sugar and coffee plantations to the extent required to give gardens or small farms to agricultural laborers. He further challenges them to say whether they would vote for legislation retaining in Porto Rico sufficient of its products, or the return thereof, to afford a living to the people of the island who are employed in creating them.

Porto Rico is declared to export a greater share of her production, for the benefit of non-residents, than any other rich agricultural region on earth. Her people are among the worst-nourished outside of India.

FOSTER TOUR TO PACIFIC COAST EPOCH-MAKING

Communists' Ranks Are Stronger Everywhere

By JOSEPH MANLEY
Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

William Z. Foster, presidential candidate of the Workers Party, has just concluded what, for our party, will prove to be an epoch-making tour i to the Pacific coast and back.

Foster opened this tour at Fargo, North Dakota, in the heart of the farmer - labor stronghold, lately betrayed by LaFollette.

From there the next point on Foster's itinerary was Butte, Montana. While in Butte, he held a Workers Party conference which laid plans for complying with the necessary legal requirements to put the Workers Party on the ballot in Montana.

Officials With Trust.

In Butte the local labor officials, many of them who in the past posed as radicals, find themselves in the same boat with the Anaconda Copper company; that is, supporting democratic candidates. Butte, Montana, famous for its revolutinary movement, has in recent years had its militant ranks sadly depleted. Nothing can stand against Montana capitalism, as represented by the brutal Anaconda Copper company, but the virile, revolutionary, industrial and political program of the Workers Party.

As a result of Foster's trip to Butte, the presidential and vice-presidential candidates of the Workers Party are now on the ballot in that state. Montana's militants will have an opportunity to vote Communist.

Good Meeting at Spokane.

At Spokane, Washington, Foster had a fine meeting. Spokane was the scene of Foster's imprisonment as a socialist newspaper man in the famous I. W. W. free speech fight of 1909. Several of those at Foster's meeting recalled some interesting incidents in connection with this fight. The meeting was composed of trade unionists, I. W. W.'s and several farmers. Some old-time wobblies expressed themselves as being entirely in sympathy with the Workers Party.

At Seattle great preparations had been made for a big meeting for Foster. Seattle, among other things, is famous for its rainy season. The inhabitants pay little attention to the rain once the season is well started, but the first few days of the downpour, after the nice, warm rainless summer, has a dampening effect upon their spirits. Unfortunately, the day of Foster's meeting was the first day of the rainy season; a steady downpour lasting all that day had the effect of lessening the audience materially. In spite of this, a big and enthusiastic meeting was held at the Shrine Auditorium. Several of those in the audience approached Foster following the meeting and informed him that previous to hearing his speech, they had been supporters of LaFollette, but that after hearing his exposure of the Wisconsin republican senator they, as workers, could not support LaFollette any longer, and would be glad to vote the Communist ticket.

While in Seattle, Foster attended a membership meeting of the Workers Party. He addressed this meeting, arranged by district organizer Tallentire. A large number of new members, several well-known militants occupying foremost positions in the trade union movement, together with several well-known I. W. W.'s joined the Workers Party. As a result of these two meetings, district organizer Tallentire feels confident that the future of the Workers Party in his district is assured and that the outcome of the present election struggle will be the laying of a firm foundation for the Workers Party thruout the northwest.

At Tacoma, Wash., the Foster meeting was very successful. Many local trade unionists were present and exhibited intense interest in Foster's criticism of LaFolette. While in Tacoma, Foster accompanied by district organizer Tallentire, spoke before the Tacoma Marxian Club, as did Comrade Tallentire. As a result, most of the members of this organization joined the Workers Party. This is a distinct gain for the Party in that locality, as there is excellent revolutionary material in this club.

Finns Organize Meeting.

At Astoria, Oregon, Foster spoke to a large audience. The meeting was well-organized by the Finnish comrades. A large number of American and trade union elements were present. Altogether, it was considered the most successful meeting yet held in Astoria.

Foster's meeting at Portland, Oregon, was one of the best on the western trip. It was a very well organized meeting; an audience of one thousand paid admission and the enthusiastic spirit exhibited has had an inspiring effect on the local movement. As a result of this meeting, local comrades are filled with new determination to expose the LaFollette movement in its true light and to build up the Workers Party in the city of Portland.

At San Francisco, district organizer Dalke and the local comrades deserve credit for having, under great difficulty and against much opposition and discrimination, organized an excellent meeting for Foster. In San Francisco the LaFollette sentiment is strong; many workers look to him as a Messiah. Anarchists of forty years' standing are boosting LaFollette, tho, at the same time, shamefacedly admitting that they are turning tail on their principles in order, as they put it, "to register a protest."

Invades College Town.

The meeting at Berkeley was a big success. This meeting was originally planned for Oakland, across the bay from San Francisco, but the Oakland meeting was suppressed, the authorities would not give the auditorium. As a result the meeting had to be held in Berkeley. The state university is situated in Berkeley; in years gone by much socialist sentiment existed there. At the Foster meeting many students were present, but of course, the audience was composed overwhelmingly of workers, many workers having come from Oakland to hear Foster.

While in the San Francisco locality Foster visited San Quentin penitentiary, in order to see Mooney, Schmidt, and McNamara. Foster reports that Mooney is still the same old dogged fighter, relentless in his opposition, in spite of his long incarceration, to the capitalist system. Schmidt is the same laughing enthusiastic militant who for years kept up the spirits of many of the pessimists in the movement, and caused him to be referred to affectionately by hundreds of leading revolutionists thruout the country as "Smitty." McNamara was as calm and determined as in the first days of his confinement. The day Foster visited the penitentiary was the fourteenth anniversary of the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times. Foster was enthusiastic in his description of this splendid trio of fighters, whom the panic stricken minions of California have confined within the stone and steel of San Quentin.

Talks in Movie Land.

At Los Angeles, the home of the moving picture trust, Foster had the banner meeting of his entire trip. The meeting in Los Angeles was organized under great difficulties. Therefore, the local comrades deserve all the more credit for their splendid efforts put forth in arranging and holding an extremely successful meeting. They had been denied a large and centrally located hall and were forced to take one much smaller and badly situated. In spite of this, they packed into the hall 1200 who all paid admission. Hundreds were turned away because of the smallness of the hall. The audience simply roared their approval of Foster's speech. The Los Angeles Times had editorial hysterics because the red flag of revolution and Communist dictatorship had been so openly raised within its stronghold.

At Salt Lake City, the home of the mormons, the Foster meeting was not so successful. The labor movement is very much demoralized there because of the betrayal by the local labor officials of the farmer-labor party.

At Denver a surprisingly good meeting was held. Almost a couple of thousand people packed themselves into the small section of the auditorium. Workers of all trades and trade unionists were present in large numbers.

Congratulates Denver Comrades.

For the very reason that our party is small in Denver, it is to be congratulated on this highly successful meeting. The tremendous efforts put forth by comrades to make this a memorable meeting were well repaid. In this bloody Rockefeller domain, thousands of exploited workers are being reached with the slogan of Communism.

In all these meetings large collections were taken; many new subscribers were added to the growing list of the DAILY WORKER. Hundreds of new members joined the party. A large amount of campaign literature was sold. All told, the western trip of Foster can be considered a great success for our party.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

JAKE is writing a series of articles on our old friend the "Red Terror" for the Chicago Daily News, the most old-fashioned paper in Chicago, if not in the United States and the most stupidly managed. Even the Tribune takes a sly dig at it once in a while. Perhaps Victor Lawson, smarting under the competition of the Tribune, decided to stretch journalistic perversion to the limit. If the rest of the series is anything like the first installment, Lawson is right as well have given the money Spolansky received for his fables to one of his editorial hash-heesh addicts and ordered him to put his fantasies into a dictaphone. The result would be much more interesting than the stupid waddle of Spolansky.

SPOLANSKY was at one time secretary of a socialist party branch in Chicago. He was considered stupid in that capacity and stupidity apparently has stuck to him. He was in charge of the raid on the Communist convention at Bridgeman and was severely reprimanded by Burns for his failure to make more arrests. When the super-crook Burns was given the gate during the quiz of the department of justice, Spolansky and a great number of other rats found themselves out of work at their favorite calling. Whether Burns is taking care of his brood or not is not known to us now. But it is quite likely that he will find employment for such accomplished perverts.

EVEN the government got tired paying money for the fantastic yarns supplied by the Spolansky tribe. But a wealthy capitalist editor with the brain of a jelly fish, was taken in by the stoolpigeon, in search of easy money. Lawson is not aware that "red scares" were played out long ago. When up-to-date newspapers like the New York Times worked them to the limit, they were sold second-hand to Samuel Gompers and to the labor fakers. When the latter got thru with them, it seemed the market was exhausted. But "fathead" Lawson has more money than brains. At least that is what one of his star reporters says about him.

THE "reds," as the Communists are known, are very willing that their activities should be known to the workers of America. To accomplish that purpose they organized The DAILY WORKER. But they are not satisfied. The circulation of The DAILY WORKER should be at least one hundred thousand copies daily. Until it reaches that figure we will not feel that our propaganda is reaching wide masses. And when we reach 100,000, we will drive for a half a million. This shows how anxious we are to "expose" ourselves to the public.

WHY should the workers go to a disreputable fink like Spolansky for misinformation about the Communist movement when the Communists make financial sacrifices to tell all there is to be known about themselves, what they are doing and what they intend to do? One of the results of the latest "red" expose will be to give the present circulation drive of The DAILY WORKER big impetus. The brick-laying contest will take a new vim and our readers will hurl a "subscription brick" back at our office for every lie Spolansky tells about the Communists. It looks like a hundred thousand circulation, does it not?

NOW, comrades let the bricks fly. A large circulation for The DAILY WORKER is the best answer to the capitalists and their lying perverts.

NUTMEG STATE SENATOR ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut, who for nearly a quarter of a century has been a prominent and powerful figure in republican politics, was found dead in his home here today—a suicide.

Senator Brandegee was one of the veteran republicans of the senate, sometimes referred to as the "elder statesman" of the party.

His death at this time deprives the republicans of a little more of their "nominal control" of the senate. It is of particular interest at his time because of the possibility of the forthcoming election being thrown into congress for decision.

Secret Markings Before Board.

Secret markings will be the big question for consideration today at a joint meeting of the committee on administration and the committee on rules of the board of education at their headquarters at 650 S. Clark Street.

Miss Haley, business agent of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, will attend the meeting and take issue with superintendent McAndrew on his statement to the board some time ago, that an anonymous teacher has told him that the teachers are not against secret markings. Mr. J. Mullenbach, a member of the board of education, will call upon Mr. McAndrew to explain how he received this information.

FARRINGTON IS WIZARD WITH LEAD PENCIL

Padded Expense Bills His Specialty

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Three.)

Frank Farrington has the reputation of being handy with the pencil. Give him some pointed lead and writing paper and he will make the earnings of Henry Ford look like the weekly savings of a prison stone crusher.

Frank's noble heart almost bursts with pity for the sufferings of the poor coal diggers of Illinois who have neither work nor the prospect of work and who are living from hand to mouth, hoping against hope that a turn will come for the better some way or other.

Farrington thunders against the progressive elements in the union who are carrying on a ceaseless propaganda against his reactionary machine and who offer a platform that if followed would get the miners in the way of solving their problems.

The notorious capitalist henchman, who has grown wealthy at the expense of the rank and file thunders against the progressives for spending their own money on educational work that should be done by the district office instead of using the money to pay for junketing trips.

Talks Like Fink.

He uses the jargon of the government stool pigeons and the finks of John L. Lewis in charging the radicals in the union with getting money from Moscow. But his expense accounts have become so notorious that even the fakers in the international office at Indianapolis look on them with envy.

During the year 1913 while he was a member of the International Executive Board his expense account reached the enormous total of $4,018.25, exceeding the expenses of the International President and Vice-President.

The official figures are:

Expenses of Frank Farrington	$4,018.25
" John P. White	$2,268.42
" Frank J. Hayes	1,667.20
Total for—
White and Hayes	$3,953.63
Spent by Farington more than White and Hayes	$64.63

Expels Honest Men.

It is not surprising that the noble labor leader should like to browse in the fertile pastures of the United Mine Workers of America. It is not surprising that he should have men of the type of Duncan McDonald suspended from membership in the union, just as John L. Lewis drives out men like Alexander Howat and Tom Myerscough; men that cannot be bought with the boss's gold or the emoluments of office, in return for loyalty to the machine.

Further evidence of the squandering of funds by Farrington will be given later on in this series. The above I believe is proof sufficient that Frank has a lively imagination when it comes to figuring out his railroad and hotel bills.

Long Distance Commuter.

It might be added, however, in extenuation, that during the year in which Farrington drew the above sum for expenses that he spent part of the time in Seattle, where he had his headquarters while "handling" a strike in Vancouver. He commuted between Seattle and Springfield, Illinois, and the two districts, to be exact. This took the heavy load off his imagination, while performing the miracle on his expense account.

In Role of Strikebreaker.

If any of our readers ever entertained the thot that Farrington had the interests of the workers at heart, the story of his handling of the Vancouver strike should be sufficient to dispose of the illusion. No thuг of the coal operators ever dealt more mercilessly with his master's slaves than Farrington dealt with the striking miners in Vancouver.

From his luxurious headquarters in Seattle he rained denunciations on the heads of the men who braved the guns of the armed forces of the capitalist government. He jibed at them for getting arrested. He mocked them for their sufferings in jail. He threatened other workers who were ready to declare a sympathetic strike to help out their embattled comrades of the mines.

Shocked Hearers.

In a speech that startled and shocked seasoned trade unionists Farrington told the Nanimo, B. C. Trades and Labor Council, that they should keep their hands off the strike. The following report of Farrington's speech before the Trades and Labor Council on the last Thursday of August, 1913, taken from the Nanaimo, B. C. Free Press, puts the x-ray on Farrington's conscience:

"The delegates to the Trades and Labor Council were completely dumfounded, in fact could scarcely credit themselves at all when they listened at their meeting last night to a big, square-shouldered emphatic-looking man who outlined to them the miners' strike situation at Nanaimo and earnestly cautioned against any action by the local unions in the mine strike. The speaker was organizer Frank Farrington the representative of the United Mine Workers of America, the man who called the strike on Vancouver Island and the one to whom the great army of strikers are looking to pilot them to a successful conclusion of the fight now being waged against the mine owners of Vancouver Island.

Mocked Those Arrested.

"I do not regard the men who are now under arrest for rioting at Nanaimo as martyrs at all,' thundered Mr. Farrington in reply to caustic criticism of some of his actions by members of the council. 'I regard them as fools who had not enough of sense to keep their mouths shut.'

"Those who advocated action to aid the miners listened with bulging eyes as the speaker drove home his remarks by rapid fire gesticulations of the 'I mean what I say' kind. 'Some of these fellows think it fine to get in the limelight,' he continued. 'They are anxious to get their names in the papers and be cheered as heroes, but as a matter of fact the men behind the bars are not doing very much to help the cause.'

He Kept His Mouth Shut.

"Why he avoided arrest? 'It has been said,' the speaker continued, 'that all those who took an active part or interest in the strike have been arrested. I have not been arrested and I think I took an active part myself. I called the strike and since it has been in progress I have been the one who has directed every move that has been made. I was not arrested because I kept my mouth shut and had all the others done the same no one would be in jail now. . . .

"'Now,' the speaker declared, 'we are not anxious that you do one single thing for us. In fact we want you to leave us alone; we don't want speakers to get up at public meetings, talking about things they don't know anything about and getting us into trouble If you people call a general strike you will probably hurt yourselves without doing us a scintilla of good. All that we ask you to do is to leave us alone. . . .'

"After this browbeating speech the labor faker suggested that the workers of Vancouver might be allowed to contribute clothes and food to the strikers."

Coal Operator's Man.

The Farrington speech was a strike breaking effort. It was looked on in that light by the militant unionists of Vancouver. No agent of the mine operators paid to break up the strike could do a better job than the International Organizer for the United Mine Workers of America did.

Having proved himself of so much value to the bosses it is not surprising that he has been their "white haired boy" ever since and that the capitalist government of Illinois under the rule of the unspeakable Small, is hand and glove with Farrington in rendering the Illinois Miners Union an abortive instrument for serving the interests of the coal diggers.

The next article will trace Farrington's work in getting elected president of the Illinois Miners' Union and his violation of the union rules in endorsing Col. Frank Smith for governor of Illinois on the democratic ticket in 1916.

Morgan Floats Loan But It Will Not Put Bread in the Mouths of the Hungry

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the full power of the House of Morgan is back of the sale of the $200,000,000 worth of the seven per cent gold bonds of the "German External Loan, 1924."

The sale began on the stock exchange in New York City, a few minutes after the buying started in London. Every clever scheme known to world bankers, in Wall Street, New York, and Lombard Street, London, was brought to bear to put the loan over. For world capitalism is in a crisis. It faces new death struggles with continuously growing discontent everywhere.

• • • •

There is no doubt that the loan will be fully subscribed. Morgan has seen to that. When the stock exchange opened, Morgan announced that his books were closed, that his allotment had been oversold. Other brokerage houses had been prompted to make the same announcement.

The result was that the sale of the bonds opened at 94 3-8 cents on the dollar, instead of 2 3-8 points lower as Morgan had carefully announced.

Efforts to put the loan over were no less carefully made than the plan to rope in as many small subscribers as possible. The loan must be distributed among many small purchasers. That will make it possible to work up sentiment in favor of the collection of the loan whenever it is threatened. The German bonds were offered first to small subscribers, to Wall Street "orphans and widows," seeking amounts of $1,000 and $2,000. Subscribers for larger sums had their allotments scaled down.

In France years ago the sale of the bonds of the Russian czarist regime was scattered among well-to-do peasants in large numbers. The French imperialists have tried to use this fact in the demand made on the Soviet Republic for the payment of the czar's debts, before there can be French recognition of Soviet Russia.

Similarly, Morgan wants as many pockets to be hit as possible in order to bolster up sentiment for any possible war that might have to be waged to protect the Morgan-Dawes loan to Germany, and other loans of the House of Morgan in Europe.

It costs Germany just $14,300,000 to have its loan floated in the United States. Of this the bankers took $5,500,000 as their commission, estimating that the loan underwritten at 87 cents on the dollar, was to be sold at 92 cents. But Morgan started the loan off at 94 3-8 cents, meaning that the bankers are taking an increased rake-off. The difference between what the bankers get and the dollar is supposed to be one of the inducements for the public to buy. But the bonds are not supposed to be paid in full for 25 years. The bankers take their money now and let the public that bites on the loan worry about what is going to take place during the next quarter of a century.

The bankers are careful to see to it that if the loan is not paid—if it is repudiated by a German Soviet Republic—the investors will be the first and worst sufferers.

Reports from Germany indicate that the Morgan-Dawes plan, under which the loan is being floated, it not starting Germany on the road to industrial recovery. Business is as stagnant as ever, unemployment and short time work are increasing. In contrast with the news coming from all sections of Soviet Russia, that the annual fairs everywhere were great successes, the news from Germany is that recent fairs at Leipzig, Cologne and Frankfort were tremendous disappointments. It is announced that Germany is about to become the highest priced country in Europe, which means that the workers will be plunged into more desperate circumstances than ever. The workers are the first to be hit by high prices. In Germany labor is now caught between the scissors of high prices on the one hand, and low wages or no work on the other. It is a scissors that is closing upon the whole German working class, more and more. Germany sees no signs of relief from the Dawes plan, no indications of industrial recovery, that might temporarily relieve the situation.

• • • •

Now, more than ever, it is apparent that the only road open to the German workers is the struggle for the conquest of all power thru Soviet Rule.

The German workers will strike again for victory. In the hour of their heroic efforts to hurl not only their own capitalists, but foreign capitalists as well, from their backs, America's workers and poor farmers must stand with them, in every possible way.

World capitalism must meet its next defeat in Germany. America's workers must hail the coming victory of Germany's workers as the herald of their own triumph in this country.

• • • •

Soviet Rule in Russia repudiated the czar's debts.
Soviet Rule in Germany will repudiate the debts to Morgan and the World Bankers.
Soviet Rule in the United States will unseat Morgan's power at home and assure the victory of world labor.

TREE, WITH LEAVES DROPPING WATER, HAS THEM ALL GUESSING

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 14.—Under a cloudless sky water fell intermittently from the leaves of Evansville's mystery tree today while scientists sought an answer. Dubbed the "rain tree," because the drops resemble a light shower, the freak maple found its most plausable explanation in the theory that the "rain" is caused by sap sent up of warm weather seeping thru the stem of leaves which fell in a recent frost.

Mid-City Branch Plans to Pep Up Its Regular Meetings

The Mid-City branch, which is in the midst of a campaign to increase the attendance at its meetings, and build up a larger membership, has changed the meeting night to the first and third Thursday of every month. A series of interesting educational talks have been arranged. The branch will be addressed by prominent members of the Workers Party, and all members of the branch are expected to take part in the discussions.

Thursday, Oct. 23, Earl R. Browder will address the branch, which now meets in Emmet Memorial Hall, Taylor and Ogden Sts. Comrade Browder will talk on the educational work of the party. Each business meeting will be enlivened in the future by shop talks and industrial talks of five minutes by the members of the branch.

MAYOR OF MADISON, ILL., DOESN'T LIKE MESSAGE THE COMMUNISTS BRING

MADISON, Ill., Oct. 14. — The mayor here prohibited the meeting of Ella Reeve Bloor, to have been conducted Sunday, on the ground that "no Communist will be allowed to speak in Madison." A protest meeting will be held in Granite City on Thursday evening in the Labor Temple, at which "Mother" Bloor will speak.

The decision of the mayor also prevents a meeting scheduled for William F. Dunne, who is to speak in Madison on Oct. 19. Dunne will also speak in the Labor Temple at Granite City, which is practically the same town as Madison.

Good Crowd in O'Fallon.

O'FALLON, Ill., Oct. 14.—A large crowd turned out to the meeting of "Mother" Bloor here. A good-sized collection was taken up and much literature sold.

COLORED WAR VICTIMS ARE MISTREATED

Investigation Shows Discrimination

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Investigation by James Weldon Johnson, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, of charges made by colored war veterans in the government hospitals at Oteen, N. C., has resulted in summary dismissal of Dr. A. McAllister (white), associate medical officer of the hospital, the National Association announces.

Mr. Johnson's investigation for the association disclosed that K. K. K. agitation had resulted in a threat against one colored veteran and a petition for the removal of 29 to Tuskegee hospital; that 26 colored patients were segregated in a badly overcrowded ward; that Dr. McAllister's attitude toward colored patients was intolerable and that he let it be known he wanted to be rid of colored patients; that Dr. McAllister had forced patients to pay for signing insurance blanks contrary to government regulations and had accepted pay from colored patients in the government hospital, threatening them to keep them silent; that Dr. McAllister charged a patient for signing sick blanks and threatened the patient for reporting the matter.

The N. A. A. C. P. report and affidavits were sent to General Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau in Washington.

Spolansky's Spook Stories Begin

By C. E. RUTHENBERG.
Executive Secretary, Workers Party.

GOVERNMENT pickings for "red investigators" evidently are not what they used to be. Someone in Washington woke up to the fact that the "Red Plot" stories were forms of romancing for the purpose of milking the treasury.

But, if with the going of the chief "Red Plot" fabricator, Burns, the soft jobs of the "Red Plot" investigators have grown fewer and the pickings scantier, there still remains a fertile field of expolitation for the "Red Plot" romancers.

The newspapers are still gullible—or if they do not themselves swallow this stuff—they think that the average American reader will swallow "Red Plot" stories, bait, hook and sinker.

So we have Jacob Spolansky, whose government job of "Red Plot" romancing has petered out, now appearing as the romancer for the capitalist press.

Spolansky told the jury in the St. Joseph trial under cross-examination of Frank P. Walsh that he had once been a member of the socialist party. But he found "red romancing" for the government a more profitable occupation than such jobs as working in a lumber camp or being a cook in a restaurant.

Spolansky also testified at St. Joseph that he was born in Russia and came to the United States in 1909. One might infer further that the character of his testimony and his present writings that he considers himself the chief defender of glorious American institutions. From his articles there can be no other inference than he, Spolansky, the Russian, has saved the United States from the "Red Plotters" in Moscow.

* * * *

FACTS AND ROMANCE.

It will be interesting to throw the searchlight of fact upon Spolansky's romances as they appear.

We begin with him in November, 1918, and at the beginning we find an example of the character of his romancing. He writes about a meeting held on Armistice Day, 1918, at which the Communist plot is supposed to have begun, but the date of Armistice Day is set as the 7th of November, 1918. Of course! How could it be otherwise than that such a plot should be initiated on any other day than the anniversary of the Soviet revolution, even if history has to be wrenched about a bit and Armistice Day happens to be November 11, 1918, it is being celebrated on November 7, 1918, according to the "Red Romancer"!

In a romance, a plot must begin with a gathering of the conspirators. A romance, too, must have a villain. So we have the gathering of the conspirators on November 7, Armistice Day of 1918, with William Bross Lloyd cast in the role of the villain.

William Bross Lloyd, we are told, was chiefly responsible for the founding of the Comunist movement in the United States. Just think how dangerous his desperate "Red Plot" is since the founder and originator of the plot has long ago given up his task in carrying out all the nefarious plans with which Spolansky charges the "Red Plotters," and has retired to his estate at Winnetka to live the life of a country gentleman.

Or take the case of another of the "Red Plotters," who Mr. Spolansky saw when he crept to the door of a room in the socialist party national headquarters back there in 1918, to spy on the desperate men who were to overthrow the American government as per orders from Moscow, Dennis E. Batt. Dennis E. Batt appears as one of Spolansky's chief conspirators and his most recent role has been, we understand, to carry on a campaign in support of no less a person than President Calvin Coolidge. Maybe that's evidence of the corectness of Spolansky's spook stories showing how far reaching are the arms of the "Red Plotters" when one of the originators of the "plot" goes so far in carrying out his Machiavellian designs as to support the standard bearer of all that stands for the great American system of looting, which Spolansky is defending from the "Red Plotters."

ORIGIN OF COMMUNISM.

Let us turn from romance to reality, from "Red Plot" to social science. Did the Communist movement in the United States have its origin in a conspiratorial assembly held upon orders from Moscow, as described by our romancer Spolansky?

This conception of the origin of Communism is so utterly ridiculous that it is hard to conceive that there are still people gullible enuf to swallow it. The ideas upon which the Communist movement has been built had their origin just 70 years before the date of the event specified by romancer Spolansky. They were first stated by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels in the Communist Manifesto of 1848.

In that document appeared these words: "The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles. Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guild-master and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes."

If the acceptance of the Communist principle, that the struggle between contending classes is a struggle which is now going on in the United States between capitalists and wage workers and that in each historical period of the past this struggle has resulted in a revolutionary reconstitution of society and that this revolutionary reconstitution must come in the United States, constitutes a "Red Plot" then there has been a "Red Plot" in the United States for the past 50 years, for during all that time there have been groups of organized men and women who accepted this Communist principle.

Sometimes the clarity of the statement of this principle was obscured. It became almost entirely obscured in the socialist party, but even that organization thruout the entire period of its existence there was a struggle between the two groups, one of which aimed to completely eliminate from the policies of that party acceptance of the principles of the revolutionary class struggle against the capitalist class, and the group which said socialism could never come except as a result of a revolutionary struggle which would place the governmental powers in the hands of the working class.

The Russian revolution which established the dictatorship of the proletariat in that country was an example of this principle expressing itself in actual life. The Communist movement in the United States was a response to the Russian revolution, but not in the sense which romancers like Spolansky would try to make us believe. The Communist movement in the United States received a new impetus, a clarification of its ideas, and went forward with enthusiasm after the Russian revolution of November 7, 1917, because the principles of Communism were clarified in that, their first great victory.

Men and women in the United States who had been in the socialist movement saw the principles laid down by Karl Marx in action in the Russian revolution and this experience pointed the road for them which they must travel. Not "plotters" in Moscow, not "agents of Moscow," not "Moscow gold" made the Cmmunist movement in the United States. A great historic event, a victorious social revolution, the working out of Communist principles in practice—these brought the new knowledge, the new understanding, the courage and inspiration out of which came the Communist Party of America.

The Spolansky and the higher-up Spolanskys cannot grasp this. They do not want to grasp this because it would leave them helpless. Plots and conspiracy can be dealth with thru government spies and other instruments of oppression. A movement rising out of developing social forces, a movement which springs out of the conditions which the capitalist system itself creates, before such a movement, the Spolanskys of capitalism stand aghast.

It is such a movement which is manifesting itself in the Communist movement in this country in the Communist organization. Not a "conspiracy," not a "plot," but a great dynamic force growing out of the life and experiences of the workers which will grow in strength and power until the day of the American proletarian revolution.

The Czecho-Slovak Workers in New York City Are Waking Up

By JACK PROKOP.
Organizer, Eastern Section Czecho-Slovak Federation.

If there is any substantial proof needed of a forward movement, of a growing political consciousness of the workers in this section of the country, the Czecho-Slovak branch of the Workers Party of America is just delivering such a proof.

When the call was issued by the executive committee of the party to mobilize for an all-embracing election campaign, the Czecho-Slovak members, decided not only to cover the whole 14th assembly district with a full-sized propaganda for our national candidates for president and vice-president, William Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow. We decided to storm this sacred stronghold of the republican political machine with our local standards. The local standard bearer is an old, tried members of the Czecho-Slovak branch of the W. P., Comrade Emanuel Kreisinger, for whose candidacy (for the assembly of N. Y.) the membership collected over 1400 signatures, approximately the same amount as they collected for the national candidates Foster and Gitlow, altho only around 900 signatures were needed for the local ticket.

The comrades are simply elated over their discovery—that an apparently conservative, immobile working class is not immobile when handled in the right way, but responds to the "call to arms" most willingly. And what is more, this campaign work was the first practical Communist field work of the Czecho-Slovak branch, the success of which will be followed by an intensive educational campaign in conjunction with the United Czecho-Slovak Trades Council.

These workers are waking up.

No oil presidents, no Coolidge for them!

No Ku Kluxers for them like Charles Dawes!

No Morgan's lawyers for them like Davis!

And LaFollette, who wrecks the farmer-labor parties?

LaFollette who wants a nice, well behaved capitalism, but capitalism at any price and farmer-labor parties at no price, will have little chance here.

They signed for Foster, Gitlow and Kreisiuger.

MURDERER, PLEADING DISORDERED BRAIN, TO VOTE FOR COOLIDGE

GENEVA, Ill., Oct. 14.—While a state alienist was on the witness stand, denouncing him as a "cold-blooded murderer who used his unusual intellectual attainments to act the part of an imbecile," Warren J. Lincoln, apparently bored by the proceedings turned to newspaper men seated nearby to discuss the political situation.

"Who will you vote for for president?" one of the reporters asked.

"Coolidge," came the unhesitating reply.

INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' AID

THE DATE Has Been Set For November 7

LIKE other newspapers—a working class newspaper must receive support if it is to exist. But it will not receive it in the advertising of employers of labor whose wealth is gained from the toil of others. The employers' interests are not defended in a working class newspaper. Nor can a working class newspaper receive its support from the profits gained by appealing to every human weakness with lurid stories of sex, murder and depravity—a working class newspaper must be an educational medium. It must fearlessly tell the truth, expose corruption, fight Labor's enemies—lead the workers to a clear understanding that his is the hand and brain that is the world's motive and creative power—and his should be the world's ownership. Since only the workers' interests are defended in a working class newspaper the capitalist will not support it. The worker must—if he wants a paper defending his interests and fighting his battles.

Thousands of members of the labor movement will be unsparingly devoting their time and energy until November 7 in a campaign to support the only fearless daily champion of the workers' interest in this country. "RED NIGHTS" MAKE BIG HIT IN N. Y. CITY

Batteries of Speakers Cover Boroughs

The New York Workers Party campaign is working up to a climax with a whirlwind series of Red Nights. These Red Nights consist of a chain of 58 meetings throut the principal proletarian sections of the city with a big central meeting in each section to wind up the evening.

The Red Nights held in Williamsburg and Harlem met with startling success.

The speakers at these meetings included Ben Levy, Ludwig Lore, Sam Nessin, J. S. Poyntz, Rose Pastor Stokes, Harry M. Winitzky and Harry M. Wicks.

Thousands of workers have rallied to these gatherings. During the coming week the Red Nights will be arranged for the following places: Bronx, Friday, October 17, 138th St., corner St. Anns Ave., 138th St. corner Brook Ave., 136th St. corner Brook Ave., 149th St. corner Bergen Ave., 163rd St. corner Prospect Ave., 163rd St. corner Southern Boulevard, Washington corner Claremont Ave., McKinley Square, 152nd St. corner Wales Ave., Intervale Ave. corner Wilkins Ave., Jennings corner Wilkins Ave. The Bronx speakers will be H. M. Wicks, J. Padgur, R. Grecht, Louis A. Baum, Rose Pastor Stokes, and H. M. Winitsky.

Brownsville Meetings.

On Saturday, Oct. 18, the Red Brigade will invade Brownsville. Red Night meetings will be held at Douglas corner Pitkin Ave., St. Marks corner Saratoga, Saratoga corner Sutter Ave., Sheffield corner Sutter Ave., Stone corner Blake Ave., Hinsdale corner Sutter Ave. The speakers for these meetings will be A. Trachtenberg, F. Warshafsky, B. Lifshitz, Rose Pastor Stokes, H. M. Wicks, H. M. Winitsky. A grand wind-up meeting will be held at Stone and Pitkin Ave.

Downtown Meetings.

On Friday evening, Oct. 24, the field of operations will be the downtown section of Manhattan. Carl Brodsky, Ludwig Lore, Rose Pastor Stokes, R. Grecht, H. M. Winitzky, and Benjamin Lifshitz will be the principal speakers. Meetings will be held on Hester corner Clinton St., Norfolk corner Rivington St., Grand corner Norfolk St., Clinton corner East Broadway and at Jefferson corner Madison St., ending in one great gathering at Rutgers' Square.

East Side Meetings.

To finish up the series of Red Nights, the Communist Shock Troops of speakers will enter the former socialist stronghold—the East Side. The speakers will be Carl Brodsky, L. Lore, R. P. Stokes, R. Grecht, H. M. Winitzky and Ben Lifshitz. The following corners will be covered: Houston St. corner Second Ave., Second St. corner Second Ave., 7th St. corner Second Ave., 7th St. corner Avenue A, 5th St. corner Avenue B, 7th St. corner Avenue C, 9th St. corner Avenue C, and Houston corner Clinton St.

DECISIONS OF WORKERS PARTY CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party held a full meeting on October 10 and 11 at which the following important decisions were adopted.

Unemployment Campaign:—All party units were instructed to take up energetically and intensify the campaign against unemployment and to proceed with the organization of unemployment councils in those sections of the country where the conditions of employment has grown so serious as to justify the organization of these councils.

Reduction of Paid Party Workers:—After considering the financial report for the past two or three months the Central Executive Committee adopted a motion to direct the organization committee to make a review of the paid party workers in all departments of the party work with the view of making a material reduction in the number of paid workers employed by the party after the election campaign.

Report of the Fifth Congress of the Communist International.

After hearing the report of Comrades William F. Dunne and J. Olgin, delegates to the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, the Central Executive Committee adopted the following resolution:

Having heard the reports of our delegates to the Fifth Congress of the C. I. and having acquainted ourselves with the resolutions and decisions of the Fifth Congress, the C. E. C. of the W. P. declares:

We are in full agreement with the decisions of the congress which mark a determined and successful effort on the part of the C. I. to strictly adhere to the principles and tactics of Leninism. We hail the Fifth Congress as a definite step toward the development of Communist principles, tactics and organization.

1. We welcome the clarification of the slogan of the "Workers' and Farmers' government" as a synonym of the Dictatorship of the Proletariat. The misuse of this slogan by the opportunist right wing of the Communist International which interpreted it as meaning a fitting of the Communist parties into the bourgeois parliamentary system and as co-operation there with social democracy, has been vigorously repudiated by the congress.

2. We subscribe to the decisions of the Fifth Congress on the United Front tactics as a means of agitation and of mobilizing the masses for the revolutionary class struggle. Experiences in America with the United Front tactics fully justify stand taken by the Fifth Congress:

3. The slogan of bolshevizing the Communist Parties is especially appropriate for the Workers Party and will be carried out by the C. E. C. of the Workers Party with vigor and determination. The comparative youth of the Workers Party and its language composition particularly demand strengthening it ideologically and structurally on the basis of Leninism. The reorganization of the Workers Party on the shop nuclei basis must be relentlessly carried out. The Workers Party endorses the demand of the Fifth Congress that Communists should remain in the conservative mass trade unions for the purpose of winning them over to the policy of class struggle. The C. E. C. of the W. P. is unanimous with the C. I. in its opposition to desertion of class conscious workers from the ranks of mass unions however backward. The decision of the Fifth Congress will strengthen the determination of the American Communists to stay within the ultra-reactionary American trade unions where the fight is particularly difficult and trying.

4. The Fifth Congress has shown that the Communist International is fast growing to be one World Communist Party with a vigorous international discipline. The stand of the congress toward the anti-disciplinarian tendencies of Souvarine and Hoeglund and others will draw the ranks of Communism together the world over and will strengthen the Communist International as one Communist Party. The C. E. C. of the W. P. declares that rigid discipline, international and national, is absolutely indispensable for the organized advance guard of the international proletariat.

5. The C. E. C. of the W. P. accepts the decisions of the Communist International concerning the American problems and pledges its strongest efforts to put these decisions into operation.

a. The development of the LaFollette movement has proven the correctness of the C. I. in its stand against Third Party alliances. The W. P. is carrying on a relentless struggle against the petty bourgeois LaFollette illusion and for the class struggle of the proletariat.

b. The decision of the C. I. concerning the right wing Two and a Half International tendencies as manifested by Comrade Lore and those adhering to his point of view will considerably strengthen the efforts of the C. E. C. of the W. P. to conduct an ideological struggle against these tendencies and for the complete bolshevization of the party. The C. E. C. will instruct all party editors, propagandists and other responsible party workers to expose these tendencies and to fight against them wherever they manifest themselves.

Statement by Comrade Cannon:—In connection with the report of the Fifth Congress and the decision of the C. I. on the American question, the C. E. C. accepted a statement by Comrade Cannon.

Resolution on Comrade Cannon's Statement.

It is reported to the C. E. C. by the delegates who participated in the work of the C. I. commission on the American question that the criticism of Comrade Cannon in the statement of the C. I. was based on a report in the DAILY WORKER of a speech made by Comrade Cannon in defense of the March theses of the C. E. C.

The C. E. C. accepts the statement of Comrade Cannon that the report in the DAILY WORKER was a garbled version of his speech and gives a distorted view of his opinions. The C. E. C. accepts the statement of Comrade Cannon that a correct statement of his opinion on the point in question is contained in the following section of the March theses of the C. E. C. written by Foster, Cannon and Bittelman and which constituted the subject of his speech:

Our attitude towards the split from the old parties:—The movement for the split of the working and farming classes and the petty bourgeoisie away from the republican and democratic parties, which are dominated and controlled by big capital is creating a fundamental change in American politics. It cannot solve any of the problems of the workers and exploited farmers nor bring any relief to them. Nevertheless, this split greatly accelerates the development of the class struggle and must be supported by the Workers Party for the following reasons.

1. It represents a revolt of workers, farmers and lower layers of the owning class against the political domination of the big capitalists. It breaks the capitalist ranks and weakens their leadership over millions of workers, farmers and small business and professional elements who have hitherto followed them. It makes a successful united attack upon the workers more difficult.

2. Millions of workers and poor farmers are following this split movement away from the old parties. The split breaks the lethargy of these masses, sets them into motion and renders them highly susceptible to propaganda for a class party. The split of these working and farming masses from the capitalist parties, which they have followed up till now, if properly utilized, can be made the starting point for the development of a great class farmer-labor party.

3. It is not a matter of indifference to the Communists as to who misleads and betrays the working masses. The latter are already disillusioned about the old capitalist parties but they still look with faith to the third party movement. The betrayal of their interests by the LaFollette group, because of the greater promises it makes and the higher hopes it inspires, will have the most profound effect on the masses and will eventually force them to turn to a class party of their own and toward the leadership of the Communists.

4. This split will shatter the A. F of L. bureaucracy which stands today as the most formidable obstacle to the revolutionary development of the trade unions. The A. F. of L. bureaucracy is tied to the capitalist parties. The split from the old parties will tear loose great masses of organized workers from their allegiance to the capitalist parties and their own leaders who are agents of these parties. It will upset the balance of power in the A. F. of L. and open the door for a general development of the trade unions in all directions.

The C. E. C., and not Comrade Cannon alone, adopted this viewpoint. At no time was the question ever raised in the C. E. C. of a difference of opinion on the part of Comrade Cannon from the opinion of the C. E. C. on this point.

Wilga Case:—The C. E. C. considered the report of a sub-committee on the case of Feodor Wilga who was expelled from the Workers Party in June, 1923, and who has asked to reopen this case. The following report was adopted by the committee:

Report on the Case of Comrade Wilga

The special committee of the C. E. C. had conducted a thoro investigation of the charges against Feodor Wilga upon which he was expelled from the party in June, 1923, and from which he appealed for a re-trial. After hearing a large number of witnesses and examining all documents submitted, the special committee came to the following conclusions which have been adopted as the decision of the C. E. C.

1. Comrade Wilga was animated by a false view of his obligations to the party as a party member and a false view of the relations between the Soviet government, the Technical Aid Society and the party. This fundamental misconception led Comrade Wilga to a conflict with the party in the course of which he committed repeated and systematic violations of party discipline. These violations were fully established at the hearings of the special committee of the C. E. C. and action of the C. E. C. in expelling him from the party on this ground was fully justified under the circumstances.

2. While Comrade Wilga, in the conduct of his office as secretary of the Technical Aid Society committed a number of indiscretions in his relations with representatives of private firms from which inferences of improper conduct might be drawn, however, the committee after investigation, found no proof of any dishonest actions on his part.

3. In view of the fact that Comrade Wilga, as a justified result of his conduct, had been out of the party for more than a year, and taking into account his attitude toward the party, as manifested in his most recent actions and on his conduct before the special committee, the C. E. C. decides to reinstate him in the party on probation for the period of six months. If during that period he participates actively in the party work, observes discipline and shows the proper attitude of a party member he is then to be given full rights.

4. The special committee found that all documents considered in the first trial of Comrade Wilga were genuine and fully authenticated and repudiated any charge or suggestion that the investicating committee of the C. E. C. which conducted the first trial of Wilga resorted to improper methods.

Work Among Women:—I had intended to call the C. E. C. for a considerable time in regard to the question of policies to be carried out in conducting work among women. On this question the C. E. C. adopted the following resolution:

1. That the political work among the working class women be carried on and in the name of the Workers Party organization.

2. That the Woman's Council be transformed into the Woman's Department of the party.

3. That all new campaigns among women be started in the name of the Workers Party after the approval of the respective party units.

4. That we establish a Woman's Department in every party unit to work under the supervision of a special Woman's Sub-Committee of the C. E. C.

5. The Woman's Department shall carry out systematic United Front Campaigns with other working class women's organizations on specific concrete issues.

Party Press—The C. E. C. adopted as a statement and referred to the political committee a resolution dealing with the control of the party press, which declares for energetic action to establish more definite control over party publications by the C. E. C. so as to prevent non-Communist viewpoints from creeping into party papers both in the news and editorials and business side of the publications.

Party Convention:—The C. E. C. authorized a request to the Communist International for permission to hold an annual convention of the Workers Party sometime during the month of January. Definite decision on the question of the convention will be made at a meeting of the C. E. C. to be held immediately after the election.

RED WEEK MOBILIZATION MEETS WITH BIG RESPONSE

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT

THE decision to mobilize every Workers Party branch for a distribution of three million pieces of literature during Red Week, Oct. 26 to Nov. 2, has met with a most hearty response. More than this, it has resulted in a better understanding and development of discipline in our party.

A workers' organization that can move forward in complete unison on the basis of a decision made by the organization center, constitutes a power which will increase in direct ratio to every such united onslaught that is made against the gold-soaked imperialists.

The distribution of three million pieces of literature is not the biggest task we will ever have to perform. The work ahead of us is so tremendous and significant that a mere distribution of literature falls among the easy thing we must do. However, it is not the performance of the task that needs comment. IT IS THE MOBILIZATION OF EVERY PARTY BRANCH AND EVERY PARTY MEMBER TO PERFORM THE TASK THAT IS THE IMPORTANT POINT.

This week will tell how conscious of their membership in a Communist party our members are and how conscious of their importance as party officials are our branch secretaries.

From Chicago we already have the news that every branch was called upon to meet during the morning of October 12. From New York we have also heard. There the city committee has taken the mobilization of all branches in hand. All orders for Red Week will be sent thru the city committee to the district office and then forwarded to the national office. Many requests for additional post cards with which to call branch meetings have been received.

MANY BRANCHES MEET THIS WEEK.

Branches which for physical reasons could not meet upon October 12 are to meet this week to take part in the distribution of three million pieces of literature during Red Week. Members who have not been reached by their branch and sympathizers desiring to be part of this nation-wide action for a final literature broadside against the Coolidge and Davis pollution and the LaFollette illusion should send their fifty cents to the national office of the Workers Party today. All orders for literature must reach headquarters by Monday, Oct. 20.

For branches that are to meet this week we repeat the six points which form the basis of the election literature distribution campaign.

1. Every branch must call a special meeting of all its members before Oct. 20.
2. The only order of business shall be FULL PARTICIPATION IN RED WEEK for the distribution of three million pieces of literature.
3. Every branch member shall give fifty cents to the branch secretary for his literature unit.
4. The branch secretary will order as many literature units as have been subscribed for by the branch members and is to place the order with headquarters before Oct. 20.
5. The national office will ship the literature units ordered to destinations so that they will reach the branches by Oct. 26.
6. Every party member will take part in the distribution of three million pieces of election campaign literature during the week of Oct. 26 to Nov. 2.

The literature unit consists of the following kinds and amounts of printed matter:

100 Campaign Leaflets	10
2 Campaign Pamphlets	15
25 Campaign Stickers	5
10 DAILY WORKERS	20
137 Pieces in unit	50 Cents

EVERY PARTY MEMBER ON THE JOB. WE WANT NO LAGGARDS. WE WANT NO HESITATION. WE DESIRE A WILLING AND ANXIOUS SPIRIT IN CARRYING OUT THIS IMMENSE TASK OF DISTRIBUTING THREE MILLION PIECES OF LITERATURE DURING RED WEEK, OCTOBER 26 TO NOVEMBER 2. IT IS ONLY THIS SPIRIT THAT WILL CARRY US TO VICTORY IN THIS STRUGGLE FOR A SUPREME PROLETARIAT.

NEGRO WORKERS CHEER MINOR AT OPEN AIR MEET

Communist Hits Back-to-Africa Movement

Declaring that the problems and interests of the Negro workers were identical with those of the white workers, and that the idea of a Negro promised land and sanctuary in Africa was a vicious chimera, "Bob" Minor received an inspiring ovation from a large crowd of colored workers that gathered at the Workers Party open air meeting at 30th and State Streets.

Comrade Minor brought with him to the meeting a large map of the African continent which he put to good use in exploding the Garvey panacea of a wholesale Negro exodus to Africa.

All Workers Must Unite.

In simple, cogent terms, Minor brot home to his attentive audience the fact that Africa could only be wrested from the hands of the imperialists thru the united action of the world-wide proletariat under the leadership of the Communist International.

Minor exposed the Firestone Rubber deal by which thousands of Liberian workers, as well as tremendous natural resources will come under the control of American capital.

Roars of approval greeted Minor's rinsing declaration that Negroes must look for happiness neither in Liberia or in heaven, but right here in America. Touching on the race problem in this country, the speaker pointed out that the capitalists deliberately foment race hatred in order to put one section of the working class against the other, and thus exploit both the more easily.

In dealing with the issues of Jim Crowe schools, segregated living districts, and the many social and economic discriminations against the Negro, Comrade Minor was accorded rapt attention and frequent applause. Time and again workers in the crowd shouted agreement and approval.

Explain Role of Workers Party.

At the close of his talk, Comrade Minor dealt with the role of the Workers Party on the political and economic field—particularly its fight on the color line in the unions—and appealed to the assembled workers to join their brothers under the Communist banner in the struggle for the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of Workers' Republic.

In addition to Comrade Minor, Gordon Owens and Paul Cline spoke. Cline dealt with the problems of unemployment and war and held forth on the box till 12 o'clock with an audience that remained clear thru to the finish with undiminished interest. A the close of the meeting Comrade Cline announced the date and place of the next meeting of the South Side branch of the Workers Party and asked those who planned to attend to raise their hands. Approximately two score responded.

Distribute the DAILY WORKER.

When he had finished, Comrade Cline was surrounded by an enthusiastic group of men who insisted on shaking his hand. Many of them expressed their intention of joining the party. Five hundred copies of the Special Chicago Campaign edition were distributed.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. (Editorial Daily Worker.)

THE ABOVE "HITS THE NAIL" on the head. Nothing could be added to that. It's up to you reader, to do everything physically possible to place

CAMPAIGN IN WILLIAMSBURG IN FULL SWING

Foreign Born Workers in Election Struggle

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 14.—Never in the history of our party have we succeeded in drawing so many of the Language Federation comrades into the parliamentary campaign as the present one that we are conducting.

During this campaign we have distributed many thousands of leaflets thruout the vast territory which we are obliged to cover from the East River to Ridgewood and Brownsville, and from Greenpoint all the way over to the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The leaflets that were distributed thus far are The 10th Anniversary of the World War, The Anti-Mobilization leaflet and the Workers Party program. In these distribution campaigns, the English, Jewish, Lithuanian, German, Russian and the Jewish Young Workers' League have participated. All these branches have also participated in the drive for the securing of signatures for the nomination petitions.

Get Candidates on Ballot.

Beside securing signatures for the presidential electors and the state ticket we have also succeeded in placing quite a few local candidates on the ballot. Our local candidates are Solon De Leon in the 7th congressional district; Jeanette Pearl in the 11th senatorial district, and Samuel Nesin, in the 14th assembly district. In the 6th assembly district we have nominated Comrade Paul Scherer. This assembly district is a part of the 10th congressional and the 7th senatorial districts which are being taken care of by the Brownville section of the Workers Party; we have nominated Alexander Trachtenberg for congress and George Primoff for senator.

Eight open air meetings are being conducted thruout the section every week. The meetings being taken care of by the branches are as follows:

English branch	3
Lithuanian branch	1
Jewish branch	2
Russian branch	1
Jewish Young Workers	1

Attract the Workers.

In the course of the campaign we have developed some very good corners at which a crowd is assured and substantial collections and sales of literature are made. Some of these corners are Grand Extension and Havemeyer streets, Graham avenue and Debevoise, Beford avenue and Division St.; South 2nd and Union Ave.; So. 2nd and Havemeyer St.; Grand and Roebling and Graham avenue and Varit street.

Our popular local speakers are Ben Levy, George Primoff, Irving Potash and Sam Nesin of the English branch; Bimbo and Undjus of the Lithuanians, Gordon Kappel, Kaufman, Pearl and Oshinsky of the Jewish, and Cooper of the Russian branch. The literature sales and distribution are being taken care of by Comrade Lerner, who is in charge.

Winning the Workers.

It is generally agreed by all of us who are participating in this campaign and are coming in contact with the workers of Williamsburg, that our campaign is laying the basis for the strengthening of our organizational forces and increasing our influence among the workers in this part of the city. The latest plan for our campaign is a Red night upon which we will mobilize all our speakers and cover as many important corners as we possibly can with trucks, tin lizzies and platforms.

We are also pushing the sale of tickets for the great Foster rally that will take place at Arcadia Hall, Halsey street and Broadway, on Sunday evening, October 19.

Vote Communist This Time.

In the 20th District

JULIET STUART POYNTZ.

Candidate for congress in the 20th congressional district on the Workers Party ticket is a very active worker both in the party as well as in the general labor movement. Miss Poyntz was formerly the educational director of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and at present is the educational director of the Workers' school in New York.

RED TAG DAY FOR NEW YORK

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—New York is to hold a Red Tag Day on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 25 and 26.

This event is most unusual in the history of the Empire City. Since the world war Tag Days have been run for many purposes and generally against the interests of the workers—to help the war—or to help the interests of the peaceful penetration of American capitalists in the Near East and other foreign lands.

But never in the history of the American working class has a Tag Day been run solely in the interest of the American working class. That is to be the purpose of the Red Tag Day. The receipts of the Red Tag will be used for Red speakers, Red literature, and Red campaign in New York. This campaign, which is the only revolutionary effort being made in the local election, is a tremendous stride in the direction of opening the minds of the New York workers to the true character of the capitalist class political parties and candidates. Educationally, this campaign is a milestone in the life of the workers of New York.

"In order to raise a huge fund for this purpose the "Reds" of New York, the militants, the wide-awake class conscious workers are organizing to go out on Saturday and Sunday 25 and 26, to personally approach the workers of New York in order to give them an opportunity to contribute toward the Red campaign. Hundreds are submitting their names. Stations are being opened at party headquarters thruout the city.

The successful organization of this requires the presence of all branch secretaries who are organizing Tag Day groups at a meeting to be held in Campaign Headquarters, 210 East 12th St., on Friday evening, Oct. 10, 8:30 p. m. Where branch secretaries have not yet elected the branch organizer or some other trusted comrade must be present.

In the 12th District

HARRY M. WINITSKY.

Candidate for congress in the 12th congressional district on the Workers Party ticket has been active in the Communist movement since its inception in this country. Winitsky who is the campaign manager of the Workers Party in this state, has also served a term in prison for being the local secretary of the Communist Party in New York. When he was released from prison he became the manager of the Freiheit where he stayed until he took over the work of the present political campaign.

For the Assembly

SAMUEL NESSIN.

Candidate for assembly in the 14th assembly district Brooklyn, formerly active in socialist party before formation of left wing, member of Executive Committee of Local, Kings County, Anti-War Committee, delegate to Chicago convention in 1919. Now member of the City Executive Committee of the Workers Party and an active member of the International Jewelry Workers' Union.

For the Assembly

RUBIN SALTZMAN.

Candidate for assembly in the 6th assembly district, Manhattan, is an active member of the Jewish federation of the Workers Party and has been very active in the movement. Saltzman came to this country 11 years ago after having participated in the "Bund" in Russia for many years where he also served a term of imprisonment for his revolutionary activities. Saltzman is the present manager of the Jewish Daily Freiheit.

In the 17th District

WILLIAM W. WEINSTONE.

Candidate for assembly in the 17th assembly district. Active in the American revolutionary movement for the past 10 years. Graduate of City College of New York. Member of the socialist party before the left wing. Secretary of the Communist party in 1922-1923. Member of the Central Executive Committee. Arrested at Bridgeman. Active in local educational work and member of the District Executive Committee.

LAGUARDIA, REPUBLICAN PET OF NEW YORK SOCIALISTS, DODGES COMMUNIST CHALLENGE TO DEBATE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 14.—When LaGuardia, prize candidate of the socialists, running in Hillquit's old 20th congressional district, was challenged to debate the issues of the campaign at an open air meeting by Juliet Stuart Poyntz, the Workers Party candidate, he executed a strategic retreat.

Surrounded by the socialist strong-arm squad, LaGuardia, the arch-jingoist of the world war, was addressing an open aid meeting in front of the socialist headquarters on 106 Street. He announced that he had challenged his opponents to debate, without receiving any response. Juliet Stuart Poyntz, his opponent on the ticket of the Workers Party, was in the audience, and she immediately called out to LaGuardia asking him why he had not answered her own challenge to a debate which had been addressed to him some time ago. It was at this point that the military hero of the world war executed his strategic retreat by retiring from his own platform without meeting the challenge of the candidate of the Workers Party. La Guardia learned in the world war how to make such retreats, and he seems to be quite proficient in the art.

At this point the strong arm squad of young hoodlums hired by the socialist party, commenced to shove and otherwise mistreat the small group of Communists.

The crowd showed its dissatisfaction with the behavior of LaGuardia by leaving the socialist meeting in a body, and flocking to the platform of the Workers Party, which was standing nearby. They were eager to listen to the Communist speakers, but the socialist strong arm squad of young gangsters disturbed the Workers Party meeting by interrupting the speaker. They charged into the crowd, threatening the comrades with bodily harm. In spite of these tactics the meeting continued, and proved to be a huge success, with the sentiment of the crowd all in favor of the Communists.

In spite of the slugger methods of the socialists, evidently borrowed by them from their trade union officials, the Workers Party meetings are constantly growing in size, whereas the socialist party appears to have lost all standing with the crowds.

Party Book Store Boon to Workers in New York City

New York, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The need which every large working class community and radical center feels for a book store catering to working class needs is well filled in New York. Workers of all shades of radical political thot are showing their appreciation of such a book store by an ever increasing support and patronage.

Since the split in the socialist movement in 1919 up to very recently there had been no center from which the workers could obtain the new literature which has developed out of the social changes and new viewpoints and tendencies evolved in the past few years. With the establishment by the Workers Party of its own book store, an ever-growing circle of workers have found it a Mecca for their needs.

We refer all who read this to an advertisement of the book shop in another part of this issue of the WORKER which offers special inducements to book lovers. We wish to assure those workers who have never visited the book shop, that they will meet with a pleasant surprise in the high quality of the books as well as with the great variety and the general neatness and attractiveness of the shop. We suggest that after reading the advertisement referred to, you clip it out and pay a visit to the shop and take advantage of the offers made. We are sure you will become one of the "steady" parons of 127 University Place.

GARY READERS, ATTENTION!

Party membership meeting to discuss organization of shop nuclei, Friday, October 17, 8 p.m., at 216 W. 18th St. Arne Swabeck, district organizer, will report.

New York, New Jersey Campaign Fund Is Now Close to $5,000 Mark

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Following is the report of income for the New York and New Jersey campaign fund of the Workers Party, including Monday, Oct. 6. The total falls twenty dollars short of $5,000.00, but this mark will be left far behind in the next report, which should show a total well on toward the completion of the second half of the task, namely: "In with the dollars, and on to $10,000."

4892. Chiffon and lace are combined in this illustration. The model is good also for crepe de chine, voile and silk. The cascades on waist and drapery may be faced with a contrasting color.

This pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The width of the skirt at the foot is 1¾ yards. To make the dress as illustrated will require 2 yards of figured material for the skirt, and 4¾ yards of plain material 40 inches wide for waist and drapery for a 38-inch size. If made of one material 6¾ yards will be required. Embroidered or beaded voile or chiffon would be very pleasing for this model.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

4877. Velours, striped and other novelty cloakings, polo cloth and boliva may be used for this design. The pattern provides two styles of collar, the scarf collar and the choker collar.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10-year size requires 3½ yards of 40-inch material. For cuffs and scarf collar of contrasting material 1 yard 40 inches wide or ⅞ yard 54 inches wide, will be required, cut crosswise.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

We Have With Us Again . . .

A "red scare" may be down but it is never out. Of course, there are red scares which are neither down and out. There is a big red scare in Russia which is scaring the wits out of the plundering capitalists of the world.

There is a red scare in Germany. It hangs like a Damocles sword over the necks of the frightened Teutonic bourgeoisie.

There is a sizable red scare in China. The capitalist pirates are scampering around in all directions wondering what has hit them.

There are red scares in Italy, Bulgaria, Spain and in other countries. In other words, the political power of capitalism in those countries hangs by a slender thread and the proletariat is developing the will to power.

Here in America the capitalists are yet strong and the great masses of workers are suffering from the illusion that their problems can be solved by reforming capitalism and rather than take on the job of solving their own problems by giving the capitalists the tip of the proletarian boot, they rely on fossilized political jockeys like LaFollette to dope them with promises.

But even in the United States the red nightmare haunts the couch of the capitalist class. While they are yet strong they know that the onward march of the world revolution will not skip America. Tho the masses in this country are now indulging in a political debauch as the paying guests of LaFollette, our rulers know that the morning after will bring cooler heads and the conditions of life will force the workers to turn to Communism as their only salvation.

Therefore we have periodical "red scares." It is true that the so-called exposures are ninety-nine per cent lies. But that there is a market for the wares of the stoolpigeons shows how deep is the capitalist dread of the inevitable awakening of the labor giant.

Thus Jakey Spolansky, unemployed government fink, can get good American dollars for a series of imaginary tales about the "Red Terror" in the Chicago Daily News. If the editor of the News is satisfied, the feeling should be unanimous. No doubt Jakey got the money—it is safer than working as a prohibition agent and holding up sacramental wine stores with the possibility of detection and a jail sentence. The Communists are not bothered seriously—it gives them publicity of a sort. It calls attention to them and The DAILY WORKER is here to give the right kind of publicity.

Life being such as is it, a good "red scare" served up by an artistic liar would make better reading than one of the Calvin Coolidge's speeches. But Spolansky is a great disappointment. His stuff is very stale.

The Supreme Court Once More

The United States supreme court is back on the job. No sooner does it get back on the job than it strikes a blow at the workers of the whole country.

This time it is the railway workers that have been singled out for the assault by the highest oracle of the employing class. The holy synod of capitalist bishops has decided to uphold the conviction of workingmen formerly employed on the Santa Fe railroad and charged with conspiracy to obstruct the mails and interference with interstate commerce. The case grew out of the shopmen's strike in 1922 and the difficulties arising in this dispute on the California-Arizona border.

Two years after a struggle waged by the workingmen in behalf of their right to organize and against unspeakable conditions of employment the supreme court finds it necessary to punish railway men. There is only one crime the workingmen are guilty of in the eyes of the supreme court. It is a crime against the bosses. In the eyes of the capitalist judges the worst crime that can be committed is the fighting against exploitation.

Everyone knows that the charges against the railway men were unfounded. Everyone knows that the Santa Fe workers were especially singled out for assault during the shopmen's strike because of the heroic struggle they put up against overwhelming odds. Everyone knows that the outrages attributed to the Santa Fe workers were perpetrated by the gunmen and detectives hired by the corporation in order to secure a legal pretense for a vicious assault by the government against the strikers. We recall the tale of marooned passengers suffering in the desert. We recall that even the hard-boiled Santa Fe was compelled to repudiate many of these fandulent stories.

The Santa Fe decision comes at a time when the workers are called upon to vote another indorsement of the whole capitalist system and its judicial oligarchy. Mr. John W. Davis now asking the workers to vote for him as the democratic presidential candidate was, until the election campaign, one of the stockholders of this strikebreaking road. As soon as he is ignominiously defeated in the election contest he will go back to this directorship. Among the owners of the Santa Fe are many financiers and industrialists who are today backing the Coolidge campaign.

The supreme court is the chief defender of the employing class in the United States. When the supreme court speaks it speaks for the ruling class as a whole. This attack on the workers ought to be answered by the working class as a whole.

Gompers Prepares for "Victory"

Samuel Gompers is preparing for "victory" at the polls. Mr. Gompers is preparing for a victory for his policy of non-partisan political action, for his policy of "reward your friends and punish your enemies."

Mr. Gompers has announced that he expects the election of at least 250 "friends" of labor to be chosen as congressmen in the November elections. In the last elections Mr. Gompers boasts of having sent to the house of representatives 170 "friends." This year the outlook for such "success" is much better. Consequently Mr. Gompers is certain that he will be right in his prophecies.

Granting the accuracy of Mr. Gompers as a prophet and political seer, one fails to see where the workers and poor farmers of this country will be in a position to claim a victory or have cause for jubilation. The men who will be elected as champions of the workers will not be representatives of the workers, but republicans and democrats who happened to have received the indorsement of certain officials of the trade union movement. They will not be elected as spokesmen of the workers and poor farmers but as so-called good men, honest men who are at the same time regular republicans and hundred per cent democrats.

In the last congress there were 170 such worthies who received the indorsement of Mr. Gompers. This is an auspicious number. If this were a criterion of the conscious political strength of the working masses it would certainly indicate considerable progress by our working class towards independent class political action along national lines. But it is nothing of the sort. These self-styled friends of labor were pliant tools of the big business interests of the country. The best proof of their not being defenders of the workingmen is to be found in the record of this congregation of fraudulent friends.

The last congressional session in which there were so many Gompers "friends" of labor did nothing in the way of enacting measures to enhance the welfare and interests of the working masses. The vicious railway labor board, the Esch-Cummins Act, agricultural relief, and many other pressing problems confronting the workers and poor farmers were deliberately evaded by the last session. In short the Gompers "friends" of labor have been everything but spokesmen for and defenders of the interests of the workers.

The "victory" Mr. Gompers is preparing to celebrate is no victory for the working class.

The Reward of Ability

One of the loudest wails raised by the defenders of capitalism when the sanctity of the profit system is challenged, is over the integrity of individual incentive. The spokesmen for the ruling class would have us believe that once the means of production and exchange socially used are socially owned and controlled, that once the private ownership for profits is abolished there will be an end to the incentive of the individual for achievement.

These champions of the capitalist system as a rule tend to cite the case of the inventor or the scientist. They would have the world believe that under a Communist system of society these men would be denied the fruits of their labor. This contention is based on a wholly gratuitous assumption. There is nothing further from the truth than the notion being spread that individual ability is the basis of capitalist reward. We have a particular case in mind. This case is typical of the countless instances where men of ability, men of science and training have been crushed by poverty, by a denial of the fruits of their socially highly constructive labor.

Mr. Edgar Lucien Larkin, a noted astronomer and writer on scientific subjects, has just died. Mr. Larkin was widely known as the director of the famous Mount Lowe observatory. At the time of his death Larkin was virtually penniless. A lifetime of scientific toil did not enable him to have even enough to pay his last hospital bill.

The paths of capitalist progress are strewn with many Lucien Larkins. For the mass of workers, for the great mass of steel workingmen, coal miners, railway hands, garment workers, and other laborers capitalism holds neither hope nor opportunity. Capitalism lives on crushing the individual incentive of the vast masses of the population who are turned into automatons of the gigantic profit machinery. What hope, what incentive can the average employe of the United States Steel corporation or the Standard Oil have? The age of the overall to the presidency has gone, if it ever was such as at all under capitalism.

There is only one system that holds out any hope for the abilities and incentive of the great masses of the country. This system is one which will be based on the socialization of the collectively used means of production and exchange. This system is one which will make it impossible for a few to live on the exploitation of the many. This system is Communism where the working masses will own the agencies and means of production and exchange and not pay tribute to a parasitic class.

LaFollette—Bitter Enemy of Immigration

By ALEXANDER TRACHTENBERG.
Workers Party candidate for Congress 10th New York District.

THE socialists and liberals who publicly proclaimed their opposition to restricted immigration are giving the LaFollette stand on immigration the silent treatment. Hoping for votes for their "progressive" presidential candidate from the foreign-born elements, the supposed advocates of free immigration have kept from the public the record of senator LaFollette on immigration legislation.

When senator LaFollette was recently referred to by a well-known Jewish leader as an opponent of free immigration, the socialist foreign-language press "proved" that their newly-acquired leader could not be classed as an enemy of immigration, since on account of illness, he wasn't even present at the senate session when the last immigration bill was voted upon.

It is true that LaFollette was absent during the voting on the last immigration measure last April. But LaFollette has been a senator for about twenty years, and restrictive immigration legislation was a great public issue since 1897, when president Cleveland vetoed an immigration bill containing a literacy test provision.

What are the facts about LaFollette's stand on immigration legislation during his career in the U. S. senate? What was the official record of the "radical" senator from Wisconsin whenever this important issue came before the senate? Not only the foreign-born, but progressive workers in general, want to know how senator LaFollette voted every time the reactionary immigration laws came up for action in the senate.

The following is a review of senator LaFollette's official part in the vicious and oppressive immigration legislation during the past ten years.

1913—LaFollette Votes For the Literacy Test.

On Feb. 1, 1913, the Burnett-Dillingham Immigration Bill, providing for a literacy test for all incoming immigrants passed the senate, and was sent to president Taft for approval on the eve of his retirement from office. On account of public agitation which the measure had awakened, president Taft was forced to grant a public hearing in the White House. Representatives of Jewish, Italian, Irish, German, Polish, Hungarian, and other organizations, as well as delegates from progressive labor unions, attended the hearing, attacked the proposed immigration law, and importuned the president to veto the iniquitous measure. Impressed by the opposition to the proposed law, and upon advice of the secretary of commerce and labor Nagel, president Taft vetoed the bill on Feb. 14. On Feb. 18, the senate passed the bill over the veto of the president, by 72 to 18 votes, and senator LaFollette voted to override the veto of the president, so that the Burnett-Dillingham bill providing for the literacy test would become a law.

While the senate, with the aid of LaFollette voted 4 to 1 for the measure, the bill failed to become a law because the foes of immigration could not muster the necessary two-thirds majority in the house of representatives, to override the veto of the president. In voting for restricted immigration in 1913, senator LaFollette joined such reactionaries as senator Lodge, who declared in the senate that the immigration bill was "a necessary defense of American citizenship."

1915—LaFollette Absent With Excuse.

The Burnett-Dillingham Immigration bill was resurrected in congress in 1914. The senate again passed the bill, but president Wilson vetoed the measure on Jan. 28, 1915. As in 1913, the senate passed the bill over the veto of the president, by a vote of fifty to seven, but the measure was bill failed to get the necessary two-thirds majority in the house by four votes, and therefore, failed to become a law. Senator LaFollette was not present when the measure came up for a vote in the senate on Jan. 2, 1915. LaFollette's friends who praise him for his stand on immigration, declare that LaFollette was absent from the session on account of death in the family, and must, therefore, be excused for failing to register his vote for the notorious Burnett-Dillingham bill.

1916 and 1917 — LaFollette Voted Twice for Literacy Test Law.

The literacy test laws, having failed of enactment because of vetoes by presidents Taft and Wilson, came before congress again in 1916. The senate passed a bill by a vote of 64 to 7, and senator LaFollette was among those who voted for the measure to require of every prospective immigrant a literacy test.

President Wilson vetoed for the second time the proposed law on Jan. 28, 1917. When it came before the senate for passage over the president's veto, 19 senators voted to sustain president Wilson, while 62 voted for the bill. Senator LaFollette was one of the 62, and with him were the other stalwart "progressives" and allies—senators Borah of Idaho; Norris of Nebraska; and Kenyon of Iowa.

Thanks to senator LaFollette and his "progressive" colleagues, the literacy test provision was written into the immigration law after a struggle of twenty years of foreign-born and progressive organizations to defeat this reactionary measure. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and other progressive unions in the American Federation of Labor, sent representatives to Washington to fight the measure every time it came before congress or the president. Presidents Cleveland, Taft, and Wilson (twice) have vetoed the measure because of general opposition, but the reactionary leadership of the A. F. of L. aided by LaFollette and his friends in the senate succeeded in passing the literacy test law, which became effective May 1, 1917.

In 1916, the socialist party sent Charles Edward Russell to argue before president Wilson against the measure, and congressman London voted against the bill in the house. The socialist party and former congressman London are now supporting this reactionary, the foe of immigration, the man who voted for a measure which the socialists then declared was reactionary and inhuman.

Further Restriction of Immigration.

Having successfully inaugurated the principle of legislation for restricted immigration, Samuel Gompers and his reactionary friends in congress continued to work for further restrictive measures. The same day the literacy test law was passed over the veto of president Wilson, in 1917, Senator Gardner of Massachusetts introduced a bill limiting the number of immigrants to 200,000 in one year. The introduction of this measure marked the beginning of a campaign for further restricted immigration, which culminated in the infamous immigrant quota legislation.

1921—LaFollette Votes for Vicious Quota Law.

An attempt was first made in 1921 by congressman Johnson, to bar all immigrants for 14 months. The measure which was passed however, provided for a 3 per cent quota, based upon the 1910 census. This quota would allow 355,461 immigrants to enter this country in one year. The senate committee recommended that the quota should be 5 per cent, but the senate changed it to 3 per cent. The law was to be in force for one year—till June 30, 1922.

The senate passed the first immigrant quota law on May 3, 1921, by a vote of 78 to 1, and senator LaFollette was not the one who voted against the measure. The sole opponent of restricted immigration was senator Reed of Missouri. Senator LaFollette voted for the quota law, as did the other "progressive" senators, Norris of Nebraska, Ladd of North Dakota, Walsh of Montana, Johnson of California, some of whom are supporting senator LaFollette in the present campaign.

As on previous occasions representatives of progressive labor unions in Washington to plead against the enactment of the quota legislation, but the congressmen and senators, reactionary and so-called progressives alike, voted for the oppressive immigration regulations. President Harding approved the 3 per cent quota bill on May 19, 1921.

1922—LaFollette Votes to Extend 3 Per Cent Law.

Since the 3 per cent law was to be in force only one year, hope was entertained that the law would not be reenacted. A great deal of agitation was carried on against the law, and the dreadful experiences with the operations were used to prove the cruelty of the quota legislation. But the house of representatives voted to extend the operation of the law for another year.

The senate, with senator LaFollette present, voted without a rollcall to extend the law for two years, instead of for one year, as the house provided, that is, to June 30, 1924, and president Harding approved the extension of the law on May 11, 1922.

Senator LaFollette again showed his consistent support of reactionary immigration legislation for which he first voted in 1913. The Wisconsin senator, reputed "champion of the poor people," voted for the extension of the 3 per cent quota law for two years, notwithstanding the tremendous opposition of progressive labor organizations to this reactionary and cruel measure.

1924—LaFollette Absent; But His Friends Are There.

As tho the 3 per cent quota law was not reactionary enough, the anti-immigration lobby in congress worked to make the law still more severe, and the "progressives" in congress helped to reduce still further the actual quota of immigrants to "free" America. The immigration bitter-enders proposed that the quota be cut in half—that is, instead of allowing about 350,000 immigrants a year, only 160,000 should be permitted to land here. The law was changed to provide for 2 per cent quota based on the 1890 census. It was particularly directed against the Jewish, Italian and Slavic immigrants.

Senator LaFollette was not present when the vote was taken in the senate on April 18, 1924, on the 2 per cent law. He was ill at the time, but is there reason to believe that he would have voted against this measure had he been present in the senate?

The record of senator LaFollette on previous and similar occasions, revealed above, proves that the Wisconsin senator would have voted "yes" on this bill as he did on every other occasion when he was present and reactionary immigration laws were before the senate for consideration.

An additional proof that senator LaFollette would have heartily supported the 2 per cent quota law which passed the senate by 62 to 6 votes, is that the entire galaxy of "progressive" senators, LaFollette's comrades in arms, the "friends of the people," Brookhart of Iowa, Norris of Nebraska, Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Dill of Washington, Walsh of Montana, and even the "arch-labor" senators of Minnesota, Shipstead and Johnson, voted for this measure.

Obedient to the injunction of president Coolidge, who in his message to congress on Dec. 6, 1923, declared as follows on the question of immigration: "America must be American. For this purpose it is necessary to continue the policy of restricted immigration," the "progressive" senators voted to keep out those, who, because of economic necessity, want to come to live with their relatives in this country. The "humane" and "democratic" American senators from the "progressive" west voted as one for a law which is breaking up families of immigrants, and which unfolds hardships on all those who seek admission to this country.

The iniquities of the American immigration policy can be compared only to those of the Spanish inquisition, and senator LaFollette has given the whole-hearted support to this policy. As a legislator he has helped to make this barbaric law, and as such he stands convicted as an enemy, not of the rich travelers, but of the poor people who seek entrance to this country as immigrants.

The relatives and friends of these poor immigrants who live a tragic existence in the various European ports awaiting their quota allowances, and progressive workers in general should stamp senator LaFollette as a bitter enemy of immigration, and as an enemy of the poor people.

The socialist party, the foreign-language socialist newspapers, and the reactionary leaders of labor organizations with large foreign memberships, who now support LaFollette in his ambition to become president of the United States, have betrayed the foreign-born workers they claim to represent, and in their hearts betrayed the principles of international solidarity, which requires of every progressive worker to support the free and unhindered admission of workers who come to this country because of economic necessity.

The progressive workers of this country will repudiate the consistent foe of immigration, LaFollette, and will denounce those who support him. A vote for LaFollette will not only be a vote for capitalism, but also a vote for the barbaric immigration laws, which LaFollette helped to enact.

The progressive workers will vote for the only party which stands for free immigration, the Workers Party, and its presidential candidate, William Z. Foster, and Ben Gitlow, as well as all the other local candidates of the Workers Party in the various parts of this country.

Mass Revolt in the I. L. G. W. U.

By A. SIMON.

The struggle of the rank and file of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union against the small band of unscrupulous officials has again taken on a mass character.

Again the thousands of workers who have bled for the organization, have come out in open revolt against the ruinous tactics of those in power, who have converted this once powerful organization into an instrument for their personal advancement.

On Saturday, October 11, thousands of cloak and dressmakers marched in masses to Cooper Union and Stuyvesant Casino. At the call of the needle trades section, Trades Union Educational League, these working men and women gathered to give expression to their determined opposition to the tactics of the corrupt machine, which has again, in gross violation of the most elementary principles of unionism, decided to impose new financial burdens on the workers of the industry.

A Real Mass Protest.

This mass of workers, urged on by their common misery and provocation, came to voice their protest against the unwarranted increase in dues imposed upon them against their will, and to begin anew their determined struggle against the demoralization in the union, which is causing it to abandon positions gained thru years of hard struggle and sacrifice.

What is the significance of this great demonstration, arranged under the auspices of an organization outlawed by the officials of that union?

Four months ago the convention of the International met. Four months ago the leaders had congratulated themselves upon their successful fight against the T. U. E. L. Ten days of the convention were spent in unseating the left wing delegates. Has this fight in any way helped to increase the confidence of the rank and file in the leadership?

Saturday's demonstration is the answer. Why did thousands of workers respond to the call of the T. U. E. L. Beside fighting the left wing, the convention of the international adopted two other decisions. One calling for a general strike in the cloak industry to enforce the demands decided upon by the membership; the other to increase the per capita tax five cents per member.

Open Betrayal.

Immediately after the convention, the officials of the International entered into negotiations with the employers. These very same leaders who have shown themselves in full fighting array against the left wing opposition in the union were very meek in their attitude towards the employers.

In a most cowardly manner, without consulting the membership, they placed the fate of fifty thousand cloakmakers in the hands of a committee of bankers and Tammany Hall politicians. On their own responsibility they accepted an agreement conceding to the employers the most vital demands of the workers.

The stoppage staged in the cloak industry drained a half million out of the treasury of the union, but resulted in no improvement in the conditions of the workers who are today subjected to the same outbreast competition; the same long periods of unemployment, miserable earnings, and the same bitter exploitation.

Greedy Officialdom.

The cloakmakers had no choice in the matter. They were simply regarded as sheep who were to be sheared for the ease and comfort of the officials and their supporters.

It was in this spirit that the one constructive decision of the convention was carried thru. Not so with the increase in dues. The five cents increase decided upon by the convention did not suffice. The herd of machine hangers-on must have their toll. The "loyal" supporters must be rewarded with jobs and fat salaries. Hence the cloak and dress makers must pay increased dues.

The recommendation for an increase of fifteen cents, coming after a colossal defeat in the cloak industry, outrages even the most backward workers. The recommendation met with overwhelming defeat even in locals that had been under the control of the machine, but no matter, the officials are armed with a constitution which gives them the legal right to openly defy the expressed wishes of the membership.

The cloak and dress makers must pay fifty cents a week dues instead of thirty-five because this is the will of the arch-believers in democracy—Feinberg and company.

Workers Answer Officials.

Saturday's demonstration was the answer to the outrages committed against the members of the union. It was spoken in clear and unmistakable terms. It was a reminder to those who in their lust for power have lost sight of the great elemental force that lies in a mass of discontented workers and a reminder that the day of reckoning was near.

It was a most inspiring sight to see this mass of plain men and women respond most generously to the appeal for a collection to carry on the fight.

These workers who seemingly came because of their unwillingness to pay fifteen cents, gave dollar bills amounting to seven hundred dollars and pledged their fullest support to make the demonstration in Madison Square Garden a huge success.

The high-salaried officials of the international no longer sense the spirit and sentiment of the workers. They are blind to the burning indignation in the hearts of the workers who have thru years of struggle developed a flaming spirit of independence.

The leaders of the international had attempted to allay the basic discontent of the workers by means of expulsion and persecutions. All they accomplished was to increase the hot hatred of the workers for the parasites that are preying on them.

Cooper Union opened a new chapter in the struggle of the rank and file against the bureaucracy. The workers may suffer many a wound at the hands of the officials, but anyone who has seen these men and women clamoring for admission into the jammed halls, anyone who has still seen their glowing eyes and sensed their fighting spirit, will not despair of the outcome of this momentous struggle.

Knit Goods Workers Get Charter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Amalgamated Knit Goods Workers' Union has been granted a charter by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Julius Goldstein is the organizer of the knit goods workers. He is quoted as saying that 2000 workers are organized in the trade out of a possible 20,000 in New York, Bronx and Brooklyn. Conditions are variegated bad. Sixty hours work per week in some shops and no standard of wages.

SHOW "RED" BAITER IS PLAIN LIAR

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Rev. Norman Thomas, orphan socialist candidate for governor of New York state, and Morris Hillquit, the Moses of the American socialists (he is leading them out of Egypt) sent messages of greeting to Ramsay MacDonald and expressed the hope that the British labor party would be allowed to run His Majesty's Empire after the coming general elections. Thomas likened MacDonald to LaFollette, which is just about what we have been saying right along. The fact that a yellow socialist happens to agree with us for once does not necessarily mean that we should change our opinions, that it makes one feel uncomfortable.

BOTH messages are worthy of a place in the record. Thomas said: "American labor and American progressive movement sends best wishes for triumphant return to power of the British labor party in the coming election." We hope to duplicate British labor's wonderful achievement by the election of LaFollette to the presidency and the creation of a powerful American labor party."

HILLQUIT is a little more to the "left" than the preacher. Morris mentions "socialism." This is what he cabled: "Socialists of the United States send congratulations upon the determined and dignified stand of the British labor government against the petty attack of its combined reactionary opponents. The forces of labor, socialism and progress on both sides of the Atlantic are now engaged in a simultaneous campaign for the rights of the people—social justice and world peace. May both be equally triumphant."

SO the aims of American socialism are whittled down to "social justice and world peace." Unless we are mistaken, this is the program of the League of Nations! Who is not for world peace? Why, even Calvin Coolidge swears by it. But in view of the conduct of the British socialist government during its term of office, toward the subject peoples of His Majesty, in India, Egypt and now in Turkey, the subject people of Morgan and Rockefeller in the Philippines, Porto Rico, Cuba, Hawaii and other American colonies, cannot get much comfort out of the prospect of exchanging Calvin Coolidge for LaFollette, provided there is such a striking similarity between the LaFollette movement and the British labor party.

NORMAN Thomas is a nauseating hypocrite. He is not such an ignoramus that he is not aware of the crimes committed by Ramsay MacDonald against the people of India, for whom Thomas and his paymasters of the open shop mine, Villard, profess to have so much admiration. Only yesterday we read in the papers that J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary in MacDonald's cabinet, delivered a jingo speech against the Turks, that even Curzon would hesitate to make. Thomas warned the "foreigner," who happened in this instance to be the Turk, that the labor party would fight for the preservation of the empire's prestige, against all comers.

HE warned the Turks to quit their tomfoolery. Yet the only crime committed by the Turks is that they insist the oil lands Britain holds with her armed forces is Turkish territory and suggest that the matter be left to arbitration. Thomas waves his sword like a regular defender of the "predatory interests" that Norman Thomas, Hillquit and LaFollette are fighting against here. Of course, it is needless to say that the LaFollette leaders are not fighting the "predatory interests." What they are really after is an opportunity to serve capitalism, and they feel they can do a better job of it and give the system better service than the capitalist hacks now on the job in the legislatures. It is refreshing to learn from such excellent authorities as Hillquit and Thomas, that His Majesty's "labor" governorment and the LaFollette would-be American government are as alike as two peas.

FARRINGTON IS CAUGHT SELLING VOTES TO "DEM"

Charges Union With Expenses of Deal

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Four.)

Frank Farrington is very meticulous about the observance of the union rules by radical members of the rank and file. But he is not so particular about violating the union law when it suits his own plans and his own pocket.

A strong light was thrown on Farrington's mental attitude at the last convention of the miners' union held in Indianapolis. Nick Perkovitz, a coal miner from Dowel, Illinois, was elected by the rank and file of his local to represent them at the convention. But the credentials committee seated his opponent, a lackey of Farrington's, who was not elected and who came to Indianapolis, confident that the Farrington-Lewis machine would ditch Perkovitz.

Radical Won for Once.

Nick took the issue to the floor of the convention however and he was seated by an almost unanimous vote. It developed that Perkovitz is a radical with a holy hatred of the bosses. This attitude towards his masters did not make his association with the coal operators' mine managers any too pleasant for him. His insistence on working strictly in accord with the wage contracts between the bosses and the miners got him into hot water on more than one occasion, and thru collaboration with Farrington's machine the bosses had Perkovitz fired twice and practically blacklisted.

Nick Given Clean Bill.

Because Perkovitz was not working "in or around a mine" when he was elected to the Indianapolis convention, the Farrington machine sought to have him barred as a delegate. But the delegates were not as much in

MORGAN'S BIG BLIMP ARRIVES FROM DAWESLAND

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The flying time of the ZR-3 from its hangar in Friedrichshafen, Germany, to the coast of North America, was approximately 75 hours.

The dirigible hopped off at 6:36 a. m., at Friedrichshafen which would be 12:36 Eastern standard time in the United States. It was 3:50 a. m. today when she soared over North Turo, a little town tucked on Cape Cod.

It took the ZR-3, forty-two minutes to make a landing after she was sighted at 9:17. After repeatedly circling the field, she finally turned her nose south and went over a dense grove of trees to a distance of about half a mile from the field. Then she turned back and headed slowly for the center of the field, and suddenly all her motors ceased humming. She appeared to stand poised in the air. Then she slowly descended, touching the ground at exactly 9:55.

Year-Old Baby Drowns.

CLINTON, Ind., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Samuel Vorak was near prostration today as the result of the death of her year-old son, Thomas Robert, whose body was found hanging over the edge of a large bucket of water in which the baby's head was submerged.

POLICE SPY SHOWS WHAT HE DOES NOT KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM

By C. E. RUTHENBERG
Executive Secretary, Workers Party

THE above would have been the best title for the second of the series of anti-Red articles which are being published in the capitalist press by the former government spy, Jacob Spolansky.

If Spolansky learned so little about the Communist movement, as is indicated in this article, during his six years of spying for the federal government then indeed the government wasted its money.

Spolansky tells us that the Communist movement gained its impetus in the formation of the left wing of the St. Louis convention of the socialist party in 1917 and Debs and Berger were the leaders of this left wing!

At least the spy Spolansky will make Victor Berger snort. He, the leader of the left wing at St. Louis! Victor Berger, who was bitterly opposed to the anti-war resolution forced thru the St. Louis convention by the left wing, and only accepted the resolution when he saw there was no hope of beating it, has been raised to the position of the leadership of a movement he opposed.

What Happened at St. Louis.

In view of the putting over of the Dawes' plan by the American capitalists, thus preparing the ground for a new imperialist war into which this country will inevitably be drawn, it is worth while to recall what happened at the St. Louis convention of the socialist party about which spy Spolansky makes such a ridiculous blunder.

The left wing socialists in the St. Louis convention stood upon the Communist principle that the workers should refuse to fight in the imperialist war of the capitalists. The American capitalists were forcing us into the world war in order to protect their profits and investments. The left wing socialists at St. Louis said: "We will carry on a consistent and persistent opposition to this war. We will oppose with all our strength conscription laws which make us fight for the capitalists' profits. If we can mobilize enough power, if we can draw into the struggle with us great masses of workers, we will turn the fight against the war into a struggle against the government of the capitalists which forces us into the war and drive it from power and establish a workers' government."

That was the left wing socialist position adopted at St. Louis. That is the Communist position today in regard to imperialist wars. When the next imperialist war for which the Dawes' plan has prepared the ground, develops, it will be the Communist task to rally the working masses of this country against such a war. They will urge the workers to answer the new demand that they give their lives to help Morgan get his profits by ending the system of government and industry which creates imperialist wars.

But Victor Berger, as the leader, why, by that time Victor Berger will have joined his comrade, Noske, of the German social democratic party, as one of the chief defenders of capitalism!

From or to Russia.

Spy Spolansky draws a vivid picture of the flow of Russian propagandists into the United States. If he were really up in the spying business he would know that in place of Russian Communists coming to the United States, that the flow is in the other direction. Russian workers, many of them Communists, are shaking the dust of the United States from their feet.

These workers have had their experience with glorious American institutions. They have found that American democracy is a fraud and a sham. They found that under this boasted democracy there was a spy system and police terrorism which could outdo even czarist Russia. Spy Spolansky and his like have taught them what a sham and a fraud American democracy is when workers attempted to express their ideas on the assumption that there was such a thing as freedom of speech, freedom of press or freedom of assembly. The capitalist czars who run American industry taught them that they could only work when the capitalist czars

FOSTER SPEAKS IN NEW YORK AT TWO MEETINGS

Put More Speed Into Aggressive Campaign

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The two mass meetings to be addressed by William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, in New York and Brooklyn, on Sunday, Oct. 19, will be the biggest events in the agressive Communist campaign being conducted here by the Workers Party.

Foster will speak at the New Star Casino, 107th St. and Park Ave., at 2 p. m., and the New York comrades are expecting a large overflow meeting.

Invades New York State.

Foster has just commenced a tour of the principal cities of the East. The Communist presidential candidate held an enormous meeting in Detroit, Tuesday night, in the House of the Masses, and was to speak in Toledo last night.

After conducting campaign meetings in Cleveland and Rochester, Foster will come to New York for his two Sunday meetings.

Sunday night, at 8 p. m., Foster speaks at Arcadia Hall, Brooklyn. The famous Freiheit chorus, under the leadership of Lazar Wiener, will sing, as will the Lithuanian Aido chorus. The branch that has secured the most subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER will receive a special red banner. Foster will make the presentation.

Big Musical Program.

At the Sunday afternoon meeting in the New Star Casino Comrades Juliet Stuart Poyntz, William E. Weinstone and Charles Krumbein will speak in addition to Foster. A splendid musical program has also been arranged.

M'ANDREWS RUNS FROM FIGHT ON SCHOOL TEACHERS

William McAndrew, superintendent of Chicago's schools, failed to appear at a joint meeting of the committee on rules and of the committee on administration yesterday, at which a discussion was to take place on the question of abolishing the system of secretly marking the examination papers of teachers.

Demand McAndrew Appear.

Margaret Haley, business agent of the Teachers' Federation, which has been leading the fight against the secret marking system, had been granted permission by the board to present her case and to question the superintendent about statements and reports which he has made and which are unfavorable to the rank and file teachers.

Miss Haley told the committee that she refused to take the matter up until Superintendent McAndrew, who

BRITISH BLACK SHIRTS REACH 100,000 FIGURE

Armed Reactionaries to Crush Labor

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

LONDON, Oct. 15.—British Fascisti numbering 100,000 under the presidency of Brigadier General Blakeny, appeared today as a new factor in the British elections.

Tho the Fascisti claim their part in the election will be nonpartisan, a claim substantiated by the fact that they are not getting up any candidates, it is known the organization is antagonistic to labor.

The Fascisti say their part in the election will be confined to putting down election disorders. They deny any affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan.

Black Shirts Fail.

In their role as peace maker, the black shirted followers of General Blakeny failed to stop disorders at Whitechapel last night which forced Sir John Simon, liberal leader to curtail his address.

The laborites claim the Fascisti are a "comic opera organization."

Former Premier Baldwin was to open his campaign at Queens hall this afternoon. A combination of liberals and tories is seeking to avoid a triangular contest with labor in doubtful districts and if their object of placing only one candidate to oppose labor nominees in such districts is carried out, their leaders predict, labor will lose thirty seats in the next parliament.

Communists Active.

The Communists are carrying on a vigorous campaign in the elections and while supporting the labor party against the tories and liberals, point out the treacherous character of the so-called labor government and its open alliance with the capitalist class.

The actions of such men as J. H. Thomas, Ramsay MacDonald, and Philip Snowden, the Communists declare, show them to be just as loyal to the British empire as the Fascisti and much more serviceable to the capitalists in their present dilemma.

Thomas' Speech.

The speech of the colonial secretary in which he threatened war upon the Turkish Republic, has aroused a great wave of anger thruout England. Since MacDonald came into office it has been amply demonstrated that changes of government mean nothing to the foreign policy of the British government. It pursues the even tenor of its way under tory, liberal or "labor" governments.

Political observers, see in Thomas' speech a bid for office under whatever administration comes into power after the next general elections. Referring to Turkey, Thomas said:

"I want to make it clear to the foreigner and to the world that, in the defense, maintenance, and preservation of its rights, privileges, and obligations of this empire, no general election, no party difference will allow those who are charged with responsibility for this government to be unmindful of their obligations.

"Events have occurred which are very disturbing to his majesty's government. I don't know whether the political situation itself is responsible for the incidents, but if they were I only hope that the reference I have now made, not only on behalf of the people of the government but on behalf of the people of this country, will not be misunderstood."

Astounding Growth.

While the labor party officials make little of the Fascisti, the announcement that the membership of this organization has reached one hundred thousand, caused consternation among the rank and file of the workers.

STUFF BY SPOLANSKY IN THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS SHOWN UP AS "WORTHLESS TRASH"

By MANUEL GOMEZ

Jacob Spolansky now stands convicted out of his own mouth. The very first of the anti-red articles written by this discharged federal fink for the Chicago Daily News, proves conclusively that he is either a perjurer or at least an ambitious liar.

And the Daily News stands exposed as a survival from the antediluvian era of newspaperdom, its eagerness for sensation and its blind hatred of the Communists having led it into paying out thousands of dollars for worthless trash.

Spolansky's much-advertised initial article, which the News played up with an eight-column streamer head, purports to be the story of a secret meeting on Nov. 7, 1918, at which the American Communist movement was founded.

Ahead of His Time.

Spolansky declares that he as a government operative, had been shadowing the participants for weeks preceding the meeting. He relates realistically how he followed one of them to the meeting place in the Mid-City Bank building and overheard all that took place thru a crack in the door of the room. But according to Spolansky's sworn testimony in the Ruthenberg case, he did not become a member of the department of justice until nearly six months after the date when he says he listened in on this little conference. If he did not commit perjury in the Berrien county court, he was in the army on the date mentioned, and could not possibly have seen and heard what he says he did.

The DAILY WORKER now challenges the Chicago Daily News to print the truth about Spolansky's initial story. Below are given citations from the court record which the News is at liberty to verify. We have no hesitation in saying, however, that we expect the News to ignore us.

It will continue to publish Spolansky's lies, and perhaps even to syndicate them thruout the country, because it is more interested in protecting its investment in the matter than in doing justice to the revolutionary working class movement. To print the truth about Spolansky's first article would be to make a laughing stock of itself and discredit all the other articles to come, articles for which the News has paid good money.

Cite Spolansky's Testimony.

It will be remembered that Spolansky, altho a federal operative, paid by the federal government and supposed to keep his hands off state affairs, was so anxious to "get" William Z. Foster, C. E. Ruthenberg and others that, under the direction of Barns, he arranged all the details for the assault upon the Communist Party convention at Bridgeman, practically forcing the local sheriff to make the raid. When called to the witness stand in the Ruthenberg case, he gave a lengthy account of his career. The Labor Defense Council, which is conducting the Michigan defense, and which is collaborating with the DAILY WORKER in the present series of articles, has in its possession a complete copy of the record.

Page 3371 of the transcript of evidence shows that on Monday, April 23, 1923, Spolansky said under oath, in the circuit court of Berrien county,

DAILY WORKER VERY POPULAR AT ST. LOUIS LA FOLLETTE MEETING

By ELLA REEVE BLOOR.
(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 15.— Six hundred special St. Louis campaign editions of the DAILY WORKER were sold here at the LaFollette meeting Tuesday night. Comrade Mason, chairman of the publicity committee for the Gitlow meeting and Comrades Mrakis, Fogel, and Levin, of the Young Workers' League, picketed the main doors of the LaFollette meeting with signs reading: "You read capitalist newspapers. Now read the only workers' daily paper in America." Each paper contained the program of the Workers Party, and the work probably gained numerous sympathizers away from the LaFollette camp.

WOBBLIES ARE SEEKING UNITY IN CONVENTION

Lone Lumber Worker Is Sulking in Tent

The convention of the Industrial Workers of the World was still busied yesterday with the report of the credentials committee, after having absorbed practically all the delegates who first were inclined to adhere to the split convention called by Rowan and the other G. E. B. members who had applied to the capitalist courts for an injunction.

No one was at the hall at 180 W. Washington St., where J. A. Griffith had asked all delegates to gather, altho the hall had been paid for.

At Emmet Memorial Hall it was stated that all delegates but one, from the lumber workers, had come into the convention. The whereabouts of this "Lonesome Lumberjack" is unknown. Similarly, the leaders of the Rowan group, Rowan, Bowerman, Griffith and the rest, are not present at the Emmet Memorial Hall. I. W. W. members, when asked if they were expected, declared that it was unlikely as the membership were very bitter against them.

Fighting Doyle-Fisher.

However, altho this group has failed in getting a split convention to start with, the delegates from the unions controlled by them—altho not themselves involved in the controversy, are fighting inside the convention to wipe out some of the stigma attached to their representatives on the G. E. B. by allegations of the Doyle-Fisher group, and to attack Doyle and Fisher for their conduct which, it is asserted led to the split.

The demands, sixteen in number, which were made upon the convention as a price of continued unity, are quite lengthy and varied. Among them are the demand that delegates from both factions in the metal workers be seated and that the report of the auditing committee, which found Raddock and Bowerman short some $800 in accounts, and upon which as partial evidence they were expelled from their industrial union, be declared void and their books subject to a new auditing.

Will Elect New Delegate.

The opposition to Doyle and Fisher won a point, or so it was considered by Doyle and Fisher, in the unseating of Mike-Gapper as delegate from the small industrial unions, on the grounds that he was involved in the controversy. These unions are planning to elect a new delegate.

Tom Doyle, the general secretary-treasurer, told the DAILY WORKER reporter that the whole convention, from first to last, may be closed to all but I. W. W. members. This is an unprecedented procedure in the I. W. W. In the days of its early struggles, it made no effort to conceal its procedure from the whole working class which is asked to support it.

Doyle declared that the delegates which had come up from the Washington street hall, were there only "to filibuster, make trouble and delay proceedings."

AMALGAMATED LOCAL HOLDS BIG MEETING

Anniversary of Union Is Celebrated

The tenth anniversary of the organization of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America was celebrated by Local 39 of the Amalgamated at Douglas Park Auditorium Tuesday night. Several hundred members of the local heard their officers and those who took part in the formation of the Amalgamated tell of the militant spirit with which the Amalgamated Clothing Workers was formed.

But just as there were two elements in the United Garment Workers of America, the old organization of the A. F. of L. which refused to organize the unorganized garment workers, Tuesday night's meeting demonstrated that there is the same element of reaction within the Amalgamated which caused the split in 1914.

Schneid Rang the Bell.

Hyman Schneid, who woke the audience up after the LaFolette followers had put them to sleep, spoke as one of the original members of the Amalgamated who has retained his militant spirit. "We still face a great task," Schneid told the garment workers. "The war is now over and the manufacturers want to take back what we have gained by our sweat and blood. Let the elements that started the fight—the militants—continue to lead the fight against the entire capitalist class."

Judge Jacob Panken as the man who engineered the legal end of the split from the corrupt U. G. W. of A., Schneid declared. As Schneid spoke of the former aggressive spirit of Panken, militants in the audience recalled how at the present time Panken, now a judge, has formed an alliance with the Gompers' crowd in supporting the middle class representative, LaFollette, for president. Panken has fallen by the wayside and is now in the same political camp with those very corrupt elements within the A. F. of L. which he fought in 1914.

The Young Militants.

"The real force in founding the Amalgamated Clothing Workers was the younger element. We did not care to give any more of that blood to the master class because of the neglect of a few of our officials," Schneid continued. "The old officials of the U. G. W. of A. belonged to a school that betrayed the workers and sold them out to the capitalist class. We youngsters in spirit, with the same spirit as that manifested in the revolution of 1905 in Russia, in which some of us took part, are the ones who formed the Amalgamated."

Samuel Levine, general manager of the Amalgamated for Chicago, who has been charged with not fighting aggressively to keep up the standard of wages and hours established by the Amalgamated, spoke of the Nashville convention. Levine has also declared for LaFollette, as have Gompers and the corrupt officials of the United Garment Workers against whose tyranny Levine fought ten years ago. Levine told how the tailors of Chicago were organized by the Chicago Amalgamated.

Good and Bad.

Speakers told of the great days of the Amalgamated, when meetings attended by thousands of garment workers were held, when the labor bank was established, and when the agreement was signed with the manufacturers. But they also spoke of entering the political field with LaFollette, who has drawn into his camp the corrupt labor fakers as well as several millionaires who are paying the expenses of his campaign.

Poison Secret Service Agent.

ANDERSON, Ind., Oct. 15.—Police here today were investigating the poisoning of J. E. Shepard, 34, said to be an United Stats secret service agent, to determine whether or not the poison was administered by persons he is supposed to have been engaged in trailing. Shepard collapsed on a street car and was critically ill at home, but it is believed he will recover. He is said to have been investigating a case in Indiana and Ohio.

PHILADELPHIA PLANS CELEBRATION FOR 7TH SOVIET ANNIVERSARY

Workers Party in Philadelphia has made arrangements for a huge celebration of the seventh anniversary of the Ruslan revolution for Friday, Nov. 7, at the Labor Lyceum, 6th and Brown Sts. C. E. Ruthenberg will be the main speaker with several speakers in other languages. A classic musical program is being prepared for the occasion.

RUTHENBERG SHOWS WHAT THE POLICE SPY, SPOLANSKY, DOES NOT KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM

could make profits out of them, that they must accept the conditions that the czars of industry found possible to impose. That when the capitalist czars could make no profits they could go out on the streets and starve. These Russian workers know that the dictatorship of the proletariat which rules there regards and respects the rights of the workers and uses its power to suppress the exploiters. They know that in the Russian factories the workers stand erect, free men, participating in the management and direction of the factory, molding a new industrial order which is ending forever their status of wage slavery and creating a new social order of free men.

And the best answer to Spy Spolansky's stream of Russian agitators flowing into the United States is that they are not needed. American industry is producing Communist agitators so fast that it would be unnecessary to import them even if there were agitators who could be imported. It is the experience of the workers in the steel mills, on the railroads, in the mines, that is making them the enemies of the capitalist system. Spy Spolansky and the higher-ups of the governmental machine which exists to protect capitalism might deport every Communist in the United States, native or foreign born, and six months later Spy Spolansky could write another romance about the "Red Menace" because American industry would create more Communists and they would organize themselves for the struggle against the capitalist system.

In the Open.

There is one little slip which Spy Spolansky made in the second installment of his romance which we are very much surprised at.

After drawing a lurid picture of secret conspiracy for the purpose of overthrowing the government by force and violence our crusader against the "reds" is forced to admit in describing the organization and work of the Communist Party in 1919, "they worked in the open."

"They worked in the open!" That one little phrase by Spy Spolansky is like a bright shaft of sunlight cutting thru all the murky clouds of half-truths, misrepresentations, distortions and untruths of which Spolansky's efforts to manufacture the "red conspiracy" for the delectation of the gullible capitalist newspaper readers consists.

"They worked in the open!" Yes, the Communists held a public convention at which they organized their party. They established their headquarters openly. They published their newspapers and sent them broadcast thru the mails. They had branches organized all over the country holding their meetings in public halls inviting the workers to visit them. They held hundreds, yes, thousands of mass meetings to which all workers were invited to come and hear what Communism stood for and what it was fighting for. Yes, Spy Spolansky, "they worked in the open." They advocated publicly that the workers should end the rule of their class enemy in control of the government. They advocated publicly the end of the profit system of industry, they advocated publicly the Communist principles that the capitalist system must give way to a new and better social and that the dynamic force which must and would bring this change is the working class struggling as a class against their exploiters and oppressors.

"They worked in the open!" Yes, they are working in the open in spite of the black hundred terroristic methods of Spy Spolansky and his kind. The Communist movement in the United States is today fighting in the open. The Workers Party is a Communist Party—the Communist Party in the United States. It advocates and fights for its principles openly before the eyes of the whole working class of the United States.

Not a conspiracy, not secret machinations are the methods of Communism. The Communists are proud to stand before the whole working class advocating and upholding their principles and fighting for the support of those principles by the working masses who thru their power will give them life and reality.

It is not a conspiracy which is thundering at the doors of capitalism, but an invincible social force.

ADVANCE DATE OF RUTHENBERG CASE HEARING

May Come Up Today at Lansing, Mich.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 15.—The date of the hearing in the case of the state of Michigan against C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, whose appeal against conviction of the charge of "assembling with" the Communist Party at Bridgeman comes before the supreme court, has been advanced and the hearing will now take place either tomorrow afternoon or Friday morning.

Keep Up the Attack.

A news item appearing here declares "It is understood that, if the Ruthenberg conviction is affirmed by the Supreme Court, the other Communists, including William Z. Foster, will be brought to trial."

The defense contends in the brief filed with the Supreme Court that there can be no such crime as "assembling with." The prosecution evidently was unable to meet the legal arguments of the appeal brief and substituted for this a denunciation of the defense declaring of Ruthenberg's attorney's argument that the criminal syndicalist law is unconstitutional that "he (Ruthenberg) should spurn any assistance that document might afford him."

In the light of the long and earnest arguments by President Coolidge and candidate Davis about the protection afforded every citizen by the constitution it is rather a new departure for an attorney for the state to argue that a defendant should not raise a constitutional question in his defense and protest against illegal action by officers of the law.

HARPER SCHOOL PARENTS REPORT BOARD'S MOVE

To strike or not to strike will be determined tonight by the West Englewood parents of pupils in the Harper school district at a meeting at the Auburn Methodist Episcopal church, Sixty-fourth and Paulina Sts. at 8 p. m. The parents will report to the meeting whether the portables put up by the school board meet the necessary requirements.

This morning the 400 children in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades, who were ousted last week to make room for the new junior high classes, will report at the Harper school and the reception they receive will determine future developments in the parents' fight.

Frank McGarr, one of the parents and an active participant in the fight, told the DAILY WORKER that from all appearances the school board is making an attempt to meet the situation. Whether these portables will take care of all the children remains to be seen today. "We are giving the mayor an opportunity to make good on his promise to get the board to take care of our children in the Harper school. Under no conditions will we accept their old proposal to send children to the distant school."

William K. Peak, president of the West Englewood Lions' Club, who has been negotiating with President Moderwell and Superintendent McAndrew of the board of education, when asked about the latest developments in the strike said the meeting tonight would decide. To the DAILY WORKER reporter's question whether he thought the portables would be sufficient to care for all the children he replied: "Well, they can put up more, can't they? And we'll see to it that they do."

School officials have been watching the parents' progress in their threat to go thru with the strike. It is expected the results of tonight's meeting will definitely decide future action in the controversy.

McAndrew Runs From Fight on School Teachers has been instrumental in preventing the proposal from coming up before, consented to meet her on the floor of the board.

Make Request in McAndrew.

A motion that McAndrew be requested to appear at the first meeting of the committee on administration and fight the matter out was introduced by James Mullenbach, and carried by the committees.

This means that McAndrew will be forced either to present evidence that he has some backing for the statements which he has made, alleging that teachers are backing him in his fight, or else admit that his claims to support among the teachers are pretenses.

Teachers are Present.

Large numbers of teachers crowded into the rooms of the committee during yesterday's session. They are anxious to have a show-down on this question by the board which has up to the present time been following a policy of evasion and of trickery.

Sentenced to "The Chair."

CROWN POINT, Ind., Oct. 15.—A criminal court jury which deliberated less than two hours today found Peter Vergolini guilty of first degree murder for the slaying of Anna Tomacich after an attack at Gary, Ind., and he was immediately sentenced to death in the electric chair

CONSTABULARY MUST FIND AN EXCUSE TO LIVE

Private Organization Is Shown Superfluous

By KARL REEVE

The "Department of Constabulary of Illinois," which is a private organization, expends most of its energies, when not taking part in militaristic demonstrations or aiding the Ku Klux Klan in its lawlessness, giving out propaganda for the distribution of guns to private citizens.

The department of constabulary has but one legal right under the criminal code, permission to arrest violators of the law.

No Excuse to Exist.

But every private citizen having that right, the constabulary is hard put to it for finding an excuse for existence.

"The department of constabulary was started with the one intention of preventing crime," said Judge John J. Dreher, of Brookfield, in trying to give the members something to think about. But lieutenant Doehne, member of the constabulary, gave a very different reason for the existence of the constabulary, when he favored the glorification of war on Defense Day, Sept. 12. Doehne said it would be "good advertisement" to take part, but everyone who had the "inside dope," knew the constabulary was performing its real purpose in drumming up war spirit.

"Nothing can advertise the constabulary more than a five-hundred-piece band marching in a parade.", said lieutenant Doehne, just before the Defense Day program was put over with the aid of the constabulary.

In spite of the fact that the constabulary declares its sole purpose is to prevent crime, the entire organization was thrown into the militaristic Defense Day activities. In fact, had it not been for the 2,500 taking part in the Defense Day proceedings, the affair in Chicago would have been a sorry failure indeed.

The "inspectors" of the Chicago "division" and "divisions" from surrounding towns were called together on August 22, at the executive offices, 104 W. Monroe St., "To decide the best plan for getting out their men for the assemblages of the constabulary on Sept. 12."

Talk for Defense Day.

The president, James R. Howe, and Mr. Laventhal, whom the state constabulary is running as their candidate for associate judge of the municipal court on the democratic ticket, made speeches at this meeting. Howe spoke on "The birth of defense day and its meaning," denouncing the "Reds and pacifists," as if they were in the same camp.

"The Defense day test is defined to be a mobilization test of patriotism and is not covered with a false mask," says the Constabulary News, official organ of the department of constabulary. "The largest active band in the world, the department of constabulary band will play patriotic music to nearly ten thousand volunteers who will feast at a huge barbecue, prepared by members of the Women's Overseas Service League.

One of the bands, the DAILY WORKER learns from an official of the constabulary, which took part in the Mobilization day parade under the name of the department of constabulary was in reality the Ku Klux Klan band which wanted to participate but did not want to come out openly as the Klan band. The constabulary is always willing, the DAILY WORKER learns, to serve as a convenience for the Ku Klux Klan.

Another example of such co-operation with the klan by the constabulary is instanced in the activities of S Glenn Young, liquor raider. Any member who is guilty of imprudent use of stars issued by the authorized officers of this corporation, or during the life of his membership shall be convicted in any court of law of any crime may at the discretion of the board of commissioners be deemed to have forfeited his membership, and all evidence of his authority as a member of this corporation," says the law of the constabulary.

Young Has Lawless Record.

S. Glenn Young the klan raider in Southern Illinois, has not only been convicted in a court of law for crime, but has taken part in several brutal murders of Southern Illinois officers of the law. Young has carried on much unlawful activity, raiding the homes of peaceful miners, throwing them out on the street, and wrecking their furniture, his sole authority being the constabulary star. Young is now under charges in the Herrin court house. He has evaded his bond and is a fugitive from justice.

Yet the department of constabulary takes pride in advertising Glenn Young as an officer of their organization, thus displaying their partiality and solicitude for Ku Klux Klan members

Germans Are Hessians of U.S. Capitalism Today; But What of the Morrow?

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Trans-Atlantic Air Liner ZR-3 rides at anchor in its hangar in the United States. It made history when it spanned the distance from Friedrichshafen, in Germany, to Lakehurst, U. S. A., in less than four days.

It sailed more than 5,000 miles in 80 hours. At this rate it could girdle the globe in two weeks, compared to the months required in the recent airplane flight. The ZR-3 establishes a new world's record for a continuous flight.

But the most interesting fact about the ZR-3 is that it was "Made in Germany," and that among the 32 men who brought the ship to this country 28 were Germans. There were only four Americans aboard.

We hear no protests from the super-jingoes of the American Legion that the ZR-3 was made and manned by Germans. The anti-Hun propaganda is stilled. Instead the super-patriotic press cheers. In the tumult it is forgotten that the United States is buying the product of the brains of the enemy of 1917-18.

Representatives of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium, in "the Council of Ambassadors," at first objected to the Germans being allowed to build the air dreadnaught. France especially is frightened at every new German achievement. But all these nations are pretty much under the thumb of Dollar Rule in Europe, and U. S. Ambassador Herrick finally secured their consent, on the promise that this would be the first and the last.

The ZR-3 is an instrument of war. It becomes part of the armor of American capitalism. It will be used to defend things as they are.

This is not the first time that reaction in this country has used Germans in war. It will be remembered that the British king, with his tory allies, trying to maintain his rule over the American colonists, in 1776, hired Hessian soldiers, in Germany, to cross the Atlantic and do his fighting for him in this country. They were professional soldiers, hired to slaughter their fellow human beings at a stated priced. They were paid mercenaries hired to do the bidding of reaction.

* * * *

Enslaved under the Morgan-Dawes plan, the Germans today become the mercenaries, once more, of whatever nation has the price to buy them. The United States has riches. With a nation fifty per cent stunted in mind, and children rushed onto the treadmill of industry before their time, America must turn to the genius of Germany, not only for the products of peace, but for the instruments of war.

But it is possible for other nations to do the same. Japan has just purchased a huge air monster from the Germans. Under the Versailles Treaty, it was impossible for the Germans to manufacture this killer for the Japs on German territory. So the wily Germans moved their factory over the border into Denmark.

But this condition will change.

Slaves rebel. A nation cannot long be held in chains. The workers in Germany are merely recuperating for another blow, not only against their own masters, but against all oppressors.

The victory of the German workers will bring Germany under the banners of the world social revolution.

That will mean no more air dreadnaughts to bolster Japanese militarism, from Germany.

It will mean that the whole genius of the German working class will be enlisted for the workers' world struggle for power.

* * * *

In that struggle the toilers of Germany in the workshops and in the field, will not be the paid Hessians of ruthless masters. They will not work and fight for a price.

Instead they will be the willing, anxious, eager Soldiers of the Red Soviet Star.

German workers do not willingly turn out instruments of death for the United States, Japan and other capitalist nations. Hessian soldiers never fight because they like it. Mercenaries must always be driven into battle.

Nations that have been compelled to use mercenaries found themselves on the brink of decay. The Romans found that out.

The ZR-3, in the United States, is a symptom of crumbling American capitalism. It is a promise of the greater achievements the whole German working class will be capable of once it is really released under Soviet Rule for creative labor.

The rich fields of the Russian Soviet Republic solve the food problem of the growing World Social Revolution.

The mechanical genius of the German nation will be won for the World Social Revolution, under the German Soviet Republic. Thus will begin the first real massing of the forces of industry for the benefit of mankind.

The Communist social order is forging the weapons with which it will build, out of capitalist chaos, the new civilization. Capitalism will go down under the blows of German industry linked with Russian agriculture under Soviet Rule.

That is the message the ZR-3 brings to America.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

WU Pei Fu must be in a pretty bad fix when he is obliged to send several hundred monkeys to the front in order to encourage his demoralized troops. It is reported that the monkeys instead of fighting like the human monkeys, took to the trees and chased squirrels while the poor Chinese workers on both sides were killing each other, one side for the honor and profit of the American dollar, the other side for the Japanese yen.

JAKEY Spolansky says we have so many members now that they cannot be counted. He says revolution is the "extreme" of democracy. He says Victor Berger is mainly responsible for the spread of Communism in America. He says—but then he is not nearly as big an idiot as Victor Lawson who paid him for the articles.

THAT husbands can be dispensed with, without any serious impairment of comfort, is advanced in an insurance company advertisement, running in the current issue of a New York socialist magazine that makes a special appeal to colored people. KILLING OF NEGRO MAY BE INVESTIGATED

Crowe Aid Promised to Look Into Case

First assistant State's Attorney Gorman has promised a thoro investigation into the lynching of the Negro, William Bell, and a speedy sitting of the Grand Jury, George C. Adams, attorney for the family of the murdered man, told the DAILY WORKER yesterday.

Two mass meetings are being held by the Negroes tonight, one on the South Side at the corner of 48th and Wabash and the other on the West Side, at 1221 Blue Island Ave. Protests will be made against conditions now prevailing among the Negroes living in Chicago.

Thomas Clark, one of the witnesses who identified Otto Epstein, night watchman in a sacramental wine shop on 14th street, who has been held to the state jury on charges of murdering Bell, has been intimidated and threatened at his home, it is reported to the DAILY WORKER.

Threatened With Violence.

Clark declares several auto loads of white thugs have driven up and down in front of his house every night, have disturbed his sleep and have threatened him with violence if Epstein is indicted by the grand jury. Upon request of attorneys for Bell's family, an extra squad of police have been detailed by chief Collins to cover the 16th district.

An organization has been formed among the Negroes, called the People's Protective Circle, to protect the rights of the Negroes against future outrages. Robert S. Ephriam is president of this organization. A meeting was held last Sunday at 1221 Blue Island avenue, at which George Adams and his law partner, J. N Baker, told of the coroner's inquest over Bell.

Bell Was Innocent.

Bell was brutally killed with a baseball bat by a crowd of rowdies after two girls on the corner of Maxwell and Miller streets had reported to the sacramental wine shop that they were accosted by a Negro. It was admitted by the police that Bell was an innocent bystander who had nothing to do with the accosting of the girls. Harry Crawford, Negro keeper of a nearby pool hall who witnessed the killing, and who declared he was slugged by some of the men from the wine shop, testified at the inquest that two white men in a Ford car accosted the two girls and not a Negro.

The two girls, Betty Goldblatt and Bertha Deutsch, admitted at the inquest that they had been approached by two men in the Ford car, and claimed they had been later approached by a Negro.

Negroes Incensed.

The Negro population of Chicago is especially incensed because of the long continued police intimidation accorded the Negroes on the south side. Many instances have been reported where Negroes have been held up and searched by policemen for no apparent cause. It is considered a crime, according to Negroes, for a Negro to be seen walking with a white girl. On the other hand, many Negroes report that they have been slugged and beaten by white men, without securing the slightest police protection.

Negroes declare they are forced to live on the south side in hovels at exhorbitant rents, that it is difficult for them to secure even the most menial work, that the capitalist system is destroying their home life, and that they are in danger of lynching whenever they appear on the streets.

Seeks Pardon for Husband.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Mary Martin, of Kalamazoo, Mich., today was enroute home after a 500-mile walk to this city with her baby in her arms in a vain attempt to secure a parole for her husband, Edward, serving a sentence in the Anamosa reformatory for theft. Her petition to the parole board could not be considered as her husband is not yet legally eligible for pardon. Residents of Anamose, however, raised a fund to pay her railroad fare back to Kalamazoo.

SOVIET DEAL WITH CHANG ROILS PARIS

Hughes' Advice Not So Bad for Soviet

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

MUKDEN, Oct. 15.—The French government may have a prior right to the language of diplomacy but it has no monopoly of that art. The "amateur" diplomats in the Kremlin can play the game much more cleverly than ever did the Sazanoffs and Wittes of the Czars; and for a better purpose, of course.

The latest stroke of Bolshevik diplomacy, which has caused serious flutters in the diplomatic dove cots of the capitalist governments, is the agreement between Russia and Chang Tso-Lin over the Chinese Eastern railway.

Hughes Costly Adviser.

While the French government was taking its orders from the whiskered prodigy Charles Evans Hughes, concerning the matter of recognizing the Soviet government, the diplomats of the Workers' Republic were busy in the Orient. The result is that the Soviet government is firmly established in China, has complete control of the Chinese Eastern railway and is on the verge of signing a treaty with Japan.

Red Power Growing.

France is deeply interested financially in the Chinese Eastern railway, besides having an eye peeled for whatever loot it can get out of China. The growing power of Soviet Russia is just as distasteful to France as it is to England or the United States so Paris has protested to Peking about the deal.

Peking, politically speaking is living from hand to mouth and may have to move at a moment's notice. So France, being practical, intends to protest to Peking, Mukden, Moscow and Tokio.

French the Losers.

If the French government, instead of financing counter - revolutions against the Soviet government had recognized the Workers' Republic, it is safe to say that the French investors who loaned the money to build the Chinese Eastern railway to the czar would be cash in pocket.

Now, Herriot must finally negotiate with Moscow and the Chinese Eastern railway will be a very strong card in the hands of the expert diplomatic poker player, Comrade Tchitcherin.

The noise over the incident is sweet music to revolutionary ears.

No Bad Feeling.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 15.—Making no attempt to disarm them, arriving Kiangsu troops today were manifesting an air of complete indifference toward the 30,000 defeated Chekiang troops who, fully armed, are now encamped between Huang Tu and Shanghai.

A contingent of 3,000 Chekiang soldiers with field guns and ample supplies and munitions is quartered in the North Shanghai railway station and more are constantly arriving but so far there has been no disorder despite the flight of all their officers.

The Chekiang forces have food supplies for seven days and are now taking advantage of the armistice to obtain a long needed rest.

BRITISH FASCISTI IN FIRST CLASH OF BRITISH ELECTIONS; ATTACK COMMUNIST MASS MEETING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The British black shirts had their first open brush with the working class when they attacked a Communist meeting in Trafalgar Square today.

Four of the Fascisti were arrested.

Lord Ernest Hamilton, declared that the Fascisti would take an active part in the elections on the side of the tories and the right wing of the liberal party. Like the Minute Men of the Constitution and the American Legion in the United States, they [illegible] on the side of the "Independent voter."

MacDonald is touring Glasgow in his "biscuit limousine" while Sir Alexander Grant who gave him the car and thirty thousand pounds to keep it is aiding the tories.

MILITANT COAL MINERS IN THE PITTSBURGH DISTRICT PUTTING UP REAL FIGHT IN UNION ELECTION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 15.—Progressive miners of the Pittsburgh district have selected a slate of candidates to oppose the boss-loving, reactionary and corrupt gang now in power, the ticket composed of men long known to the miners of the Pittsburgh district as fighters of the working class, fearless and unafraid.

Many locals have already nominated the progressive ticket in the few days the announcement of their candidacy was made.

Candidates for office in the Miners' Union, the progressives are running on a strictly class program and platform, make a fair bid to win this time, providing of course, they watch close [illegible] by the pernicious activities of the administration.

The administration's "organizers and field workers" are indeed rushed these days, for this is the only function they perform and the only time they really do anything is at election time and around convention time when the Lewis-Fagan combination find them indespensible packing the conventions and robbing the ballot boxes.

Tamper With Returns.

Some readers will think I am wrong in this so here is a copy of an affidavit which was taken some time ago. The progressive committee is in possession of scores of such affidavits exposing the rotteness and corruption of the official family. Thomas Myerscough succeeded in getting the goods on the pie cards so it is not strange in the least that we find him expelled and outside the union today.

June 15, 1921.
Commonwealth of Penna.,
County of Washington, ss.

Personally appeared before me, William H. Holmes, a justice of the peace in and for said county, Fred C. Parasky, president, and John J. Parasky, R. S. of Local Union No. 1352, Manifold, being duly sworn according to law, disposes and say that the true and correct vote of Local Union No. 1353 for International president, was John L. Lewis, 51 votes; Harlin, 18 votes. For vice-president, Philip Murray, 44 votes; Howat, 25 votes, and for district secretary treasurer, Hargest, 54 votes, Myerscough 17 votes. For International board member, O'Leary, 49 votes; Guiler, 17 votes. And that the votes recorded in the national and district tellers' report are both false and were tampered with and changed by persons unknown after the correct vote had been attested to by the affiants.

(Signed) Fred C. Parasky,
John J. Parasky.

Page 22, of the national tellers' report on the 1921 election tells a different story than this document. According to the report there are nearly 200 votes added.

Booze, boodle, and bribery also play their share in "winning" elections for the administration. Martin Bashel, at that time member of local union 1812, Willock, Pa., later removed to Nokomis, Ill., later to Pana, Ill., made affidavit to the following effect:

Appeared at hall about 6 p. m. election day, in order to vote, and found the two secretaries and the rest of the board of tellers in a state of intoxication. Was informed by some of the tellers that two quarts of whiskey had been brought to them by organizer John Luterancik, who gave out the confidential information that whiskey had been supplied by president Robert Gibbons, of district 5. Luterancik remained at Willock most of the day loitering around the hall, and telling miners who to vote for.

The Daisy From Daisytown.

Local 2399 is located at Daisytown. Affidavit was made by Paul Francis, Harry Wordsworth, and Paul Budzis to the effect that report of district and international tellers of vote cast by local union 2399, of which they were members, was not correct. Lewis' vote raised from 75 to 853, Harlin vote of 212 cut to 13, Murray raised from 67 to 849, Howat 218, not 14 as credited by international tellers report.

It is by such methods as this that "the greatest labor leader" gets away with stuff. The progressives are on the lookout for a repetition of such tactics in the present election.

This election finds the miners up in arms against the district gang. They are firmly determined to do away with the grafters in the miners' union, and elect men who will fight for the betterment and happiness of the membership. With fully two-thirds of the mines shut down some for over a year now, the miners and their families are suffering untold hardships, yet the official gang in power can afford to put a detective on the payroll, pay him hundreds of dollars, squander thousands of dollars from the common treasury of the miners' organization.

No Racial Barriers.

The progressive miners have selected men of all groups and elements all honest and sincere. Walter Jones, a Negro brother, is candidate for executive board member of the fourth sub-district, something never heard of before, a Negro running for office, but the progressives recognize no racial barrier.

Miners of the Pittsburgh district, support the progressive ticket. Rid the union of the grafters, leeches and parasites; elect men who will protect your class interests.

Talk on Literature.

Literature will be analyzed from the working class viewpoint by Lillian Heller Udell, who will speak to the North Side branch of the Workers Party, 2409 N. Halsted St., Monday, Oct. 20, at 8:15 p. m. Miss Udell will speak on "The Economic Background of Literature."

The influences playing upon modern literature and the causes for the spreading of poison to fill the workers' minds will be discussed. The members will discuss the subject after hearing the speaker. No charge is made for admission.

"Dead" Woman Returns.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 15.—Positively identified by friends as the woman found murdered in a railway box car here February 27, Mrs. Ida McClutcheon returned here today after eight months absence to send an astonished police department once more in pursuit of the identity of the woman whose body was dragged thru the spow and sealed in the car.

LA GUARDIA HAS POLICE ARREST "RED" SPEAKER

Communist Campaign Gets on Fakers' Nerves

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Juliet Stuart Poyntz, congressional candidate for the twentieth congressional district, was arrested tonight at 111th Street and Lexington Avenue by the police, who were incited to arrest the Communist speaker by Congressman LaGuardia.

LaGuardia said to six policemen who were at the meeting: "Arrest that woman." He did not appear to press the charge.

During the early part of the meeting, the LaGuardia gang tried to mob Poyntz.

Reactionaries Lose.

The arrest of Comrade Poyntz followed closely on the heels of the great Red Night in Harlem, and indicated the success of the Workers Party in exposing the fraud that the socialists and the fake progressives are perpetrating on the workers. Their hostility to the Communists has increased as the latter have succeeded in opening the minds of the masses to the futility of relying on men like LaGuardia and his socialist allies.

The climax of the Workers Party campaign in New York City was reached with the celebration of Red Night in the 20th District in Harlem. The while district was ablaze from end to end during the entire evening with the message of Communism. From two dozen platforms the best speakers of the Workers Party explained to the working class voters of Harlem why they could not vote for the capitalist parties and should not vote for the so-called progressives and socialists. The masses of Harlem listened to the Communist message with rapt attention, thousands and thousands of them.

Great Crowds.

Every important street corner in the district was covered by a dense throng of interested workers. The efforts of the socialists to break up these splendid demonstrations failed utterly. All the bombast and noise of their henchmen in the socialist and trade union bureaucracy failed to draw the crowds. The working class of Harlem is finally coming to a realization of the critical issue in the district between the Workers Party and all other organizations claiming to represent the workers.

The decision of the socialist party to support Major LaGuardia in this district for congress has brot about their downfall in the district. Major LaGuardia, ardent supporter of the world war, veteran of bombing expeditions an the Italian front, member of the American Legion, former candidate on the Fusion (republican-democratic) ticket against the socialists, is now parading as a progressive with whole-hearted socialist support. Supported by a gang composed of union business agents and socialist hangers on he is trying to win working class votes in Harlem but without success.

Trucks Decorated.

The Red Night of the Workers Party in Harlem was a magnificent success. The numerous demonstrations in the various parts of the district wound up at ten o'clock in a great central mass demonstration at the plaza at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue. Here was a sight that would gladden the eyes. A great throng of thousands of workers gathered from all parts of the district listening with upturned faces and eager attention to the words of the numerous Communist speakers who spoke from trucks gaily decorated with red bunting and immense signs bearing the slogans of the Workers Party.

Among the speakers were Juliet Stuart Poyntz the candidate for congress in the Harlem District; Dr. Abraham Markoff, the candidate for assembly; Harry Winitzky, Rebecca Grecht, Charles Krumbein, Carl Brodsky, S. Sparrer, Jack Jampolsky and others.

The Young Workers' League and the Juniors were at their posts, boring within the huge crowd. The DAILY WORKER was going like hot cakes, hundreds at a time. Communists leaflets fell in showers on the dense throng and were eagerly snatched up.

The Workers Party is now a political fact of the first magnitude in Harlem. The comrades of Harlem led by their energetic section organizer, Morris Nemser, have waged a magnificent campaign for Communism in one of the most important working class districts of New York, and one which was formerly the stronghold of the socialist party, the bailwick of Morris Hillquit himself who ran here for congress. The Communist movement has gained a foothold in Harlem in this election which means much for the party in both the industrial and political fields.

THE DATE Has Been Set For November 7

LIKE other newspapers—a working class newspaper must receive support if it is to exist. But it will not receive it in the advertising of employers of labor whose wealth is gained from the toil of others. The employers' interests are not defended in a working class newspaper. Nor can a working class newspaper receive its support from the profits gained by appealing to every human weakness with lurid stories of sex, murder and depravity—a working class newspaper must be an educational medium. It must fearlessly tell the truth, expose corruption, fight Labor's enemies—lead the workers to a clear understanding that his is the hand and brain that is the world's motive and creative power—and his should be the world's ownership. Since only the workers' interests are defended in a working class newspaper the capitalist will not support it. The worker must—if he wants a paper defending his interests and fighting his battles.

Thousands of members of the labor movement will be unsparingly devoting their time and energy until November 7 in a campaign to support the only fearless daily champion of the workers' interest in this country. Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. REPUBLICANS AT DULUTH REFUSE GITLOW DEBATE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 15.—The republican [illegible] here has officially declined the challenge of the Communist candidate for vice-president, Benjamin Gitlow, for a public debate in Duluth with the republican candidate, "Hell and Maria" Dawes.

Gitlow spoke to several hundred workers in Duluth on Oct. 6 in the Shrine Auditorium, while on the same night Dawes, with the aid of a twenty-piece band, was making a noise in the Armory.

Party Issues Challenge.

The challenge of the Workers Party for a Gitlow-Dawes debate, signed by the City Central Committee of the Workers Party of Duluth, declared:

"To the Republican Campaign Committee,
"Manhattan, Building,
"Duluth, Minn.

"As there is a report that General Charles G. Dawes, the republican candidate for vice-president of the United States will speak in Duluth on the 6th of October, the same date that Benjamin Gitlow, the Communist candidate for vice-president, speaks here, the Duluth City Central Committee of the Workers Party of America, in behalf of Mr. Gitlow, hereby challenges Mr. Dawes to a public debate, either at the Shrine Auditorium, where Mr. Gitlow speaks, or at the place where Mr. Dawes will speak. Mr. Dawes to choose one of two subjects, viz:

"(No. 1) RESOLVED: That the Dawes plan to help Germany will only enslave the German working class and create more unemployment in other industrial countries; Mr. Gitlow to take the affirmative, and Mr. Dawes the negative, or

"(No. 2) RESOLVED: That the capitalist system of production for profit has outlived its usefullness, and should be abolished; Mr. Gitlow to take the affirmative, and Mr. Dawes the negative.

"Yours very truly,

"The Duluth City Central Committee, Workers Party of America.
"Wm. Lehtinen, Secretary."

Find It Quite Impossible.

The republican party refused to accept this challenge, replying in a letter written to the Workers Party by William Sargent, chairman of the St. Louis County republican committee, that "it is quite impossible to arrange anything of this sort at this late date."

Gitlow denounced the Dawes plan in his Duluth speech, declaring it the "plan of J. P. Morgan and company to enslave the workers of Europe." Over 500 workers paid 25 cents a piece to hear Gitlow denounce LaFollette and the Dawes plan.

Robert Minor speaks in Duluth on Oct. 17 and Joseph Manley on Nov. 3.

IN WITH THE DOLLARS!

THE news of the last few days, in the undertaking of securing an extra large campaign fund, is that the Chicago district of the party has taken its rightful second place. The big campaign rally of last Sunday at which both Foster and Gitlow spoke, netted a collection of about $850.00 cash. This brings the total contributions direct to the Chicago district up to $2,126.44.

Contribution lists and remittances for campaign fund stamps sold are showing up heavy in the daily mail of the national office. The will to finance, to amply finance the Communist campaign is growing and these last three weeks of our offensive against the Coolidge-Davis collusion and the LaFollette illusion should bring in more dollars than the six past weeks.

The correspondence continues interesting. L. Nierman writes that he is 70 years old, has been in the revolutionary movement for 49 years and is a Bolshevik. Chas. Sopko and Henry Corbishky went out on pay night and collected $41.15 and the promise is made that a little more will be done on the side.

Frank Butovac remits $10.00 in emphasis that he believes in the Workers' and Farmers' Dictatorship. Altho his shop closed its doors over four months ago, John Wild remits $5.00. To attest that collecting money for the campaign fund is a good way to carry on organization work, a letter from Earl Panizza enclosing $9.00, asks for the Workers Party address so that he can join.

Seventeen dollars is all Thos. Otzwirk and Albert Schweiger could collect, they write, because the miners only had a 2-day 5-hour pay day. This is better than many others have done in shops that have been running steadily for years. Sternberg, of the Bronx, sends a money order for $20.00 and thanks the Workers Party for giving him an opportunity to participate in the great work the Communists of this country have undertaken.

Barney Zaleskas, injured in the mines and not able to get about, says he will collect more, if possible, surprising us with a check for $26.00 for campaign fund stamps. And the Finnish branch of Waukegan, Ill., swells the campaign fund with a $75.00 check.

Large amounts and small are equally welcome. What we do insist upon is activity in collection by every party member and sympathizer. That more and ever more are becoming active is proven by the long list of contributions published below:

Launch Vigorous Protest.

Sub-district five officials, having jurisdiction over the Drumheller Valley, have wired President Lewis protesting vigorously against this wage cut and demanding that Lewis take definite action to uphold the strike for the signing of the Jacksonville agreement by the operators.

A monster mass meeting of the rank and file miners has been called for today to protest against the ac-

OPPOSE UNION OFFICIALS WHO TOOK WAGE CUT

Alberta, Canada, Coal Miners Up in Arms

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DRUMHELLER, Alberta, Oct. 15.—The action of the policy committee of District 18, Western Canada, of the United Mine Workers of America in accepting the proposition of the coal operators that wages be cut $1.17 a day, means the defeat of the reactionary officialdom in the coming December elections, many miners here believe.

The rank and file of District 18 are stirred up over the recommendation of the reactionary policy committee, that they accept a wage reduction of $1.17 per day for contract men and twelve and one-half per cent for all day wage men

Would Give Up Gains Made.

This recommendation, preventing an agreement based upon the Jacksonville agreement, signed between the United Mine Workers of America and the operators in the central competitive coal fields of the United States, stipulating that the wage rate of 1921 prevail for three years, would reduce wages to their 1918 rate, and relinquish the gains made by the miners in 1919.

The recommendation of the policy committee is in direct violation of the wage policy of the Lewis administration, which was indorsed by the last convention.

William Sherman, renegade radical has backed the reactionary policy committee in favoring a wage reduction, and it is believed his desertion of the miners in their fight for their wages, coupled with his active support of the reactionary Lewis administration even going the length of cancelling local union charters to enforce the reactionary Lewis policies, will mean his certain defeat in the coming elections, and the election of the entire progressive slate thruout District 18.

OVER THE TOP, NEW YORK

THE hour has come for the final charge in the DAILY WORKER New York subscription campaign.

Only three days more until the climax is reached at Arcadia Hall, 918 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, when Comrade Foster will present the Red Silk Bolshevik Banner to the Branch that makes the best record.

No one can tell at present which Branch will win. The race is close. None are so far ahead that they [illegible] surpassed by an energetic effort on the part of any one of a dozen others.

Of course, not every Branch can win the Banner. But EVERY Branch CAN do SOMETHING.

Not every member can devote his time to hustling subs. But EVERY member CAN TRY to GET ONE between now and Sunday evening when the contest closes and all special rates and offers stop.

Over 900 of New York's most energetic and devoted comrades have special DAILY WORKER subscription folders in their possession at this moment. Each one of these 900 select members will of course endeavor not merely to get one more subscription, but to sell the entire set of five subcards, before the zero hour strikes next Sunday evening.

All these Comrades must remember that they are to settle for these special subscription folders with the DAILY WORKER agents of their branches or with the New York DAILY WORKER agent BEFORE 8 o'clock Sunday evening October 19, at Arcadia Hall, 918 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, unless they have made their settlement earlier.

* * * *

New York has done well in the past month. Over 500 new subscriptions have been secured by New York Comrades since Sept. 1. But we can double and treble that THIS week with one great united effort. Let us all push together this last three days and see what we can do.

Those that never secured a sub before, GET ONE.

Those that already have some scalps to their credit, GET MORE.

Thus we shall lay the bricks for the foundation of an effective Communist movement in New York that will withstand all hostile storms.

RAIL HEADS TRY TO NATIONALIZE 'B. & O.' SYSTEM

Bosses' Love for Scheme Begins to Spread

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—A committee of railway magnates from the Association of Railway Executives, headed by Samuel Ream, of the Pennsylvania, and including Loree, of the Lackawanna, and Krutschnitt, of the Southern Pacific, has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to draft a model of the "Baltimore & Ohio plan," which aims at class collaboration of bosses and employes and the stifling of all attempts at militant action by the workers.

The Bosses Fear No More.

The co-operation between the railway owners and the I. C. C. is brot to light in an article in the current issue of "Labor," organ of the railroad labor unions.

Feeling of the railroad bosses was opposed to the "B. and O." plan, when it was formulated by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists and chairman of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, which betrayed various groups of workers into the hands of LaFollette.

The railroad owners at that time imagined that giving the organized shopmen a chance to manage the petty details of shop routine, as the "B. and O." plan proposes, might curtail their powers.

The bosses have now come to see that the B. and O. plan, far from attempting to curtail the power of the employers offers them the best possible aid in squeezing all they can out of the workers, by offering small rewards for efforts at speeding up production.

"Stability" of employment conditions in the shops is said by the bosses to be the aim of the "B. and O." plan. Introduction of the plan does stabilize conditions—it prevents any attempts on the part of the workers to better their conditions by means of drastic action.

The visit of the committee of the executives' association points to an effort to bring the entire railroad industry of the United States under "the Baltimore and Ohio plan."

Young Workers of Pullman Hold Fine Organization Meet

With pluggers announcing the meeting spread broadcast thru the town a large gathering of young workers was held in Stanciik Hall—of Pullman car strike fame. One-hundred young workers who were present listened with great interest to Paul Cline's talk on what the Young Workers League means to the working youth of America and why they should join it.

Most of the young workers were total strangers to the idea of the class struggle, but they paid close attention to the militant message of the speaker.

The idea of organizing the class conscious and rebellious members of a shop into a committee to carry on the fight for better working conditions more pay, and the enrollment of the rest of the young workers into unions and into the league seemed to appeal particularly, and many of the young workers expressed their intention of coming to the next meeting which was called for the following Friday, in the same hall. At this meeting it is planned to take in new members, to make a drive for subscriptions to the Young Worker and to put the Pullman branch on a firm working basis.

Building Bolsheviks—the D. W. B. U.

SHOW THE BOLSHEVIK FILM ON THE COPPER RANGE IN MICHIGAN

Our members at Hancock, Mich., clearly understand the importance of the motion picture in furthering working class organization. The secretary writes:

"Our movement here is weak and we are trying to build it up—so we took to the films to wake up the workers. All the proceeds will go to the relief fund. We will show two days, Oct. 30 and 31."

The wisdom of a two-day show in any except the largest theaters was proven in New York where the crush on the first day was so great that five doors were pushed in by the great crowds that were afraid they would not get to see the film. Applications for dates are coming in fast and should be addressed to the Movie Dept., 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

Resume Tar Trial.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 15.—Trials of those indicted for participating in the tarring and feathering of Dorothy Grandon several weeks ago were resumed here today. The trial of Arthur Rice was the first on the calendar. Considerable difficulty was encountered in getting a jury, as nearly all those called for duty admitted that they had formed an opinion on the case.

PEOPLE'S COLLEGE OF WAUKEGAN, ILL., PLANS POLITICAL DEBATE, OCT. 26

Workers of Waukegan, Ill., interested in workers' education have been trying to organize a school for that purpose. For lack of sufficient interest among the organized workers this school has not yet been able to function properly.

However, the People's College, as this organization is called, has decided to have open forums during this winter at least once a month on which questions of political and economical interest to the workers will be discussed by competent speakers from different viewpoints.

The first meeting of this kind will be held Sunday, Oct. 26, at a place and time to be announced later. In this meeting representatives from the different political parties will appear and speak from the same platform, outlining what they propose to offer to the working class if elected to office.

The Workers (Communist) Party will be represented by J. Louis Engdahl, candidate for U. S. senator from Illinois. Engdahl is editor of the DAILY WORKER and an able speaker who will keep you interested.

Workers, you have been getting your information about the Communist movement of this country and the world from the yellow capitalist press, now you have a chance to hear what the Workers (Communist) Party in reality proposes to you, from a Communist who knows what he is talking about. Therefore don't miss this meeting. It will be interesting for all who toil.

"Mother" Bloor Speaks Oct. 22.

Ella Reeve Bloor will speak on the issues concerning the worker's in this political campaign, in Waukegan, Ill., at Worker's Hall, 517 Helmholz Ave., 8 p. m., Wednesday, Oct. 22. "Mother" Bloor is a veteran of the working class movement of the United States, an able speaker who will show the workers why they should vote in this presidential election for the Workers Party candidates.

LOVESTONE ON TOUR OF OHIO, PENNSYLVANIA

Speaks in Workshops of the World

Jay Lovestone, director of the Research Department and member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, will cover a series of campaign meetings in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The concluding weeks of the first Communist election campaign will prove to have had a lasting effect upon our party.

Party Holds Many Meetings.

Never in its history has the Workers Party held so many meetings within such a short space of time. Every leading party representative has been drawn into active service as a speaker. The Lovestone meetings have been arranged literally in the workshop of the world,—the industrial cities of western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio.

Lovestone has been in the revolutionary movement since 1911. He is the author of "The Government—Strikebreaker;" "Blood and Steel," "What's What About Coolidge," "The LaFollette Illusion," and "American Imperialism."

As director of the Research Department of the Workers Party he is especially fitted to deal with the candidacies of Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette. He will make a telling appeal to the industrial workers of Pennsylvania and Ohio to support the Communist candidates, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow.

GITLOW, WINITZKY AND OTHER GOOD SPEAKERS AT COMMUNIST RALLY AT THE LABOR LYCEUM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 15.—Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for vice-president on the Workers Party ticket, well known orator and labor leader will speak Friday, Oct. 24, at Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown Streets.

In addition to Comrade Gitlow the meeting will also be addressed by Harry Winitzky, candidate for congressman in New York, and by others.

Comrade Gitlow is a powerful speaker and is well known in "Philly," where his meetings always attracted large audiences

It is expected that the large hall, which seats about 2,000, will be packed as was the meeting of Comrade Foster, held in this city about a month ago. Do not fail to come and bring your friends along.

PHILADELPHIA YOUNG WORKERS TO LAUNCH FACTORY CAMPAIGN; ARRANGE BIG MASS MEETING

By MORRIS YUSEM, City Organizer, Young Workers League

PHILADELPHIA Pa., Oct. 15.—In Philadelphia, as in every other industrial center, thousands of young workers are subject to the worst enslavement imaginable. In its factories, mills and department stores, masses of young workers are wasting their lives away under the illusion that success will finally reward them.

It is the labor of these workers that has a great deal to do with the registering the stock quotations at Wall Street stock exchanges. This is the condition that brought into existence the Young Workers League, the only organization which has for its object to organize these thousands of the working youth for the struggle against the capitalist system.

The young workers here, as everywherd else, are faced with the problem of combating the intolerable working condition that prevails in those industries, in which labor of young workers predominates. A successful fight against these conditions can be launched by the young workers, only if they are well organized.

The Young Worker's League of Philadelphia is now launching a factory campaign. It will take the form of an intense agitation in those factories where young workers are mostly employed. Efforts will be made to organize shop committees, to represent the young workers collectively, so that they would face the boss united and not as individuals.

The Young Workers League, not only has for its object a fight against bad working conditions, but also to carry on education among the young workers and make them understand that all the misery, whether it is in the form of low wages, long hours, unemployment, or war is an effect of the capitalist system and that our ultimate aim must be nothing short of the complete abolition of this system.

The young workers of Philadelphia will have the opportunity to hear the program of the Young Workers League explained at a mass meeting and concert, which will be held at Eagles' Temple, Broad and Spring Garden Sts., Wednesday, Oct. 29, 8 p. m. Jack Stachel, district organiser of the New York District of the Young Workers' League, will be the main speaker. There will also be speakers in other languages, including Comrade Don of New York in Jewish, and Comrade Flayani of Philadelphia in Italian. An attractive musical program has been arranged. Admission will be free.

All young workers should join in this campaign and make it a real fight against capitalism.

The headquarters of the League are at 521 York Ave., near 5th and Spring Garden Sts., open from 8 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

Come and get acquainted.

PHILADELPHIA NEEDLE WORKERS ENDORSE THE COMMUNIST TICKET

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Local 139 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, one of the largest locals of this city, endorsed the Workers Party candidates for president and vice-president. This action was taken after a long and thoro discussion at a well attended meeting of the local.

An attempt by the officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America to get an endorsement of LaFollette by the Joint board of the Amalgamated of this city failed after a prolonged and heated discussion between the followers of LaFollette and those of Foster and Gitlow, despite the fact that Brother Clinton Golden, the state organizer of the union, is a member of the LaFollette campaign committee.

COMMUNIST LIBRARY IS ORGANIZED FOR PHILADELPHIA LABOR

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—A Communist library is being established by the Philadelphia local of the Workers Party at 521 York Avenue, near Fifth and Spring Garden Sts. Arrangements are made for a large and interesting selection of books and periodicals in various languages dealing with all phases of the labor movement. The need for such a library has been felt for a long time. The public libraries are completely controlled by the ruling class. Any book that looks to be even slightly red is being immediately eliminated. Every effort must be made to make this Workers' library a success.

The committee in charge of the library appeals to all party members and sympathizers to contribute books and pamphlets which they can spare and which may be of interest to the workers. The committee also appeals for cash contributions to the library fund with which it will be possible to build this important institution of the working class.

Admission to the library will be free. Those desiring will be able to take books home for a nominal monthly fee.

MINERS' LOCAL FOR FOSTER-GITLOW TICKET

Consign Gompers' Plea to Waste Basket

By JOHN INDOF.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

FITZ HENRY, Pa., Oct. 15.—That William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow are the candidates for the rank and file of the miners' union was demonstrated at a meeting of Local Union No. 2353, Fitz Henry, recently, when taking action on a circular appeal of the A. F. of L. asking endorsement and funds to further the candidacy of LaFollette and Wheeler.

At a previous meeting some of the district officials of the miners' union attempted to get the local to endorse the faker but to no avail. The appeal was unanimously voted down and the following motion made and carried, "That we condemn the executive council of the A. F. of L. for endorsing the little business man-banker-middle class candidates, and that we endorse the candidacy of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow as the only candidates worthy of the support of the working class."

Not content with this the miners arranged a mass meeting and invited a speaker of the Workers Party to address it. Pat H. Toohey the well known radical young mine leader addressed the meeting and it was well attended by the miners, and at the conclusion of the speech a tremendous ovation was given. The speaker, to the satisfaction of all very clearly analyzed and exposed the LaFollette illusion. Of course the reactionaries will shout that it was the reds at work, but there is not one single member of the Workers Party in this place. The exploited miners know that Foster and the Workers Party are for the abolition of the capitalist system, the system which oppresses all workers and all the others are for the capitalist system. The resolution unanimously adopted by local 2353, United Mine Workers of America, follows:

"Whereas, Local Union No. 2353, United Mine Workers of America, is in receipt of a communication from the American Federation of Labor, urging endorsement of Robert M. LaFollette and B. K. Wheeler independent candidates for president and vice president of the United States, and requesting contributions to further said candidacy and

"Whereas; this local union has at all times advocated independent political action of the working class, and have taken a definite stand for the formation of a Farmer-Labor party, and

"Whereas; the International convention of the United Mine Workers of America in the 1921 convention took a stand on the question of independent political action; therefore be it

"Resolved that local union No. 2353, United Mine Workers of merica, in regular meeting assembled condemn the action of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor by endorsing the little business man, banker, middle class candidate, and be it further

"Resolved that we endorse and work for William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow as the only candidates worthy of the support of the oppressed working class of America; and be it further

"Resolved that copies of this resolution be sent to the secretary of the American Federation of Labor, to the DAILY WORKER and spread upon the minutes of this local union."

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN FINDS MANY ACTIVITIES CARRIED ON BY WORKERS PARTY IN PHILADELPHIA

By R. BAKER.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 15.—This year's presidential campaign was the first opportunity of taxing to the limit the energies of the Workers Party members of Philadelphia. And the results are more than satisfactory.

Opening our campaign with a monster demonstration on Sept. 12 with our presidential candidate, William Z. Foster, in which over 2,000 workers participated, the party has been advancing like one solid, disciplined army.

Three branches that were given up for dead suddenly revived and together with the others kept our secretary busy making out new membership cards so fast that we are seriously considering getting an assitant to relieve the rush of work in the office.

Over 50 new members were admitted into the party during the month of September and the indications are that October will break the record.

Our membership in Philadelphia consists almost entirely of industrial workers scattered in over sixty local unions, and our industrial department has succeeded in bringing the Communist campaign issues in many unions; our comrades showing a splendid ability to fight.

The organization of Trade Union Educational League in various industries is proceeding with satisfactory results.

Our comrades were instrumental in organizing two unions and are showing an interest and developing ability in the trade union work that promises a healthy future to the party.

Distribute Many Platforms.

The party discipline in Philadelphia plays a serious and effective part in the movement; it is an instrument that is developing a real Communist organization.

Forty thousand party platforms have been distributed during the last eight weeks and 30,000 more are ready to go out.

Open air meetings have proven to be a real success and the number of sympathizers we are recruiting is surpassing our expectations.

Many new speakers were developed during the campaign among them a number of members of the Young Workers League. But the most satisfactory feature of the open air meetings is the huge amount of party literature that we sell and the intense interest shown by the large audiences that linger for hours after the meetings discussing the campaign issues.

But by far the greatest achievement of our Party in Philadelphia during this campaign is our Red Sunday, Oct. 19, when each of our 17 branches will hold a special meeting after which the distribution of 50,000 copies of the Philadelphia edition of the DAILY WORKER will take place. This will be a double drive; securing of new readers for the DAILY WORKER and advertising our Gitlow mass meeting for Oct 24 at the Labor Lyceum, 5th and Brown streets. And we also know how to enjoy ourselves.

First Concert Saturday.

On Saturday, Oct. 18, at the Eagle's Temple, at Broad and Spring Garden streets, all our comrades and sympathizers will be at the first concert and ball of the season. Many new faces and all old ones will be seen there enjoying the first rate musical program and dancing to the strains of dreamy music.

Our speakers' class will meet on Sunday mornings at the party headquarters at 521 York Ave (near 5th and Spring Garden Sts) is proving to be of great educational value and will be the means of organizing fifteen open air meetings for Saturday, Oct. 25. These meetings will be announced in the DAILY WORKER soon.

The party offices, located at 521 York Ave., are always buzzing with activity. Busy comrades are always going in and out, reports of activities keep our phone ringing constantly. Here our comrades meet and plan the party work.

Our friends and sympathizers are invited to visit us and get acquainted.

CIGARMAKERS IN PHILADELPHIA TOIL FOR 25 PER CENT LOWER WAGES THAN THEY GOT TWO YEARS AGO

By J. G.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 15.—The cigarmakers of this city and in Pennsylvania generally are working at a starvation wage and under the most unfavorable working conditions.

The industry is practically unorganized and the manufacturers continue to cut the wages any time they please. Those working in the cigar manufacturing industry are so brow beaten that they are even afraid to talk to their fellow workers of the unspeakable conditions under which they are compelled to slave day in and day out. The average price the workers are receiving for their work in this city now is 25 per cent lower than the price of two years ago despite the fact that the cost of living continues to rise. Yet not a single protest was registered during that time on the part of the workers.

Compete with Machines.

The cigarmakers who are doing so-called hand work are compelled to compete with those doing machine work and are able to hold their jobs only in so far as they are able to produce the goods as cheaply as do the machines. It takes the labor of the entire family of a cigarmaker to earn as much as a single man usually earns in any other industry.

The Tampa cigarmakers are on strike now fighting for better conditions. In New York the cigarmakers are preparing to strike in order to help their Tampa comrades. Yet the conditions of the Tampa cigarmakers were not as bad as those in our city. The Philadelphia cigarmakers by staying on the job, by filling the market with cheap cigars are giving a poor assistance to the Tampa comrades.

Workers Must Organize.

The time is now more than ripe for the Philadelphia cigarmakers to begin a serious organization campaign. There are at present more jobs than there are workers to fill them. The manufacturers can afford to pay the same wages that prevail in other industries. Lack of organization is the only reason why the cigarmakers are being so ruthlessly exploited.

There should be no question as to who should be the first ones to be organized, the machine hands or those doing "hand work."

It is high time that the Philadelphia cigarmakers come together and organize for a serious fight for a living wage and for human working conditions.

I. W. W. Convention Unity

The sound judgment shown thus far by the delegates to the 16th general convention of the I. W. W. is to be applauded. They have apparently gotten together independently of the two groups of quarreling officials who were clearly more interested in maintaining their personal dignity by a formal approbation granted their actions by a section of the delegates with others excluded, than in complete unity of the fighting membership. There are some good signs of leadership being shown in this struggle for unity.

If reports are true there are, however, some delegates yet outside, refusing to participate unless their demands are granted. What these demands are is unknown. These delegates are known, of course, to be bitterly opposed to the administration of Doyle and Fisher. They may feel justified in continuing the split, in fact others now participating may feel with them that if complaints against Doyle and Fisher are going to be forgotten amid the justified condemnation of those who applied for an injunction, they may as well stay out.

That Rowan does not anticipate with pleasure any facing of a united convention, is a matter of course. But the delegates have no part in his guilt. If the majority does not get chesty and arrogant, if the wise leadership shown thus far makes clear that the grievances against Doyle and Fisher, as well as those against Rowan and the rest, will find revolutionary justice, then these sincere worker delegates will understand that further resistance to unity is not fighting Doyle and Fisher, but fighting the I. W. W.

A few elements try to cast suspicion upon the interest shown by the Communists in the I. W. W., by raising the cry of "outsiders." Such a view is sectarian. However distinct an entity any labor organization, economic or political, may feel itself to be, it is—because its members are workers, an indivisible part of the whole working class. As such the Communists, who represent in the class struggle the revolutionary interests of no particular section but of the whole proletariat, are intensely concerned in any vital struggle within any labor organization.

This is the sole basis for the interest Communists feel in the struggle now going on in the I. W. W. That some exciteable and perhaps mendacious elements in the I. W. W. confuse the issue by chatter about "outside" influences, does not disprove this fact. It only proves that the role of the revolutionary party is not understood.

Exposed!

We breathe a long sigh of relief.

The first installment of the Daily News exposure of us has appeared. We were a little afraid that Jacob Spolansky, the author, whose name shows him to be of the purest American stock, would spoil the effect of his articles by immediately telling such thrilling secrets as the publication of the DAILY WORKER right here in Chicago and the candidacy of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow for the presidency and vice-presidency on a Communist program.

On the contrary, it is all too intriguing for words. We are especially interested in the remarkable knowledge of Communist activities displayed by Spolansky when he writes of Dennis Batt as "a member of the executive committee of the Communist Party who is now lecturing on Communism thruout the country."

This will puzzle somewhat the republican party machine in Detroit, Michigan, because Batt is running for congress on the regular republican party ticket. He is not a member of the Communist Party, but of the republican party.

This slight but obvious inaccuracy has shaken our confidence in the veracity of the author of the articles. We may be unduly carping in our desire for truth, but we must confess that the exposure has been spoiled for us. We hope Spolansky will be more careful in the future and we warn him that if he tries to link the Communists up with Charley Bryan we will sue him for libel provided we can get permission from the Communist International to use the capitalist courts.

There are a few things that even we long-suffering Communists will not stand for.

The New Orleans chamber of commerce claims that a white worker can live for $153 per year and a Negro worker for $119. After all the efforts made by the capitalists to foment race prejudice and create division between white and black workers, it appears that they figure the difference is only $34. This ought to make it easy for both races to get together in the fight for higher wages and bettter working conditions.

Send in that new "sub" today!

Britain's Troubles

Troubles crowd thick and fast upon the British Empire. Mass discontent in India, uprisings in the Sudan, chaos in China and now comes what amounts to an open threat of war by the Turks for Mosul with its rich deposits of oil for which the British imperialists long and to secure which they have bombed and killed Turkish troops.

Mosul belongs to Turkey. The forays of the British troops are in violation of international law and in direct contravention of the treaty with Turkey. It is imperialistic brigandage of the most brazen kind.

Premier MacDonald has approved of the methods used by his government in Mosul and is offended because the Angora government has written a sharp note concerning the murder of Turkish citizens. His pacifistic policies apply only to bourgeois Christians.

The Angora government, according to late dispatches, is about to issue a general mobilization order as a result of the advance of British troops and once more the Near East threatens to break into flames.

France, of course, is jubilant and is supporting the Turks because she is for anything that weakens England, her ancient and most dangerous enemy.

Peace and imperialism are incompatible.

The Bootlicking Bourgeoisie

The visit of the sub-normal heir to the British throne has served to give the workers of Chicago some insight into the sickening sycophancy of the upper strata of its capitalist class.

The Chicago Tribune staged the most disgusting exhibition of belly-crawling to royalty that has ever been seen in these parts. It devoted almost two pages to the exploits of the prince and the manner in which the females of the pork packing aristocracy displayed their charms to the critical eye of a debauched royal youth.

It inevitably calls to mind the parade of prostitutes that takes place during a convention of the Elks when the town is "thrown wide open."

We understand that the 400 has been split wide open by the favoritism shown in choosing guests for the royal function and this shows that there was complete unanmity in the matter of bootlicking. The only protest comes from those whose drooling mouths were prevented from caressing the prince's footwear.

This is the element that denounces the American workers because "they have forgotten what a day's work is," to quote the favorite expression of these gentry.

"Back to 1776" in Wisconsin

The names of Communist electors go on the Wisconsin ballot in spite of the opposition of the La-Follette forces and their open attempts to disfranchise Communists in the homeland of La-Follette democracy.

This incident occurs shortly after the courts had ruled LaFollette electors off the ballot in California and the injured champion of democracy for every place but Wisconsin emitted loud wails.

LaFollette and his clique are for democracy and constitutional provisions as long as these provisions work for their interests.

When the issue of the class struggle is clearly raised by the appearance of a revolutionary working class party in the field the LaFolletteites conveniently forget the democratic principles whose sole defenders they claim to be.

"Back to 1776," the LaFollette slogan, has a new significance if we only remember that in those ancient days the whole working class of the thirteen colonies was deprived of the franchise.

Communist Journalism

One of the important tasks of a Communist daily paper is the development of Communist journalists.

We have made some progress in this field but not enough. In this connection we wish to call the attention of our correspondents to what we consider as fine an example of Communist reporting as we have ever published—a story of a Berger meeting in Kansas City, carried on page four of the DAILY WORKER for Tuesday, October 14. No name is signed to the article but in sporting parlance "it has everything else." It gives the facts, it analyses them, it contrasts the reformist and the Communist viewpoint, it has punch and color and—it contains less than 500 words.

It is good writing and can be studied with profit by most of our contributors.

It is not un-Communistic to write plainly and in an interesting style.

Get a member for the Workers Party and a new subscription for the DAILY WORKER.

Aid Paterson!

A call for aid has been sent by the Paterson silk strikers to 1,200 working class unions and fraternal societies.

In these bodies there are many Communists and wherever the call is read it must be made an issue.

It is in this manner that the fighting front of the Paterson strike can be extended and thousands of workers in other districts brought into the struggle.

This is real Communist activity and the kind that counts.

Stuff by Spolansky Is Worthless Trash

Michigan, that his career as a detective began in July, 1919, when he became a special agent of the department of justice, going from the army directly into the secret service.

"I have been a special agent since July, 1919," he repeated.

Q: "You have only been a special agent since the war?"

A: "I have been a special agent since July, 1919."

Q: "How long were you in the army?"

A: "I believe from April 1918 to July 1919."

"Chapter I," of Spolansky's Daily News narrative starts off like the first chapter of a ten-cent thriller.

"Strangers embraced each other in wild abandon and passed on, singing and shouting. No time, this, for gloom or proprieties." It was Armistice day! No doubt in the world about the date. Armistice Day, November 11, 1918. Spolansky repeats it a number of times to make sure. The entire scene is depicted with a vividness that fixes it definitely in the memory.

Only one man took no joy in the celebration. With a sour look on his surly face he alighted from his automobile, "dismissed the chauffeur with a nod, and, after pausing to light a cigar, picked his way carefully across the sidewalk to the building entrance. Here he paused again and looked about, then opened the door and went quickly inside."

This was William Bross Lloyd, the villain in the piece, "to whom," says the erudite Spolansky, "may be attributed in large part the founding of the Communist movement in the United States."

The Truth About the Meeting.

As a matter of fact, there was a meeting in the Mid-City Bank building that day, but it was not the sort of meeting written up so luridly for the Chicago Daily News. Spolansky did not have to do any shadowing to learn about it. It was in no sense a secret meeting; nor was the American Communist movement founded there—because the movement had already been founded, in the shape of an organized left wing inside the socialist party. Some of the socialist party offices were located in the building, and the meeting, [illegible] got-together of socialists opposed to the reactionary Hillquit-Berger leadership. While a number of those present never became a part of the regular Communist movement in this country, the meeting resulted in the formation of the Communist Propaganda League of Chicago—in no sense an "underground" organization.

Spolansky's fairy tale is absurd from start to finish. He speaks confidingly of Alexander Stoklitsky, as a man who "had been sent here by Trotzky for the express purpose of spreading propaganda and furthering the Communist idea thruout America." Stoklitsky had been living in New York for eleven years before the supposed date of his arrival on the organized left wing movement.

Lloyd Doesn't Smoke Cigars.

Even the minutest details of the story are out of harmony with sober reality. For instance, Lloyd's cigar. Lloyd never had a cigar in his mouth. He smoked cigarettes, one after another—and when Spolansky declares he had been following Lloyd for weeks, he certainly does not do credit to his own powers of observation.

Those who read the present series of articles in the DAILY WORKER as an attack on capitalist contemporary, the Daily News, deserves scant praise for hooking up with such a discredited sneak as Jacob Spolansky. The News refers to Spolansky as a former agent of the department of justice. It does not say that he has been kicked out of the department as an undesirable character. Spolansky was one of a group of 60 finks and gunmen, holdovers from the vicious Burns-Daugherty regime in the secret service, who were fired recently in the attempt to institute something like a pretense of decency in the affairs of the department of justice.

Thrown out of a job, the resourceful Spolansky bethought himself of the numerous Red scares and bomb plots which he and his Burns associates had used as [illegible]ably in the days gone by. He decided to be a great feature writer, an expert on "the Red menace." With the help of someone more literate than he, he quickly worked over the mess of junk. And so the series of articles on the Chicago plots of the reds was born. He peddled trash from newspaper office to newspaper office, but his stories had long since been thoroly discredited. Nobody accepted him, nobody would trust him.

Read the DAILY WORKER.

It remained for the Chicago Daily News to purchase and publish these silly "mystery stories," which had been rejected everywhere else and which were known to be as notorious a collection of fakes as has yet been conjured up. That the News could do this proves to what lengths a capitalist newspaper will go to confuse the workers. Workers will never find their interests reflected in the capitalist press. They should read the DAILY WORKER, a labor newspaper, pledged to the interests of labor.

In my previous article I pointed out that fakery is no new thing with Spolansky, nor with the school of sleuthing to which he belongs. In January, 1919, he tried to establish himself as an anti-Red hero by pulling off a flashy raid on the Technical School maintained by the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, an organization of Russians which has done praiseworthy work in sending tractor units and other technical help to the Workers' Republic. The school was then located on Robey street, near Division. Spolansky had 100 members of the school arrested and over 600 Russians thruout Chicago, whom he swore were members of the Communist Party. After a thoro investigation, involving repeated visits to the school and examination of witnesses, every one of the prisoners taken in Spolansky's "personally conducted" raid was discharged. Sam H. Holland, who was called by the government as a special witness during the investigation declares that the Technical School affair was a plain attempt at frame-up.

Labor Must Fight Frame-up.

Frame-ups such as the ones specialized in by ex-fink Jacob Spolansky are among the most dangerous obstacles which the workers have to face in their struggle against the bosses. There is a whole tradition of frame-ups, by secret service men and private stoolpigeons, for the purpose of getting militant working class leaders out of the way. The well-known case of Jacob Dolla is one of the most recent. The Labor Defense Council is at present collecting funds for the defense of six steel workers, five of them members of the Workers Party, who were framed at Farrell, Pa., by government agents working under the orders of the steel trust. With the assistance of fake witnesses, an attempt is being made to railroad them to jail on a trumped-up charge of "sedition against the state of Pennsylvania." As always, the workers are at disadvantage. The prosecution has behind it the power of the steel trust, while the defendants must rely on the small sums sent in by their self-sacrificing fellow workers.

Nevertheless, the Labor Defense Council intends to fight the Farrell case thru. With the continued help of Spolansky and the Chicago Daily News, the whole caboodle of professional finks and frame-up men will soon be so discredited that every intelligent worker will see the need of springing to the aid of his comrades when they are attacked.

Chapter II of Spolansky's lying "expose" will be treated in a subsequent article.

Farrington Caught Selling Miners' Votes

love with the bosses as the officials of the union and they gave the militant Nick a clean bill of health.

Farrington's explanation of how Perkovitz violated the union rules was nauseating, and disgusted many who until then had some respect for him. The way he lit into the coal digger and defended the boss robbed him of every shred of working class decency in the eyes of his audience. Now it is our turn to prove that Farrington holds the laws of the union sacred only when he can use them against a political enemy who is anxious to fight the boss. When the laws stand in the way of his own material interess, they go by the board.

Violated Constitution.

There is a provision in the miners' constitution which reads as follows:

"Local unions, individual members and all other persons are hereby prohibited from using the name of our organization for the purpose of furthering the interests of any political party or aspirant for political office, except for such legislative offices as are provided for in the international constitution."

This is quite explicit. No doubt the paragraph was originally inserted to prohibit union officials from trading their influence over the rank and file of the miners to the capitalist parties. But Farrington honored this law in the breach and not in the observance.

Sold Out to Democrats.

In the year 1916, Col. Frank L. Smith of Dwight, Illinois, was a candidate for governor on the democratic ticket. Farrington saw here an opportunity to make some real money by selling the miners' votes. He sent out a letter endorsing Smith and condemning Lowden, Smith's republican opponent.

The letter was written on the official stationery of the United Mine Workers of America, District 12, with Frank Farrington's name and address at the top. It was dated July 26, 1916 and reads in part as follows:

"COLONEL FRANK L. SMITH,
"Dwight, Illinois.

"Dear Colonel: I employ this means of endorsing your candidacy for governor. I trust you will be nominated in the primary that will be held Sept. 12. There are many reasons why I do so.

"Having lived the greater part of my life in the county adjoining the one in which you have lived the greater part of your life, I know of your struggles from a common worker with your hands to a position in life that makes you a worthy candidate for governor of our great state.

"Born without a patrimony, compelled from your earliest youth to depend upon your own brawn and brain, with no heritage but an abundance of courage, an honest heart and clever brain, you have forged ahead from a farmhand, telegraph lineman and railroad man to a dealer in lands, banker of deserved repute and influential man of affairs. This is a long hard road for any man to travel; only the most competent could make the journey. But you have done it, and you did it without any asset except your own pluck, integrity and splendid ability. With the qualities that have enabled you to do this, with your broadness of vision, liberality of action, strength of character and your penchant for justice and square dealing, surely you would make an ideal governor.

"Now, I am going to tell you of some material reasons why you should be nominated and elected.

"First of all, let me say—our primary law was designed expressly for the purpose of freeing the people of boss rule and machine tactics, and to place the nomination and election of public officials directly in the hands of the people. So far as I know, you are the only candidate for governor who has approached the people solely on your own responsibility and merits and who is not dominated by or subject to dictation from a clique of political bosses.

"Colonel Lowden has the Thompson-Lundin crowd of Cook county politicians behind him, while Mr. Hull is dominated by the Deneen-West crowd, each of which factions is fighting desperately to control the political destinies of the state, and each of which is interposing its political power between the people and the people's right to nominate and elect as the primary law was intended they should nominate and elect.

"He who is supported by the bosses shall be held accountable by the bosses, but he who goes directly to the people shall be accountable to the people only, and he will, therefore, be more careful of the people's interest. If I had no other reason for supporting your candidacy, your independence of boss dictation would be sufficient to induce me to do so, but I do have other reasons. . . ."

Admires Rich Men.

Col. Smith was a real estate owner and banker. Note how Farrington congratulates the banker on his rise in the world! This proves that to Farington the acquisition of wealth is the greatest achievement that anybody can claim.

Not also that Farrington says about the "Thompson-Lundin crowd" and the "Deneen-West crowd," who were then as now "fighting desperately to control the political destinies of the state." In 1916 Farrington opposed them—for a consideration.

Today he is lined up with them, also for a consideration.

Caught with Goods.

The Illinois miners caught Farrington with the goods in the 1916 deal with the democrats. But it is reasonable to assume that the price of his support of the "Lundin-Thompson-Small crowd' and the "Deneen-West crowd" is more considerable than even the privilege of appointing the members of the Illinois industrial relations commission, thus creating jobs for his relatives, and his henchmen who aid him in keeping a stranglehold on the Illinois Miners' Union.

But it appears that Colonel Frank L. Smith did not come across with the long green to suit Frank. He sent a telegram to Smith demanding that he come across with the rest of the money. This telegram is dated July 10, shortly before he issued the endorsement. Farrington would not deliver the goods until the coin was paid over.

The telegram reads as follows:

July 10, 1916.

"Colonel Frank L. Smith,
"LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, Ill.

"Ames has not yet returned report of committee on industrial relations. Need it for letter I am to write you. Nor have you fulfilled your promise made me while in Chicago week before last. It is necessary that I have remainder of amount agreed to at once so that I may go on with the work of organization.

"Frank Farrington."

Took Precautions.

Realizing that this action would produce a storm in the miners' union, he sends another telegram to friends in Seattle urging them to invite him out there. The telegram is addressed to Robt. H. Harlan, care Grand Union Hotel, Seattle, Washington, under date of July 29, 1916, and reads as follows: "Would like to get wire from you urging me to attend your joint conference.

"Frank Farrington."

All these telegrams are charged to the Mine Workers. Even when Farrington is transacting private business of a particularly delicate nature he insists on making the coal diggers pay the incidental expenses.

The next article will, follow the trail of this notorious labor faker a bit further. As the comic strip artist says "the worst is yet to come."

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

An Enlightened Worker.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Traveling thru the Berkshire Hills, the train stopped right in the heart of a factory. The workers filled the coaches, and I questioned one of them, who took a seat beside me. The factory was the General Electric Co. of Pittsfield, Mass., where 8 to 10 thousand workers are employed. This week they will be reduced four work days a week.

"Yes, it is an open shop. To get a job there you have to give up your union. There isn't any organization of workers in this shop and they are too strict about it; they are discharging and cutting down the wages right along. Oh, that new shop under construction? That is for radio. No, they don't suggest or tell us whom to vote for."

The General Electric company of Pittsfield, Mass., like others in other parts of the country, are playing the same old game specially during election campaign, that is, discharging and cutting down the wages, a wise maneuver to elect Coolidge.

The following day (Sunday) in Pittsfield, Mass. I overheard an old man, what a picture of health, wrinkles and bones?—age over 80, working in General Electric Co. You can see, by his dress he is a working man. He says he has a good wife. They have no house of their own. Is an eager admirer of Coolidge. He says "Coolidge is the only man."

Good many workers don't know how their bosses make the workers propagate and vote against their own class which will reward the workers with plenty of everything such as more pleasure, more birth, more scabs, more profits, plenty of work hours, plenty of weeks days, plenty of overproduction, plenty of free bread (in bread lines), plenty of "charity" such as, commercialized hospitals, schools and churches. Plenty of jobs in navy and army, plenty of eats (beans), plenty of sporting, boxing. The present administration of Coolidge recently threw gloves in the face of Japan and now they are looking for boss offices to direct the Wall street machinery (Legion) by radio.

Once upon a time I was a soldier without ammunition in that above mentioned train, I was wounded thru my heart.

Kindly send me Communist campaign literature so I can have some on me all the time for free distribution, please don't forget to send a bill too.

A. Worker.

Trips Up Kate O'Hare.

To the DAILY WORKER:—A good example of the bankruptcy of the La-Follette movement insofar as ideas are concerned is to be found in the experience I had today in listening to a LaFollette meeting at Columbus Circle addressed by Kate Richards O'Hare.

In the course of her speech she claimed that Wisconsin has given the workers of that state ideal conditions which placed it as an example for the rest of the country, also that LaFollette has always supported all labor bills that had ever came before him. I questioned her at the end of the meeting during which she made a patriotic flag waving speech about La-Follette as the only man who will save the constitution and bring democracy back for the people of this country.

I asked her what about the low wages of Wisconsin workers, also the fact that there are more childworkers in that state than in the state of New York in spite of the fact that the latter has a much larger population. I also called her attention to the fact that LaFollette had opposed bills supported by the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor which had as their purpose the abolishment of the national guard and private detective agencies which are used to break strikes.

She did not answer my questions to the point but evaded them all by saying I was misinformed or she never heard of what I said before. And let a little earlier in her speech she boasted of the fact that LaFollette had been a personal friend of hers for many years.

LaFollette has not a leg to stand on! Spread the message of Communism!—Sylvan A. Pollack.

CHINESE WORKERS BEAT FASCIST

DAILY NEWS, BRASS CHECKER WITHOUT BLUSH, CONTINUES TO PUBLISH LIES BY SPOLANSKY

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Despite the conclusive proof in yesterday's DAILY WORKER that Jacob Spolansky, discharged federal fink, is either a perjurer or a liar, and probably both, the Chicago Daily News continues to print his poison-pen articles attacking the Communists, and to advertise him as a reliable authority on radicalism and radical activities.

Thus far the News might have pretended that it was taken in by the persuasive Spolansky and did not know it was printing lies. Now it shares complete moral and material responsibility.

This should be an elementary school lesson to workers in the role and method of the capitalist press in the class struggle.

The only newspaper in Chicago where workers can expect to read the truth about themselves is the DAILY WORKER.

Spolansky's second article in the News is as illuminating as his first, which is another way of saying that it does not shed any light. Apparently he has made the transcendental discovery that Chicago, where the Workers Party has its national headquarters, is the center of the Communist movement in merica. Everyone knew this before but it did not seem so mysterious. Our literary sleuth has also discovered that many workers became Communists when they lost their jobs in 1919. We can add the information—which the Daily News is at liberty to spread broadcast—that many workers who have lost their jobs are joining the Communist movement today, in the same spirit of disillusionment with the capitalist system.

One Genuine in Six.

And the rest is lies. Spolansky gives the names of six men who, he says, went to Russia from the United States following the Russian revolution and became leading figures in the Soviet Republic. One of them he refers to as "an anarchist who had butchered a family"; another as "a Chicagoan of dubious reputation,"—and so forth and so on. Of the six names mentioned, one is genuine. The other five have never been heard of. The story is on a par with the "rumors" which used to emanate at regular intervals from Helsingfors or Riga two or three years back, informing us, thru the capitalist press, of the murder of Trotsky by Lenin or the assassination of Lenin by Trotsky.

The entire article is sprinkled with casual statements which do no particular harm, but which reveal Spolansky as an ignoramus, utterly unfit to write intelligently about the revolutionary movement of the working class.

Russian bolshevism, he says, "dates back to 1907, when, at an international socialist congress in Germany, an upheaval took place in the socialists' ranks. The majority, under Lenin, decided upon the adoption of the principles that socialism, opposing warfare, should refuse recognition of international aspirations and agitate for a social revolution, and called themselves the 'bolsheviki,' which in Russian means 'the majority.'"

His History Mixed.

Everybody knows that the split between "bolsheviki" and "mensheviki" took place not in 1907, but in 1903, at a convention of the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party. The division was over the questions of tactics, centralization and discipline, and the separate role of the proletariat in the Russian movement.

Which explains how absurd is the Daily News statement that Spolansky is an expert on Communism and that radicals are so afraid of him that they have many times threatened his life. Spolansky was a daily visitor at the last convention of the Workers Party, in Chicago. He sat thru all the sessions, undisturbed, and of course did not understand a word of what was going on.

Spolansky is insignificant. He is important only as an example of the

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

It is suggested that John W. Davis take out sickness insurance on his campaign speakers, particularly those who "also ran" for the nomination. Williams Gibbs McAdoo announced shortly after the Madison Square Garden convention that he would make a speaking tour for Morgan's attorney. He started, but by taking an extended trip to Europe. On his return, he went to a hospital, and gave gravel in his bladder or gall stones,or something like that as the excuse for his failure to fulfill his promise. He now claims that his doctor forbids him to take the platform.

• • • •

WHETHER McAdoo has too much gall or too much gravel in the wrong part of his anatomy, we cannot say. But we know that he had plenty of gall when he demanded the support of the American workers and exploited farmers on the basis of his "hostility" to Wall Street, in view of his past record. His conduct now is gall and wormwood to John W. Davis. Mac may be sick but it does not take a very lively imagination to picture that cake-eater's smile on his phiz as he contemplates the dilemna Davis finds himself in.

• • • •

GOVERNOR AL SMITH also promised Davis that he would take off his coat during the campaign. He did not explain at the time that he intended to disrobe in a sanitarium. But that is what has happened. Smith was about to start out campaigning for Davis when he was seized with a mysterious malady known as political paralysis. Al is now being wheeled around in a chair like Sam Gompers. Perhaps he learned the trick from Sam.

SMITH heard voices in the air. They did not come from heaven, but from a more "regular" voting district. Al was informed by those voices that if he forgot Davis considerably during the campaign, that he might be governor of the state of New York for a few more years. This news made him sick, but it is expected that he will recover.

THIS capitalist politicians give Morgan and Co. many bad half hours. If it were only possible to have a Mussolini and sack the pesky politicians, or compel them to take orders under pain of death, things would be very much simplified for the big capitalists. But the capitalists and their servants in the government of the nation, states and cities are only united against the working class. Among themselves they fight like Kilkenny cats. Arthur Brisbane, the oracle of the Hearst press, forgets this illuminating fact when he starts out to prove that the workers can never free themselves because they do not know how to unite.

• • • •

ARTHUR is crazy in the top story—but he is only foolish like a fox. He is crazy with a purpose. He wants to instil defeatist ideas into the heads of the workers; make them believe their cause is hopeless. But Arthur might look at Russia and change his mind. The workers of Russia have given the workers of the rest of the world a good object lesson in the art of achieving and winning their freedom. The lesson will have more effect on the workers than the alcholic light-wine-and-beer vaporings of Brisbane.

One Grain of Truth; a Hundred Lies

By C. E. RUTHENBERG,
Executive Secretary, Workers Party.

ONE gains the impression from chapters four and five of Jacob Spolansky's romance about the "reds" that this government spy was in China during the period of 1919-1920 in place of being in the pay of the government to get facts about the Communist movement.

There are just two statements which are true in the latest installment of his stories. One is that there was a Communist party organized in 1919 and the other that the government tried to destroy it at the end of 1919 and the beginning of 1920 thru arresting between these or four thousand of its members.

The rest of the story as told by Spolansky, or by the person who is writing the story for him, originated in either the imagination of the police spy or his journalistic agent.

Some History.

Altho Spolansky testified at St. Joseph that he attended a six-day Communist Party convention held in Smolny Hall, 1219 Blue Island Ave., from September 1 to September 6, 1919, at which the Communist Party organized, he has this convention taking place in the Machinists' Hall on Ashland Boulevard. He has Adolph Germer, who was then the secretary of the socialist party and who was and is one of the bitterest right wing yellow socialist opponents of the Communists, as secretary of the Communist convention!

There were three conventions held in the early days of September, 1919. The socialist party convention from which a left wing group split away to form the Communist Labor Party and the convention of the Communist Party of America.

After the conventions of September the Communist Party of America and the Communist Labor Party functioned separately until the raid at the end of the year when efforts began to unite the two organizations. All that Spolansky tells about the Moscow agents which forced the two organizations to unit and the convention in the Forest Preserves is utter rot. No convention as described by Spolansky was held in the Forest Preserves and no representatives of the Communist International were present at the convention which organized the United Communist Party.

The whole story told by Spolansky in the third installment is a hoax. If any one of the cub reporters of the capitalist newspapers which are publishing these stories should write a similar story of his own imagination he would be just as near to the facts as Spolansky.

The Government Red Raid.

There is, however, a question which Spolansky raises which deserves further attention. "How the government reacted to the Communist activity, everyone knows," he writes.

If everyone knew how the government reacted it would be indeed a desirable thing. If everyone could read the senate investigations of Palmer's red raids in which Spolansky aided, they would get the story of the

FARRINGTON IS TRIED FOR DEAL WITH DEMOCRAT

Coal Operators Save His Bacon

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Five.)

In the preceding article Farrington was shown peddling the influence of his office as president of the Illinois Miners' Federation, for cash, to Colonel Frank L. Smith, banker and democratic politician. Having violated the constitution of his organization and fearing the wrath of the membership he fled to Seattle after having carefully planned to secure an invitation from one of his cronies in that city.

But the miners were not willing to let him get away with his corrupt and treacherous dealings with the democratic banker. But before I treat of the miners' move to punish this crooked faker, I will touch on his activities in getting elected president of the Illinois Miners' Union.

Wanted More Leeway.

The position of International Board member pulled on Farrington. It did not allow him sufficient scope for his ambitions. There were too many restrictions. The rich pickings of the great Illinois coal fields beckoned to him. The prospects of easy money

Buried Alive in Cement.

KENDALVILLE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Fred Haulsey, 28, was buried alive in a cement bin of the Wabash Portland Cement company at Stroh, today, when a retaining wall gave way. He was shovelling cement from a bin into a conveyor when the accident occurred. A widow survives.

Bridge Collapses.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 16.—At least one man was killed and it is feared the bodies of others may be found in the ruins of a section of the steel bridge over the Ohio river which collapsed here today.

NOTORIOUS BRITISH LABOR FAKER TO VISIT THE UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—J. Havelock Wilson, president of the International Seafarers' Federation and president of the National Sailors' and Firemens' Union of Great Britain and Ireland, is newly arrived in the United States to study problems of American seamen. Other representatives of the Federation are accompanying Wilson and will discuss marine workers' problems with secretary of labor Davis in Washington. Wilson is interested in explaining to Americans the National Maritime Board of 48 members, shipowners' representatives and union men, before which all questions of wages, hours, and conditions are brought. Wilson and his party will be visitors at the American Federation of Labor convention in El Paso in November. Wilson was employed as a rigger in the construction of the Brooklyn bridge.

DUNNE OPENS ILLINOIS COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN DOWNSTATE TONIGHT

William F. Dunne, candidate for governor of Illinois on the Communist ticket, makes his first downstate campaign speech tonight in West Frankfort, in Lithuanian Hall. Dunne will then tour the mining centers of southern Illinois, following which he speaks at a mass meeting in St. Louis, Mo., in Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards, Sunday, Oct. 19, at 8 p. m.

Dunne's complete list of dates is as follows:

Friday, Oct. 17, Christopher, Opera House.

Saturday, Oct. 18, Dowell.

Sunday, Oct. 19, at 2 p. m., Granite City, Labor Temple.

Sunday, Oct. 19, at 8 p. m., St. Louis, Mo., Unity Hall, corner Page and Grand boulevards.

Monday, Oct. 20, Belleville, Veiles' Hall.

Tuesday, Oct. 21, Collinsville, City Hall.

PATCH UP UNITY IN CONVENTION OF I. W. W. HERE

The public sessions of the 16th general convention of the Industrial Workers of the World got under way yesterday, after three days of patching up unity between the Rowan-Bowerman-Griffith and the Doyle-Fisher groups.

A half session was devoted to election of committees. The work of the convention will start at nine o'clock this morning with the reading of the minutes of the previous session, to be followed by the reports of committees.

Tabib is Unseated.

A second delegate was unseated just before the convention opened to the public on the grounds that he was partial to the controversy. Caesar Tabib, of the General Construction Workers' Union, No. 310, was unseated because it was alleged he helped others circulate matter attacking those I. W. W. members who had accepted conditional commutation of their terms in prison. The other delegate who was unseated, is Mike Sapper, making one delegate from each faction to be denied credentials as a delegate.

Much comment was heard from the delegates relative to the report of the convention printed in the DAILY WORKER yesterday morning. Some delegates demanded that the DAILY WORKER print only the stories given them by the I. W. W. press committee, which has just been formed, of which

HOLD CAPACITY FOSTER MEET AT DETROIT, MICH.

Communist Gets Good Response in Auto City

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 16.—William Z. Foster, presidential candidate of the Workers Party, was the attraction that packed the capacity of the House of Masses at his recent meeting in Detroit.

The Foster meeting was one of the largest and most successful ever held in this city. The entire audience paid twenty-five cents admission to hear Foster and in addition a collection of several hundred dollars was taken.

Much Literature Sold.

A large amount of campaign and general party literature was sold. Several new applicants for membership were received and a number of subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER were added to its Detroit list. The Foster meeting at Detroit was particularly successful in the large number of trade unionists which it attracted.

Comrade Foster's speech repeatedly stirred his audience to a wildly enthusiastic response. While he ruthlessly flayed the old party candidates, Coolidge and Davis his most detailed castigation was reserved for LaFollette. Speaking of him, he said: "There is some analogy between the campaign of Senator LaFollette and that of the campaign of the parties of Herriot in France and MacDonald in England."

In the present political crisis which faces the workers of America the LaFollette movement with its liberals headed by the Wisconsin senator are the hope of the ruling industrialists and financiers. This movement and its "liberals" is attracting the attention and energy of the working class away from the class struggle.

All Believe in Capitalism.

"In Europe the ruling industrialists and financiers are willing to turn the governments over to men like LaFollette, Herriot and MacDonald. They know those men and their followers believe in the present system of private ownership but will at the same time give the working class some vague expectation of satisfactorily improving it."

It is expected that the high spot in the present Eastern tour of Foster will be the big meeting scheduled for him at New York City and Brooklyn. For several weeks the New York party organization has put forth intensive efforts to make them the most successful ever held in the metropolis.

These meetings will be held at New York City, New Star Casino, 107th St. and Park Ave., Sunday, October 19, at 2 p. m., and Brooklyn, N. Y., Arcadia Hall, 918 Halsey St., Sunday, October 19, at 8 p. m.

FORCES OF SUN YAT SEN UNDER RED FLAG INFLICT BIG DEFEAT ON ALLIES OF BRITISH BANKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CANTON, China, Oct. 16.—Chinese workers, organized as a "Red Army" under the leadership of General Sun Yat Sen, have delivered a stunning defeat to the Fascisti forces under the leadership of the Chinese merchants backed by the British and United States governments.

At the end of a battle that raged thru the streets of this city for two days, the Chinese workers completely defeated the Fascisti opposition.

The Chinese workers fought under the Red Flag and made bayonet attacks on the enemy raising the cry of a "Soviet Republic." The demoralization of the Fascisti and their merchant backers is complete.

While fleeing from the Chinese red soldiers, the Fascisti brigands found time to set fire to hundreds of buildings. The red forces now have the fire under control and the task of mopping up the remainder of the black shirts is pursued with great vigor.

Chinese Attention to Detail.

The story from our Canton correspondent is the climax of a series of incidents beginning with the shipment of a consignment of arms to the Canton merchants from the British bank at Hong Kong. The ship was accompanied by a British warship which forced the Sun government under threat of immediate hostilities to allow the Canton merchants to receive the weapons.

The Canton workers however seized the arms and are now using them with telling effect on the enemy. According to other dispatches, the British and American forces are threatening to invade Canton and establish a joint protectorate over South China, the stronghold of Chinese radicalism.

The arming of the Chinese workers to fight for themselves against the capitalists is an event of historic significance. It is news that sounds bad to the ears of the bourgeoisie of the world.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — Two American war ships, the Sacramento and Pamtanga, have been ordered to Canton as the result of the defeat of the Fascisti by Dr. Sun Yat Sen's troops.

DAWES PLAN IS BRIDGE TO NEW WORLD CONFLICT

By JAY LOVESTONE
(Ninth Article)

The Dawes plan is a bridge to the next world war. The Dawes scheme, heralded far and wide as leading to the crossroads of peace, leads straight to a new imperialist conflict.

All the commercial rivalries, all the struggles for the industrial and financial supremacy which gave rise to the last devastating catastrophe are only intensified by the Dawes proposals.

A thick pall of gloom is already hovering over many British industries which are paralleled in Germany. The fear of a revival of German competition from an economically revitalized Germany is already haunting France.

Germs of New World War.

Then it is obvious that the essential prerequisites for the success of the Dawes proposals demand a lowering of the standards of living of the German working masses. The immediate effect of this assault on the welfare of the working class of Germany will be a lowering of the standards of living among the French, British, and Belgian workers. The continuation of this degrading process is bound to engulf the workers of every country in the world, in view of the international character of capitalist production and exchange.

Finally a grave menace confronts the workers of the United States and the other countries in the rise of America as the strongest imperialist power. The investments of the Yan-

DEFEAT POLICE BAN ON SPEECH IN SILK STRIKE

Communists Hold Right to Address Workers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 16.—After three weeks of struggle to establish the right of Communists to talk to the silk strikers in Paterson, just three weeks to a day after Chief of Police Tracey had closed Pirola's Turn Hall because of Communist speeches of H. M. Wicks, the hall was opened this morning and Wicks spoke before a packed meeting of strikers who staged a demonstration such as has seldom been witnessed in all the history of Paterson strikes.

Win Free Speech Fight.

The capitulation of the police came after a free speech fight conducted by the Civil Liberties Union and after many prominent people had come to his city to establish the right of anyone to speak regardless of their political affiliations.

This morning Roger Baldwin and a number of his associates were here ready to carry the fight further, but it had already been won late yesterday afternoon.

Chief Tracey capitulated after a stormy conference including Tracey, Charles Pirola, owner of Turn Hall, Comrades Louis Stein and Wicks. Wicks told Tracey that he was going to speak if he had to become a resident of Paterson in order to continue the fight. Wicks further said that if he had committed any crime it was the duty of the police to arrest him but warned Tracey that if he arrested him he had better make it good in a high court, otherwise he would be sued for false arrest. Tracey finally said he would order his men to permit the meeting and the Morning Call carried his statement.

Await Next Move.

The Evening News carried screaming headlines to the effect that Wicks would never be permitted to speak in the city of Paterson because he had betrayed the cause of the strikers into the hands of Communists under the direction of the Russian Soviet government.

It reprinted it its entirety a manifesto issued by the Workers Party in which Paterson assailns the police for their suppression of free speech and urging Paterson workers to vote for Foster and Gitlow.

Now that Wicks is again addressing the strike meeting, strikers are awaiting with interest the reaction of the kept press that has boasted that it won a great victory by excluding Wicks from the platforms of the city.

Journeymen Tailors In New York City Hold Meeting Monday

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A meeting of the Journeymen Tailors' Union, Local No. 1, will be held Monday, Oct. 20, 8 p. m., at Maennerchor Hall, 56th street, between 2nd and 3rd avenue, New York City. Important matters are on the order of business and it is imperative that every member attend this meeting without fail.

TEACHERS HAVE MC ANDREW ON THE DEFENSIVE

Show Up Irregularities in Recommendations

The teachers of Chicago have got Superintendent McAndrew on the defensive.

They are now openly challenging McAndrew to produce evidence on his statement that an anonymous teacher has voiced to him the sentiments of the teachers with regard to secret markings.

McAndrew Fails to Appear.

Twice Miss Margaret Haley, business agent of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, has appeared before the administration committee of the board of education to thrash out this question. Twice Superintendent McAndrew has failed to appear. At the first meeting Mrs. Lillian Hefferan, then in the chair, requested a few members of the committee to phone Mr. McAndrew to be present. The first part of the meeting was dragged out to give him a chance to appear. The superintendent did not show up and James Mullenbach, member of the committee, suggested that they postpone the matter until the next day, Wednesday, Oct. 15, and McAndrew be requested to appear.

The next day the meeting was called to order at 4 o'clock. Miss Haley was there, the teachers filled the seats in the rear of the hall some even standing, but McAndrew failed to show up.

Mr. James Mullenbach again moved that the matter be deferred until the next meeting of the administration committee and the superintendent be informed that he is to appear at this meeting to take up the matter under discussion, secret markings.

Question Up Several Months.

The matter of secret markings has been before the board for several months. On June 19 of this year the Teachers' Federation, the teachers' union of Chicago, adopted a resolution asking the board of education to abolish the system of secret markings. They requested the board to give the teachers the same consideration shown the engineers in their examinations. The engineers' examination papers contain the name of the marker, thus enabling the owner of the paper to get further information about his marks if he desires them.

Teachers, on the other hand, have no redress if they feel that they have been given an unfair marking. A teacher may fail to get an examination for a position of higher degree and never know why.

"Can there be any better and more efficient method of crushing the spirit of the teachers?" the militant members of the Teachers' Federation ask. The teachers know that the effort to keep their markings secret is a direct attempt to discriminate against those who have shown opposition to the numerous attacks upon them by the business board of education and the tool of this board, the superintendent of schools, William McAndrew.

In a report submitted by McAndrew to the board of education he said that he had received a letter from "a teacher." And this anonymous teacher reported to him as follows: "I represent the teachers in the federation and in the councils. The teachers are not opposed to secret markings."

Telling it to McAndrew.

In answer the Teachers' Federation has sent word to McAndrew that it does not conduct mysterious negotiations with nameless teachers. And at their regular meeting held in September, they ordered a protest sent to the board of education at its meeting of September 27. The report was turned over by committee to Superintendent McAndrew, and was never read at any of the meetings.

Protests of the teachers at their mass meeting at the Studebaker theater brot the superintendent's alibi that the teachers' communication arrived five minutes of two and couldn't be put thru at that board meeting. Eventually the letter got before the board, and was referred to the school administration committee, which was scheduled to meet on Thursday, Oct. 9, but failed to get a quorum.

The matter is now to come up before the next meeting of the administration committee which will meet some day next week (day will be reported in the DAILY WORKER as soon as it is known) and Superintendent McAndrew will be notified for the third time.

In addition to the question of secret markings a number of matters pertaining to rules which came up at Wednesday's meeting had to be deferred for the time when Superintendent McAndrew will be present. These rules all contain recommendations for changes in existing rules.

Miss Haley protested against the continuous changes that are being made in the rules for promotion by efficiency and credit. "As the matter now stands, teachers do not know what the regulations are. The board of examiners seem to have the power to make changes." Miss Haley said that the book of rules used by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young when she was superintendent contained specific rules for the board of examiners' guidance and the teachers knew what rules were governing examinations.

Mr. James Mullenbach moved that the matter be deferred until the book of rules used by Mrs. Young be gone into by the committee and upon a suggestion of Attorney Frank S. Righeimer, the teachers were asked to submit their objection in writing before the next administration committee meeting.

Another change in the rules submitted by McAndrews was one hitting at the teachers' pensions. Mr. I. T. Greenacre, attorney for the pension board, took the floor and proved that the new rule regarding pensions for teachers was entirely worthless as it was not legal. The superintendent did not have the power to make any changes in the pension law. And the changes he suggests would only deprive the teachers of their pensions. Let it alone and leave it to the legislature" was his recommendation to the committee.

The rules governing the receiving of notices by teachers did not get a hearing and was referred to the next administration committee meeting. This rule, under the pretense of keeping out all advisements from the schools, is so worded that it would deprive the teachers of the right to receive any kind of notices other than those sent by the superintendent and principals. Notices of their union meetings would of course be forbidden under the new rules.

The next meeting of the administration committee will undoubtedly see another large attendance of teachers.

AMALGAMATED ON STRIKE; BOSSES BREAK CONTRACT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—All workers employed in the Boys' Shirt and Waist Workers' Union of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, declared a general strike yesterday. The strike was decided upon at a big mass meeting in Cooper Union Hall, Wednesday night.

The workers declare that the bosses violated the contract which they had signed with the union, reducing wages and establishing non-union conditions in the shop.

The Amalgamated struck for the old conditions and an additional increase in wages, registration of all contractors, and guarantee that union rules will be maintained in the shop.

The workers answered the strike call 100 per cent, not a member of the union working yesterday. They declare they will remain out on strike until union conditions again prevail. The bosses have been trying to take advantage of the economic depression to smash the union, but the workers declare they will emerge from the strike stronger than ever.

THE TRUTH IS LOST AMONG LIES

real activities of the government spies of Spolansky's type.

The senate investigation shows the utter disregard for law and constitution by Palmer spies and provocateurs. It showed effort to plant evidence. It showed thousands of illegal arrests. It showed that the men and women arrested were treated in the most brutal and inhuman manner by Palmer's red spies of the Spolansky type.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Post, who was compelled to handle most of the deportation cases arising out of the Palmer raids, has written a book telling the truth about Spolansky and his kind. It shows conclusively that the raid on the Communist Party was an effort to destroy an organization which, because of its propaganda, threatened the class rule, the class privileges of exploitation of the capitalists of the United States and that the government violated its own constitution a thousand times in carrying out this raid.

Not one person arrested in the Palmer red raid was accused of an act of violence. No Communist in the United States has ever been charged or indicted for an act of violence. What the government tried to do in 1919 was to destroy an organization because its members believed that history showed the correctness of a certain viewpoint in regard to the outcome of clashing social forces.

In spite of all the illegality and violence, the terrorism and third degree methods employed by government agents in 1919 in the arrests of the three or four thousand members of the Communist Party, the result showed that even by these methods the government was unable to make a case against the Communists. Out of the three thousand five hundred arrested, not even 500 were ultimately deported. That is the strongest indictment against the Spolanskys and the higher-ups who engineered the raid against the Communists.

The Communists and Strikes.

We are told by Spolansky that the reason for the government attack was because the Communists were responsible for the great strike of 1919.

According to this ridiculous story, the Communists brought about the strike of the half-million steel workers, the strike of the 500,000 miners and the threat of a strike of the railroad workers, all of which is part of the history of 1919.

The Communists would be glad to claim credit for initiating these struggles of the workers for a higher standard of life, if it were true that the honor of having done so belonged to them.

Of course, anyone who thinks at all knows that the strikes of 1919 had a different origin. The government had been making great promises to the workers during the period of the war. A new and better life was to be the sequel of the war. The workers were to have a greater share of the products of industry. They were to have a greater share in the management of industry. It was propaganda of this kind thru which the government and the capitalists tricked the workers into giving their support to the war.

When the war was over this illusion was destroyed. In place of sharing in a better life, the workers found that they were to pay the cost of the destruction wrought by the war. They found that the capitalists who had amassed great wealth for themselves by looting the government, now intended that the workers should pay in a lower standard of life for the losses resulting from the destruction of wealth during the war. The strikes of 1919 were the result of the resistance of the workers to this program of the capitalist bosses and the workers' attempt to realize something of the glittering promises that had been made to them in order to trick them into the war.

The Communist Party.

It is true that the Communists played their part in the strikes. The Communists play their part in every struggle of the workers. When the workers fight to secure a higher standard of life the Comunists are in the forefront of the struggle fighting with them. The Communists have no other purpose than to stand side by side with the workers in their fight against their exploiters and oppressors and to lead and march with them until the struggle against the capitalist system is won. That was their part in the 1919 strikes and that is their part today.

The Communists March On.

But the raids did not halt the Communist movement," confesses Spolansky. No, they did not halt the Communist movement. It is not within the power of the Palmers and the Spolanskys to halt the Communist movement.

"Communism" is the answer which cries out to the workers in response to the experiences of their lives as wage slaves under the capitalist system. The hunger, the misery, the suffering, the scanty lives the workers live under the capitalist system can be altered by only one method. The workers must organize their strength. They must unite as a class to fight against their class enemy, the capitalists. Thru their daily experiences the workers are being forced into the class struggle against the capitalists. The end of that struggle is Communism. The Communist movement cannot be destroyed because it is the workers' struggle that compels them to take the road toward Communism.

YOWLS WILL HOLD REED MEMORIAL TOMORROW NIGHT

Comrades Pay Tribute to Fearless Leader

Tomorrow is John Reed Memorial Day and the [illegible] League invites you to come to its annual memorial meeting at Douglas Park Auditorium, 3202 Ogden Ave., (Kedzie and Ogden). The meeting which will be called for 8 in the evening has an interesting program in which is included speeches by J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, Alexander Bittelman, editor of the DAILY WORKER magazine, and Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker. The Freiheit Singing Society will sing revolutionary songs in which the audience will join.

Come and swell the ranks of comrades who will pay tribute to the memory of our beloved Comrade John Reed. Always fearless, taking up the battle against the enemies of the working class, this revolutionary leader gave his life for Communism.

The meeting starts at 8 o'clock sharp and tickets are 25 cents.

They Label the Effort to Abolish Slavery of Children as Bolshevist

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, we find two issues among others being pressed to the front in the election campaign. The proposed anti-child labor amendment to the constitution and the abolition of the supreme court veto of congressional legislation have both aroused the fury of the vested interests.

Both of these issues are hailed as importations from Soviet Russia, as "Bolshevist" and "Communist."

* * * *

The Roman hierarchy joins the oligarchy of great wealth in an effort to show that the Communists are trying to "break up the home" thru taking the children out of the factories, the mills and the workshops.

To deprive the black-robed judges of the U. S. supreme court the right to rule the country, instead of congress, is hailed as an attempt to blow up the constitution, and shatter the "American form of government," claimed as "the best upon earth."

* * * *

It is true that in Soviet Russia there is no judicial clique to over-rule the decisions of the All-Russian Soviet. It is true that in Soviet Russia children are sent into the schools instead of into industry. But this has been achieved, not by tinkering with the czarist regime that went before, but by abolishing the rule of the bankers, the landlords and the great industrialists, and by establishing Workers' Rule in its place.

* * * *

While Communists heartily join in the fight to restrict child labor, nevertheless, they do not believe that children will ever have a chance under capitalism.

It is the worst form of hypocrisy for Catholic churchmen and politicians to claim that fathers and mothers, not congress, should have the right to say whether their children should go into industry. They know that it is the lash of necessity that makes wage workers of children. This is an echo of the age-old war between the church and the state, showing how Rome sacrifices even the children in its effort to maintain its own power.

It may happen that the veto power of Taft's court may be abolished, but the Fascist rule of big business in congress will remain in power, just the same. The blow to its high court will not even stagger capitalism.

* * * *

There is no supreme court to hamper capitalism's parliamentary rule in Western Europe. Yet Mussolini maintains his bloody sway equally well without it. Herriot, in France, Ebert, in Germany, and MacDonald, in England, help maintain the dictatorship of capitalism in their respective lands, without the aid of a supreme court. Horthy established his murderous rule in Hungary without the aid of a black-shirted judicial Fascisti.

* * * *

Morgan would rule the United States just as effectively, with results equally beneficial to himself, even tho LaFollette should be able to place the most extreme restrictions upon its judicial pet. The supreme court would still remain a capitalist court, dedicated to the protection of property rights instead of human rights.

The fight that is being made for the Supreme Court, however, shows how bitterly capitalism will contest the attack upon even the least of its privileges.

* * * *

D. H. Barger, president of the Virginia Farm Bureau, is the latest capitalist lackey to have his utterances exploited against the anti-child labor amendment. He loudly proclaims opposition to "Bolshevism, Communism and Sovietism in any and every form. The proposed amendment (anti-child labor amendement) if ratified by the states, would land us in that chaotic condition and Russia would have gained her point thru America's reds and opponents to our republican form of government."

* * * *

This is only one of four reasons given by Barger to his attack on the anti-child labor amendement in a letter to Frank G. Louthan, secretary of the Virginia Manufacturers' Association, who has had the correspondence published in the Manufacturers' Record, for Oct. 9. This is in the state of Thomas Jefferson, whom LaFollette so loudly acclaims.

Barger's clinching argument is that, "I am now 67 years old, stand six feet five inches, weigh 245 pounds, and am in perfect health. I inherited poverty when born, and worked as a child, youth and man. Today I am considered a man of more than ordinary means; hence I wish to leave to posterity the same chance that I enjoyed under our splendid form of overnment."

* * * *

Barger's stuff might prove more convincing if he had submitted to a mental test administered by an alienist, and showed some favorable reactions, instead of giving us the proportions of his physical make-up. The biggest hulk of a body may carry the puniest brain, and Barger confesses himself, thru his arguments, exceedingly stunted from the ears up. He reminds us of the cartoonist's conception of the American ideal of a human being—all body and no head.

* * * *

Capitalism's ambition is the continuous reproduction of new generations of human work horses.

Communism's ideal is the development of human beings, with minds and bodies liberated from the shackles of past traditions, customs and institutions, freed from capitalism.

There is a clash between these two social orders. The one is the deadly enemy of the other. There can be no compromise. The one must go to make room for the other. Capitalism dies with the birth of the Communist era. With capitalism, and only then, dies its institutions, the tyranny of the courts, child slavery, and all those other tentacles thru which it holds the toiling masses in subjection.

Patch Up Unity in Convention Here of Two I.W.W. Elements fellow worker Delaney is a member. Some objected to the statement that the "sixteen demands of the Rowan Bowerman group were lengthy and varied." They declared "demands" to be too harsh a word, and that "mild suggestions" would have been much better. Others objected to the printing in the DAILY WORKER of remarks made by Tom Doyle to the DAILY WORKER declaring the delegates who had held out at 180 W. Washington St., had come to the convention to filibuster. They declared that this statement must be corrected a once, as it is not true.

Press Committee Is Silent.

The press committee had no statement of any kind to give the DAILY WORKER, Delaney declaring that his reports to the press must first be approved by the convention.

The DAILY WORKER will be glad to print any communication coming from the I. W. W. members which they they believe will be of interest or profit to the working class. The DAILY WORKER cannot however, be responsible for the declarations of opposing officials of the I. W. W., nor can it print only the news which certain delegates of the I. W. W. wish printed.

Wobblies Read DAILY WORKER.

Thousands of members of the I. W. W. thruout the country look to the DAILY WORKER as the only source of information as to what is transpiring from day to day in the I. W. W. deliberations. Many of them have written this office commending us for printing all the obtainable facts. The position of the Workers Party on the I. W. W. faction fights was given in yesterday's leading editorial. The DAILY WORKER will continue to take this position in spite of the difficulty in obtaining news owing to the veil of secrecy which the I. W. W. has so far thrown over its deliberations.

I. W. W. LEADERS?

FOR many years the I. W. W. of the old days had no foolish notions against its own self-developed proletarian leaders. It did, of course, with complete justification, attack the corrupt labor fakers and yellow reformist leaders of the socialists. But the stratum of sincere, fighting leadership, necessary to efficient conduct of the struggle, was accepted as a matter of course. Of late years, however, an almost steady campaign has been waged against the theory of leadership. Rules are made compelling officials to retire almost as soon as they become conversant with the routine of their office. Continuity of policy is impossible, and ability to forward the interests of the organization is become ground for suspicion.

How this has led the I. W. W. into bad leadership rather than none at all, and how the whole story of "down with leaders" is illustrated by current editorial policy of an I. W. W. paper, is explained in a brilliant polemical article, "A 'New Voiskport' as I. W. W. Editor" by Harrison George, to be published in tomorrow's DAILY WORKER.

Workers Party Starts Sunday Open Forum at Ashland Auditorium

The Educational Committee of the Workers Party of Chicago has planned a well-rounded program of activities for the next few months. There are three study classes now going on. But while these are important, one of the popular methods of education, open to everybody who cares to come, is the OPEN FORUM.

The OPEN FORUM is to start next Sunday night at 8 p. m., at the Lodge Room in the Ashland Auditorium. The forum will be opened by C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party with a lecture on "Political Forces in the Election." Questions and discussion will follow.

A great number of the most prominent speakers of the American labor movement are scheduled to appear on the platform of the OPEN FORUM this season. Every Sunday night a lecture. While next Sunday is expected to draw a crowd to hear C. E. Ruthenberg, the throng probably will grow steadily. On the Sunday following Oct. 26, J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER will speak on "Wall Street and Us."

trading the votes of the miners for the coin of the capitalists appealed to him and he laid his plans for succeeding president Pope, then head of the District 12.

Prior fo the elections in District 12, he returned to Springfield to attend a convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor. Fearing that he might be exposed at the convention for wearing non-union made clothes, he called at a clothing store and demanded union labor goods to wear at the convention. Thus rigged out he considered himself thoroly qualified for any office in the power of the workers to give him. His unionism was just about as deep as the label he wore on his hat.

Was Good at Figures.

In the contest for the presidency between himself and Adolph Germer, the tellers found Farrington elected by some nine hundred votes. It was discovered later however that at least two thousand of the votes were stolen, but it was then to late to file a contest. The miners of District 12 should bear this in mind, when the ballots in the next election are counted. Farrington got into the president's office by stealing votes and it is not likely that he will leave it as long as he can count the ballots.

A Family Man.

After his election he brot his relatives from Streator and put some of them on the miners' payroll, and they have been in clover ever since. No doubt he takes the maxim "charity begins at home" seriously and gives it a narrow interpretation. As evidence of his sudden good fortune, he purchased a home in Springfield and paid more money for it than he received in salary and padded expenses during the time he had been in office as an official of the United Mine Workers of America. Where did he get the money? Colonel Frank L. Smith no doubt would be able to shed some light on it and the striking miners of Vancouved might have a suspicion that the funds appropriated by the International office for their relief, which they never received, might be given in exchange for the handsome residence of faker Farrington.

They Were Gold-diggers.

The Farrington family now began to sport new automobiles and no expense was spared in catering to the comfort of the lucky family. The miners paid the bill of course.

Over the automobiles and the handsome residence came the orange groves in Alabama. This will be treated in another article. We will now deal with efforts of the miners to bring Farrington to justice, within the union, for his selling out to Colonel Frank L. Smith, the banker democrat.

When Farrington was found guilty of taking Smith's money the miners decided to get rid of this sort of thing and acting under the provisions of the constitution, they called a special convention to try him and remove him from office.

Bosses With Farrington.

But the coal operators nobly rallied to Farrington's defense. They button-holed the delegates in the interests of Farrington and one of them boasted that he had paid as much as any other coal operator to save his good friend the president of the coal diggers' union, from the well merited punishment which the rank and file members were ready to inflict on him.

Confronted with his crime, Farrington at first denied having received any money for the job but later on admitted that he got one thousand dollars from Colonel Smith for his endorsement.

The following is a copy of the document sent to all the members in District 12, and which resulted in the calling of a special convention for the purpose of throwing Farrington out of office:

"To All the Members of the United Mine Workers of America, District 12.

"Whereas, it has come to our notice, that District President Farrington sent the following telegrams at the expense of the Illinois Miners:

"July 15, 1916.

"To Samuel Gompers, President American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.

"Refer to my letter of July 1st in regard concerning Pullman car strike. Can you supply me with any information in this connection?

"Frank Farrington, President,
"Illinois Mine Workers.

"Charge To Mine Workers.

"July 18, 1922.

"John Keegan c.o. W. B. Wilson, Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

"Have you discussed with Washington party matter we talked of in St. Louis?

"Frank Farrington.

"Charge To Mine Workers.

"July 22, 1916.

"John Keegan, c. o. W. B. Wilson, Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

"Can you supply me with information concerning matter discussed in St. Louis?

"Frank Farrington.

"Charge To Mine Workers."

The Endorsement.

"And whereas, it developed that these telegrams were sent to get material for a letter that President Farrington intended to write and later did write endorsing Col. Frank L. Smith, of Dwight, Ill. as candidate for governor, and,

"Whereas, Frank Farrington sent the following telegram to Col. Frank Smith at our expense: (telegram published in yesterday's installment of this series)

"And Whereas, in the said telegram, Frank Farrington asked for money from Colonel Frank Smith, who is a banker and real estate dealer, and,

"Whereas, following this, Farrington did issue a leter of endorsement of Col. Frank L. Smith, on the official letterhead and signed such endorsement as president of the organization, which is a clear violation of section 3, Article 14, of the District constitution which reads as follows: 'Local unions, individual members and all other persons are hereby prohibited from using the name of our organization for the purpose of furthering the interests of any political party or an aspirant for political office, except for such legislative offices as are provided for in the international constitution' and

"Whereas, Frank Farrington sent the following telegram at our expense:

"July 29, 1916

"Robt H. Harlin, c.o. Grand Union Hotel, Seattle, Wash.

"Would like to get wire from you urging me to attend your joint conference.

"Frank Farrington.

"Charge To Mine Workers.

"And whereas, a trip to Washington is quite expensive and can serve no good purpose to the organization, and

"Whereas, we have further learned that Frank Farrington and some coal operators entered into land deals in Ala., as the enclosed will show, and took the Interstate Conference to Mobile, Alabama, which is near their land, and

"Whereas, we believe that those matters are of a very important and grave nature and demand action by the organization, therefore be it

"Resolved, that we demand a special convention at the earliest possible date to consider this flagrant violation of the constitution and the other questionable acts revealed by the documents herein contained, and be it further,

"Resolved, that we call upon all locals to endorse this or pass resolutions demanding a special District Convention and send such resolutions to District Secretary-Treasurer Duncan McDonald, Springfield, Illinois."

Walker Saved Frank

When the special convention met it was evident that in certain places money had been spent in securing the right sort of delegates and again Farrington was saved by his friend Walker who promised to go there to clean up Farrington, but instead made an emotional speech, watered with tears, and succeeded in persuading the delegates to let him down easy.

"Honest John" has now lost the confidence he once enjoyed among the miners. He is tarred with the same brush as Farrington, and no job that the capitalists want him to do is too dirty for him.

The next article will bring the history of the coal operators' handy man more up-to-date. When this series is ended the miners of Illinois will not be surprised at Farrington's present relations with the unspeakable Small, and his allies General Dawes and Calvin Coolidge.

SHOE WORKERS OF LYNN, MASS., ARE FOR AMALGAMATION OF INDEPENDENT UNIONS INTO ONE INDUSTRIAL UNION

By M. SHARAF.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

The latest returns of the referendum vote taken by the locals of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America shows that it will cease to function as a national organization.

The militants were divided on the question whether or not it would be advisable to turn over a national organization into a district organization.

It was pointed out by some militants that a district organization has outlived its usefulness, and the only way the workers could ever acquire anything is only thru an organization that is built on an industrial line, and the time is rotten ripe for such a movement. While the Amalgamated had a constitution for a national organization, yet it never functioned as such and violated every progressive measure the constitution provided for. In fact the general officials entered into an agreement with the state board of arbitration on Dec. 10, 1922 for a 15 per cent reduction at a time the agreement with the Manufacturers' Assn. was to be effective until April 30, 1924.

The constitution provided for the national office to have its headquarters in Boston, but the general officials never carried it out, and kept their office in Lynn, and any time trouble arose in a shop the officials would bar the local authority which was provided in the constitution and take the matter in their hands. It will be enuf to show two instances which prove where they stand. Last August the nine troners of the Conway and McLaughlin Shoe Co. refused to do any more work on a certain shoe unless the firm at least will agree to pay the state board's prices. The firm fired them, and before the day was over the national office filled their places with "union" scabs. On Sept. 5, a decision was rendered by the state board to the vampers of the J. R. Donovan Shoe Co. on a certain shoe which the superintendent of the firm has admitted to the writer of these lines that the decision was not a fair one to the workers. Yet when the vampers protested, the general president told the firm to "fire them" and made a statement in the Lynn Press that the vampers did not act like men, and any decision handed down by the state board, that he will see to it that it is lived up to.

When the Amalgamated came to Lynn twenty-one months ago there was only one open shop in Lynn out of seventy. Today you find twenty-seven open shops out of sixty.

Under such conditions something had to be done, so we tried to merge with the Haverhill Shoe Workers' Protective Union. Those officials did all there was in their power to crush the movement. The result was that the 1,200 members the Amalgamated had in Brooklyn, N. Y., have turned over to the Haverhill Protective Union, and three locals out of nine in Lynn have seceded from the Amalgamated and are functioning as independent unions until there will be a chance to merge with an organization that will work for the benefit of the workers and not with an organization that turned its headquarters into a scab agency.

Knowing all that the rank and file overwhelmingly voted for the doing away with the general office. The new organization will start to function on Jan. 1, 1925. The local unions will remain at at present, the joint council and general council will be done away with and a district council, composted of two delegates from each local will take its place. A general agent will be elected for the purpose of carrying out the decisions made by the district council. The Boston Stonhan and Chicago locals may remain in the Lynn district union.

The militants are drawing their forces together more now than ever before for the Amalgamation of all independent shoe unions into one big organization.

Open Forum, Sunday Night, Lodge Room, Ashland Auditorium.

FOREIGN BORN WORKERS LEARN ENGLISH NOW

Class Every Wednesday at 722 Blue Island Ave.

Foreign born workers who wish to learn English have now an opportunity of doing so without drinking in capitalist propaganda, or listening to childish "bedtime" stories" at the same time. An excellent course in English is being given under the auspices of the Workers Party, local Chicago. The class meets every Wednesday in the hall of the Greek Federation of the Workers Party, 722 Blue Island Ave.

The instructor, Andrew Shelley, is a comrade who is thorely experienced in this line of work, having taught classes both in England and this country. Those who are attending Comrade Shelley's class are enthusiastic. Altho the course began only a few weeks ago, they are learning rapidly.

The probability is that, if there is sufficient demand, Comrade Shelley will teach two classes: one for advanced comrades and one for comrades who do not speak any English at all.

Here is a chance to learn the language of the country which all comrades anxious to increase their effectiveness in the trade unions and in all forms of party activity should take advantage of without delay. The enrollment fee for the entire course is $2. Those interested should communicate with Manuel Gomes, educational director of the W. P., 166 W. Washington St., or they can go directly to the Greek Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., any Wednesday night, where they can talk to Comrade Shelley.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. NEGROES LOOK TO COMMUNISM FOR EQUALITY

Communists Offer Only Race Problem Solution

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16.—The Negroes of Cleveland, along with those of other parts of the country, are rapidly awakening to the fact that their support of the republican party is the worst political policy the Negro race can pursue.

The colored voters are coming to realize that the benefits of their republicanism are entirely one-sided.

The gratitude felt by the Negroes to the republican party for their release from chattel slavery is not paid back by any feeling of gratitude on the part of the republican politicians who get the support of the colored voters. The republican politicians merely utilize the Negro vote for the benefit of themselves and their capitalistic backers and masters. Of course a few republican party tools among the Negroes are fed at the political pie-counter for their work in keeping their brothers lined up in the grand old party, but these Negroes are among the worst enemies of their race.

Republican "Gerrymandering."

One of the political tricks to exploit the Negro vote is to "gerrymander" the election districts. For the benefit of the new voters, we will state that to "gerrymander" is to fix the boundaries of the election districts in such a manner as to include enuf territory in which the ruling party is strong, to overcome other territory in which it is weak or doubtful. "Gerrymandering" results in election districts of the most fantastic and unreasonable shapes. One of the best (or worst) examples to be found anywhere is the 22nd congressional district in Ohio, including Cuyahoga county outside of Cleveland; Lake and Geauga counties, and part of the east side of Cleveland.

The western boundary of this 22nd district was fixed by the republican controlled Ohio legislature, so as to take in most of the colored population of Cleveland. The western boundary is Lakeview Ave. from the lake to Wade Park Ave., and E. 140th St. from Woodland Ave., South, but instead of the line going straight across between these corners, it is carried West along Wade Park, and other streets clear to E. 30th St., then East along Scoville, Quincy and Woodland to E. 140th. The boundary of this strip is so irregular that it turns 20 street corners in proceeding from Lakeview and Wade Park to Woodland and E. 140th. Such a crazy-quilt method of districting is solely for the purpose of insuring republican control of the Negro votes, which are considered by the republican politicians to be permanently in their vest pocket.

After Election Forget Promise.

In return for keeping Theodore Burton in congress from the 22nd district many years, what have the Negro voters secured? Has Burton fought for anti-lynching laws, or other laws to prevent discrimination against the colored people? Have the Negroes escaped widespread unemployment or have they been able to get wage increases by the efforts of Old Man Burton? Of course not; in voting for Burton they do not advance their interests as Negroes and as workers, but merely express their habits and traditions. But to the credit of the Negro workers, they are fast coming to the realization that the only road to salvation lies along the road of self-dependence and not upon pretended "friends" among the politicians and capitalists whose real aim is to exploit them.

Rally to Communism.

The Workers Party and the DAILY WORKER have found among the Cleveland Negroes a lively interest in Communism as the solution for the race problem. The stand of the Workers Party as expressed in its program, gets to the very root of what is a class problem more deeply than a race problem. The program states:

THE NEGRO WORKER

The Negro workers of this country are exploited and oppressed more ruthlessly than any other group. The history of the Southern Negro is the history of brutal terrorism of persecution and murder.

During the war tens of thousands of Southern Negroes were lured to the industrial centers of the North to supply the needs of the employers for cheap labor. In the Northern industrial cities the Negro has found the same bitter discrimination as in the South. The attack upon the Negroes of East St. Louis, Illinois, the riot in Chicago are examples of the additional burden of oppression which is the lot of the Negro workers.

Workers Party Embraces All Workers.

Altho the influx of Negro workers in the Northern industrial centers has laid the foundation for a mass movement of Negroes who are industrial workers, because of neglect of this problem by organized labor little progress has been made in organization of these industrial workers. The Negro has despaired of aid from organized labor, and he has been driven either into the camp of the enemies of labor, or has been compelled to develop purely racial organizations which seek purely racial aims.

The Workers Party will support the Negroes in their struggle for liberation and will help them in their fight for economic, political and educational equality. It will seek to end the policy of discrimination followed by some labor unions and all other discriminations against the Negro. It will endeavor to destroy altogether the barrier of race prejudice that has been used to keep apart the black and white workers and to weld them into a solid union for the struggle against the capitalists who exploit and oppress them.

Many Negroes are members of the Workers Party in which they are admitted just the same as is any worker regardless of race, color or nationality. In Chicago, Gordon Owens, a Negro, is a candidate for congress on the Workers Party ticket. A large attendance of colored workers is looked for at the Foster meeting, Oct. 16.

The Communist movement is the hope of the colored races not only of America but of the world, who are the particular objects of capitalist imperialistic oppression.

ON THE WAY TO A RED WEEK FOR THREE MILLION WORKERS

Money Pouring Into National Office of Workers Party for Campaign Literature—Two Days' Sales Reported Are Record—Big Mobilization On.

THE record in the sale of party literature for any two days in the history of the party has been smashed. The record in number of literature orders received during any two days in the party history has been so far outdistanced that the old record is a mere shadow of its former self.

Tuesday and Wednesday were Red Days in the national office, Red Days which laid a foundation for Red Week. Orders for election campaign literature were received from all sections of the country and in all amounts, all the way from a $200 order from the Detroit Finnish branch to orders from an individual sympathizer or two for a single fifty-cent unit.

Emphasis must be laid upon the fact that ORDERS WERE OBEYED AND THEREFORE ORDERS ARE BEING RECEIVED.

Orders are being received in handsful in each mail. This speaks well for our party branches. It attests their responsiveness to decisions from headquarters. It proves that we have an organization, that we have discipline, in our joint work of reaching the workers with Communist literature.

Branches that have not yet placed their order for Red Week, the week during which the party will distribute three million pieces of campaign literature, should do so in the next three days. Every party member is called upon to distribute a 137-piece literature unit during the week of Oct. 26 to Nov. 2.

The advance guard in the task of literature distribution appears below. Add your city to the list. Place your order for one fifty-cent unit for each branch member at once. Make it a COMPLETE MOBILIZATION. Our total of 25,000 members in a nation-wide distribution of three million pieces of Communist literature to three million workers during the last week of the election campaign, is our objective. ENLIST!

(The remittances below are from individual party branches. The names of the branches are not given because in many instances they did not appear upon the order.)

SALES OF THE DAILY WORKER ARE CLIMBING FAST AT GARY, IND.

GARY, Ind., Oct. 16.—The subscription list of the DAILY WORKER in Gary has more than doubled since the start of the drive to increase the circulation of the workers' daily here. The circulation drive is now in full swing.

A well-organized plan of action has been instituted, and before the campaign is over, every house in Gary will have received a sample copy of the DAILY WORKER. The distribution of the DAILY WORKER will be followed up by a house to house visit, John Heinrichson announces. Many homes of Gary workers have already been visited.

The sale of the DAILY WORKER in front of the steel mills is daily climbing. Jacob Rusak, DAILY WORKER agent in Gary, is now selling regularly two hundred copies a day in front of the mills, and many hundred a day more could be sold if the necessary volunteers could be obtained.

Posters advertising the DAILY WORKER have been pasted up thruout the town, and a number of regular customers are having the paper delivered to their homes by the DAILY WORKER agent.

SHERIFF WHO SHOT UP COAL MINERS GOES TO PRISON AS BOOTLEGGER

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 16.—Don Chafin, sheriff of Logan County, who headed the coal operators' "army" which opposed the armed march of union miners from Charleston to Williamson, W. Va., in 1921, was today found guilty of violating the federal prohibition laws and sentenced to two years in Atlanta prison by Judge George W. McClintic, in federal court here. In addition a fine of $10,000 was imposed.

NEW YORK LAYS PLANS FOR TAG DAY OCT. 25-26

Tag Day for Campaign Funds Well Under Way

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Extensive and effective preparations are made at the Tag Day Conference of Branch Secretaries to hold a Tag Day on Oct. 25 and 26 in order to raise funds to carry out the full program of the campaign committee of the Workers Party.

All branches will be requested to run socials or affairs for the benefit of the Tag Day on Saturday night, Oct. 25. The conference also voted that each branch be called upon to raise a certain sum as its quota of the total, and that this quota be based on the per capita of the branch.

The Conference was of the opinion that since the need for funds was very pressing, the branches be instructed to discipline their members who fail to volunteer their services in this Tag Day. The Harlem Section with a membership of more than 1200 voted to fine each member who fails to act as a volunteer in this Tag Day the sum of $3.

Meet Again Oct. 17.

The delegates at this conference urged the need of calling a second conference to complete the details of the Tag Day and create sentiment for a forceful and enthusiastic response. This second and final conference will be held Friday, October 17, at 8:30 p. m., at the campaign headquarters. Every Tag Day Secretary should make it his business to be present. Each secretary should be in a position to give an estimate of the number of volunteers he will be able to recruit, and the number of Tag Day boxes and other material that he needs.

The conference decided to allot districts or territories to each headquarters. So far the Tag Day Committee has received an incomplete list of the Tag Day headquarters as follows:

Main station at Campaign Headquarters, 210 East 12th St., N. Y. C.

Greek Home, 345 West 39th St.

Hungarian Workers' Home, 350 East 81 Street.

Harlem Section, 64 E. 104th street.

Bronx Section Headquarters. 1347 Boston Road.

Russian Williamsburg Headquarters. 219 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

Williamsburg Section, 64 Graham Ave., Brooklyn.

Brownsville Section, 1844 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn.

South Brooklyn Section, 764—40th Street, Brooklyn.

All comrades and sympathizers are urged to register in advance, so that the committee will be in a position to gauge the supply of Tag Day material. Comrades should make every effort to obtain volunteers at open air meetings, thru speakers' announcements, at affairs, meetings and by personal approach. If there are lists available from former Tag Day volunteers, the secretaries should use every means to get these people for volunteers in this Tag Day.

Success depends upon the number of volunteers that we can recruit to do this work. More pep, comrades. We must make this Tag Day the big money raiser in the campaign.

Urge Building of Campaign Fund of N. Y. Workers Party

NEW YORK, Oct. 16. — Placing a new party on the ballot in New York is a complicated job that required unending patience and time. It is a laborious, costly proceeding, but the successful completion of the task justifies every sacrifice made, for we are now in a position to reach masses of workers with our message, who would otherwise have given us no consideration.

In order to take advantage of the opportunity presented to us we must have money to pay for literature for free distribution. We must have money to tour speakers. Money is needed to pay the hall rents for meetings. Signs and posters must be gotten out at once. It is estimated that the cost of this job will amount to five thousand dollars. Nothing can be done unless the necessary funds are obtained, and these are needed at once, if we are to take advantage of our opportunity.

Forward your dollars and those of your friends to the headquarters of the Workers Party Campaign Committee, 210 East 12th Street, New York City. Make checks payable to Charles Krumbein, Treasurer.

Starts Fire With Kerosene.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 16.—"Accidental death due to her own thoughtlessness" was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. William Yarborough, of Hoopeston, who died in a local hospital Sunday, 12 hours after she had been seriously burned while attempting to start a fire with kerosene. The accident occurred on the closing day of "fire prevention week."

Disturb Pope's "Sleep."

ROME, Oct. 16. — The coffin containing the body of Pope Leo XII., will be removed the night of Oct. 30 from St. Peters to the chapel of St. John, according to Roma newspapers.

THE POWER COLUMN

Twice every week—this column uncovers to your view the motive power behind the DAILY WORKER. Here for the interest and inspiration of every reader—and especially the DAILY WORKER agents and committees—are tried and proven suggestions and accomplishments to drive the DAILY WORKER to further conquests.

Here is POWER—the power of brain and effort of men and women of the working class who not only believe—but ACT!

THOSE NEW YORKERS!

FRANKLY, we don't want to talk about them. We have done it so often it sounds like repetition. We have bragged, boasted and boosted these live-wires under the leadership of the City DAILY WORKER agent (and business agent for the D. W. B. U.), L. E. Katterfeld, almost too often. But at this moment the most concentrated POWER is being used to drive the DAILY WORKER forward in that city.

Over 900 hustlers with sub card folders (five subs in each) have already secured over 500 new subscriptions. The branch getting most subs will be awarded a beautiful silk banner by William Z. Foster at the monster campaign meeting that will be held for him at Arcadia Hall, 918 Halsey St., Brooklyn.

If you are "one of those New Yorkers"—get into the 3 days of intensified effort to wind up the Banner award sub campaign. Get your subs—and get them to L. E. Katterfeld before 8 p. m. at the meeting hall.

* * * *

And now for the other hustling members of the D. W. B. U. who in the three days of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday have "heaved back" bricks to "Build the DAILY WORKER."

And Here Goes Toledo!

A. E. Harvitt, agent for Toledo, is one of those who in the last drive to "Build the DAILY WORKER" proved one of the leading lights. To show that the old spirit is still there he writes:

"Find enclosed check for $9.20 to pay for one sub for 12 months for the Workers Monthly, one "brick" to help knock the exploiters' head off and three renewals—one for six months and two for a period of 3 months each.

"I hope you will soon see some more "bricks" flying from Toledo, as I distributed the ones I had with instructions to let them fly without further delay."

He certainly has the secret! Without much ado "let them fly without further delay"—in other words, "Heave That Brick Back" to the DAILY WORKER!

Party Forces Plan Membership Drive At Superior, Wis.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SUPERIOR, Wis., Oct. 16. — We're going to have a grand and glorious time at the social and entertainment that's going to be held at the Terminal Hall (Co-op. Exchange Bldg.), Friday, Oct. 17, under the auspices of the English Workers Party branch and the Superior Y. W. L. and Junior group. This will mark the opening of the membership drive that we are going to conduct, and a grand opening it will be. For, in addition to a snappy to the point, and well prepared program, there will be dancing to the strains of "sole" inspiring music, and palate tickling refreshments will be served at just the right moment. There will be no admission to make you lose your inspiration or appetite. COME ONE! COME ALL! AND BRING YOUR FRIENDS!

BRITISH SHOW HOSTILITY TO SUN YAT SEN

Threaten Intervention Against Canton Rule

(By Rosta News Agency.)

CANTON, Oct. 16.—Mr. Chen Lin-pak, compradore of the Honkgong-Shanghai Banking corporation, the head of the fascist armed force which has revolted against Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, who personally directs the "tigers'" movement and whose property, situated in Chinese territory, is under the protection of British Hindu soldiers, is now being openly supported by all the British forces available at Canton.

It thus happens that Dr. Sun's efforts to suppress the revolt of an agent of imperialism is broken by the threat of armed intervention by Britain.

Further, British Consul Giles has sent an ultimatum to the Canton government, intimating that should the Chinese authorities adopt any forcible measures to squash the insurgent movement, immediate action will be taken against the Cantonese authorities by all the British naval forces available.

It then becomes evident that the merchant's strike and the use of Fascist "tigers" against the government is no longer a question between Dr. Sun and the merchants of Canton. It is now a question whether Kwangtung is to be under the rule of a Chinese government or whether it is to be under the sway of agents of British imperialists as part of the British colony of Hongkong.

Plan Membership Meeting of All Jewish Y. W. L. Branches Here

A joint membership meeting of all members of the three Young Workers League Jewish branches, John Reed, Hersch Lekert and the Rosa Luxemburg, will be held next Sunday afternoon in the Polskoff Hall, 1910 W. Roosevelt Road, at 3 p. m.

This meeting will take up the immediate problems before the Chicago membership as a result of the reorganization of the Y. W. L. upon the basis of work instead of the old social-democrat territorial branches.

This meeting is very important for all members of the former Jewish Y. W. L. branches and every member should be sure to attend. Previous to the membership meeting the Rosa Luxemburg branch will hold its last constituted meeting as a Jewish branch in the same hall (headquarters of Luxemburg branch) at 2 p. m.

New York Comrades Mourn the Death of Sarah Rosenberg

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—On October 12, early Sunday morning, a beloved comrade passed away. Sarah Rosenberg, a member of the Downtown English Branch, Workers Party Local New York, died at the age of twenty-two. Altho known only to a small circle of comrades, she was respected for her sincerity to the Communist cause. She won her way into the hearts of all she came in contact with, with a sweet, charming and winsome personality. It was of such as she that Gray said in his Elegy: "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

CALL ON GREEK LABOR TO FIGHT DEMOCRAT RULE

Fear Fascisti Will Be Next to Seize Power

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ATHENS, Oct. 16.—A manifesto to all of the workers of Greece to prepare to fight the new government which has been formed under the leadership of the demoocratic premier, Michalacopoulos has been sent out by the pan-Hellenic conference, an organization in which all of the labor bodies of Greece are represented.

The conference, which is being held in Salonica this week, has exposed the treachery of the government in its policy towards the large groups of workers recently on strike—the railroad workers, the printers, the bakers and a section of the sailors.

The former government, headed by Sofoulis, had agreed to accede to the demands which the General Confederation of Labor had made for the strikers. The Michalacopoulos government, on coming into power, has definitely refused to carry out the agreements.

Predict Fascist Rule.

The general conviction prevails among the workers that the present government is the last parliamentary government that Greece will have—that a rule of Fascism is at hand. Within the Fascist ranks, the royalist Metaxas and General Kondyles, who now holds the position of minister of the interior, are struggling for absolute control of the Fascist movement. Their avowed purpose is to "save Greece from the Communists."

An important factor in the Communist propaganda feared by the Fascisti of Greece is the formation of Communist nuclei within the ranks of the university students, a great many of whom are members of the Communist Party or are sympathetic to it. The students are sent from one city to another to speak to the workers. That the government is watching closely activities of these students is evidenced by the fact that police all over the country have been instructed to watch for them.

Communists Appeal to the Workers.

The Communists are now agitating among the workers to refuse support of the government in case of war between Bulgaria and Greece.

Dawes Plan Is Bridge to New Conflicts

kee capitalists are the seeds and the haughty American financiers are the sowers of the coming world war which will be waged to maintain and extend the supremacy of our ruling class and the safety of these same investments.

The last imperialist world war grew out of the intense commercial rivalries, out of the fierce struggle for new markets, for greater spheres of investment and influence, for wider areas of the control of the natural resources of economically under developed countries among the leading national capitalist groups. The war was fought to decide issues arising out of these disputes. The war was won by the allied imperialists to crush the German capitalist class as an effective competitor in the international market and in the race for imperialist supremacy. Today, the Dawes plan, proposed as the best scheme to guarantee the fruits of this imperialist victory, has within itself the germs for the undoing of this victory, for the obliteration of the very purpose for which the war was fought by the Entente employing classes.

French Capitalists Fear Competition.

France is looking askance at the return of Germany as an effective competitor in the international market. Yet, the sole chance of success in the operation of the Dawes plan is the ability of the German economic system to produce a sufficient excess of exports.

France will get a maximum of 25 billion francs under the Dawes program. At the same time France owes England and the United States more than thirty billion francs exclusive of another five billion commercial debts. The Dawes proposal will not assure France the payment of interest and amortization on this huge sum.

Under these conditions French capitalists dread a restored Germany. Their government is now busily at work organizing a National Economic Council to help the industrialists and financiers of the Quay d'Orsay meet the keener international commercial competition.

Britain Dreads German Revival.

"The dark cloud of revitalized German competition" is also irritating the British imperialists. Recently Great Britain re-imposed a duty of 26 per cent ad valorem on German goods, because of the apprehension of the British capitalists of the probable severity of the approaching German competition even in the home market.

The British Colonial Corporation Ltd., one of the biggest banks in England, declared in its weekly circular of September 13, 1924 that it will not subscribe to the Dawes loan because of its fear that the industrial recovery of Germany "might inflict serious hardships on English trading interests."

Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden has talked of the Dawes' agreement as "a trade menace to Great Britain of a most serious character." Prime Minister MacDonald has even appointed a special committee consisting of the spokesmen of the steel, coal, dyes, textile and pharmaceutical corporations to advise the foreign office of the likely effects of the London agreement on foreign trade.

Bitter Conflict Looming.

A source of even greater danger of war than the British fear of German commercial rivalry is the British fear of a Franco-German commercial accord in which France will have a dominating economic position on the continent. Since the world war the British capitalists have shuddered at the probability of a union of German coal with French iron interests as the preparatory step for the organization of the world's most powerful steel corporation. In many quarters it is declared that the formation of such a giant trust would result in the control not only of the Ruhr and Lorraine but many other important sections in Central Europe and along the Danube.

France must have Ruhr coke for her furnaces. Germany must have the Lorraine iron. The leading capitalists of both countries are now working toward an agreement to operate these resources jointly in order to dominate the industrial life of the continent. The British coal-and iron interests have great apprehension of such a union which would effectively undermine their hitherto strong position on the continent. Thus, commenting on the concern which this likelihood of a Franco-German accord has already brot to the British ruling class, Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden frankly declared:

"French industrialists, of whom Louis Loucheur is the guiding spirit, have designs on the economic control of certain German industries which they make no effort to conceal. There is a very close and political means will be used to advance these aims. The proposed Franco-German commercial agreement is one method by which the project may be advanced."

That accounts for the increasing opinion that the coming struggle will be more a struggle for favorable commercial arrangements with Germany than for the collection of reparations. That explains the great dispatch with also one of fair Harvard's overseers, which British capitalists recently concluded an Anglo-German electrical trades agreement on a vast scale.

The Dollar Must Be Safe!

Another serious danger of war lies in the increasingly heavy American investments in European industries and resources. These investments are made on the basis of securing handsome profits. Such profits can be secured only thru lowering the wages, lengthening the hours of labor and in general lowering the standard of living among the German and other European masses. These working masses may revolt against such degrading conditions of life and employment. Such a revolt will endanger the security and safety of the American capitalist investments. Hepein we have the cause for military and naval invasion of Europe on the heels of the dollar invasion.

This is the full meaning of the difficulty of the American financial interests getting adequate guarantees for their investments. In this light the following declaration was recently made by Mr. Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank apropos of American participation in the first Dawes loan: "We have taken the precautions that were necessary. It was necessary that the atmosphere should be favorable. Our responsibility is enormous and once we assume direction of the operations we must guarantee success." The fact that the Ruhr, so close to France from a military and economic point of view, holds the bulk of the security in the first German loan is indicative of the especially grave war menace involved in the transaction.

Of course, in view of the extent to which the American government has gone in helping put over the Dawes plan, there is every reason on earth to conclude that the Washington administration will consider the protection of Yankee capitalist investments not only as a legitimate preoccupation but as a matter of paramount duty.

Standards of Living Endangered.

Last but not least we should reckon with the effects of intensified international capitalist competition on the standards of living of the workers of every country. In order to help safeguard their profits against inroads of intensified competition, the various national capitalist groups will resort to wage cuts and lengthening of the hours of labor. The payment of reparations in coal or in any other form of kind is bound to have an unfavorable affect on the workers employed in the industries concerned in the other countries.

This explains why the British Miners' Federation has declared that the Dawes plan is against the welfare of the mine workers. That is why even so reactionary a labor leader as Frank Hodges, civil lord of the admiralty, has been compelled to speak of the Dawes plan in this fashion: "Now that the German workers have succumbed, our own capitalists whine and squeal that the hours of the British worker must be lengthened, and his wages lowered in order that he might successfully compete with the German markets of the world.

"In a very short time from now we shall witness the launching of a great offensive in countries outside Germany against the established conditions of the working class. Such is the implacable logic of reparations."

Unite Against Soviet Russia.

Should the workers of any one country or groups of countries resist effectively, to the point of revolt, these encroachments on their living and employment conditions, such resistance would be a signal for a unified imperialist attack against the working class. The moment the onslaught on the working masses by the capitalists takes on such a form, there will be precipitated another world war. Worse than that. Once the international capitalist imperialists even believe with some degree of sureness that they have succeeded in uniting their ranks, then there is every likelihood of a renewal of the dastardly campaigns of yesterday against Soviet Russia.

But the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, where the working and poor farming masses under the leadership of the Communist Party, have established their own government, will never allow itself to be turned into a coolie colony of the international capitalists.

OWNERS OF GREATEST COTTON MILL CHANGE MINDS ON WAGE REDUCTION

By ESTHER LOWELL
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 16.—The Amoskeag Manufacturing company officials have decided against giving their workers the 10 per cent wage cut which the company union representatives voted to accept recently after two and a half days' arguing.

Whether the change of mind in the directors of the world's greatest cotton mills is due to pre-election strategy or to the Manchester Textile Council's denunciation of the proposed wage cut is uncertain, according to Edgar D. Mank, vice-president of the Textile Council and president of clothfinishers' local 1137 of the United Textile Workers' Union.

Dividend "Undisturbed."

Agent W. Parker Straw of Amoskeag claims that the wage cut will not help the concern to reduce prices enough to get more orders. The annual report of the company, just out, shows a loss of $2,851,131 during the fiscal year ending May 31, 1924. But the assets of the company are exceptionally good: Fourth Liberty Loan bonds to the extent of $32,640,000 which are listed at five million less; and other assets completing the $41,782,045 total. With only $14,750,000 current liabilities of Amoskeag, the Boston News Bureau predicts that the annual dividend of $3 "will be undisturbed"; in other words the stockholders will get theirs!

"No business" was the constantly repeated phrase with which Agent Straw sought to impress me of the company's poverty. He remarked that "the $14,000,000 we've made in the last few years was all made during the war. The government would pay anything. There wasn't much business in the spacious old-fashioned offices of Amoskeag where the young men were discussing radio and the old were gazing out of the window, but there was plenty of work for the bent and worn workers tending the great deafening machines in the mills which I went thru.

Only Half Workers Employed.

The mills are not all running and only about half of the workers are employed. From day to day the Amoskeag workers do not know when they will be asked—permitted—to grind out ten or eleven hours daily toil over the many monstrous machines which each must tend. The company did not recover from the 1922 strike, Mank says, but the company can afford to mark time while the workers cannot.

The Coolidge mill of Amoskeag is called "poorhouse" by the workers because in the 1922 strike it was the first opened for workers to struggle into. It is named for Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, one of the oldest Amoskeag directors, who is no longer so active in the company but retains a place on the directory of Old Colony Trust and of Manchester Electric company.

Many Financial Connections.

Frederick C. Dumaine, treasurer of Amoskeag and president of Waltham Watch company, is also a director of Old Colony Trust, United Drug company (Standard Oil subsidiary), Eastern Steamship Lines, etc. Other directors of Amoskeag are connected with Kidder Peabody Acceptance corporation (Morgan of New England); Boston Consolidated Gas; Boston Elevated; Daniel Greene Felt Shoe company; E. Howard Clock; Massachusetts Gas companies; New England Coal and Coke; Pere Marquette Railway; Union Mills; United States Steel corporation (of Mr. Elbert H. Gary); United Worsted company; various southern railways; American Sugar Refining company (sugar trust); American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; General Electric; Champion Copper; and too many other industrial, finance, insurance, cultural and philanthropic concerns to mention. Charles Francis Adams, one of Amoskeag's directors, is treasurer and member of the board of overseers of Harvard University and George Wigglesworth, president of Amoskeag, is also one of fair Harvard's overseers.

CURLEY, GOMPERS' MAYOR OF BOSTON, MASS., JOINS WAR ON CHILDREN

(By The Federated Press)

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Officers of the Boston Central Union, following the lead of the American Federation of Labor in its educational campaign for the child labor amendment, are amazed at the storm of opposition. Opposition of Alvin T. Fuller, republican candidate for governor, came as a matter of course, but labor was not prepared for the attack which James M. Curley, mayor of Boston and supposed labor sympathizer, launched in his candidacy for governor of Massachusetts.

Curley had previously endorsed the child labor amendment. Now he comes out against it, his main argument being that Florence Kelley, whom he charges with having translated something from Karl Marx, had a hand in drawing up the amendment. He says he considers the child labor amendment would lead to Sovietism.

Lines up with Catholics.

The Boston mayor's turnabout on the amendment came close on the heels of its denunciation by the Catholic heirarchy of this diocese. Cardinal O'Connell, who led the Catholic fight on the amendment used the term Sovietism. He says he believes in state laws regulating the labor of children but fears a proposal to give the national government authority to pass anti-child labor laws might lead to the invasion of homes to see whether the children were working, even doing chores.

"For the parental control of children," says the alarmed cardinal, "it would substitute the will of congress and the dictates of a centralized bureaucracy, more in keeping with Soviet Russia than with the fundamental principles of American government."

Would Abolish Child Labor.

Answering the allegation of Sovietism the Massachusetts child labor committee says the real issue is the solution of child labor in the United States within a reasonable time.

FASCIST MINISTER REFUSES TO OBEY CONVENTION DECISION

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

LIVORNO, Italy, Oct. 16.—Giordano Sarocchi, minister of labor in the cabinet of Mussolini and a member of the liberal party, has lined up with the pro-fascist forces in the split which has been precipitated among the liberals in convention here.

Following the vote of the overwhelming majority of the delegates to refuse further co-operation with the Mussolini government, both Sarocchi and Casati, who were put in the cabinet as representatives of the liberal party, have decided to remain in office under the rule of the black shirts.

The fascist representatives at the convention have been able to carry with them only a very small group.

Would "Honor" MacDonald

MILAN, Oct. 16. — The Popliat Italia in a published letter of which some believe Mussolini the author, suggests that Ramsay MacDonald be made a honorary member of the Fascisti, as "he has always worked outside constitutional lines."

Official Protests Made No Impression

(By Federated Press.)

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 16.—A sample of the kind of British justice that obtains in China at the present time was illustrated in connection with the death of Edwin C. Hawley, an American citizen, last June.

On the evening of June 19, 1924, Hawley was pulled aboard a British gunboat at Wan-Hsieh in a state of collapse, and died soon afterwards.

No Investigation

It was assumed, without any investigation into the matter, that he had been beaten by Chinese junkmen and thrown into the water.

On this assumption the commander of the British gunboat sent an ultimatum to the Chinese authorities that unless two of the junkmen's union officials were promptly executed on the waterfront, he would blow the town to pieces. In the face of this display of force, the Chinese authorities had to consent.

After a futile protest on the part of the Chinese magistrate, two union leaders were taken to the beach and publicly beheaded. The British commander defended his action by contending that it was necessary to make an example of these men. For his action he was thanked by the American organizations in China.

On July 3, a circular telegram war issued by 76 members of the Pekin parliament denouncing the atrocious action of the British gunboat commander. It was stated in the telegram that inquiries proved that Hawley had fallen into the water while trying to board the China Steam Navigation Co.'s vessel Wan-Liu and had not been beaten by junkmen. The telegram concluded:

Merits Condemnation

"Such high-handed policy as this merits the just condemnation of the Chinese people, and arouses the whole nation to anger. Great Britain and the United States have recently seen fit to browbeat China, they have now gone to the limit when the captain of a British gunboat has ordered to bombard a Chinese city and demand the instant execution of two innocent citizens. We denounce this lawless and barbarous conduct, and we should, one and all, rise in vigorous protest against this lawlessness."

The outstanding points are that two men who had no connection with the affair were publicly executed; the deceased was not a British subject, and the British commander went beyond his rights and all the precepts of international law in creating himself judge and jury; no attempts was made by the officer to inquire into the rights or wrongs of the affair, and no attempt was made to bring the alleged culprits to justice. It is not even alleged that the men executed had anything to do with the affair, yet they paid with their lives.

Anatole France Is Dead.

TOURS, France, Oct. 16. — Hundreds of messages of condolence were received today over the death of Anatole France, famous French essayist and novelist. He had been ill for a year and had been sinking for two weeks so his death was not unexpected.

M. France was in his 81st year. His funeral probably will be Wednesday or Thursday. It is expected that public ceremonies will be conducted in Paris later.

Worker Dies in Fire.

MONTREAL, Oct. 16.—Damage estimated at $200,000 was done today by fire in the Montreal abbatoirs. One employe was injured leaping from a third story window.

The ZR-3

There is rejoicing among the bourgeoisie of Germany over the feat of the great airship that sailed from that country to the United States in 81 hours. But there is also gnashing of teeth.

While the building of the monster airship is a great mechanical feat that reflects credit on the industrial prowess of Germany, the fact that this ship, which bears the once mighty name of Zeppelin, is now in the hands of the power that humbled the mighty empire of the Hohenzollerns in the dust, is bitter gall to the militant nationalists of Germany.

In a world freed from the curse of capitalism, the breeder of wars, the accomplishment of the ZR-3 would be hailed with unalloyed joy. But to the class-conscious section of the American working class the flight brings forth visions of dropping bombs and burning cities, of mangled bodies and devastated countrysides, of the horrors of another capitalist war in which the ingenuity of mankind will be taxed in the mania for destruction.

The ZR-3, made in Germany but paid for by United States dollars, is a symbol of American capitalist might. There is no glory here for the American working class out of whose weary bodies the dollars were wrung. There is no glory for the German workers who toiled to produce this modern air monster. The honor and the glory are for the American ruling class.

Today American capitalism sits on the top of the world. But a mightier power than organized capitalism is arising. It will wring the sceptre of power from the hands of our ruling class. It is the power of the awakening giant of labor.

The New York Campaign

The Foster meeting in New York on Sunday, October 19, will mark a high spot in one of the most vigorous campaigns ever waged in New York by any working class political party. Comrade Foster will address two meetings on that date, one in New York and one in Brooklyn.

The New York Communists deserve credit for the energy which they injected into the campaign from the beginning. Needless to say, it is not a vote-catching campaign such as was indulged in by the socialist party, before it became part of the ingredients that go to make up the LaFollette chop suey.

Besides putting forward the Communist program, our comrades also made very effective use of the campaign for bringing in new members to the party and securing subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER.

One of the most interesting items on Comrade Fosters' New York program is the presentation of a red silk Bolshevik banner to the branch that makes the best record.

That the conglomeration of camouflaged capitalist lackeys sailing under the LaFollette colors are incensed at the success of the campaign waged by the New York Communists is proven by the arrest of one of our comrades, at the instigation of the fake progressive Congressman LaGuardia. These acts of desperation, instead of dampening the ardor of the Communists only encourage them to increased efforts.

Workers of New York and Brooklyn should not miss the opportunity of hearing William Z. Foster, the only revolutionary candidate for president of the United States, speak on Sunday, Oct. 19, at the New Star Casino, 107th street and Park avenue, Manhattan, at 2 p. m., and at 8 p. m. on the same day at Arcadia Hall, Brooklyn.

The Youth to the Factories

The aim of all Communist organizations is to be based on units organized in the factories, mines and fields for the purpose of political organization, education and activity. In the endeavors to reorganize on this basis of shop nuclei, the Young Workers League has been in the forefront.

Folowing out its national program of action, the Chicago unit of the league has taken the first step toward its reformation into the shop nucleus basis.

It is an excellent sign of the invasion by the young Communists of the industries where the youthful toilers feel the bitter lash of exploitation, and where the league members, with their program of economic and political demands, can rally the young workers to the standards of Communism.

The factory youth will form the backbone of a powerful young Communist movement. The young Communist movement will be, more than ever before, one of the strongest arms of the American revolutionary movement.

All success to the young reds. Let the area branch meetings tonight have an unprecedented attendance!

Anticipation—Not Anxiety

There have been many heart-rendering pangs at the passing from the field of revolutionary magazines of the Labor Herald, the Liberator, and the Soviet Russia Pictorial. Each one of these printed expressions of distinct revolutionary currents had its field, and its friends, thousands of them. Today, with the announcement that the three are to be combined into one great periodical, the WORKERS MONTHLY, these partisan hosts of the one or the other are suffering some anxiety.

We counsel them, one and all, to be glad and make merry, for the new magazine, the WORKERS MONTHLY, is going to do more than merely take the place of the lost one. The WORKERS MONTHLY is a synthesis of all the best of the three magazines it supersedes—and a great deal more.

It would not be fair to tell you what is going into the first issue of the WORKERS MONTHLY. Nor could you form any idea of what it will look like if we told you the table of contents. There is something added to any magazine, some sort of a personal quality, the sense of which you get only when you hold a copy in your hand. So it would be damning with faint praise to tell you its contents.

Sufficient it will be to say that the American labor movement, at no time in its history, has had a magazine of such surpassing excellence. In one way or another, even the best of them have been—naturally, no doubt—a little one-sided, devoted to one or another phase of the world-wide and all pervading revolutionary struggle. Now we are to have a comprehensive magazine.

Some people, even some revolutionists, are serious minded. There will be roast beef for them. But humor, especially the graphic sort, is a rich element of the class struggle. The editor of the WORKERS MONTHLY will feed the grapes to the wine press and the foaming, sparkling vintage will be yours. Poetry, too, is the crystallized song of life. If they are songs of the workers, they, too, will find a place in the pages of the WORKERS MONTHLY. Politics, national and international, is the vital force of the whole struggle. We shall find keen political analysis and guidance in the WORKERS MONTHLY. Stories of industry, the contact point of the classes, written by that marvelous conjuncture, workers who are writers, will have their place in the WORKERS MONTHLY. And all the new life of great Russia, the first working class republic, the land of the soviets, will be told in both word and picture. For there will be profuse illustrations, by photo and pen.

We told you that there would be something else added to all the contents. Yes, that is true. For in addition to the body of the magazine, the something that you hold in your hand and may weigh upon the scale, you will have in the WORKERS MONTHLY the revolutionary spirit of LENINISM. What more could a worker ask for?

The British Fascisti

The news that the membership of the black-shirt organization in Great Britain has reached the figure of one hundred thousand may come as a shock to those who hug the delusion that England is so crazy about constitutionalism, since Cromwell chopped the head off King Charles, that the transition from capitalism to socialism will take place without even the king having to chop wood for his breakfast.

But the bourgeoisie of England are no happier over the prospect of losing their graft than their contemporaries in other countries. Regardless of the failure of Fascism in Italy and Spain the "boys of the bulldog" breed have an idea that where the Latins failed the Anglo-Saxons will be successful.

The British ruling class have no intention of surrendering their power without a struggle and unless they break their necks in a quarrel with their American competitors, they will wreck them in a civil war with the British working class.

For the moment the services of the British socialists are accepted as a necessary evil, but however implicit may be the faith of the bourgeoisie in the loyalty of the MacDonalds, Snowdens and Thomases, they have a wholesome dread of the masses behind these traitors who have not had their eyes opened yet to their perfidy.

The British Fascisti, like their tribe in every other country, make no secret of their intentions to employ extra legal force against the workers. They are armed to the teeth, equipped with modern appurtenances of war and ready to answer the call to action at a moment's notice. They are financed by the tory landowners and the big capitalists.

The British labor party government that has arrested Communists for alleged seditious articles in the Communist press, raided their homes and spied on their meetings, has tolerated the Fascisti in their midst even tho this element has openly violated the law.

What does this prove? Simply that the British labor party is a governing organ of capitalism; that it looks on the Fascisti as a possible successor, when the condition of the British Empire becomes such that parliamentary democracy must go by the board.

The British Fascisti are using violence to uphold the robber capitalist system. The British Communists are avowedly out to overthrow it. There is the difference, and like the social-democrats of Germany, the British socialist government is ready to shoot the Communists while paving the way for the Fascisti's coming to power.

It is possible the British Fascisti may have come too late, but there is no telling what may happen these days. In any event it looks as if the British love for "law and order" is going to be put to the test.

Daily News Unblushingly Continues to Publish Lies

"underworld" in the machinery of government on which the decadent capitalist power rests. Framing up labor men, for instance, is engineered by these underworld characters, but paid for by their employers. Sometimes the employers are double-crossed. Sometimes they pay for extravagant "investigation" where no investigations are really needed. But the fact that there is a place in the government for these finks, and that daily newspapers give prominent space to their bleary-eyed fiction, proves that capitalism consciously and deliberately uses this method to combat the struggles of the working class to free itself from wage slavery.

Burns Milks U. S. Treasury.

That is how William J. Burns was able to get a stranglehold on the federal department of justice, long before he had any official connection with it. Burns milked the government treasury, and he made use of the secret service organization to further his own private detective business, but he returned value received to the Wall Street-owned government, nevertheless.

The Labor Defense Council has looked into the career of Burns pretty thoroly. It was as a Burns client that Warren G. Harding took office as president of the United States. In 1919, he had bought spurious "anti-red" stories from Burns for his paper at Marion, Ohio. Burns is an old friend of Daugherty's. He has worked in close association with the "Ohio crowd" for years. He boasted, even before the 1920 election, that if Harding should be elected president he, Burns, would be made boss of the secret service, under Daugherty.

Espionage is Organized.

One of the first things Burns did when he got the job was to organize a widespread system of industrial espionage. He established the "bureau of identification," which (incidentally) served him excellently for his own international business. He took people like Spolansky into the secret service in droves, making that branch of the government an even more vicious adjunct of capitalist rule than it had been in the days of Wilson and A. Mitchell Palmer.

As I have hinted once or twice before, Burns did not give up the active direction of his private detective agency when he went to work for the government. Altho nominally operated by other members of the Burns family during this time, William J. exercised personal supervision over the business. In a subsequent article prepared thru the co-operation of the Labor Defense Council, the DAILY WORKER will go into all the details of the Wall Street bomb explosion of 1919, advertised for "exposure" by Spolansky in the Daily News. The DAILY WORKER will show how Burns used the government in this case in attempting to frame up radicals so that the William J. Burns International Detective agency could secure the profitable employment of rounding them up.

Labor Defense Council Active.

The Labor Defense Council is, as its name implies, a defense organization. At its offices, 166 W. Washington St., it is collecting funds for the defense of all Workers Party members prosecuted because of their opinions or beliefs. But that defense is most effective which is also an attack. Therefore, the Labor Defense Council has been conducting a systematic campaign against the finks and stool-pigeons which are used by the employers against the labor movement. In the course of its investigations it has come upon some interesting material. Much of this will be made available to readers of the DAILY WORKER.

Spolansky is a type that the labor movement should understand thoroly. Ignoramus that he is, he represents a system that accomplishes its purposes by means of brutality, deception and frame-ups. Even should the Chicago Daily News wish to repudiate him, it could not. He is an essential part of the present order, on which it too depends, another instrument of the same regime, flesh and bone of the same system.

"BILL" HEARST MADE BID FOR "JAKEY'S" BUNK

Randolph Gagged at Price of Hokum

What's the prevailing market rate for "red" scares?

It seems to be high. William Randoph Hearst, owner of a string of newspapers thruout the country which exist only on scares and scandals, failed to outbid the Chicago Daily News for the series of articles by Jacob Spolansky, which the News is now running.

And while Hearst's pockets seem to be sewed up tight when it comes to paying his reporters a living wage, he is quick to come across when he can pull a "stunt" that will send up the circulation of the papers.

His Price was High.

But Hearst wouldn't have Spolansky's "red" stories—at least, not at the price at which Spolansky was peddling them. Spolansky has told the DAILY WORKER how he let the capitalist newspapers, one after the other send the price for the "red" scares higher and higher. In the end the Daily News outbid Hearst, and the Daily News forked up—the money has already been paid—and the Daily News is now running the articles.

Jake Got the Dough.

"What good does the publishing of these articles do me?" said Spolansky last night in answer to a question from the DAILY WORKER. "I've been paid good money for them. And what good does it do the News? Well, they predict that the circulation will go up immediately."

I talked yesterday with the news editor of the Daily News—a small frightened-looking man by the name of Chapell. Chapell reminds you of nothing in the world excepting the smaller end of a worm that has been cut in two. But Chapell has a bull's voice. And he shouted wildly when he found that a DAILY WORKER reporter had come to see him.

The rest of the editors were "busy." Their office boys said so. Their private secretaries said so. Their stenographers said so. As one of the guards explained: "Five minutes is a good bit of time for those people."

Hard Working Editors.

The staff of the Daily News was busy. A large part of it was sitting around the tables playing poker. And five minutes is a great deal of time. In the five minutes which you might give for a courteous answer to a reporter, your opponent might bluff a royal flush with a pair of deuces.

There is a general impression among the staff of the Daily News that the man really responsible for the Spolansky articles is "Bill" Forte. Whenever I asked for an interview with the person in charge of the "red" stories, I was promptly referred to "Bill" Forte. But Forte claims to know nothing about the matter. He says he is only a reporter.

"Bill" Fumigates the Offal.

Is it "Bill" Forte who is writing up Spolansky's articles in literate form?

On one thing the editors were agreed—that they would print no letters or stories sent in to them making corrections in the Spolansky stories.

I explained that Spolansky had been thrown out of the department of justice at the same time as Burns. I showed that his technique was even too crude for the government in these days of loudly smelling oil pots. The reply came quickly: "But he'll do for us."

But how much more sensational these "exposures" could be! Spolansky says that we meet in groups, that we spread literature, that we form a party. And he expects his readers to be startled.

Jakey Missed Something.

Spolansky doesn't seem to know the half of it. He doesn't know about the junior groups of Bolsheviks which the Workers Party has formed in the public schools. He tells nothing of our great daily press. He applies superlative adjectives to the most innocent and least "damning" expressions of Communism.

Again we Communists have been arrested for political murder. And brot to trial, we are charged with nothing more than political Sabbath-breaking.

bellish the advertising and preserve the system of society on which the advertisers thrive—makes the following statement in an editorial: "Merely to be here with a chance to work for American wages and an American living, is the happiest hope of many a man, woman and child over there," referring to Europe. We note that the Prince of Wales is not one of the Europeans whose fondest hope is to work for an American wage. It would be interesting to learn what the five or six millions of unemployed American workers think of this journalistic vomit!

THE fall of the Spanish dictatorship as a result of the Morocco fiasco may result in liberating the 23,000 workers who are in Spanish dungeons. Strange is it not that our great American lovers of democracy will shake the hand of a black shirt dictator, who governs the many with the swords of the few, but they will not even touch the hem of the garments of the representatives of the workers of Russia whose dictatorship is of the many, by the many and for the many.

UNITED States Ambassador Moore, Morgan's chief agent in Spain likes King Alfonso very much. He calls Alfy "Chief." I suppose our Italian ambassador calls Mussolini "Benny." Perhaps they shoot craps together when "Benny" is not busy murdering some Italian workers. But the black shirt dictatorships have fallen on evil days. Even the cowardly liberals are now gunning for them in Italy and Spain. But the liberals have not a word to say about the thousands of workers who are rotting in prison. The workers must not depend on the liberals. They must take on the task of freeing themselves.

POLICE PROTECT DAILY NEWS; JAIL DAILY WORKER MEN FOR ANNOUNCING REPLY TO LIES

By MANUEL GOMEZ

That it is decent and legal for the Chicago Daily News to publish Jake Spolansky's lying "expose" of the Communists, but impermissible for the DAILY WORKER to expose the would-be exposers, is the apparent interpretation which has resulted in the arrest of two active members of the Workers Party, John Heinrickson and Peter Lucas, charged with disorderly conduct.

They were arrested at the corner of Milwaukee and Fullerton avenues, where they were putting up posters announcing the present series of anti-fink articles in the DAILY WORKER. The Labor Defense Council furnished bail for their release.

The lurid posters of the Daily News are in the street cars, in the "L" trains, on the billboards, all over the city. But when the DAILY WORKER attempts to put up a few posters, its men are arrested!

This illustrates what we meant when we declared yesterday that Spolansky, the Daily News and the police department are all bound together in the same system.

Somebody Getting Feverish.

Apparently the articles in the DAILY WORKER are beginning to make somebody decidedly feverish under the collar. The DAILY WORKER will continue its exposures, in spite of interferences. Copies of the paper will be obtainable at all important newsstands.

With coy carelessness of truth, the News neglected to say anything about posters in its front-page story of the arrest. Instead, it informed its readers that "anarchistic literature and pamphlets designed to inflame workingmen were taken from the men." The item starts out with obvious malicious intent and innuendo, seeing the apprehension of the two Communists and adding, gratuitously, "both of whom are said to have come recently from Russia."

Daily News Wrong Again.

The DAILY WORKER would like to know where the News got its information that Heinrickson and Lucas "are said" to have come recently from Russia. As a mere matter of fact, both of them have been living in Chicago for the last fifteen years or more.

Instead of quitting Spolansky after the DAILY WORKER exposed him as a liar and a fraud, the News is resorting to his methods.

In chapter V. of Spolansky's ponderous narrative, he begins to talk about the "red raids" of 1919 and 1920. These are the raids of which Louis F. Post, at that time Assistant Secretary of Labor, has written: "The whole 'red' crusade seems to have been saturated with 'labor spy' interests—the interests of private detective agencies which, in the secret service of masterful corporations, were engaged in generating and intensifying industrial suspicions and hatreds." In other words, powerful capitalists and their hired gangs of union wreckers and frame-up men, in the government and out of it.

It is not generally known how important these same interests were in securing the passage of the reckless "sedition laws" and "criminal syndicalism" laws, under which thousands of workers have been thrown into jail in defiance of the constitution. More than 35 state legislatures have been induced to pass such laws, after a similar statute failed of adoption in the United States congress. The laws were passed because they were "good for business"—especially the detective business.

Exposes Thiel Agency.

Readers of the DAILY WORKER will be particularly interested in the criminal syndicalism law which is on the statute books of the state of Illinois. The labor defense council has reason to believe that it was due in no inconsiderable degree to a sterling patriot by the name of Michael Fiana-

FORTUNATELY for American "society", the Prince of Wales did not break his neck while he was here. While at Long Island, His Royal Highness appeared at a racecourse wearing a slouched panama. On the following day every lounge lizard at the millionaire colony had similar headgear. At a fox hunt in Toronto, the prince fell from his horse just to show that he could do it. Practically every participant in the hunt parted company with his steed a la prince. Bonesetters should adopt the prince. It would pay them to keep him supplied with horses.

THE quiz into the campaign funds of the three capitalist parties does not seem to bring forth the promised sensations. What is all the shooting about anyhow? Everybody knows that the biggest capitalists are supporting the republican party this year, for the Davis is perfectly safe he only figures in this campaign as an innocent bystander.. But all the big fellows are not dumping their cash into the Coolidge treasury. What about the gentleman who gave $40,000 to "Fightin' Bob's" campaign fund?

WHAT a collection of thieving hypocrites the capitalist parties are! The LaFollette, democratic and republican parties would do anything short of committing murder to reach the White House. This storm over the size of the campaign contributions is merely political mud-throwing. The big capitalists will find ways and means of putting their money behind their favorites.

SENATOR Thomas Walsh, the gentleman who won a national reputation in tracing the black satchel that carried the $100,000 to Fall, now finds himself mixed up in a mess that differs only in degree from the one that squirted over the former secretary of the interior. Trotsky Warns Against Foe

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

MOSCOW, Oct. 17.—Leon Trotsky, Soviet Commissar for War, speaking to a cossack assembly at Kabardino Balkarsk today urged his hearers "to be ready to mount their horses at a moment's notice to fight for Russia."

"Sooner or later the enemy may compel us to shoulder our arms for our country's defense," said Trotsky. "That is why we cannot disband the army. Our enemies, the vultures and imperialists—those who now disrupt China—don't permit us to do so. We do not want to be torn and crushed.

"States composing the Soviet Alliance can adjust their mutual differences peacefully, but we could not take such a course with London or New York. Our army is strong not alone with its own strength, but because it has with it the peasants and workers."

FARRINGTON IN BIG LAND DEAL WITH OPERATORS

By J. T. O'FLAHERTY

(Sixth Article)

The official machinery of the Illinois Miners' Union is today being used by Frank Farrington to support for re-election the most notorious capitalist grafter and all round political crook that ever sat in the governor's chair at Springfield. Considering Farrington's past dealings with other capitalist politicians it is a fair assumption that the price of his treachery in this case comes to a pretty stiff figure.

While the thousands of Illinois miners are unemployed and in a serious condition for want of the necessities of life, this master faker is putting up a united front with Small, Dawes, Brundage and Coolidge to put over the republican ticket in Illinois and in the United States while giving the service to LaFollette and the so-called progressives.

Dunne For the Workers.

The only candidate for governor of Illinois that deserves the support of the working class is William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, member of the electrical workers' union and a man whose career in the REMOVAL OF G. E. B. IS ACTION TAKEN BY THE I. W. W. CONVENTION

Yesterday saw the removal from power of all the Industrial Workers of the World officials involved in the recent injunction controversy. The convention went on record as repudiating the action of the officials on both sides in the controversy by temporarily electing a committee of administration from the delegates and completely excluding any of the old officers.

A committee of three was elected by the convention to act as temporary officers under the instruction and jurisdiction of the convention and to take charge of the Industrial Workers of the World national affairs until the factional controversy is decided upon by the convention.

This means that Tom Doyle and Joe Fisher on the one side and Griffith, Rowan and Bowerman on the other side, have been ousted. With them also went James Morris, assistant secretary to Doyle.

The motion also stipulates that the duly elected administration make its headquarters at 1001 W. Madison street, the regular national office and the officials be notified of their temporary suspension.

Supplies, books and other belongings of the Industrial Unions Nos. 330, 310 and 120 are to be returned to the Industrial Unions and that Industrial Unions Nos. 440 and 520 with other property be controlled by the administration elected by the convention. This action, however, cannot be taken until the temporary injunction is lifted.

INDIANA COURTS FAIL TO BAN WORKERS PARTY

By ARNE SWABECK

Connivance of the old party politicians, the lackeys of capitalism and the self-styled progressives following the usual "democratic" pattern to rule the Workers (Communist) Party candidates off the ballot failed once more.

On Oct. 14 the Workers Party filed with the governor of the state of Indiana petitions for nomination of presidential electors containing 1,000 signatures obtained from all parts of the state but principally from the steel workers who have never for one moment lost faith in William Z. Foster as a true working class representative and in the Communist Party as the leader in the struggles of the workers. The tools of the steel trust immediately got busy to take measures to prevent the Workers Party going before the working class voters in this election.

A Lame Excuse.

An injunction was obtained restraining the board of election commissioners from placing seven of the so-called minor parties on the ballot giving the excuse that many of the signatures to their petitions had been obtained by fraudulent methods and that a total of twelve parties had filed nominations which would prevent the use of voting machines and thus disfranchize large numbers of Indiana citizens. Just how this would mean a disfranchisement was not stated, nor was any particular proof submitted to substantiate the contention of fraudulent methods. The board bowed to the commands of the injunction and ruled that only five of the so-called major parties, including the LaFollette "progressives" could be placed on the ballot.

The Plot Failed.

The Indiana election law provides for the acceptance of independent candidates when nominated thru petitions by 500 voters of the state. During a period of two weeks 1,000 workers signified their willingness to support the Communist candidates and the Communist program and signed their names to petitions being circulated. But what is law to the lackeys of capitalism? When it serves their purpose they will enforce it to the letter, when that is not the case it will be as utterly disregarded as the scrap of paper it is written on. And in this instance, despite the one thousand signatures, the tried and true method of injunction was made use of to attempt to

WORK OVERTIME IN NEW YORK

Foster To make Award

THE weekend in New York will see the final spurt in a campaign of the D. W. B. U. (DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union). Over 500 hustling worker-builders have been in overalls for weeks, with special folders of five subs each for the DAILY WORKER in a drive to establish "The National Labor Daily" in New York City.

Over 500 subscriptions have been piled up to this week and an effort is now being made to double the figure with one last three day effort ending in the Foster meeting at Arcadia Hall, 918 Halsey St., Brooklyn on October 19. Here the Communist presidential candidate, Wm. Z. Foster will award a beautiful silk banner (hand work of the Lithuanian comrades) to the winning branch having scored most subs in the contest. Those comrades having subs on hand must turn them in here previous to the meeting to be counted in the banner award.

No past effort made in New York for the DAILY WORKER can comlast three days of the Banner Award Contest every Communist, friend and sympathizer—and especially those holding sub card folders are asked to put a final "kick" into the contest. Here is real constructive work to build the American Labor movement—get in the D. W. B. U!

It has been due entirely to the efforts of these hard working builders that it has been possible to place the DAILY WORKER on the news stands of New York. Beginning Monday, October 20, every newsstand in that city will carry the makings of future Communists. The DAILY WORKER can be maintained, become better established, when every New York "Red" will see that subscriptions are asked for from every worker, everywhere—and especially in the last days of special effort to carry the Communist message—thru the DAILY WORKER by getting subs. Wind up with a bang—make the last three days of the Banner Contest—RED letter days!

COMMUNISTS DECLARE RELIEF FOR WORKERS WITHOUT JOBS IS EVADED BY LA FOLLETTE

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party has issued a statement calling upon the workers to demand action for relief of the unemployed.

This statement declares that there are now more than two million workers unemployed in the United States and that the army of men without jobs is increasing daily.

Neither the republican candidate, the democratic candidate, nor LaFollette has dared to take up this most pressing issue for the workers of this country, is the charge of the Workers Party.

Shows Up LaFollette.

The statement is particularly directed against the LaFollette-Wheeler Progressive organization which is making an appeal for labor support but which is silent on the biggest issue in the lives of the workers of this country at the present time.

The statement declares that it is the capitalist system of industry which is responsible for periodic hard times with the consequent misery and suffering for the workers which unemployment brings. It demands immediate relief thru compelling the employers to pay wages to the unemployed to whom they cannot give work and thru government taxation of industry for the purpose of maintaining the unemployed.

Publish Statement in Leaflet.

It calls upon all workers who want to make a fight against the scourge of unemployment to join in the formation of unemployment councils to bring pressure upon the government and the bosses for immediate relief and to support the Workers Party candidates as a demonstration of their demand for the abolition of the capitalist system which causes unemployment.

The statement in full, of which hundreds of thousands of copies will be distributed in leaflet form, follows:

WORK OR WAGES FOR UNEMPLOYED!

Make Bosses Pay Unemployed Workers If They Can't Give Them Jobs!

HAVE we the right to "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness?"

According to the Declaration of Independence every human being has certain inalienable rights "and among these are the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Do the workers of this country enjoy these inalienable rights?

In order to enjoy the right to life they must have the opportunity to earn a living. The workers who work in the shops, mines, mills, factories and on the railroads of this country are dependent upon the work they do and the wages they receive for their living. If they are unable to secure work they are unable to live.

The right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" to them means an opportunity to work and earn these things.

The Workers Without Jobs.

Today there are already two million workers in the United States without jobs. They are denied the opportunity to earn a living.

Hundreds of thousands of miners have been unemployed from periods running from three to six months, some even longer.

The steel industry has been running at less than 50 per cent of capacity for many months, which means more hundreds of thousands of workers who are denied the right to work.

The textile industry has thrown a large part of its workers on the street. The clothing industry has its tens of thousands without work. The automobile industry has laid off a hundred thousand or more men.

All over the country the number of men and women without jobs is growing. The bosses' system of industry is breaking down again. In 1921 this breakdown of the capitalist industrial system threw FIVE OR SIX MILLION WORKERS OUT OF JOBS.

These workers didn't have any "inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The bosses couldn't make big profits because their system of industry wasn't working, so they sent these workers out on the streets to starve.

Thrown on the Junk Pile.

Is it the inalienable right of the capitalist bosses to throw the workers on the streets to starve? Must we go without wages to buy food, clothing and pay the rent, whenever the capitalist bosses can't make big profits out of our work? Are the workers mere machines to be used when the bosses need them?

Why should Gary of the steel trust, Ford, the automobile king, Wood, the textile industry boss, the coal barons, the railroad owners and the other capitalist bosses have the power in their hands TO PUT FIVE OR SIX MILLION WORKERS ON THE STREETS TO STARVE WHENEVER THEY CAN'T MAKE PROFITS?

During the war the capitalist bosses and their government told the workers they must "WORK OR FIGHT." When the capitalist bosses needed the labor of the workers they compelled them to work.

WHY SHOULDN'T THE WORKERS COMPEL THE CAPITALISTS TO PAY THEM WAGES WITHOUT WORK IF THEY CAN'T GIVE THEM THE OPPORTUNITY TO WORK AND EARN A LIVING?

Make the Bosses and Their Government Pay.

Workers! Demand that the government and the capitalist bosses pay the unemployed.

The capitalist bosses make big profits out of the labor of the workers. The BILLION DOLLAR fortunes of Rockefeller, Morgan and Ford were produced by the labor of the workers. The wealth owned by the tens of thousands of millionaires and multi-million aires were produced by the labor of the workers.

If the capitalist bosses take big profits when times are good, make them pay the unemployed wages when they can't give them jobs.

Make the government levy special taxes on the capitalist bosses and create an unemployment fund to be administered by the labor unions out of which to pay the workers without jobs. Let the workers still in the fac-

Of all the occasions upon which workers gather in meeting halls none find more whole-hearted support, enthusiastic welcome, greater response in the masses than the yearly celebration of the victory of the Russian Proletariat. Of the many demonstrations Communists hold, celebration of the birth of Soviet Russia should outstrip them all. Arranging details for huge mass meetings upon the SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION, NOVEMBER 7th is now in order. Your immediate attention to this task. Begin this work TODAY!

REMOVE G. E. B. IS INSTRUCTION TO I.W.W. DELEGATES

Want New Deal in Drive to Settle Controversy

Many of the delegates to the general convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, now meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall, have been instructed by their industrial unions to remove all members of the present general executive board of the organization and elect a new temporary G. E. B. until the controversy within the organization is settled.

This was revealed in yesterday's session.

Effort to Release Delegates.

Joe Jordan, of I. U. 110, tried to have the delegates released from their instructions on all matters pertaining to grievances, which included the factional controversy. The chair ruled this motion out of order on the grounds that the delegates had no right to remove the instructions. The chair, however, was not sustained after an appeal. Jordan's motion that instructions on matters of grievances be removed was lost.

Debate on Jordan's motion developed that I. U. 440 instructed delegates to demand an itemized financial statement of expenditures of the general executive board of the I. W. W.

Delegates for I. U. 120 were instructed to vote to remove the present general executive board from office and elect a temporary G. E. B. until the controversy between the two I. W. W. factions can be thrashed out.

Delegates representing I. U. 210 and 220 were also instructed to see that officials belonging to both factions were temporarily removed from office and a temporary G. E. B. elected.

The convention, thru the press committee, issued a statement declaring that "Tom Doyle claims he gave no interview to any reporters on this convention," and stating in part:

"We wish to inform the public in general, that there is no antagonism among the delegates relative to this controversy. The convention is going on in a very orderly manner and is impartial.

"Neither Doyle, Fisher, nor the executive board members have been or will be shown any partiality.

"Nor is there any hard feeling among the delegates. We wish to emphatically deny the allegation that the delegates who had come to the Memorial Hall from the Washington street hall, had come to 'filibuster, make trouble and delay proceedings.'

"The delegates from all industrial unions, that are present have agreed on their respective voting power and have also set the voting power which will be granted to the other industrial unions which have no delegates present, as yet.

"The convention has gone into permanent session and all committees necessary have been elected. Sessions will be held daily in the Emmet Memorial Hall, except Sundays. The public in general will be allowed to sit thru the entire session."

After prolonged debate, the rules of the convention were adopted, including the rule that two delegates representing different industrial unions are required to get a roll call or record vote before it will be taken.

PROTECT THE DAILY NEWS

gan, of the Thiel Detective Service Co.

The Thiel agency, with Chicago headquarters at 83 W. Jackson Blvd., is almost as large as Burns. It is one of the three outstanding agencies (Burns, Thiel and Sherman) who make a practice of furnishing labor spies to large corporations. It also maintains an army of armed guards, gunmen and professional strikebreakers.

The usefulness of such a law was discussed many times in the Thiel headquarters, and in the offices of clients. The matter was taken up with individual members of the state legislature. One day, Mike Flanagan set off for Springfield with $40,000 in his pocket. Shortly afterwards the law was passed.

Under the White Terror.

The so-called "red raids" marked a period of governmental terrorism unparalleled in American history. They were conceived by Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer and the group of labor-baiting plutocrats who owned him. The ground was carefully prepared.

In early May, 1919, the newspapers blazed with accounts of sixteen explosive packages which were intercepted in the post office at New York. A number of other bombs had been sent thru the mails at that time, and one of them had actually exploded, in the home of ex-Senator Hardwick of Georgia. The whole thing was at once proclaimed by the police to be "a gigantic conspiracy by an organized gang." A hue and cry was raised, with every now and again a police assurance to reporters that "the net tightens" or "the lightning is about to strike."

The Public Got Weary.

But so much tightening of nets and no fish, and so much thunder with no lightning, made the public weary. The sensation had not been dramatic enough in its staging for a lasting scare, and the futile detective tactics hurried it on to an anti-climax.

Hardly had the "May Terror" subsided when newspaper readers were terrorized anew by the so-called June bombardments, reports coming from no less than seven cities of bombing assaults upon the homes of prominent capitalists. A bomb was exploded at Attorney-General Palmer's home at Washington, damaging the front porch. Then a fresh horror was sighted in the offing. The "radicals" who were responsible for the June explosions and the May postal packages were discovered by the gumshoe men to be "launching a campaign of terrorism to begin on the approaching Fourth of July. But, alas, the campaign was never heard of more. And nobody was arrested for any of the other "outrages."

The lack of real "leads" in these cases is remarkable — remarkable enough to be significant. How was it possible for so gigantic a conspiracy of plotters to have escaped detection when most of the detective agencies of the country, public and private, regardless of expense and frequently of lawful methods, were pursuing the perpetrators with tireless zeal? There is nothing comparable to this enigma except the fruitless efforts of the detectives to fix the responsibility for the death-dealing explosion in Wall street, New York, which occurred at mid-day more than a year after the episodes of May and June, 1919.

Quite significant too is the attention given by Mr. Palmer's "general intelligence division" to the steel strike and the coal strike of 1919—a significance which is emphasized by a statement in Palmer's official report for 1920, in which he explains his arrests of agitators and declares that "although their offenses were not crimes, they were responsible for a considerable amount of the industrial and economic unrest."

10,000 Workers Arrested.

Then followed the "red raids," in which over 10,000 workers were arrested, thousands of them jailed, and thousands more deported. Raiding was carried on with extreme brutality and disregard of law. In Chicago, the prosecutions were in charge of former State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, the same Hoyne who is now charged with attempted blackmail in the Freeman Coal Mining Co. case.

The observant Spolansky writes naively in the Chicago Daily News that the "red raids" failed somehow to halt the Communist movement. He has yet to learn that the movement cannot be stopped by raids, however, numerous and ruthlessly carried out. The Communists are the advance guard of the working class in its daily struggles with the bosses, and in its final struggle for the overthrow of capitalism. And the working class movement cannot be stamped out by arresting individuals on ridiculous trumped-up charges of conspiracy.

Arrests Did Not Stop.

At the time of the 1920 raids the Labor Defense Council was not yet in existence, but it has had occasion to go through into the frame-up methods on which they depended.

Arrests of working class leaders did not stop in 1920. In the summer of 1922, came the brutal arrests at Bridgeman, Michigan. Only Communists were involved in the Michigan cases, but prominent non-Communists, such as Eugene V. Debs, Roger Baldwin and Rev. John Haynes Holmes rallied to their defense. And so the Labor Defense Council was formed, with offices at 166 W. Washington St., Chicago. That was the starting point from which the present greatly extended activities of the Labor Defense Council have developed. The council is now the official defense organization for members of the Workers Party and is collecting funds to be used in cases in all parts of the country.

He pointed out that while the British premier took a special trip to Geneva to plead for the Georgian counter - revolutionists before the League of Nations, he ordered the British warships to make hostile demonstrations before Canton and threaten to overthrow the South China Republic.

LEADERS BETRAY HARPER SCHOOL PARENTS' STRIKE

Portables Not Solution to Our Problem

With the assistance and in co-operation with the treacherous leaders of the Harper school strike, the board of education succeeded in putting over on the striking parents one of the trickiest and dirtiest of deals. The culmination to the betrayal of their leaders, William F. Peak, president of the West Englewood Lions Club, Frank McGarr, president of the Business Men's Club and E. F. O'Rourke, who the strikers charge went into this strike with the express purpose of breaking it, came at the end of an eight-week fight.

Over 500 parents, with their children, some mothers carrying babies in their arms, crowded into the basement of the Thoburn Methodist church at 64th and Paulina streets. They were there to hear the report of their leaders who had been negotiating with the mayor and the board of education. They demanded the reinstatement of the children of the 4th, 5th and 6th grades into the classes from which they were ousted.

Crooked Leaders Hate Foster.

Peak was in the chair. He distributed ballots signed by Morgan G. Hogge, assistant superintendent of schools, giving the only alternative to that of sending the children to distant schools, to agree on part time classes in portables put up on the Harper school grounds.

The trick worked. The parents voted to accept the portables with only one courageous dissenting voice. Hogge was expected to address the meeting but as one of the parents put it, "Why should he come? He knew O'Rourke and Peak would do the dirty job for him."

At the close of the meeting, the DAILY WORKER reporter handed out copies of the paper to the parents, while Peak, notorious for breaking up Young Workers League meetings in West Englewood, shouted at the top of his voice that the paper was a "Foster" paper, and the parents should not read it. But their trust-in him ended at the meeting and this remark only brot the parents closer to the reporter.

Mothers Talk to DAILY WORKER.

With an expression in their eyes which told the story of their disappointment they led the reporter to the grounds of the Harper school at 63rd and Ogden and then they opened up.

"Shame on them. They fooled us. They went into this fight to help the board against us. We should have picketed the school like men do on strike instead of sitting at home and waiting."

The reporter learned that Peak has no children. McGarr sends his children to a private school. O'Rourke during this fight took his children out of a private school and sent them to the Harper school, but they are back again in their private school.

Parents Against Portables.

The parents are signing petitions distributed by property owners in the neighborhood to have the portables taken down. They are signing these petitions because the children have been deprived of their playgrounds, they explained.

The school certainly does present a disgraceful sight. Rows and rows of little shacks and not a foot of space to walk around in. The junior high school students in addition to the 1st to 6th grade children make the congestion even greater. The only possible space for the children to stand around in while waiting for classes to begin is the middle of the road.

Mr. C. F. Doyle of the Civic League of West Englewood said the matter would come up for consideration at the next meeting of the league at which time it will be decided to reorganize the fight with other leaders in charge.

Workers Party Stays on Indiana Ballot

keep the Workers Party off the ballot.

However, this time even the injunction method failed. The party representatives in Indianapolis appeared before the board and demanded a rehearing which was granted. This rehearing could not ignore the one thousand signatures and the board ruled that the Workers Party candidates for presidential electors be placed on the ballot.

There is a striking similarity in this action of the avowed reactionary politicians in the state of Indiana and the self-styled progressive LaFollette politicians in control of the Wisconsin administration. Both fear the entry of Communist candidates armed with a program of proposed practical measures for the immediate needs of the workers and armed with a program which presents the only solution for the labor problem—the proletarian revolution. No matter how much these two sets of politicians may denounce one another they will readily unite against the force which organizes the working class for the proletarian revolution—the Communist Party. They will just as readily unite to defeat every measure the working class may strive for.

The Cause He Died for Shall Live, Pledge of Red Youth to John Reed

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, our comrades of the social revolution in Moscow will be putting flowers on the grave of John Reed beside the walls of the Kremlin. In the United States the revolutionary youth of this country, in many memorial meetings, will recount his services in the struggle against capitalist oppression.

For today is the anniversary of the death of the young American revolutionist, John Reed, who died at his revolutionary post, in Moscow, October 17, 1920, when his work had hardly begun.

• • • • •

It is very fitting that the John Reed Memorial Meetings should be held by the Young Workers (Communist) League. Our comrade, to the last, until the strangling grip of the dread typhus took life from him, was the personification of the restless spirit and fearless daring of revolutionary youth.

Down thru the years John Reed will continue to be a growing inspiration to youth enlisted under the standards of America's Bolshevik revolution. The pledge uttered by Max Eastman, at a John Reed Memorial Meeting, held in New York City, Oct. 25, 1920, will find expression from new myriads of lips with the passing of the years:

"OUR TRIBUTE TO JOHN REED IS A PLEDGE THAT THE CAUSE HE DIED FOR SHALL LIVE."

• • • • •

John Reed was a literary genius. He could have been the pampered pet of the "best publishers." He was a journalist of rare ability. But instead of occupying an editorial chair, comfortable and remunerative, on some "Brass Check" daily, John Reed helped edit the poor and hunted publications of the revolutionary wing of America's working class.

• • • • •

It is Robert Minor who tells best how Jack, "one of the most brilliant students at Harvard University, the object of pedagogic and bourgeois adulation, disdained the praise and allurements of capitalist culture.

"He was too sincere, too great an artist to commercialize his talent or to pander to popular dictums," is the tribute of one great Communist artist to another, of Robert Minor to John Reed.

"Even those high priests of capitalist attainment, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, were attracted to Jack Reed by his extraordinary talent and personal charm," says Minor. "Both endeavored to bring him to conformity, but failed. Jack was not a whit dazzled by the strong personality of Roosevelt, or the mellifluous phrases of Wilson, apprehending the egoistic demagogy of the former (actually refusing to associate with him) and the sophistic idealism of the latter."

• • • • •

Thus, instead of another Jack London, prostituting his talents to the sordid purposes of Hearst's demands for sex stories for his magazines, we have the immortal John Reed, author of a book that will never die, his "Ten Days That Shook the World."

• • • • •

John Reed struggled with the same zeal and ardor to revolutionize American labor that he showed in helping the Russian workers and peasants to maintain the fruits of their victory.

In the stormy days of 1919, within the socialist party, he was conspicuous in his zealous endeavor to crystallize all revolutionary elements into the Communist movement. He had his convictions and he fought for them. It was while returning from Moscow, where he had gone to present the position of the Communist Labor Party to the Communist International, that he was arrested and imprisoned by the White Terror in Finland. Those were days when the blockade of the world imperialists surrounded Soviet Russia like an impenetrable wall. Hunger and disease were claiming many victims in the Workers' Republic when John Reed returned there in 1920. Counter-revolutionary movements, supported by the imperialists of the "cordon sanitaire," were pounding away at the Soviet Rule on many fronts. John Reed took his place with the defenders of revolution. Half starved and undernourished he worked endless hours until struck down by the typhus. He was buried with the highest Communist honors.

• • • • •

John Reed is dead but his memory freshens with the passage of the years. He lives in the new efforts of greater numbers inspired by his valiant deeds for the revolution. Standing shoulder to shoulder the ranks of American revolutionists grow, "that the cause he died for shall live."

BAZAAR WORK IN FULL SWING

Chicago Comrades Out to Strengthen Their Press and Defense

WITH six weeks to go before the Big Bazaar for the DAILY WORKER and Labor Defense Council starts, the City Bazaar Conference will meet Saturday afternoon to take stock of the work done so far, to lay out further plans for an intensive drive for the collection of goods and articles of all sorts and the sale of tickets, and to decide on the best possible entertainment and attractions.

All delegates, from party branches and sympathetic organizations, are to meet together at the Greek Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., at 3 p. m., Saturday, Oct. 18. Reports are expected from each language section as to what talent they will provide for entertainment and to add color to the festivities. Ten or twelve features are already arranged for—choruses, orchestras, dancers, gymnasts, special booths, etc.—and, of course, the Thanksgiving Day banquet (a la Latvia). The management committee warns that those who don't get their banquet seats early will be out of luck, as the number is very limited.

The Czecho-Slovak Women's branches will run a feature booth of their own. Already these women comrades are going from house to house and store to store collecting goods and selling tickets. All branches with the will to help will follow their example.

Comrade "Steve" Rubicki of the Bazaar Executive urges every branch and member to:

"Get the five hundred donation sheets that have been given out, FILLED UP. Ask everybody—neighbors, fellow workers, stores, shops, markets, etc. Make a big drive to sell all the five thousand tickets; anyone can dispose of one small package of sixteen tickets. Boost for more power to the DAILY WORKER and Labor Defense."

Open Forum, Sunday Night, Lodge Room, Ashland Auditorium.

CHICAGO WORKERS PAY TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF REED

Chicago's workers will pay tribute to the memory of John Reed, fearless fighter for Communism, until the moment when he met his early death in Russia on October 17, 1920. Hundreds of comrades will gather at Douglas Park Auditorium, 3202 Ogden avenue (Kedzie and Ogden).

LAWYERS ARGUE ON CONVICTION OF RUTHENBERG

Walsh and Ferguson in Court for Communist

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 17.—The supreme court of Michigan today heard arguments for reversal of the conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, for "assembling with" the Communist Party at the Bridgeman convention in 1922.

Attorney Frank P. Walsh opened the hearing with a statement of the facts in regard to the case, showing that there was no evidence submitted that the Communist Party had at the Bridgeman convention made any advocacy in violation of the criminal syndicalist law of the state of Michigan and that the said case was based upon the assumption that the mere assembling of an organization which elsewhere had adopted a statement of principles construed to be in violation of the criminal syndicalist law in the state of Michigan was a crime and that a person assembling with such an organization could be convicted of a crime.

Judges Ask Questions.

The statement of the facts in the case by Walsh brought a flood of questions from the judges, who seem particularly interested in the fact that literature and documents which the prosecution claims were found in a barrel buried on the grounds where the convention was held has been used as evidence against Ruthenberg.

It was one of the contentions of the defense that this "evidence" was inadmissible and that the trial judge, Charles E. White, erred in permitting the prosecution to read from the "A B C of Communism" and the program of the Communists, particularly to read sections dealing with religion during the process of the trial.

Assistant Attorney General O. L. Smith followed Walsh. His method was the same as during the trial in St. Joseph, depending upon vituperation against the Communists in place of argument to meet the legal points of the defense.

Under the questioning of the judges Smith finally was forced into a corner and admitted that there is no evidence to show that the Communist advocated doctrines in violation of the criminal syndicalist law at the Bridgeman convention, then we are out of court."

Attorney I. E. Ferguson replied to Smith for the defense.

He declared, "there is nothing in this record to show that the Communist Party advocated ideas in violation of the criminal syndicalist law in the state of Michigan.

"If Mr. Smith admits that he is out of court, if there is no proof of advocacy in Berrien county and the state of Michigan, then this court cannot do otherwise than to reverse the judgment of the trial court.

"For, in instructing the jury, the trial judge, Charles E. White, said the following: "In order to convict this respondent it is not necessary that the jury should find that the Communist Party of America, that is the group or society which assembled at Bridgeman actually advocated the doctrines of criminal syndicalism within the county of Berrien."

Hits "Assembly Clause."

Continuing his argument, Ferguson said: "The statute declares a felony punishment for the mere enunciation of a doctrine without regard to the circumstances of the enunciation. We content that the 'clear and present danger' rule marks the limits of constitutional use of police power in punishment of advocacy and the essence of the 'clear and present danger' rule is that the criminal character of all advocacies is to be tested by the circumstances under which they are made.

"The assembly clause of the statute is contrary to the constitutional guarantees because it is an arbitrary and unreasonable infringement upon personal liberty. The punishment proceeds upon the assumption that there will be future advocacy of criminal syndicalism as a result of the assembly, even tho such advocacy may not occur in the state of Michigan and even tho such advocacy may not be presented anywhere under circumstances of imminent danger of substantial criminal injury. Assumption of future advocates (some place and sometime, to whomever may be and under whatever circumstances may be) is superimposed upon the primary assumption of inherent tendency in the proscribed doctrines. To punish the acts of assembly without regard to acts of present unlawfulness by the assembly is to deprive citizens of the right of peaceful assembly."

It will probably be a month or six weeks before the court renders a decision.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. PLANNING MANY MASS MEETINGS IN POLL DRIVE

Chicago Congressional Campaigns Get Up Pep

Many indoor mass meetings are to be conducted thruout the entire city of Chicago, in the Workers Party congressional campaign as soon as the open air mass meetings discontinue because of chilly weather, Martin Abern announced yesterday.

Gordon Owens, Negro candidate for congress on the South Side, whose campaign has drawn hundreds of Negro workers into the Communist fold, will speak at a monster mass meeting Oct. 30, in the Community Center Hall, 3201 S. Wabash Ave. Jack Johnstone, Workers Party candidate for congress from the 9th district, will speak at this mass meeting.

Congressional Fights Warm Up.

The Communist campaign waxes hot also in the 8th, 9th, 4th and 7th congressional districts, among others. Indoor meetings are being held regularly once a week in the 7th district, at which Samuel Hammersmark, the Communist standard bearer in that district, is the principle speaker. These meetings are held at 1902 W. Division street.

J. W. Johnstone, Workers Party candidate for congress in the 9th district, will be the main speaker at Imperial Hall, in a mass meeting, Sunday, Oct. 26. The Workers Party in the 9th district with George Maurer as the Communist candidate, and the 4th district where Joseph Podkulski is the Communist candidate, is also conducting a whirlwind campaign.

More than 25,000 special Chicago editions of the DAILY WORKER were distributed by the Chicago Communists to advertise the Foster-Gitlow meeting held in the Ashland Auditorium last Sunday. Many new members were brot into the Workers Party following Foster's appeal for members at the meeting.

Celebrate 7th Soviet Anniversary.

Another special Chicago edition of the DAILY WORKER, to celebrate the seventh anniversary of the founding of the Russian Soviet government, will be distributed by the Chicago Workers Party members in time to reach the workers before election day.

All voters who signed the petitions to place the Communist candidates on the ballots are being sent literature advising them of the activities of the party and of the DAILY WORKER, and asking them to join the Communist ranks.

Farrington In Big Land Deal With Mine Owners

trade union movement of this country has a long record of service rendered to the working class.

Dunne is running on the Communist ticket. He is the candidate of the Workers Party and as such is outside the pale of Farrington and the other labor fakers. The Workers Party is the party of the workers and exploited farmers. It is not purchasing votes or endorsements, furthermore, it is a terrible challenge to the system on which sewer rats who are in the business of selling the workers, thrive on.

Will Repudiate Grafter.

Farrington sells his influence to Small in 1924 as he sold it to Smith in 1916. But the rank and file of the Illinois miners are not going to follow Small into the thieves' den of capitalist politics. They will repudiate Farrington and his alliance with the open shop brigade as they did his deal with Smith in 1916.

Another violation of the constitution that Farrington was guilty of was his giving to Frank L. Smith, the democratic candidate for governor, a complete list of the secretaries of the Illinois miners' union and also a list of the members who had attended conventions. For this he was well paid.

The Broken Article.

Section six, article XX, of the international constitution reads as follows:

"Any member of the United Mine Workers of America who furnishes a complete or partial list of our membership to any person or persons, except to those whose official business requires them to have such a list, shall be subject to a fine of ten dollars and be debarred from holding office in the organization for a period of one year."

This little thing did not bother Farrington's conscience in the least. It was a part of his business and his business as head of the miners' union is to make money.

The coal diggers of Illinois who pay Farrington's salary consider themselves fortunate if they have enough space around their shacks to grow a few vegetables on. It is safe to say that none of them have orange groves in Alabama. Some progress since the days Frank Farrington worked at the mine in Streator!

The Orange Groves.

A document issued from Indianapolis, tells the story of Farrington's holdings in Alabama. It reads as follows:

"Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Mine Workers, is the owner of the following described land purchased from the Horticultural Development company, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Alabama and holding lands suitable for the growing of pecans and oranges in Mobile county, Alabama:

"7-31-16. Recorded 8-4-16. Deed Book 170, page 183, to Frank Farrington, Springfield, Ill. N. W. ¼ of S. W. ¼, Sec. 31, T. 4 S, R. 3 W.; 40 acres $2,600.00. Bought in St. Louis. Notary public, Hermann A. Weil."

(In all the books in the assessor's office, the collector's office and the probate court's recording department, these forty (40) acres are all the holdings of Frank Farrington of Mobile county.)

The Land was contracted for by Frank Farrington in 1915, but the deed was not recorded until 1916.

The Money Paid.

The following summary shows the expenditures to date of Frank Farrington covering the purchase of this land, cost of planting trees and upkeep:

Purchase price of 40 acres	$2,600.00
Planting, clearing, fencing, etc., 40 acres at $200.00	8,000.00
Cost of upkeep at $32.50 per acre, 40 acres per year, $1,300.00, 3 years, (1916-17-18)	3,900.00
Total	$14,500.00

Farrington was charged at the special convention with entering into land deals in Alabama with coal operators. The miners could not understand how Farrington, out of his salary as president of the union could purchase a handsome home and orange groves in Alabama. A sum in excess of $14,000 is a tidy bit of money to lay out on land, for a poor man like Farrington.

Used Frank As Come-On.

The Mobile Citrus company, a real estate company operating where the mine leader Farrington purchased his orange groves, sent out literature to prospective buyers in which the importance of those who have purchased land there was put forth as an incentive. The names of bankers, railroad presidents, manufacturers and politicians appear on the list. Also the names of the following coal operators:

Mr. P. J. Wilson, commissioner, 5th and 9th districts, Coal Operators' Association of Illinois, St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. W. E. Yater, secretary, Willis Coal and Mining company, St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. E. J. Krause, president Willis Coal and Mining Co., St. Louis, Mo., president Horticultural Development Co., St. Louis, Mo.; vice-president and treasurer Columbia Quarry Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. C. H. Krause, president Columbia Quarry Co., St. Louis, Mo.; vice-president and general manager Willis Coal and Mining Co., St. Louis, Mo.; secretary Horticultural Development Co., St. Louis Mo.

Mr. Frank Farrington, president United Mine Workers of America of Illinois, Springfield, Ill.

Mr. Herman Perry, general superintendent Donk Bros. Coal and Coke Co., Collinsville, Ill.

Was Quite at Home.

Here we have Farrington "sitting pretty" with this group of exploiters.

Where did he get the money? The miners at the special convention wanted to know, so the coal operators helped Farrington out of his dilemma.

Proof that money was used to secure the exoneration of Farrington at the special convention, is in the testimony of one Peter Smith of Panama. The following is part of that testimony:

Purchased Support.

"They told me that Farrington's honesty had been questioned and that Farrington was to be tried in a special convention. They told me that there was money to be distributed to clear Farrington. They asked me if I was willing to make friends with Farrington. I said if a man wanted to shake hands with me I was willing to meet him half way. Then they presented a ten dollar bill to me and told me that was Farrington's money. I told them I didn't want to accept no such stuff as that but they said unless I would take it that I could not prove where I would be a friend of Farrington.

"The conversation had dropped for half an hour or more. Then they said that if I did not take the money, I would certainly have to fight both of them and the officers of the organization, so I accepted the ten dollars. I have the bill printed and in my record book, the number of the bill and just what the bill looked like.

"Q. It was a ten dollar bill and not a check?

"A. It was a bill."

The distribution of funds saved Farrington's neck at the special convention. But the truth is bound to leak out in the end and the miners of Illinois are now learning things about their president, that will be the means of sending him into political retirement as far as the miners are concerned.

Following articles will throw more light on the character of this prince of labor fakers.

Next Sunday Night and Every Sunday Night, the Open Forum.

Carlson Has Very Successful Meetings in Eastern Cities

Oliver Carlson's trip thru eastern cities has been very successful. Comrade Carlson is reporting to membership meetings of the Young Workers League on the Fourth Congress of the Young Communist International to which he was one of the delegates of the Young Workers League of America. Comrade Carlson also deals in detail with the program of action that must be carried into effect by the entire membership This was recently adopted by the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League. Carlson has already covered the large eastern centers and is now swinging back to Chicago. The Young Workers League of Detroit is making elaborate preparations for Carlson's meeting.

The concluding dates are as follows: Rochester, Oct. 19; Buffalo, N. Y., Oct 20 and 21; Toledo, Oct. 22; Detroit, Oct. 23 and 25; Grand Rapids, Oct. 26; Muskegon, Oct. 27.

Youth of Harlem And Bronx, N. Y., to Greet Communists

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The youth of Harlem and Bronx will greet our candidates at the first Communist campaign ball at the Park Palace (The Carlton), 6 W. 111th St., Saturday, Oct. 18, at 8 p. m.

This is the first opportunity for the comrades in New York to celebrate the entrance of the Workers (Communist) Party in the first Communist campaign. Many of the local, state and national candidates will be present. Part of the proceeds will go to the campaign fund of the Workers Party. Many novelties and surprises have been arranged among them, a tango dance by the generalissimo of the campaign, Harry M. Winitsky. The well-known Red Revellers will furnish the music.

POLLS BATTLE OPENS IN THE BRITISH ISLES

DeValera is Contesting Ulster Seats

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Oct. 17. — The political pot is not yet boiling furiously in England despite the fact that the elections are only fifteen days off.

The liberals will open their campaign this afternoon in Queen's Hall, with former premiers Asquith and Lloyd George and Sir John Simon, all on the program.

Stanley Baldwin, tory leader, will open his campaign in the same hall tomorrow.

Ulster is Active.

If interest lags somewhat in England there is no lack of excitement in northern Ireland where DeValera candidates are contesting for thirteen seats. This is the so-called Orange stronghold, and strange to say the birth place of Irish republicanism. In the great industrial city of Belfast, however, the message of James Connolly, the outstanding social-revolutionist that the working class of Ireland have contributed to the world revolutionary movement, would make a stronger appeal to the exploited masses than the shallow vaporings of the bourgeois nationalist DeValera.

Auto a Handicap.

Ramsay MacDonald is finding his "endowed automobile" anything but an asset to him in this campaign. While his health may be conserved thru its use rather than the use of the subways, the workers are leary about accepting the excuses of the social-democrats and pink radicals, that because it is a common thing in England to accept the benevolence of a wealthy "angel" Ramsay's conduct should not be used against him by the Communists.

Born of a Wish and of the needs and desires of the working class, the Daily Worker—with the aid of the meager funds and the untiring efforts of those who must labor to live—has in the ten months of its existence established itself as "The National Labor Daily." It is here to stay. The future size of the Daily Worker and its ability to better fight the worker's battles rests entirely in your hands. If your interest in the labor movement is real—if it is earnest—you will unite your efforts with the efforts of thousands of workers who until November 7 are joined in an enthusiastic "Daily Worker Bricklayers' Union" to build a greater working class newspaper. Communists and the Constitution

In the brief filed for the prosecution in the supreme court of Michigan, O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general, argues, in reply to the defense claim that the criminal syndicalist law is unconstitutional, that "He (Enthenberg) should spurn any assistance that document might afford him rather than to plant his entire defense within the protecting folds of the document, by claiming that the act he has been convicted of violating is unconstitutional in six different particulars."

The assistant attorney general is of the opinion that Communists should not appeal to the constitution since they are opposed to that document and declare that the claims made for it, of protecting the liberty of the American people and securing them democratic government, are a sham and a fraud. The Communists, says Mr. Smith, want to overthrow the constitution and adopt a new constitution providing for a Soviet form of government, and what right have they under these conditions to appeal to our constitution?

The answer is very simple. The only way the Communists can prove to the working class of this country that the constitution is a class document, is by showing them thru its actual operation that it never protects the workers in the excercise of such rights as freedom of speech, press and assembly and always protects the capitalists' property rights.

The constitution says: "Congress shall make no law abridging the rights of freedom of speech, press or assembly." That sounds as if we have freedom of speech, press and assembly in the United States. But the test is not the words in the constitution, but how it operates.

During the war congress passed the espionage law which abridged the right of freedom of speech, press and assembly. The supreme court said it was not a violation of the constitution, provided that the speech or writing which was prohibited and punished created a clear and present danger of criminal overt act on the part of the reader or hearers. Thus the first test of the constitution, by appealing to it, showed that there were limits to freedom of speech, press and assembly altho the constitution said congress could not abridge these rights.

By appealing to the constitution and testing it in practice its high sounding words were shown not to mean what they seem to say.

The test of the criminal syndicalist law carries the exposure a step further. In the case of the espionage law, the supreme court ruled that there must be clear and present danger of violence, destruction of property, or some other overt act resulting from writings or spoken words to make them punishable. The criminal syndicalist law punishes the mere utterances of ideas or the mere statement of these ideas in writing. They make punishable the advocacy of a doctrine or principle. In the Michigan case the process of whittling away the rights of freedom of speech, press and assembly is carried even farther, and the state of Michigan seeks to punish for "assembling with" an organization which advocates a doctrine even tho that organization has not advocated the doctrine in the state of Michigan.

The supreme court of the United States has had the question whether mere utterance or writing of a document can be punished, under the constitution, before it for two years and has not rendered a decision. It has heard arguments in the Gitlow case, which raises this issue, for the first time in the supreme court, twice, the first time in March 1923 and again in November 1923, but has not handed down its decision. Evidently the supreme court is evading the rendering of a decision on this issue.

The Ruthenberg case raises a question which means the emasculation of the constitutional prohibition to a further degree than the Gitlow case. An adverse decision in the Ruthenberg case means that the fraud of the claim that the constitution protects the liberties of the people is still further exposed.

The Communists raise the constitutional issue in order to make the courts themselves tell the truth about the constitution. There could be no better Communist propaganda against the illusion of "American democracy" than to have the supreme court of the state of Michigan or the supreme court of the United States tell the workers of this country that when principles and ideas are involved which threaten the class rule of the exploiters, members of the working class can be sent to prison for mere utterance or writing of these ideas, in spite of the constitutional clause, "Congress shall make no laws abridging the right of freedom of press, speech or assembly."

Probing the Slush

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, is conducting an investigation into the campaign expenditures of three capitalist parties: the republican party, the democratic party and the LaFollette party.

The investigation is a fake. The three parties are tarred with the same brush as far as contributions are concerned. It is true that the big capitalists lean toward Coolidge. They know Davis has not the ghost of a chance, so they are placing their eggs in "Silent Cal's" basket.

LaFollette is just as willing to accept money from millionaires as Coolidge is. None of them draw the class line. What is the difference between a Vanderlip and a Lamont?

In contests where the balance between the republicans and democrats is fairly even, Wall Street contributes evenly to both sides. As far as Wall Street is concerned, it has implicit confidence in both of the old parties. Neither does it fear that LaFollette will interfere with its business, but it does not like the idea of supporting a man who has so many workers and farmers in his train.

Wall Street fears the masses. It fears them just as much as Threadneedle Street fears the masses behind the traitorous government of Ramsay MacDonald.

Wall Street prefers the devil it knows to the devil it does not know so well. It prefers the avowed candidates of big business to the spokesmen of the disgruntled bourgeoisie. It does not like the idea of having querulous politicians poking their noses into its private affairs. But it can't help it. The politicians know that the best way to attract the attention of the money bags is to begin by making trouble. It is the most successful form of blackmail.

The Pacifism of LaFollette

The pacifism of LaFollette, like that of Ramsay MacDonald, is only skin deep. When subjected to analysis, we find it is no different from the pacifism of J. P. Morgan, Calvin Coolidge or any other distinguished proponent of capitalism.

LaFollette is engaged in a great vote-catching contest. Even if he had the intention of doing justice to whatever scruples he has saved after a career in the political bawdy house at Washington, his socialist allies would not stand for it.

"Fightin' Bob," speaking in Cincinnati, made his position on war quite celar. "I am not a pacifist nor an advocate of peace at any price. I can conceive of conditions under which I would fight to repel aggressive acts of any power that attempted to seize territory or imperil the national life of our institutions," he declared.

This sounds familiar, does it now? Almost like what Secretary of State Hughes would say!

"Our institutions" may be situated in the state of Wisconsin, in the Philippines or in China. They may be the properties of the Standard Oil company in Roumania or the dollars of the House of Morgan loaned to Persia. And the "pacifist" LaFollette would call the armed forces of the United States to action in behalf of those "institutions" just as readily as the "pacifist" Ramsay McDonald orders British airships ot bomb Indian villages in the interests of British capitalism.

Soviet Recognition

One of the most vocal advocates in congress of the recognition of Soviet Russia was Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. Tho the senator made it quite clear that Communism was anathema to his American conscience yet he professed to hold that the principle of self-determination was worthy of resurrection from the grave in which it was laid by its principal supporter, Woodrow Wilson.

But of late, the Idaho orator has kept quiet on the question of Soviet recognition. While the bearded Baptist, who runs the department of state, combs the sewers for his anti-Russian propaganda, the mighty-voiced senator from Idaho, on his once favorite hobby, is as silent as Coolidge is on the Ku Klux Klan issue.

What is the reason? On what meat have our erstwhile valorous defenders of the "right of all peoples to govern themselves as they see fit" been feeding, that they have grown so dumb? We have not heard a peep from Senator LaFollette since he formed the alliance with Gompers, Vanderlip and Spreckles.

The suspicion is growing that our gallant Borahs, LaFollettes and Co. who hurl verbal thunderbolts at the "predatory interests," have lately been listening to their "masters' voice" and are as anxious not to irritate the Wall Street boss as is Charles Evans Hughes.

But the decision of France to recognize the Soviet Republic may knock the padlocks off the lips of our "progressive" senators.

Peace and Tin Soldiers

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur desires that the airship ZR-3, should serve as a peace symbol between Germany and the United States. It is rather easy to talk peace to a man when you have your foot on his neck. The Dawes plan is the United States' foot on the German neck and unfortunately it is not the capitalist neck, but the neck of the German working class. The ZR3 is a warship, not a peaceship.

While Wilbur drools about peace, the chief magistrate of the nation is presented by Rodman Wanamaker with a set of tin soldiers equipped with aircraft, which was manufactured in Germany and brought over on the Zeppelin. Wanamaker is a millionaire department store owner.

Tin soldiers and peace!

A "New Volapuker" as I.W.W. Editor

By HARRISON GEORGE.

"The mountains look on Marathon,
And Marathon looks on the sea."
But both of them look startled.
When fools write history.

We are moved to improve thus upon Byron by reason of the interminable nonsense filling the editorial columns of the Seattle Industrial Worker, in attacks upon the theory of working class "leaders." The most recent example, from the issue of Oct. 8, written by the editor, whose modesty we respect by permitting him to remain unnamed, is the following distortion of history:

"In the ancient years European culture was threatened by imperial barbarism. At Marathon the hosts of brute, supreme power met the democratic forces of human freedom. At Marathon, liberty, such as was then developed, was so jealous of authority that its supreme command was divided among ten generals, any of whom only ruled for a single day. And this power of democracy met the idea of efficiency as expressed in selfish rule and so vanquished authoritarianism that the story rings today, and long sought victory is called a Marathon."

Aside from the rather extraordinary interpretation of the Athenian slaveholders being the protagonists of "the democratic forces of human freedom," there are other and bewildering stupidities in the quotation, which is a fair sample of the whole unintelligible editorial. Everybody, except this befuddled fool, knows that "a Marathon," far from being a "long sought victory," is the symbol of physical endurance, especially in a race. We have "Marathon dances" and "Marathon races," in which athletes of all nations join, not because of any military significance of Athenian spearsmen, but because, after the battle, Philidppides, the runner, already exhausted, raced afoot the twenty-two miles between Marathon and Athens and fell dead. Browning has made it the theme of a great poem.

But when pedagogy combines with demagogy to confused the honest workers who read I. W. W. papers, silliness has its serious side. These workers, busy with dodging blacklists and getting a living out of Weyerhauser's lumber camp foremen, have little time to dissect the historical distortions of an editor, who was inflicted upon them by a committee, imbued with a sense of responsibility and impressed by a gray pompadour and a precise pronunciation. These workers are semi-weekly and gravely informed that "leaders" are threatening their "democracy," their "liberty." They have none of these blessings, but, nevertheless, the editor warns that they are seriously endangered.

These menacing "leaders" are usually classified indefinitely as "politicians." Many times they are disclosed as "Communists." Nearly every issue they are connected more or less directly with "Harrison George." And with what purpose? It is not that, as said by Lenin, "instead of old leaders who have a common sense viewpoint on things, new leaders are put forth (concealed under the slogan of 'Down with leaders!'), who prattle supernatural nonsense and spread confusion."

So we see that it is not a question of "shall we have leaders?" but of "shall we have sincere, levelheaded, able and revolutionary leaders, or leaders who get out injunctions against each other in capitalist courts, who close the columns of our papers to us if we disagree with their peculiar ideas as to the economic foundation of the Soviet form of government, or the necessity of international labor unity, etc. In short, shall we have good leaders or bad leaders?"

Among the other qualities of bad leadership which should be added to the above, is the astounding perversion of historical analogy. For instance, the reference to the "ten generals." Herotodus, the only one mentioning that such an arrangement prevailed at Marathon, unfortunately for our editor, goes on to show that only by the violation of this idiotic rule of a divided command was the battle won.

Professor West in his work on the "Ancient World," referring directly to Herodotus, says, "At first (when threatened with Persian invasion of Attica) most of the Athenians wished to fight only behind their walls. Sooner or later this must have resulted in ruin. Happily, Militades, one of the ten generals, persuaded the commanders to march out and attack the Persians at once. The result was due to the generalship of Militades and to the superior equipment of the Greek hoplite." There is little indication here of the "power of democracy" mentioned by our cross-eyed historian. The same view is vouched for by the Encyclopedia Britannica, which says that, "Militades, who seems thruout to have played a more prominent part than his superior, the polemarch Gallimachus, drew up the Athenian army and charged down upon the enemy." And again, "The Athenians, on the recommendation of their strategus, Militades, etc. Nowhere is it indicated that by the happy change of pulling straws it was Militades' day to command. In fact it is clearly shown that he commanded for at least three consecutive days.

More, is was not out of the Athenian slave-herders' great love for "democracy" that the "ten stategi" also called the "ten generals" were given to history. They were merely tribal representatives of the central government, one strategus being elected by each tribe, and their functions were more than merely military, having regard to all foreign policy, conducting religious festivals and handling the trade in corn. Tribal jealousy of a folk living 2,000 years ago, appears as late as 1924, for decentralization in the I. W. W., a covert argument for the secession of the Lumber Workers' Industrial Union from the I. W. W.! Can there be worse leadership than this?

But even these ancient Greeks, so exemplary in their "democracy" according to the Industrial Worker, never reached the folly of some of the present I. W. W., who insist that all officials, good, bad or indifferent, shall be retired after twelve months of experience in office, and a brand new lot, bad, good or indifferent according to the will of the gods of chance, take control of the organization. True, this has brought the I. W. W. little but confusion and a sense of having done something desperately democratic, but the habit sticks and our Industrial Worker says it is good because of the "ten generals." Unfortunately, the Encyclopedia Britannica says that, "The strategi (ten generals) acquired great power from the fact that they were frequently re-elected for many years together, and so had greater experience and continuity of policy."

There is little left of our editor's argument. However, it may be noted what happened to this wonderful nation whose "culture" of slave massacres by the ephori, and whose leading philosopher described the workers as "articulate instruments." After the increasing "democracy" under Ephialtes and Pericles, the "disciplinarians" and the "brute forces" of Sparta fell upon the "democratic forces of human freedom," ten generals and all, and made an end of Athens. Let the Encyclopedia tell why. "In the Peloponnesian war," it says, "which ruined the Athenian empire, the issue by any intrinsic superiority on the part of her enemies, than by the blunders committed by a people unable to carry out a consistent foreign policy on its own initiative, and served since Pericles by none but selfish or short-sighted advisers." The applicability of the last words to I. W. W. editorial policy is particularly apt.

But demagogues need no excuse from history for their meddlesomeness. They continually play upon the sincere workers of the I. W. W. membership in an effort to convince them that they are not the leaders but the led. At least such is the threat they postulate. Yet, in the estimation of the Communists, the most obscure member of the I. W. W., who knows the rudiments of the class struggle and talks of them to the backward workers, the scissorbills around him, is a leader.

These class conscious fighters of the I. W. W. are leaders, and insofar as the I. W. W. itself takes direction of the spread of revolutionary ideas, it is a leader of the class struggle, it is taking the function of a revolutionary political party. Unfortunately or fortunately, its ranks have become so filled with ordinary workers that it no longer expresses a clear revolutionary ideology. It is more of a union than a revolutionary political party. It fights for wages and not for power. So it is fighting leaders. We prefer, to the silly editorials of the present day editor of the Industrial Worker, the cry that rang[illegible] deck of the Verona at Everett in 1916, when the armed white guard, asking for leaders, was met with the cry, "We're all leaders." They were in 1916, but not in 1924.

Better than anything I could say to answer the ignoramus-cry of "Down with leaders!" put forth by this insect-minded editor of the Industrial Worker is the words of the great leader Lenin, who says:

"People bend every effort to conceive something extraordinary, and in their zeal to intellectualize, they become ridiculous. It is common knowledge that the masses are divided into classes; that the classes are usually and in most cases led by political parties; . . . that political parties, as a general rule, are led by more or less stable groups of the more influential, authoritative, experienced and independent leaders, elected to the most responsible positions. All this is elementary. It is simple and plain. Why then, this whole rigmarole, this new Volapuk!" (Note: An artificial language. H. G.)

The only reason for it is, as mentioned, that under the alarmist cry against leaders, leaders of experience, ability and revolutionary ideas, new leaders, leaders whose devastating harmfulness has all but wrecked the I. W. W., are to engage in a fight—not to hold office—but to direct the ideology of the I. W. W. to mere job unionism and against revolutionary unionism. The issue is not "No leaders" but "Which leaders?"

tories unite with the unemployed to compel the bosses to keep the unemployed on their pay roll.

UNEMPLOYMENT COUNCILS.

The way to get relief for the unemployed is thru unemployment councils. The workers employed and unemployed must unite to carry on a struggle for the unemployed. They must fight as a class against the scourge from which the workers suffer.

Send delegates from the factories, from the trade unions, from labor political organizations, from groups of unemployed, and organize the unemployement council to make the demand and carry on the struggle to compel the capitalist bosses and the government to pay the unemployed wages.

Hold mass meetings, send delegations to the shops and the city councils, the state legislature and congress to demand action to relieve the unemployed.

Put an End to Unemployment.

There is only one way in which to put an end to the frequent hard times and the suffering it causes for millions of workers who are unemployed. That is by ending the system of industry which causes unemployment.

It is because the industries are owned by the capitalist bosses and run for their profit that we have hard times so frequently. It is the capitalist system which is responsible for millions of worker being without jobs.

If we want to stop the periodic curse of unemployment we must fight against the capitalist system. It is the government which maintains and holds that system. It is by taking the governmental power in their own hands—by establishing a workers' and farmers' government and abolishing the capitalist ownership of industry—that unemployment can be finally ended.

The Workers Party is the only party which is carrying on a fight to achieve that goal. It is organizing and mobilizing the workers for a revolutionary struggle to end the dictatorship of the capitalists which now exists in Washington and establish the rule of the workers and farmers.

Work and Vote for the Workers Party.

The Workers Party is carrying on the fight for relief of the unemployed now and the struggle to abolish the system which causes unemployment.

It is the only party which is making this fight for the workers. Coolidge stands for the capitalist system and if need be will use soldiers as an answer to the demands of the unemployed. Davis will fight against the workers and for the capitalists.

LaFollette, who is asking labor support, hasn't anything to say about unemployment either in his speeches or platform. He stands for the capitalist system which causes unemployment. He will help uphold that system against the demands of the unemployed.

Workers! Join the Workers Party in the fight against unemployment and the system which causes it.

Join the Workers Party in organizing unemployment councils to fight for immediate relief for the unemployed.

Vote for the Workers Party candidates, Foster and Gitlow, and demonstrate your demand for abolition of the system which is responsible for unemployment.

Make the bosses pay the unemployed!

Abolish capitalism which causes unemployment by creating a workers' and farmers' government.

INNOCENT NEGRO MEETS DEATH AT HANDS OF INFURIATED MOB

By GORDON W. OWENS.

The white fiends, ghouls, vultures and morons on the staff of the bloodthirsty anti-Negro capitalist newspaper, the Chicago Tribune, must feel highly elated now that a Nigger has been lynched in Chicago.

The foul and filthy Tribune, like a poisonous rattlesnake, has been spitting forth its Negro-baiting venom, for ever and anon.

This Nigger-hating newspaper set its front page last week, printed in lurid details, of how a white girl was dragged into a hall way by a Negro, who attempted to attack her there, and how an infuriated mob of whites kicked and beat the Negro assailant to death.

It was later proven that an innocent, unmolesting Negro worker was killed by a mob of white booze hounds, and that the girl had not been molested by a Negro at all.

The next day on page 10, in small type appears an article in this race-riot breeding newspaper telling how an innocent Negro was killed by the white hoodlums.

This is the way the Tribune reports everything in reference to a Negro or Negroes, by printing dastardly, vicious and bare-face lies. The stench of this yellow newspaper is so rank that it stinks to high heaven.

And what is true of the Tribune, is also true of the other capitalist newspapers. Negroes should boycott the Tribune, and cease buying it.

The Chicago DAILY WORKER, the Communist daily, is the one, and only daily newspaper in the United States which is fair and square to Negroes. The DAILY WORKER prints truthful and unbiased Negro news and articles.

Negroes all over the county are duty bound to read and support, and subscribe to the DAILY WORKER. Fortunately many Negroes read, buy and subscribe to The DAILY WORKER, and more will continue to do so.

As the circulation of The DAILY WORKER increases, prejudice against Negroes and other people decreases.

The Negroes can help to decrease prejudice against them, by helping to increase the circulation of the DAILY WORKER.

Yep, War Is Hell!

To The DAILY WORKER:—"Forbes," is a magazine for capitalists and the would-bes. At the end of an article appearing in the October 15 issue, is the statement, evidently intended as a climax, that Sherman was right when he said that war was hell.

Don't imagine for a moment tho, that the writer, J. F. Lisman, member of the New York Stock Exchange and expert on railroad consolidations, is shedding tears because of the millions of lives lost in the world cataclysm. Nor should you suppose that the crippled and maimed, the widowed and orphaned, have aroused his compassion. Oh no! Not even the loss of hundreds of thousands of lives of his fellow countrymen is forming this investment banker . . . even before he makes his home in Hades.

What is causing Lisman so much concern, is the repudiation of the czarist debts by the Russian Soviet Republic. What greater calamity could befall any capitalist than that he should be deprived of his loot?

What does it matter that men turn into beasts, disemboweling each other with a curse. The blind, the shell-shocked, the limbless remains of what were once men, these are necessary sacrifices for "democracy." What makes war hell, is the rise to power of the working class and the abolition of the exploiters by means of confiscation and repudiation. If that's hell, let's have more of it.—Jay Engel.

We Greet Our New Comrade.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Cannot fully express my gratitude to Comrade Meyler for sending me the DAILY WORKER. I appreciate the literature sent and I am trying my best, in this sparsely settled neighborhood, to get the literature before thinking people, not bourgeois nor capitalists, of which I have more than I need.

I doz enjoy T. J. O'Flaherty. He wields a terrific shilelah, many a "hearty grunt" will escape from the mauled capitalist system when he strikes, and that Berzerk of my own blood, Engdahl, when Berzerkgang takes him, the plutes have something dangerous on their hands.

As I am in my 70th year, I cannot be as useful as I'd like to be, but I will send you from time to time, little versus like the enclosed, as "the spirit moves." I would like to be considered a comrade in the ranks,

Thorjus Rinden.

RED KERCHIEFS.

To the DAILY WORKER: In Monday's DAILY WORKER, on the report of the Foster-Gitlow campaign meeting, it was stated that "other union groups were conspicious for the red kerchiefs, etc." May I please inform you that the groups referred to were the Chicago Juniors. They were out in full force.

As for the kerchiefs, at the last C. C. C. of the Juniors, this kerchief was adopted as the Junior symbol, after the form of the Russian Pioneers. Hereafter, if you see a young comrade with a red kerchief around his neck, you may be sure he is a Chicago Junior.

To All Communists In America

We Quote

"But an especial feature, outdistancing anything we have ever done before, will be the beginning in the November issue (Workers Monthly) of the 'History of the Russian Communist Party,' by Gregory Zinoviev. This unexampled account of the greatest movement the world has ever known, written by its chosen chief, the President of the Communist International, who lived thru its early struggles as the intimate associate of Lenin, has been put into English for the first time for serial publication by monthly installments which will cover a period of several months. For those who wish to understand in intimate detail the tremendous force that is remaking the world—to know the meaning of history while it is in the making—and above all for those who wish to throw smug timidity to the winds and to become an active part in the glorious struggle—the reading of this great work is indispensable. Especially for those courageous men and women (and boys and girls!) who have already become members of the American Communist party, the Workers Party, this series is their opportunity."

Communism Versus LaFolletteism

By Alexander Bittelman

In the last analysis, Communism versus LaFolletteism is the same thing as working class against capitalist class. That may not be as yet apparent to the American working masses at this time, but it is true, nevertheless, and as time goes on this truth will become the inalienable property of every loyal member of the working class.

Two Angles of Communism

What does Communism stand for? If a straw vote were to be taken on this question among the working masses, the common answer would be something like this: Revolution, Soviet Russia, some future order of society, the millenium on earth, etc.

In all these answers there would be found a certain measure of truth. Communism stands for Revolution, of course, for the social revolution which will abolish capitalism and lay the foundation for the communist order of society. Communism stands for Soviet Russia. In what sense? In the sense that Soviet Russia is the living example of how the working class all over the world will eventually break the chains of capitalism.

But this is not all that Communism stands for. Or, rather, the above is only one phase of Communism, the phase that embodies the final aims of the proletarian class struggle. But what about the struggle itself? Has Communism anything to contribute to the immediate needs of the masses?

This is the second angle of Communism, the one which deals with the methods of struggle of the working masses to be employed by them today and tomorrow and until the very moment when they become ready to seize power, for the overthrow of capitalist rule. Communism, therefore, is not only the ideal of the future order of society but also (and mainly) the theoretical and political expression of the everyday struggles of the working masses against capitalist exploitation.

The Communist message to the workers is a message of struggle against the capitalists. Whatever affects the wellbeing of the workers is therefore of immediate and practical concern to Communism and to the Communist Party. It is primarily from this angle that one must consider the challenge of the Workers Party against LaFolletteism.

Between Big Capital and the Workers

What is LaFolletteism? It is a political movement seeking political power. It makes its appeal from two bases. To the middle classes LaFolletteism appeals in the name of capitalism (yes, capitalism) and against the danger of violent revolutions, while to the working masses the appeal is made on the basis of fair play to labor.

Just read LaFollette's campaign propaganda. You will find that the basic idea of all the utterances of the LaFollette group directed to the middle classes is: Save the existing order! Don't permit the struggle between capital and labor to reach the point of violent revolution! If necessary let us grant to the upper sections of labor and to the trade union bureaucracy some minor concession, but, for heaven's sake, don't let the class struggle assume the proportions of civil war.

This is the essence of LaFolletteism. It represents the groups and classes that stand between the working class and Big Capital. Economically these classes come into conflict not only with Big Capital but also with the workers. The rich farmer, the independent manufacturer, the small merchant and banker—and these groups know quite well which side their bread is buttered on. They are conscious of their respective group interests which they are determined to defend.

Now, what happens is this. When these middle classes come into sharp collision with the monopolized industries and big bankers, which usually happens in times of crisis and economic depression, they (the middle classes) incline more towards the workers. On the other hand, when business is comparatively good and the workers attempt to utilize the situation to better their own conditions, the middle classes immediately get on their guard and run for shelter into the arms of Big Capital. That is, the normal political state of mind of LaFolletteism is one of vacillation between the demands of Big Capital and the demands of the workers, always deciding in favor of the former whenever fundamental capitalist interests are at stake.

Incline Towards Labor

At present, because of the general decline of capitalist economy and the downward trend of affairs in the United States, the middle classes find their interests greatly encroached upon by Big Capital. Hence, the dissatisfaction of the small capitalist with present conditions. Hence, his determination to build a political weapon for himself with which to protect his property and profits against the devouring appetites of Big Capital. Hence, his apparent "sympathy" with the aspirations of Labor. Hence, the present rise of the LaFollette movement.

This is the picture of LaFolletteism as it reflects itself in the minds of the middle classes themselves, that is, when considered from a subjective point of view. Objectively, however, this LaFollette movement is merely one of the means in the hands of capitalism for the perpetuation of the present order of society. Whatever the motives of its participants and whatever the intentions of its leaders, the LaFollette movement, can do nothing else but strengthen capitalist rule and the system of capitalist exploitation in the United States.

The fact that the trade union bureaucracy is in alliance with LaFollette does not change the fundamental nature of the movement. On the contrary, this alliance offers additional proof for our contention that LaFolletteism is the political expression of the middle classes. The bureaucracy of the American trade-unions, in order to retain its present position of leadership, is compelled to resort to political maneuvers. Gompers and Johnston and the rest of them have proven completely bankrupt as leaders of the economic organizations of the workers. The result was dissatisfaction and restlessness in the ranks of labor, which has been threatening to find its expression in an independent political party of workers and poor farmers.

And what would that mean? The beginning of a real class struggle in the United States, the first step towards concerted political action by labor against the daily manifestations of capitalist exploitation and against capitalist rule in general.

But such prospects Gompers and his crew couldn't accept without a struggle. The trade union bureaucracy then decided to strike up an alliance with the middle classes led by LaFollette thereby diverting the rising anger of the masses into the safe channels of petty-bourgeois reformism.

The Workers Party Against LaFolletteism.

By this move of the trade union bureaucracy, the movement for a farmer-labor party has been defeated, but not the class struggle. The latter continues and so does the political expression of the class conscious workers of America—the Workers (Communist) Party.

This party stands for the social revolution. It is the most implacable and uncompromising enemy of American capitalism. And because of that the Workers Party is the only labor organization in America ready at all times to engage in struggle against any and all manifestations of capitalist rule. The Workers Party therefore stands up against LaFolletteism as the only defender of working class interests.

LaFolletteism is a political alliance of the petty-bourgeoisie and the trade union bureaucracy. The Workers Party is the party of the class conscious workers and the political expression of the proletarian class struggle. As against surrender to the middle classes, which eventually spells surrender to Big Capital, we say: The proletarian class struggle on the economic and political field. And as against a LaFollette party we say: A political party of workers and poorest sections of the farmers—the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

YOUTH AND JUNIOR

Two Generations of Russian Communists

LISTEN HERE, NOW!

There's only one Sunday night in every week, and every one of them is going to be made interesting—full of pep.

We're letting you in on this early. It's going to begin a week from now—Oct. 19, at eight o'clock at the Lodge Room (not the big hall, but the "Lodge Room"), at the Ashland Auditorium. And it'll keep going in the same place every Sunday night. We're expecting you to get the habit.

"What's it all about?"

"What's going on?"

"Who's going to be there?"

Why, it's the Open Forum! Didn't you know? The Workers Party is going to have an Open Forum every Sunday night during the next few months. Current history, politics, science, in lectures by the foremost speakers of the labor movement. Come and see! And hear! And discuss! That's an Open Forum!

On October 19th, C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party of America, will open the forum with a lecture on "Political Forces in the Election."

On October 26, J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER and candidate for U. S. senator, will speak on "Wall Street and Us." "Us" will be there. Will you?

On November 2nd, Alexander Bittelman of the central executive committee of the Workers Party, will speak on "Communism versus LaFolletteism." Say! If you think Bob LaFollette will free the workers from Big Business, come and listen to this one!

The week after, on November 9th, Oliver Carlson, who spent two years in Soviet Russia, will lecture on the lives of Russian youth, and compare the lives of American youth. Hey, you young workers! Will you be there? Everybody get the Open Forum habit. Beginning October 19. Don't forget!

4th November 1864.

Dear Frederick,

Some time ago the London workers sent an address to the Paris workers with reference to Poland, calling upon them to take common action in this matter.

The Parisians for their part sent a deputation over here, headed by a workman called Tolain, who was actually labor candidate at the last election in Paris, and who is a very nice fellow. (His companions were very good fellows too.) A public meeting was convened in St. Martin's Hall for Sept. 28 by Odger (shoemaker, chairman of the local London Trades Council the council of all London trade unions, and especially of the Suffrage Propaganda Society of the London trade unions, connected with Bright) and Cremer, a stonemason and secretary of the stone masons' trade union. (These two men brought about the great meeting of the trade unions for North America, under Bright, at the St. James' Hall, as also the Garibaldi manifestation). A certain Le Lubez was sent to me, asking if I would participate on the part of the German workers and especially if I would send a German speaker for the meeting, etc. I sent Eccarius, who managed splendidly, whilst I assisted him as dumb figure on the platform. I knew that on this occasion real "powers" both from London and Paris would be figuring, and thus decided to depart from my otherwise fixed rule of declining all such invitations.

Le Lubez is a young Frenchman, that is, he is the thirties, but he was brought up in Jersey so that he also speaks splendid English, and is an excellent intermediary between the French and English workers. He is a music teacher, and has given French lessons as well.

At the meeting, which was packed to suffocation (for there is obviously a revival in the working class at the present time) the London union of Italian workers was represented by Major Wolff (Thurn-Taxis, Garibaldi's adjutant). It was resolved to found an International Labor Association, whose general council is to have its headquarters in London, and to act as intermediary between the labor unions of Germany, Italy, France, and England. It was further resolved to convocate a general labour congress in Belgium in 1865. A provisional committee was nominated at the meeting, Odger, Cremer, and many others, in part old Chartists, old Owenites, etc., for England, Major Wolff, Fontana, and other Italians for Italy; Le Lubez, etc., for France; Eccarius and I for Germany. The committee was authorized to add as many members as it thought necessary.

So far good. I attended the first meeting of the committee. A subcommittee was nominated (including me), commissioned to draw up a declaration of principles and provisional articles. I was prevented by illness from attending the session of the subcommittee, and the session of the whole committee following this.

At these two meetings—the one held by the subcommittee, followed by that of the whole committee—at which I was not present, the following had occured:

Major Wolff had submitted his statutes of the Italian labor unions (which possess a central organization, but, as turned out later, consist essentially of associated auxiliary unions) to be utilized by the new association. I saw the stuff later. It was obviously a piece of Mazzini's handiwork, so you can imagine for yourself in what spirit and in what phraseology the real question, the labor question, was dealt with. And how the nationality matters were edged in.

Besides this, a program had been drawn up by an old Owenite—Weston, now himself a manufacturer, a most agreeable and well meaning man full of the utmost confusion and of unspeakable breadth.

The general committee session following this had commissioned the subcommittee to remodel Weston's program and Wolff's statutes. Wolff himself left for Naples, to attend the conference of the London union of Italian workers there, and to induce this union to join the London labor association.

The subcommittee held another meeting, at which I was again not present, as I got to know of the rendezvous too late. Here Le Lubez had submitted a declaration of principles and a revision of the Wolff statutes; these had been accepted by the subcommittee for submitting to the general committee. The general committee met on Oct. 18. As Eccarius had written me that danger was to be expected, I attended, and was truly horrified to hear the good Le Lubez read an introduction, in frightful phraseology, badly written, and entirely immature, claiming to be a declaration of principles. Mazzini peeped through everywhere, overlaid with the vaguest shreds of French socialism. Besides this, the Italian statutes had been almost completely accepted, altho, apart from their other faults, they actually aim at something impossible, a sort of central government (with Mazzini in the background of course) of the European working classes. I opposed mildly, and after much discussion Eccarius proposed that the subcommittee should once more submit the matter to a fresh "editing" contained in the Lubez declaration were however accepted.

Two days later, on Oct. 20, there was a meeting at my house; Cremer for the English, Fontana (Italy), and Le Lubez. (Weston unable to come). I had not had the papers in my hands up to then (Wolff's and Le Lubez') and was unable to prepare anything, but was fully determined that not one line of the stuff was to be allowed to stand. In order to gain time, I suggested that we should discuss the "statutes" before beginning to "edit". This was done. It was one o'clock in the morning before the first of 40 statutes was accepted. Cremer said (and this is what I had been aiming at): "We have nothing to submit to the committee meeting on Oct. 25. We must postpone this meeting until Nov. 1. The subcommittee, on the other hand, can meet on Oct. 27, and try to come to a definite result." This was agreed to, and the "papers" left behind with me for me to look through.

I saw that it was impossible to make anything of the stuff. In order to justify the extremely peculiar way in which I intended to "edit" the "accepted principles", I wrote an address to the working class (though this was not in the original plan): a sort of review of the development of the working class since 1845. On the pretext that all essentials were contained in this address, and that we must not repeat the same things three times, I altered the whole introduction, threw out the declaration of principles, and finally replaced the 40 statutes by 10. In so far as international politics are mentioned in the address, I speak of countries, not of nationalities, and denounce Russia, not the smaller states. My proposal were all accepted by the subcommittee. I was however obliged to take up two "duties" and "right" phrases, and one on "truth, morality, and justice" in the introduction to the statutes, but they are so placed that they cannot do any damage.

My address, etc. was accepted with great enthusiasm (unanimously) at the session of the general committee. The debate on the manner in which it is to be printed, etc., takes place on Tuesday. Le Lubez has received a copy for translation into French, Fontana one for translation into Italian. I myself have to translate the stuff into English.

It has been very difficult to manage the matter so that our views can appear in a form acceptable to the present standpoint of the labor movement. These same people will be holding meetings within a few weeks for suffrage, with Bright and Cobden. It will take time before the reawakened movement permits of the old boldness of speech. We must hold firmly to the cause itself, but be moderate in form. As soon as the thing is printed you shall have it.

Salut,
Yours,
K. M.

Herlock Sholmes Catches Reds

By A. DONAN COYLE.

"My dear fellow," said Herlock Sholmes, the great New York detective as we were seated on either side of the fire in Centre St. headquarters, "These commoonists get far greater sums of money than you can conceive of. It undoubtedly runs into the millions of dollars."

"And yet I am not convinced of it," I answered. "The reports and rumors have never been substantiated in any way."

He fell into a reverie. No great detective speaks hurriedly. Not because e cannot speak quickly, but rather because it does not befit a great detective to do so. One would think at first glance that he was an ordinary plain-clothesman. And in truth he looked like any other man on the force. But yet he was Captain Herlock Sholmes; known the world over as having run down the Wall St. Bomb Plot perpetrator and having exposed and nipped in the bud the various attempts to start May Day riots. His slight graceful body, beautifully delicate nose, pointed sensitive chin, clear blue eyes and long slender tapering fingers bespoke his similarity to any other policeman. He lifted his head.

"Whatsewer," he said, "wait here a few minutes until I change clothes and I will prove to you that I am right."

He disappeared into the bathroom. Soon he reappeared. I was amazed at his complete disguise. It was even more complete than that which he used when he caught the queen of Bohemia and the prince, but I promised not to tell that story until a later day. It involves tog much royalty. The bit of cactus on his upper lip had been removed, his neck was white, and in place of the jazz-bo he usually wore, was a red Windsor tie.

"Come," he said, "the scheme is this. I have here a check for fifty thousand dollars with Lenin's signature forged on it. It is made out to this guy William X. Foster and endorsed to me. We will find a Bullahevik and ask him to cash it. If he does, you will admit, that it proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that such chocks are common to them."

I nodded assent. I had to nod because such ingenious power awed me into speechlessness. We had to walk north to the next street corner in order to take a car to the heart of the city. About half way up the block we met Smith, an old friend of mine. Having acquired Herlock's remarkable ability at perception to a small degree I noticed big yellow egg-stains on his chin and shirt.

"Hello Smith!" Sholmes called as we approached each other. "Pretty rotten combinations of food you are eating nowadays."

"You don't know what I ate, today," Smith retored.

"I'll wager you the best five cent cigar made, I do," challenged our hero. The wager was made.

"You had watermelon, chicken and coffee," Herlock said confidently.

Smith reluctantly admitted that this was correct and paid the dues. After we parted I asked Sholmes how he knew.

"Well," he replied, "I knew he ate watermelon because I saw a watermelon seed sticking out of his left ear. He ate chicken surely, because he looked hungry. Those egg stains that misled you are from some other

The relation of the shop nucleus to the territorial branch was taken up in a previous article. The relation between the shop nucleus and the shop nuclei branch is herein briefly touched. This second form is a good deal different and works much more simply and effectively.

The shop nuclei branch is one made up of the shop nuclei existing within a given territory. Naturally, then, both in the shop nucleus and the shop nuclei branch, the members have full powers on all matters.

The branch executive committee of a shop nuclei branch is composed of members elected from the various shop nuclei or at a general shop nuclei branch membership meeting. Sometimes in a shop nuclei branch, there will be members not yet attached to a particular shop nucleus. The branch, in such instanchs, takes care that there are members on the branch executive committee from every shop nucleus in the branch.

If the shop nucleus members were all attached to a definite shop nucleus then, of course, only work-shop members would be on the shop nucleus branch committee. But there will naturally be party and other workers, very active comrades, etc. not belonging to a particular shop nucleus. They are likely to be wanted and elected on committees. And it is correct that these live-wire comrades shall be placed at the disposal of the shop nuclei. To make certain, however, that members of the shop nucleus proper, that is, those who actually work in the shop, are on the main committees, there is the provision that every shop nucleus shall have its delegate on the shop nuclei branch committee.

Shop Nuclei Branch Supervises Work of Nuclei

It is the duty of the shop nuclei branch to lay out and direct the work in the branch and in the various shop nuclei.

The branch or its committee takes up mainly the ways of developing the work of the nuclei. The activity of a shop branch is but the activity of a shop nucleus enlarged and continued. Its work is not different from that of a nucleus. Rather, gathering the experiences of the various nuclei, it makes use of such information to help concretely the work of each of the nuclei.

The work of the shop nuclei branch is both general and specific. It is general in the work laid out for the party shop nuclei branch in a certain locality, unions, etc. It is specific in the work planned out for each nucleus and, if possible, its members.

The branch committee assigns its members to meet with the shop nucleus, to participate actively in the shop nucleus work. This aids in coordinating the work of the nucleus and the branch and developing the activity of the individual members.

The shop branch, or its committee, takes up the general political, educational, economic, trade union and other work in the branch and nuclei. It arranges for public propaganda and educational meetings in order to attract other elements. Its organizes study classes; it discusses the trade union problems of the nuclei members and the workers, the development of shop committee work. It lends aid to weak nuclei in arranging meetings for the workers. It puts forward a program for the systematic political development and education of the members. The branch aims at the proper training of functionaries, officials, propagandists, etc. The branch distributes the party literature, official organ, the DAILY WORKER, and other information received from higher committees, to the shop nuclei. It receives a share of the dues and other moneys from the nuclei to carry on its work. It institutes the organization of other nuclei and organizes membership campaigns.

The shop nuclei branch, briefly, then, supplements on a larger basis the nuclei program of the nuclei and the individual members. To make the nuclei members work and to direct that work in every possible field for Communist activity—that is the main function of the shop branch. It is the easy thing for it is making the Communist revolution.

Shop Branch Must Get Accurate Knowledge of Working Conditions

The nuclei members must collect data on every matter connected with the work in the shop. All information should be collected for use in their propaganda. Detailed knowledge must be got of the local industrial conditions. The shop branch and the nuclei can lay out work for the individual members in the shop or territory, such as distributing literature, visiting prospective members, trade union work, etc. The more real knowledge of facts and how to use them, the more productive the work. Members should write up notes of their experiences for the benefit of the others. Wall bulletins can serve to this end.

Forward to Shop Nuclei!

These few lines indicate but the outlines of the work, both in the period of transition to shop nuclei and the time when the ideal form, the shop nuclei branch, is developed. It is going to take a long time before the shop nuclei branch becomes commonly prevalent in the Workers Party of America. But we must know what we are aiming for, organizationally and politically. Hence these lines. Meanwhile, we must take up the immediate steps toward reorganization.

In America we have no shop nuclei experiences of the party; the Young Workers League has had some, but the organizational problem is so much different that the league's experiences in the initial stages cannot help the party very much except in an inspirational way. The party must build its own road. That means to try organization in the most favorable places. The party is laying out a program for that purpose. The various activities of a shop nucleus, such as shop committee work, union activity, literature, finance, and many more matters must be dealt with in detail. However, it will be trying to ORGANIZE SHOP NUCLEI, no matter how difficult, that will give us a clear picture and understanding, instead of a mere formula, of the undoubted superiority of the shop nuclei over the present territorial branch. Then, as in every other country, the membership will enthusiastically respond to the work of making the WORKERS PARTY A PARTY OF SHOP NUCLEI!

Forward to shop nuclei!

Solovetzk, the "Red Hell"

By LUDWIG MAGYAR.

The delegation of menshevik and social-counter-revolutionary emigres have recently instituted a great campaign against the Soviet Union. They wish to arouse the public opinion of the working class and of the bourgeoisie against the Soviet power and, as a pretext, they make use of the alleged heart-rending, terrible fate of political prisoners in the Soviet Union. They are supplying the parties of the Second International with propaganda material on this question and these cronies of the Russian menshevikare, in the French chamber of deputies and in the columns of the "Vorwarts" and the Vienna "Arbeiterseitung" shedding crocodile's tears over the martyred, tortured Russian socialists, who—alas!—are languishing in the terrible dungeons of the Tcheka, and are being shot several times every day. The social-counter-revolutionary Suchomlinov is pestering comrades Anatole France and Severin with tedious letters of complaint, while the London and Amsterdam Internationals issue appeals and protests. The anti-Soviet campaign is in full swing. Let us examine the facts a little more closely.

How many political prisoners are there in the Soviet Union? We will not make comparisons. We will not point out how many revolutionary workers and peasants the Bulgarian social-democrats, as members of the murderous Zankoff government, have executed. We will not point out how many thousands of Communists are eating their hearts out in the prisons of Germany. We do not ask how many Indian revolutionaries are expiating their revolutionary deeds in the prisons of the labor government of Ramsay MacDonald. We will not call attention to how many Communists have been arrested and murdered with the consent of the Polish socialist party. We also leave aside the question as to how the social-democrats in Finland, Lettland, Esthonia, Hungary and Yugoslavia have acted. We would only state that in the Soviet Union—which embraces one-sixth of the earth and which has a population of 150 millions—there are only five hundred political prisoners. Mensheviki, social-counter-revolutionaries, anarchists, monarchists, fascists are doing their utmost to set up illegal organizations in the Soviet Union. And in spite of everything there are only—let us repeat it —five hundred political prisoners.

This number includes mensheviki, social-counter-revolutionaries, anarchists, monarchists, fascists and all enemies of the proletarian revolution, whatever they may choose to call themselves.

How are the political prisoners treated? What life do they lead in the "Red Hell" as the appeals of the mensheviki so "mildly" describe it.

On the Solovetzk Peninsula, where "the bolsheviki, these hangmen of innocent socialists, act with the greatest cruelty," and over which the greatest outcry has been raised, the political prisoners have complete self-administration. They have absolute freedom of movement the whole day, and the system prevailing in Solovetzk is the wish and the demand of all political prisoners in Russia. Wassiliev, a member of the central bureau of the menshevki, who is confined at the Susdal camp, proposed to the political prisoners in Susdal to commence a struggle for the improvement of the prison regulations.

"Our general demand is clear: We want the system obtaining in Solovetzk be introduced in Susdal," he writes to one of his comrades.

And the former member of Martov, Zederbaum-Levitzky, stated, that the demand for the introduction of the Solovetzk system was a too far-reaching demand. "This demand can only be regarded as a maximum aim," he writes.

And this is how all prisoners in Susdal write. Their slogan is: The Solovetzk regime in Susdal.

The administration at Solovetzk have allowed the members of the prisoners' families who visit them, to live with the prisoners a whole week. Nowhere in the world do prisoners enjoy such privileges. It is easily understood that this regime is desired by the prisoners in other places. Complete self-government, a whole week in company with the members of their families, a prison diet at which the prisoners themselves never complain; this is the picture furnished by the "Red Hell."

The prison group of the Georgian menshevki writes to Wassiliev, member of the central bureau of the menshevki:

"Regarding the general regime we can only repeat that nobody can consider it a crying evil. If in reply to our hunger-strike there would be admitted, to investigate the conditions, an anti-soviet minded commission, even including European socialists, they would only be able to report that the Soviet system and its justice are not the pleasantest institutions, but that there is nothing to complain about regarding the prison regime in Susdal."

In Susdal therefore the prison regime is quite satisfactory. In Solovetzk it is still better and therefore, prisoners at the former wish to obtain the Solovetzk regime.

We could publish hundreds of quotations from, or facsimilies of such letters.

There are therefore only five hundred prisoners in the Soviet Union. These are given humane treatment, as the prison regulations in the Soviet Union are of a remarkably mild character. The prisoners themselves recognize that even the sworn enemies of the Soviet power would have to admit them to be thoroly satisfactory. And if the menshevki and the social counter-revolutionaries in emigration, who during the civil war have rivalled the bands of Kolchak and Denekin in acts of bestial cruelty, work up a spurious indignation over this regime. And the heroes of the Second International, who persecute revolutionary workers, issue appeals, pass resolutions of protest and relate lying stories to the workers as to the "Red Hell."

A gang of hypocrites and calumniators is against the Soviet Union. The workers must spurn these lies and calumnies with loathing and disgust.

mania was not with us. It was pitch dark. We felt at the walls and could find no lights. Both the walls and the floors had that same soft yielding softness. Suddenly the room was flooded with light—we were in a padded cell.

The little window that gave it the appearance of a bank, was opened and two faces peered in.

"Here they are doctor," said the ambassador from Roumania and alleged red, "the one with the kinder-garten tie thinks he is a detective and the other one seems just plain ordinary dumb."

At this point I fainted. But as I fell over I could hear him saying, "See I told you so." It was the ambassador talking not Herlock Sholmes, the great New York detective.

Youth Day in Moscow - By Anna Porter

Sunday was International Youth day, and Moscow seemed all youth from my window overlooking the Theater Place or "Ploshchad." Every day, almost in Moscow seems a day of demonstrations, with the "Young Leninists" and other groups and companies of Red soldiers marching by to the Red Square around the corner.

But looking down from my red cushion on the high, broad window-sill, I became aware that this was nothing ordinary, and I then recalled from my sub-consciousness the word "molodyosh" that had been staring me in the face from the billboards for several days past. Such words make no impression at the moment, holding no meaning for me until I spell them out; and now I spelled out with a retrospective eye, "Internatsionalni Molodyosh," and I knew what it signified that for four hours those solid ranks of youth and childhood with their red banners and drums and bands, marched past my window, by the gay flower-beds of the plaza, where two years ago were dusty heaps of stones and trash, around to the tomb of Ilych in the Krasni Ploshchad.

Add in my mail the same day, came clippings from the home papers,—denunciations of the Youth movement as subversive of the political teachings of our country,—as an insidious effort of traitors to introduce bolshevism into the ranks of our youth. At this distance,—in this place,—it all sounds so blatant and silly and futile. Here, we take it all for granted—the forward march of youth over the dead traditions of the capitalistic past. A young woman friend here is eager to visit America "to see what a capitalist country is like" before it passes away. At twenty-four, capitalism to her is ancient history, and the U. S. of A. an anachronism and a curio. So let the reactionaries rave, as the solid ranks of youth march by to pay homage to Lenin.

Another clipping was from an interview with Dr Clampett. This well-meaning liberal has some authentic information to give on several subjects, but when he speaks of a man "fortunate enough to enter and leave (Russia) in safety," he betrays a childish ignorance, a wilful desire to mislead, or a guilty conscience. Everyone is safe who enters with proper credentials. Without such, he may not enter at all. If he abuses the confidence placed in him, he will not be safer than in other countries. His statement that after August 1, letters addressed to Petrograd will not be forwarded to Leningrad, the new name of the city, is unworthy of an intelligent person.

Dr. Clampett refers to and quotes from the "Educational Principles of the Soviet Government," but without comment. There is much complaint against this policy,—and especially in its immediate application by dropping out a large group of bourgeois students, by visitors who do not understand the vital necessity to the government, of training up an expert proletariat to carry on the reconstruction of Russia. One sad lesson the revolution taught — a lesson that Marx impressed;—that even the sympathizing elements of the former bourgeoisie cannot be trusted completely in face of the realities of the revolution and its class alignment, except here and there individually, and that counter-revolution and sabotage must be met by a proletariat thoroughly equipped to carry on the work.

The revolution is not established in a day—a long and still dangerous period lies ahead; when the intensification of the class struggle in all countries will reflect back to Russia, and Russia must be 100 per cent prepared, with its proletarian army and its proletarian experts, to meet the situation of the future. Hence in this year of small export crops, and a consequently diminished budget, the necessity of dropping out of the universities even those bourgeois students who has already made a few years' progress. The hardship of this policy, so much criticised even by sympathetic liberals, is to be ameliorated in a measure, by distributing these students so far as may be possible, in the technical schools. It must be remembered that the cost of education is not alone its equipment and staff, but largely the maintenance of the students as well.

Perhaps the most amusing of my clippings is the solemn announcement of the destruction by the Government Committee (headed by Lenin's widow, Krupskaya,) of all the works of Tolstoi, and the banning from Russia of the works of Plato, Kant, Maeterlinck, Spencer, Schopenhauer, Nietzsche and Nordau, and "even of Kropotkin." I read this aloud amid shouts of derision to a group of a dozen at a friendly intellectual evening gathering at the house of a Russian professor. The article added to these works all such as "deal with liberalism," and God with a capital letter—could absurdity go further?— as well as fairy-tales of kings and princesses. Most of us had been, the evening before, to an elaborate ballet in the gorgeous Grand Opera house, staging princesses et all, in all the most alluring phases of their pampered lives. Well, let these propagandists against Russia amuse themselves with their twaddle. We should worry!

And Soviet Russia goes straight forward, and its solid ranks of youth march by for hours to do honor to its founder,, and the echo of their tramp across the water fires our own Youth and confounds the "patriots."

RUSSIA'S YOUTH IN CAMP

THE SEVENTH VICTORIOUS YEAR AND THE TASK OF EVERY COMRADE

WEDNESDAY, November 7, 1917. John Reed arose very late. The noon cannon boomed from Peter-Paul as he walked down the Nevsky. It was a raw and chilly day.

On the corner of the Morskaya Reed ran into Captain Gomberg, Menshevik oboronetz, secretary of the military section of his party. When he asked him if the Bolsheviki insurrection had really happened he shrugged his shoulders in a tired manner and replied, "Tchort znayet! (The devil knows!) Well, perhaps the Bolsheviki can seize the power, but they won't be able to hold it more than three days. They haven't the men to run the government. Perhaps it's a good thing to let them try. That will finish them."

A whole crop of new appeals against insurrection had blossomed out on the walls during the night—to the peasants, to the soldiers, to the workmen of Petrograd. One was from the Petrograd Duma and informed the citizens that at an extraordinary meeting on November 6 the Duma had formed a Committee of Public Safety. This was actually a declaration of war against the Bolsheviki.

Further down the Nevsky Reed bought a second-hand copy of Dien from a soldier for fifty kopeks. The Bolshevik paper, printed on large sized sheets, in the conquered office of the Russkaya Volia, had huge head-lines: "ALL POWER TO THE SOVIET OF WORKERS, SOLDIERS AND PEASANTS! PEACE! BREAD! LAND!" The leading article was signed "Zinoviev,"—Lenin's companion in hiding.

It was 10:40 p. m. On the platform at Smolny sat the leaders of the old Tsay-ee-kah—for the last time dominating the turbulent Soviets, which had now risen against them. The election of the presidium had given the Bolsheviki 14 as against 7 for the Social Revolutionaries, 3 Menshevikl, and 1 Internationalist (Gorky's group). The "right" shouted that it would refuse to participate. The Tsay-ee-kah stepped down and in their places appeared Trotsky, Kamenev, Lunacharsky, Kollontai, Nogin . . . .

The hall rose, thundering. How far they had soared, these Bolsheviki, from a despised and hunted organization less than four months ago, to this supreme place, the helm of great Russia in full tide of insurrection.

Outside the methodical boom of cannon sounding the revolution. The Winter Palace was being attacked. Inside the delegates screaming, the lefts assuming authority, the rights being shouted down as traitors and counter-revolutionists.

So, with daring and the crash of artillery, a new Russia was born!

Since this hour, nearly seven years have passed, seven victorious years for the proletariat of Soviet Russia. And there again comes from the victors in Russia to the proletariat of all lands a call to hold world-wide demonstrations on November 7th in celebration of proletarian rule over one hundred and fifty millions of people.

How will the Workers Party and its supporters respond? Have we built during the year? Are we stronger today than we were last November 7th? Has our Communist understanding grown and has discipline increased?

The number of demonstrations we hold this November 7th will tell. Every organized point in the land ought celebrate this seventh anniversary of the birth of Soviet Russia. In 400 cities there are Workers Party branches and locals. No less than 400 demonstrations in honor of the deeds and accomplishments of our Russian comrades should be held.

Every loyal comrade and disciplined Communist will begin this minute to help in the details necessary to make the celebration of the SEVENTH VICTORIOUS YEAR FOR SOVIET RUSSIA in his city a huge success.

The Play That Displeased the Brass-Buttoned Bullies

By NATHANIEL BUCHWALD.

Arthur Hopkins, the producer of "What Price Glory?" ran into a piece of luck, and much obliged to the admirals and generals who tried to suppress the play. In all fairness, Rear Admiral Plunckett, who so vehemently denounced the play as a piece of pacifist propaganda, full of nasty cuss words, is entitled to a rake-off on the box office receipts. No amount of paid press-agenting could have accomplished half as much.

But the professional wits in the New York dailies are giving the admiral the razz and poking fun at the whole affair. Which is viciously stupid, for the attempt to censor this war play is not merely a whim of a single militaristic patriot, but a characteristic expression of the bullying temper of the imperialist gang that lords over us. Still worse are the editorial hypocrites who are congratulating themselves upon having won a victory over military censorship of public morals. They know damned well that they have won nothing of the kind and that the stage, the screen and the printed fiction will continue to truckle under the standards imposed by our lords of war and imperialism.

For the time being, the particular gang of brass-buttoned bullies who tried to gag the play, appears to be licked. "What Price Glory?" minus some of its four-letter-words, will stay on, much to the delight of the producer and the edification of our "American liberties." But the very fuss raised about this play shows that it is a rather novel thing for a playwright to dare tell the truth about war and the men who make it. Verily, the exception proves the rule, and the rule is for our staged, screened and written fiction to conform to the unwritten code of lies about the glamor of soldiery and the glories of war. So long as an author conforms to this unwritten law, he is free to lie in his own way about the army, the navy and the romance of the battlefields. But no sooner he attempts to portray the hellish truth of the murder profession than a hue and cry is raised against him. The fact that so few pieces of war fiction have aroused the ire of the militarists simply shows that there has been little attempt at artistic truth and honesty about the war. Militaristic censorship of peace time art and literature, is not a menace—it is an insidious fact, a stinking element that pollutes our spiritual life at its source, a corruptive devil that guides the pen of every purveyor of popular fiction. Militarism is the watch-dog of capitalism, and part of its duty is to foster alluring lies about the sordid business, to instill in the mob a sense of glamour and glory about the insignia and the symbols of war, of killing for profits and markets. Whether directly or by implied terrorism, the brass-button lords see to it that capitalist art remains capitalist.

Yet the attack of the militarists upon "What Price Glory?" maneuvered many of us into the awkward position of defending a play that really is not much as a piece of theatrical art. It was not this play that he meant when Hamlet, the prince of blues, said, "the play is the thing." Even before the piece achieved its pacifist notoriety it was more a riot of peppery soldier-slang and humding cuss-words than serious significant drama. To be sure, the spicy lines were not put into the play with the idea of bringing down the house. The untidy language of the American soldiers is of the very essence of the play and serves as an effective means of portraying the soldiers as they really are. Nor is the unseemly conduct of the men toward their officers and the officers toward women and booze portrayed with a view of furnishing either delicious thrills or pacifism. But the audience manages to pick out from this rather truthful and lifelike mess the choicest, spiciest bits of slang, obscenity and sex allusions. For the respectable ladies, whose good manners bid them call a leg a limb, a performance of "What Price Glory?" is an occasion for being naughty while remaining respectable. For the men the play has thrills of he-man talk and gladness of recognition.

No artist is, however, safe from the vulgar appraisal of his admirers, and surely Lawrence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, the authors of "What Price Glory?" cannot be held accountable for the reactions of the audience.

But they should be held accountable for the dramatic truth and purport of the play, and of this little can be said in their favor. There is a kind of chaotic elemental protest stirring in the play against the horror of war, and a shameful, humiliating, degrading life of the men who are herded together against their will to fight somebody without knowing why. When Captain Flagg, one of the principal characters, is about to engage in a fight with Sergeant Quirt over the possession of a coy prostitute he says that it is the first time since war began that he has a real reason for fighting. That Captain Flagg embodies all of the protest, disillusionment and cynicism a professional soldier must feel about the army, its leaders and its spirit. But the protest is with him a chaotic, emotional reaction, finding expression in torrents of filthy oaths, rather than a conscious philosophy of pacifism. Neither Captain Flagg nor anyone else in the play, voices pacifist ideas. But the hideous truth about the marines, the army and the war induces in the audience a mood of resentment against war, and a feeling of disgust with the soldier profession. In this sense Rear Admiral Plunckett is perhaps right when he says that after reviewing this play, no mother would allow her son to join the army.

The play, however, lacks in dramatic coherence and purpose. The emotional side of the drama revolves about the rivalry between Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt over the French prostitute. Both men are brutalized by a long career of soldiering to the point of slothful, will-less lust. They hate each other enthusiastically enough, but they also have admiration for each other, since both are capable soldiers and daring adventurers. They have some old scores to settle, and the presence of the girl serves to rekindle all of their former feud spirit. There follows a rather implausible series of intrigues between the two men, each of whom in turn gets the better of the other. But in the end war gets the better of both of them. They are in a position to dodge the order to go to the front, but the hypnotic curse of war is upon them. The army has paralyzed their will, and they proceed to the front, hating war and despising themselves for their lack of will.

The fabric of the play is genuine enough. The atmosphere is portrayed with a competence that proceeds from athoro familiarity and fine artistic choice of significant detail. But the garment that is made of this genuine cloth is a rather uncouth affair, showing neither elegance of workmanship nor qualities of usefulness. If not for the pacifist notoriety it achieved "What Price Glory?" would be no more than a fairly good play, realistically staged and superbly acted.

Ibanez Starts a Bourgeois Revolution

By HARRISON GEORGE

"My people are in captivity! I can no longer remain silent! I am going to speak. It will make a noise in the world. Alphonso XIII must go. Only a republic can save Spain. The Spain of honest men will rise to overthrow the tyrants. There must be an end to this new era of inquisition. We must strike at its head. Those greatest in position are the guiltiest!"

So speaks Vincente Blasco Ibanez on the front pages of the capitalist newspapers throughout the world. And this mountebank literateur, whose "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the most spiritualized expression of allied war propaganda against Germany, was inspired by confidential and unquestionably remunerative conversations with Clemenceau and Poincare, has the audacity to add—"Remember, I am to get nothing for it. My writings about Spain I am going to give to the press of the world."

True, Ibanez may get nothing from the newspapers. Publicity men seldom do. But what about someone else? What about the Spanish bourgeoisie, who have with ever increasing avidity watched the progress of capitalist economy across the Pyrennes and bewailed the feudal restrictions still burdening Spanish business with the remnants of medievalism? Or, how about the French foreign office, which watches with anxious gaze the perilous adventure of Prima de Rivera in Morroco? Does France feel that she must "take a hand", as she has for some time threatened, to guarantee her own colonies from native revolution? Time will tell.

But one thing is certain, the capitalist newspapers do not herald upon their pages any revolution that is not a capitalist revolution. If Ibanez, the prostitute novelist, is setting out to overthrow Alphonso the Syphilitic,—with his pen—it is because there is both money in it, because the bourgeoisie are behind it. This dilletante revolutionist who makes war with his pen, now takes as example the "flaming D'Annunzio" who took Fiume for the Italian bourgeoisie in the same name of "liberation."

Ibanez was "silent too long." But even now when he speaks it will not be for the Spanish proletariat, whose leaders by the scores have reddened the streets of Barcelona with their life blood, struck down by hired assassins of the bourgeoisie. Ibanez has been silent. He has uttered no protest while the "new inquisition" was crushing the organizations of the Spanish workers. He said no word of indignation when the Fascist-monarchist bands descended upon the unions with iron hands, but even now he raises no voice for the Communists who fill the dungeons of Spain where died the victims of Torquemada.

Ibanez has "been silent too long" to now be trusted when he speaks, as he does and as he will, in the name of "liberty", in the name of "revolution." Spanish workers remember Ibanez, how he got his fame by playing the demagogue, by appearing dramatically before crowds of open-mouthed workers in the hastily-donned jacket of a worker, how he even broke into prison with agitation for a republic, but of statism of these things had won him admiration and renown, Ibanez spurned the workers' interests and only used his knowledge of their miseries as literary material.

The Spanish LaFollette has declared war on the Spanish king in behalf of the untrammelled dictatorship of the bourgeoisie, and not in the interests of the workers. The workers will be asked to fight for "liberty" only to find that it means the liberty of capitalism to exploit them. It is not that Ibanez has been silent too long, but that too long capitalism has permitted the dead hand of clerical feudalism to suppress, not liberty, but business on the Iberian peninsula.

GRAFTER FORBES WILL NOT BE TRIED UNTIL VOTES ARE COUNTED

The trial of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former head of the United States veterans' bureau and John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, on charges of defrauding the government in connection with the hospital contracts, this afternoon was set for November 24.

The date was fixed after the court had first postponed definitely fixing it until tomorrow.

Wars and Revolutions

By L. Trotsky

THE American "pacifist" program of world subjugation is by no means a program of peace. On the contrary it is pregnant with wars and with great revolutionary upheavals. It is not just for the fun of it that America is building up her fleet. America is actively engaged building light and fast cruisers, submarines and other auxiliary warships. And when England whispers a feeble protest, America points to the fact that Japan has an excess of light cruisers, which "compels" the United States to build more warships in order to maintain the ratio 5:5:3. In this manner America continues to increase the number not only of her light cruisers, but of every other type of warship as well.

And it is impossible for the other governments to compete with the United States, for the latter can turn out warships as easily and speedily as she turns out pies. Preparations are thus being made for the greatest sea battles the world has ever seen to be staged (in the not very distant future) on both the Atlantic and the Pacific, provided, of course, that the bourgeoisie will still rule the world for a considerable length of time.

For it is impossible that the bourgeoisie of the world will complacently retreat to the rear seats assigned to it by America and become the vassals of American capital. Too great are the contradictions, too abnormal are the appetites for gain, too strong is the instinct to preserve the old dominating position, too deeply rooted are the traditions of a world empire in England to permit such a possibility. Military conflicts are inevitable. "Pacifist" Americanism is preparing the ground for new wars of unusual scale and of unimaginable monstrosity.

If we should now turn again to the main question of the future position of European reformism, we shall have to say that the success of European reformism is directly dependent upon the success of American "pacifism." If American will succeed in her ambition to turn Europe into a dominion of the new type, i.e., if she will not encounter in the very near future the resistance of the masses of the people in the form of war or revolution, then European social-democracy, as the shadow of American capital, will also preserve its influence to a certain extent. And Europe will sink to a state of degeneracy and indifference thriving on remnants of her old glory and leading a meager existence on a strict American ration. All this will be covered over with an ideological dressing made up of stale, warmed-over maxims of European social-democracy and spiced with ingredients (pious phrases) from the American Quaker-pacifist kitchen. Anything ugner, anything more repulsive, more debasing, than such an aspect, is hard to imagine.

The point to consider then is not what the actual forces of social-democracy are. The main question is whether or not American capital, thru a parsimonious financing of Europe, will succeed in establishing there its regime. It is impossible to foretell events with any degree of exactitude. Especially is it hard to be definite as to the time it may take for events to develop. It is sufficient to understand the new forces that are affecting world affairs today, to have a clear idea of the fundamental factors which will determine the fate of Europe, and in the light of such knowledge to follow the course of events strictly marking down the success and failures of the chief boss of our age, the United States of North America.

At the same time we must understand and expose the political maneuverers of European social-democracy. It is also well to remember that those contradictions which caused the imperialist war ten years ago, still remain in force like an open yawning wound. They have become more pronounced during the war, they have been strengthened by the peace of Versailles, and have become more deeply rooted with the development of the class struggle in Europe. And America will come face to face with these sharp contradictions as time goes along.

It is a difficult task to put a hungry people on a ration. We know it from our own experience. True, our situation, as well as our motives were different. We were prompted to adopt the expedient of food rationing by the iron necessity of a desperate life and death struggle of a revolutionary country. But from our experience we learned that a regime of scanty rations is under all circumstances apt to cause discontent and insurrections. The sailor Kronstadt insurrection is a striking illustrative example of the shortcomings of a regime based on rations. So that when we see now America making a rationing experiment on this gigantic scale, involving many foreign nations and doing it from purely capitalist motives, with the sole purpose of imperialist plunder,—we cannot help but think that she will meet with strong resistance from the masses of the people.

Without a bitter struggle along both class and national lines America will not carry out her project. The more American capital becomes politically self-reliant the broader the scope of its world influence, and the greater the control of American bankers over the governments of Europe, the more concerted, the more decisive will be the resistance of the masses of Europe, not only of the proletariat, but even of the petty-bourgeois peasantry. For we wish to warn our American friends that to turn Europe into a colony is not at all as simple a task as they imagine it to be.

We are now at the initial stage of this process of America's attempts to colonize Europe. After years of starvation the German proletariat has felt now some relief, pitiful and insignificant tho that relief may be. We know that the workers who has been exhausted by long years of suffering will be appreciative even of the smallest improvement in his position. And such a minor improvement is now evident in Germany as a result of the stabilization of the currency and wages. It is due to this fact mainly that the German social-democracy is still retaining a certain degree of political prestige.

Such a state of affairs, however, will not last very long. America does not intend at all to increase the German ration, especially that portion of it which is meant for the German worker. The same holds true of the French and English worker. For what is America aiming at? America wants to make certain of the lion's share of the spoils of world capitalism, so as to insure a privileged position to the upper layers of the American working class at the expense of the laboring masses of Europe and the rest of the world. Without the co-operation of the American labor aristocracy, American capital could not hold its own. Without Gompers and his bureaucracy, without the aid of the highly paid skilled workers, the entire political machine of American capital would break down. And in order to keep the American labor aristocracy in its privileged position, it is necessary to place the European "rabble," the European proletarian "mob" on a meager, stingy American ration.

The firmer this regime of an American ration becomes established in Europe, the more difficult will it be for the European social-democracy to keep up the faith of the laboring masses in the religion of Amricanism, and the more energetic will become the resistance of the workers of Europe against this master of masters—American capital. It is then that the spirit of a European revolution, of a Union of Soviet Republics of Europe will receive an immediate, practical, militant meaning for the workers of Europe.

By what means does the European social-democracy poison and lull into the weakness the consciousness of the European proletariat? Social-democracy declares that Europe, dismembered and sliced into pieces by the peace of Versailles, cannot exist without America. But the Communist parties of Europe answer: It is a lie. We can exist without America, if we only wish to. Europe does not need to be torn to pieces. She can become a United Europe. And it is only the revolutionary proletariat who can unite and consolidate Europe into the United States of Europe! America is powerful. Against the British Islands with their dependence upon her colonies all over the world, America is almighty. But we say that all of America's might and strength will prove feeble and ineffective against a Europe of workers and peasants united with us into a single Union of Soviets.

American capital is fully aware of this danger. American capital is the most avowed, the most bitter enemy of bolshevism today. The policy of Mr. Hughes with regard to Russia is not just an incidental whim or caprice. It is the expression of the will of the most centralized part of American capital which is now entering upon a career of open struggle for world domination. American capital cannot very well avoid contact with us because the waterways of the Pacific lead into China and Siberia. The idea to turn Siberia into an American colony is the most cherished dream of American imperialism. But here American imperialism hits against the rock of a proletarian, revolutionary government. We have monopolized our foreign trade, we have a socialist foundation for our economic policy, and such conditions are not at all favorable to the monarchistic, autocratic aspirations of American imperialism.

Even in China, into which country American capital is penetrating under the slogan of "open doors," we find that the ideas popular among masses of the people are not the religion of Americanism, but the political programm of bolshevism translated into Chinese. Not Wilson, not Harding, not Coolidge, not Morgan or Rockefeller, not these names are familiar to the Chinese coolies and peasants. It is the name of Lenin that is being hailed with joy and hope not only in China, but all over the Orient.

America can undermine the strength of England only by hypocritically championing the cause of the oppressed peoples of the colonies. We find, however, in the Orient, side by side with the American consul, American merchant, American professor and American press agent also devoted fighters for Communism and revolutionists who were able to translate into the native languages the really liberating program of bolshevism. All over Europe as well as in Asia, American imperialism has to face the challenge of revolutionary bolshevism.

I remember how in 1919, on the occasion of Wilson's arrival in Europe, when the entire bourgeois press was full with the names of Wilson and Lenin, I once remarked jokingly to Vladimir Ilytch: "Lenin and Wilson, these are the two apocolyptic figures of new history." Vladimir Ilytch laughed. I did not suspect at the

BLESSING THE DAWES PLAN

What Does Your Boss Look Like?

By T. J. O'Flaherty

There is an old saying that poets are born, not made. This is only a half truth, which is the most dangerous kind of a lie. Poets, in order to be made must first be born. Most of them could stay unborn and unmade, as far as we are concerned.

Prose writing comes easier to some than to others. Those who write best are not usually the most prolific writers. This is unfortunate, but it cannot be helped.

Invited Again.

The DAILY WORKER has extended several invitations to its readers to tell of their experiences thru these columns. The invitations were usually given the frozen lid. Perhaps our readers were led to believe that a correspondence school in journalism is necessary in order to qualify one to write for The DAILY WORKER. On the contrary, those who have been spoiled on capitalist papers and by capitalist schools of journalism have a hard time living down their past, on a working class paper.

Read the title of this article. "What does your boss look like?" We are not building up a rogues' gallery. Nothing of the sort. But we would like the workers who read this paper, to write in and tell us about the work in the shop or wherever they toil for the boss.

We want a picture of the life in the industries. The boss is a very irritating part of that picture. He may be the owner of the factory, or he may be only the owner's lieutenant, whose job is to drive the workers to the limit of their endurance, turning out wealth for the owners' profit.

Everything Interesting.

Not alone would we like to have you write about the boss, but also about incidents that take place in the shop, anything that has news value or propaganda value. And to a Communist a piece of news that has not propaganda value is as flat as a pancake and not near as palatable. A Communist can turn anything into propaganda, or else he is not a Communist.

Your boss may be a lean and hungry individual—the kind that Caesar did not like in his vicinity. Remember what he said about Cassius?

Fat and Lean.

Or your boss may be a fat man, half a dozen chins trembling under the original, bushy eyebrows, such as the bouncer in one of Charlie Chaplin's early comedies sported. His stomach may prevent him from picking up a dime off the ground, without considerable difficulty. He may have to use a special chair from which to give his weighty decisions to the time what a great meaning history had in reserve for that ignocent joke. Leninism and American imperialism—these are the main two forces now struggling in Europe, over the Atlantic and the Pacific and the fate of humanity depends upon the outcome of this struggle.

Prospect of War

Our American capitalist enemy is more powerful than our disorganized, European capitalist enemies. America is doing now part of our work. It is organizing European labor. The revival of the Second International means temporarily and outwardly at least, the European proletariat will have to conduct its struggles not on a national scale, but on a continental scale. As the recognition of the necessity for resistance penetrates into wider and wider masses of workers, their slogans and ideas become more and more revolutionary. And more revolutionary ideas mean a more favorable ground for bolshevism. Every success of Americanism, as far as it will be successful, will inevitably result in a greater concentration of energies on the part of the proletariat, which fact alone insures the growth of bolshevism on a larger scale and in a more concerted, more revolutionary form. The future is with us!

"help." But lean or fat, light or weighty, we want to hear about him.

We are not merely concerned with his personal appearance — that will serve to embellish the story. What he does in general or better, what he did in particular. That is what we are after.

We Want The News.

The DAILY WORKER is interested in getting the news from the workshops. And we would like to have it told just as one worker would tell it to another after the day's work. Forget that you are writing for publication. Take your pen, or better still, your typewriter, as if Steve Brown was sitting in front of you, and begin at the beginning. There is no particular way to begin telling a story. That depends on you. I usually begin at the beginning.

For example, Jack MacLaughlin comes home one evening and while his wife is getting supper ready, she notices that his brow is flushed and inquires "What's the matter this evening, Jack? The boss getting under your skin again?"

Jack Curses Amiably.

"Yes," replies Jack, deleting the string of terms that would lend emphasis, if not dignity, to his language, but for the moderating influence of Mrs. MacLaughlin, "that beetle-browed, empty-headed, atavistic moron pulled off as dirty a trick today as I ever witnessed in my life."

MacLaughlin works in a railroad freight yard and his boss is a beefy fellow by the name of Sidebottom.

The Surly Sidebottom.

"You know old Finkiestad," continues MacLaughlin, as he proceeds to demolish the supper. Wife nods. "Well, shortly after the noon hour today, Sidebottom told the old man who had a fairly easy job, oiling trucks and doing the odd jobs, that he would have to pull his pound from now on or look around for another job. Finkelstad has been there for over fifteen years and has given the best years of his life to the company.

"But Sidebottom, in order to make himself strong with the railroad chiefs, has lost whatever spark of humanity he ever had in his soul. He forced poor Finkelstad to take a truck and haul heavy loads for the rest of the day. The old fellow was barely able to walk home.

Had No Union.

"I told Sidebottom I had a good mind to knock some of the mutton out of him, but he just growled and walked away. What can we do? We had a union once and did not have enough brains to keep it."

You could tell your story in this conversational style.

On the other hand, there is Bill Stafford, the foreman on the docks. He is a shabby looking fellow, with a very vile tongue. John Casey comes home one evening and while smoking his pipe after supper, Tom Shachtstein, a neighbour, walked in. Casey is laughing. Shachtstein asks him" what he is laughing at. "I am laughing at Stafford, that sawed-off foreman of ours. He was as mad as a hatter today. Everything was going wrong with him. He hired two men early in the morning. They were hauling from a gangplank, every truck carrying 1,200 pounds. The man on the handles was pulling like the devil, but his partner who was supposed to shove, was more of a liability than an asset. Stafford fired him after cursing a blue streak at him.

A Catholic Cursing.

"According to the union rules, there must be two men on each truck and the greenhorn on the handles knowing that, sat down on his machine, took out his pipe and lit up.

"Stafford was it to be tied. He is a good Catholic and it is said that he goes to holy communion every day in the year. But he swore like the devil. 'Holy Jumpin' Jesus!' says he as he sat in front of the fellow sitting down on his truck smoking. 'Suffering baldheaded Christ!' That was not the worst of it by any means.

Stafford Had a Fit.

"Old Stafford chased around looking for a partner for the boy with the pipe and finally landed one. But after a few minutes the new arrival got thirsty and walked out to the soft drink parlor, and when Stafford came around again, here was my brave lad sitting on his truck with the old reliable in his mouth. Well, if 'Old Bill' goes to communion tomorrow morning, he'll have to tell the priest a long string of sins first."

Perhaps you are an insurance agent. It is not a key industry, but there are thousands of insurance agents wearing out shoe leather collecting nickles and dimes that build castles for the financiers who own the companies. The capitalist government used the insurance companies to good advantage during the war to sell liberty bonds, thrift stamps and boost every move of theirs to keep the people calm while the war raged. The agents go into the homes of the workers and if they are loyal white collar slaves, they inject the poison of the master class into the minds of the workers, particularly the women.

Useful Propagandists.

These agents are continually driven by the officials of the companies in the endeavour to produce more "business," the shop word for insurance policies. On every Saturday the district superintendent gives the agents a lecture. It is usually a fusillade of insults that no worker in overalls would stand for.

Plenty of News.

An insurance agent could tell a very interesting story of one of those meetings. In fact there is a wealth of good material that the DAILY WORKER is more than anxious to get lying around the country. We depend on our readers to send it to us.

Do not forget in writing that you are telling a story. If your grammar is not perfect, we will take care of that deficiency. But we want to get the news, the live throbbing news that is turned out every day in the mills, mines, factories, railroads and every other place where the workers give their brain and brawn to create wealth, the major part of which goes to the master class.

In writing about your boss and all the incidents of your employment, you will be helping materially to lift the heavy hand of oppression from the shoulders of your class and to abolish the cursed system which has made of this world a valley of tears for the workers.

MENSHEVISM IN GEORGIA

(Interview with the deputy chairman of the People's Commissariat of the Transcaucasian Socialist Federative Soviet Republics, Comrade Mirsa-Daut-Gusseinov.)

After his arrival in Moscow, Comrade Mirsa-Daut-Gusseinov gave the following details of the recently attempted revolt of the menshevik in Georgia:

The chief aim of the revolt was, according to the declaration of the leaders of the menshevik gang of bandits, to show to the entente countries that unrest prevailed in Georgia and that the mass of the Georgian people were against the Soviet power. In the event of the revolt being a success, its leaders had intended to induce the western European countries to intervene in our affairs. According to the declaration of Dahugeli and other members of the "Committee of the Independence of Georgia," the English, and in particular the French, imperialists exercised pressure upon the foreign bureau of the mensheviki to organize a revolt in Georgia. And in this connection the leaders of the revolt apparently hoped for timely support for the rebels, chiefly on the part of France. It is characteristic that everywhere where sporadic revolts broke out, the menshevik leaders based their propaganda among the population upon the rumor that the French fleet was approaching the coast of Batum with landing forces, and also that mass revolts had taken place in North Caucasia.

It was therefore, I repeat, the chief aim of the menshevik to create the appearance of a powerful revolt of the whole population and then to raise the question of the necessity of the intervention of west Europe.

The working class of Georgia has remained quite unaffected by the revolt, of course, with the exception of those isolated workers who are members of the menshevik party.

With regard to the peasantry, the whole of East Georgia and a whole number of other provinces of the Republic were quite undisturbed and only a few bandit-like assaults by the detachment of Tscholokashvili gave evidence as to the events which were proceeding. It might be mentioned by the way, that this Tscholokashvili did not succeed in rallying a group of more than 15 men and the rumors he spread abroad regarding an army of 20,000 insurgents, proved, as was to be expected, mere empty talk. In West Georgia the mass of the peasants likewise refrained from taking part in the revolt.

It must be pointed out that everywhere where the mensheviki temporarily gained the upper hand they immediately restored the land to the landowners and transferred the municipal and state property back into private hands. All this served to expose to the peasantry the true features of the leaders of the revolt. The peasants could not help seeing that the movement was led exclusively by nobles, landowners and generals.

The red army of Georgia has shown that it is thoroly worthy of the designation of a revolutionary red army.

The fundamental importance of the declaration of the "Committee for the Independence of Georgia" consists in the fact that the mensheviki have admitted their complete bankruptcy and the loss of every particle of influence among the broad circles of the workers and peasant population of the country. As regards the remaining sections of the republic, the intellectuals and the petty bourgeoisie of Georgia, contrary to the expectations of the leaders of the revolt, have remained loyal. In addition to this we have in our possession, declarations by professors, teachers and physicians, which strongly condemn this adventure of the menshevik, as it threatens the economic and cultural prosperity of Georgia with very harmful results.

The revolt has now been finally crushed and the menshevik, who have taken to the mountains, are handing over their arms and delivering up the prisoners they made during the attacks of the bandits. By these acts they wish to some extent to atone for their serious crime against the workers of Georgia.

A Correction

In a previous article, THE SHOP NUCLEUS AND THE BRANCH, I said, "There shall be representatives of the shop nucleus on the branch (old style—territorial) executive committee and vice versa. This is necessary for working purposes, even tho the shop nucleus members are already attached to various branches. . . . In order to influence the work in the territorial branch. . ."

Rather, this should read, "Wherever possible, there shall be representatives etc. . ." With the existence of both Shop Nuclei and territorial branches, it will not be possible at all times, because of particular conditions, to arrange for mutual representation between nuclei and branches, especially so when a shop nucleus is composed of very many former branch members. When the Shop Nuclei Branch is in existence, that problem, however, is solved. Meanwhile, matters will have to be adjusted on the basis of the special conditions. This should also apply to the point, "The shop nucleus executive meets regularly with the territorial branch executive committee."

SPOLANSKY EXPOSES OWN PLOTS

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

IF Calvin Coolidge fails to land in the White House for the next four years, vaudeville may be treated to a long-wished-for novelty in the form of silence. Al Jolson, the noted black face comedian, with a troupe of fun-makers visited the White House, to shake hands with the president and advise him that the country was behind him. They did not say how far, but that what can you expect from comedians?

• • • •

AL and his merry companions were paid to do this by the republican national committee, so there is no hard feeling. It was the funniest delegation that visited the president since T. V. O'Connor led his labor fakers into the royal presence on Labor Day. Al Jolson is funny, but the funniest joke he ever cracked has nothing on Coolidge.

• • • •

The Chicago Tribune is again waging war on Soviet Russia from Vienna and Riga. The Tribune general at Trebisond was obliged to surrender that position owing to a strategic Turkish move in the rear. He is now advancing toward the Mediterranean Sea. It is believed that the positions at Riga and Vienna will hold out indefinitely unless the Tribune generals become infected with the scurvy that is spreading rapidly among the Czarist counter-revolutionists.

• • • •

THE Tribune gloats over the fabricated reports of burning oil wells, wrecked railroads, and murdered Soviet officials. But somehow or other Russia emerges stronger than ever from every onslaught, while her enemies become fewer and more disreputable. Even imperialistic France the most brazen enemy of the Soviet government is now obliged to begin negotiations with Moscow. The Tribune will not make peace with Russia until it first bends the knee to the American working class. But it will be a different Tribune then.

• • • •

J. P. MORGAN is in Paris, looking over that part of his kingdom. His French soldiers are closely guarding his royal person. If any untoward incident should occur during the royal visit the great man might revenge himself on the French government for their carelessness, by hammering down the French franc. Morgan is busy getting the Dawes Plan to work. The only elements opposing it are the Communists.

WE are indebted to T. V. O'Connor, former president of the International Longshoremen's Union, for the startling information that Soviet Russia sent barrels of gold rubbles to the LaFollette treasury via Mexico. We assure T. V. that if such is the case there will be a noticeable strain in the hitherto friendly relations existing between The DAILY WORKER and the Soviet Government. It was unkind of T. V. not to advise us of the coming of the treasurer. Had we known of it in time we could have taken steps to intercept it.

THE Philadelphia Public Ledger, gives the front page to this rubbish of O'Connor's. The notorious faker is quite well aware that the Communists who control the Russian government know LaFollette to be a reactionary, tho not as ignorant as T. V. O'Connor secured his present position as president of the United States Shipping Board, by being an accomplished traitor. He expects to

TOLEDO LABOR GIVES FOSTER BIG WELCOME

LaFollette's Meeting Is Poor in Comparison

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

TOLEDO, O., (By Mail.)—William Z. Foster, presidential candidate of the Workers Party, addressed an audience here many times the size of that accorded Oswald Garrison Villard, who spoke here recently in support of LaFollette.

Foster's meeting was held at the Labor Temple, the same hall in which Villard spoke.

Workers Hear Foster.

However, there was a remarkable diference in the two audiences, not alone in size but in the makeup. Foster's audience was distinctly working class, scores of aggressive rank and file trade unionists were present and loudly applauded his speech. A large collection was taken up and much literature was sold.

Desperate efforts have been made by some of the local labor fakers to arouse the rank and file to the point of supporting LaFollette. The success of the Foster meeting in view of the fact that these same fakers have vilified Foster, because of his fight for amalgamation of the craft unions, has had a very dampening effect upon the pay roll boys and their local LaFollette movement.

Plan New Activities.

The outstanding feature of the Foster meeting was the fact that it attracted so many local reds who for some years have held aloof from all revolutionary activities. Many of them became so enthusiastic that they said: "The time has come to get into the revolutionary harness again."

Toledo Workers Party is enthused over the success of the Foster meeting and are planning new activities with an assurance that in this old time home of the reds Communism will finally prevail. Foster's clear cut enunciation of the Communist program was a complete answer to the LaFollette liberals and pussyfooters. Foster's answer to the dictatorship of Wall street, was the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Good Gathering in Cleveland.

By J. A. HAMILTON.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 19.—The Foster meeting in the Engineers' Auditorium here was the most successful held by the Workers Party in this city in many months. The reputation of Foster, coupled with the extensive advertising brought out hundreds of workers to hear the message of Communism.

The LaFollette sentiment is strong in Cleveland, not only among the workers, but as might be expected among the business and professional classes as well. A straw vote taken in the down town clubs showed LaFollette to have a very high percentage compared with Coolidge. Hence the capitalistic press, in reporting Foster's speech, were greatly impressed with his exposure of LaFollette, and quoted him as saying that "LaFollette is no more the friend of the

A RED WEEK WIRE FROM NEW YORK

NEW YORK CITY has crossed the line in a hot spurt for RED WEEK. An advance order for ONE THOUSAND UNITS of campaign literature reached the national office by wire this morning.

ONE THOUSAND LITERATURE UNITS MEANS that to date one thousand party members in New York have each contributed fifty cents for their 137 piece literature unit, which each one of them will distribute during Red Week, Oct. 26 to Nov. 2.

ONE THOUSAND LITERATURE UNITS MEANS that 137,000 pieces of campaign literature will go forward to New York City alone—leaflets, pamphlets, stickers, DAILY WORKERS—and that at least 137,000 additional workers in New York City will get the Communist message before election day.

New York City's drive for the participation of every member for a Red Week literature distribution can be duplicated everywhere.

EVERY party branch CAN secure the co-operation of its members in this task. Decide, then DO—for ACTIVITY must constitute the greater part of the make-up of every Communist.

JOBLESS COAL MINERS PAYING $100 FOR JOBS

Charge Mine and Union Officials Divide Graft

(Special to the Daily Worker)

W. FRANKFORT, Ill., Oct. 19.—As much as $100 is being paid for jobs by miners at Orient Mine No. 2, near here.

Grafting mine officials—and it is believed that some of the union officials are dividing the loot—taking advantage of unemployment, are forcing ignorant workers to buy jobs by the simple process of hiring no men at the mine.

Many Hunt for Work.

Every morning from 100 to 150 men "rustle" Orient, No. 2, but no one is ever put to work unless he shows up with an order signed by the mine manager in Breton.

One man has already confessed to some of the active union men that he paid $100 for his job and it is known that others have done the same.

Miners who speak little English are the ones who are victimized and if they complain they are threatened with the vengeance of the Klan, to which most of the mine officials belong.

Careful to Hide Guilt.

The militants here are conducting a rigid investigation and the miners are aroused but absolute proof is difficult to secure as the transactions are carefully handled.

Due to this condition and other reasons the Ku Klux Klan is rapidly losing out in this district. A week ago, Glenn Young and a hundred klansmen had planned an invasion of Orient.. The Orient police chief—a member of the miners' union,—mobilized 200 miners and planned to meet Young and his forces at the edge of town and annihilate them. The invasion never came off.

In West Frankfort it is common talk that 3,000 workers have pledged and armed themselves to wipe out the Klan forces if they attempt to carry out any such terrorist campaign as they did in Zeigler and Herrin.

GOOD MEETINGS FOR DUNNE IN SOUTH ILLINOIS

Candidate for Governor in Mine Fields

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WEST FRANKFORT, Illinois, Oct. 19.—Two successful Workers Party campaign meetings for William F. Dunne, its candidate for governor, have been held here and in Christopher.

Dunne spoke here from the bandstand in the public square to a crowd of over 300 people who applauded vigorously his explanation of the revolutionary program of the Workers Party. A collection of $20 was taken.

Want Hear Democrat.

After Dunne had finished speaking, some democrat candidates tried to take advantage of the crowd gathered to hear the Workers Party speaker, but in five minutes it had dwindled to less than fifty persons.

The party members here have distributed 2000 DAILY WORKERS and covered the city with the campaign literature under the direction of Comrade E. B. Hewlett, Workers Party candidate for congressman.

Speaks at Christopher.

In Christopher Dunne's meeting was held in the opera house. The audience applauded when he reminded the Ku Klux Klan that Morgan, a Jewish financier, was the real owner of the American government and responsible for America's entrance into the war.

"The Workers Party," said Dunne, "recognizes no national and racial lines and I cite this fact simply to show the incorrectness into which these 100 per cent patriots are led when they attack those who expose the evils of American capitalism."

The Christopher audience donated $20 to the Workers Party campaign.

Other Dunne speaking dates are:

Monday, Oct. 20, Belleville, Veiles' Hall.

Tuesday, Oct. 21, Collinsville, City Hall.

Wednesday, Oct. 22, Springfield.

Paterson Strikers To Hear Communist Speakers Tonight

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 19.—The Workers Party will hold a alrge mass meeting for its candidates in this election. The meeting in Paterson will be held at Helvetia Hall, 156 Van Houten street, at 8 p. m., and the main speakers of the evening will be Rudolph Volgraff, candidate of the Workers Party for U. S. senator from New Jersey, and Harry M. Winitsky, candidate for congress on the Workers Party ticket in New York City. In addition there will be other prominent speakers and the committee in charge expects a very successful meeting of Paterson workers anxious to hear the message of Communism from the candidates of the Woskers Party in this election.

FARRINGTON IS ACCUSTOMED TO DISAVOW ACTS

Retracted His Charges Against T. L. Lewis

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Seven.)

When Frank Farrington was confronted with the proof of having accepted money from Colonel Frank L. Smith, democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, he at first denied the charge but finally admitted having received one thousand dollars. But like the republican party campaign fund, it is not likely that all Farrington's receipts from the sale of the miners' votes get into the record. He does not do that kind of bookkeeping.

Farrington is not the kind of a man to be bothered over the necessity of making a change of front. He swallowed his words on the Howat case and again in his controversy with John L. Lewis over the Lester mine.

There are two interesting documents on record showing the unreliability of Farrington's word and proving conclusively that he will eat crow when driven into a corner. This bully who expels honest men from the union, who hounds the radicals and joins with the bosses in blacklisting them; who hires pimps and thugs to beat up rank and file delegates crawls on his belly before those who have it in their power to punish him.

Ate His Own Words

He did this in his controversy with T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers in 1910. T. L. Lewis was no better or no worse than his namesake who rules the International union today. He is now a non-union

CANTON "REDS" HOLD "TOP" MITT IN CIVIL WAR

CANTON, Oct. 19.—Despite efforts of the merchants and their allies to retrieve the losses received in the heavy fighting which lasted for two days in the streets of Canton, their efforts have been unavailing.

The defeat of the fascisti has increased the morale of the workers considerably and they are ambitious to go on the warpath against the enemy.

It is now freely admitted by even some enemies of Sun Yat Sen that he has tolerated extreme provocation from the merchants backed by the British government.

Fear of Russia and to a certain degree Japan is the only hindrance to the landing of British and American troops here.

U. S. SECRET SERVICE SLEUTH UNRAVELLED BY DAYLIGHT HIS CONSPIRACIES PLANNED IN DARK

By MANUEL GOMEZ

How Jake Spolansky, his brother, his brother-in-law and a couple of rank outsiders, got together night after night in Gary, Ind., some five years ago to plot death and destruction, and then met again in the morning as detectives to work out some satisfactory solution of the self-same mysterious, baffling and decidedly anarchistic plots, is a story that would make those who paid the salaries of the Spolansky family tear their hair in rather ridiculous rage.

"The Knights of the Red Star" was the flamboyant name given by the Spolanskys to their dread organization—a name which could only have been conceived by someone whose familiarity with the literature of the revolutionary working class movement was confined to paper-covered novels of the type of "Life Among the Nihilists" or "The Terrible Gas House Conspiracy."

One might have thought that Jake Spolansky would be at least discreet about "The Knights of the Red Star" and would refrain from ever mentioning it again.

Can't Keep It Down.

But he has contracted to write a certain number of "anti-red" stories for the Chicago Daily News, and his imagination seems to be somewhat limited; so we have this discredited, stupendously silly "organization" played up afresh in the form of a "red exposure."

Spolansky's brain may be absent but his nerve is still with him. He treats the little group as if it were still in existence.

"One of the organizations most flagrant in its contempt for United States law," he coolly informs us, "goes under the name of 'The Knights of the Red Star.' It has a large group membership located in Gary. To this group have been traced many pieces of literature, advocating the death of public officials and signed 'The Group of Avengers.' This anarchist society, which has branches in most of the large cities of the United States," he goes on to say, "is ruled by a committee in Boston, Mass., consisting of six persons, one of whom is a woman. . . and any ruling of this body is looked upon as final by anarchists thruout the country."

He Uses Imagination.

The writer has had some experiences with anarchists in the labor movement, and has yet to find a single one of them who accepted any ruling as final! I can't help wishing, in spite of myself, that the real, live, flesh-and-blood anarchists were, at least in some respects, a little like the anarchists of Spolansky's fiction. Then perhaps Communists might not find it so impossible to work with them.

Spolansky is certainly drawing upon his imagination when he refers to the many branches of the "knights" covering the country like a network.

As a matter of fact there was only one small group. It was organized in Gary during the great steel strike of 1919, in which many thousands of steel workers, under the leadership of William Z. Foster, struggled bravely against overwhelming odds against the forces of the steel trust. Undoubtedly, the chief purpose of the group was to provide an excuse for wholesale persecution of strikers, with a view to breaking the strike.

The "Knights of the Red Star" was organized by a stool pigeon who went by the name of Asotov. When not busy among the Gary steel workers, he had private offices at 5 S. Wabash

CAL'S FRIENDS RAISING BIG SLUSH FUND

Big Business Ready to Buy Election

Tho Calvin Coolidge, the strike-breaker president of the United States, is not noted for its fluency of speech he does a lot of political thinking. His silence in this campaign is literally golden, according to reports of big slush funds gathered by bankers and manufacturers to keep the silent automaton in the White House for the next four years.

Cal is not talking in this campaign but a ten million dollar slush fund can do a lot of speech making.

The American capitalists feel that they are crossing a stream and don't want to change mounts. The old and reliable elephant looks better to them than either the descrepit donkey who is not able to raise the price of oats, or the hydra-headed freak of nature which the LaFollette conglomeration rides on.

Bankers, manufacturers and big capitalists in general have decided to raise a fund that will make Harding, Jake Hamon and Jess Smith raise hell with envy in their summer home on the Styx. Ten million dollars would look big even in the days immediately after the war. And the sum may be between twelve and fifteen millions.

Big Plutes Involved.

The biggest leaders in the financial and industrial world will be called before the Borah slush fund investigating committee to tell the why, what and wherefore of the millions they are raising to substitute for Silent Cal's lack of vocal activity. Among those present at the notable society event will be:

Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin locomotive works, the

ITALIAN COMMUNISTS DEMAND THAT SACCO AND VANZETTI BE SET FREE

"Demand freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti" was the ringing note at the convention of the Italian Federation of the Workers (Communist) Party at the Emmet Memorial Hall to the 56 delegates representing many industrial centers of the county. "Condemn Judge Thayer for denying a new trial to Sacco and Vanzetti and initiate a campaign for a United Front for the release of these two workers and all political prisoners."

C. E. Ruthenberg, representing the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, addressed the convention. He gave a report of the political activity of the party and urged the necessity of greater discipline of the Italian press and co-operation of the Italian federation with the central committee of the party.

In complimenting the federation on its achievements in one year, he said that at the last June, 1923, convention when the federation only boasted three or four hundred members he was skeptical about the possibility of their maintaining a daily newspaper. To maintain a powerful daily like "Il Lavoratore," to increase their membership in such great proportions, representing the workers in important industries like the anthracite coal mines, the shoe industry of Massachusetts and the needle trades of New York City and Rochester is indeed an achievement and the party is very proud of the Italian comrades. He said that that proved the important role the Italian federation would play in America. The field for work is large and the Italian comrades are going at it in the correct spirit.

The convention concurred in the report of Comrade Ruthenberg pledging its entire support to the Communist program and closer contact and co-operation with the central executive committee of the party.

EVERY militant worker is becoming interested in the "Build the DAILY WORKER" campaign now going on. It is the constructive kind of work that builds up the strength of our party, of the revolutionary movement, and of the power of Labor generally.

All the live-wires among the workers will give their active support to this campaign. By all means every militant should become a member of the "DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union"—that live section of constructive militants who are making stronger their one great newspaper that never lets up in the fight for the workers' cause.

You do the labor movement a real service when you send in your sub—and that of your shopmate—to the DAILY WORKER. And you also show that you are one of the dynamic factors in the making of our working-class history.

THIRD ROUND IN M'ANDREW WAR WITH TEACHERS

Expect Showdown at Tuesday Meeting

Tuesday afternoon, at four o'clock, the gong will ring for the third round in the bitter fight between the Chicago Teachers' Federation and the Superintendent of the Board of Education, William McAndrew.

This will take place in the Board of Education building at 550 S. Clark street.

The board will invite Miss Margaret Haley, of the Teacher's Federation, for the third time to come before the administration committee to present the teachers' side on the subject of secret markings. And it will invite for the third time McAndrew to be present and present his reasons for the stand he is taking.

Expect Acid Test.

At the last two meetings, McAndrew flatly refused to be present. And it does not seem very likely that he will attend the third time in view of his repeated statement that he would not attend "even if the meetings were held all winter."

Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, when asked if the superintendent will attend tomorrow's meeting said, "I will personally ask the superintendent to attend and the third meeting will be the acid test."

Mrs. Hefferan's position in this secret markings battle resembles very much her stand on teachers' councils which was so thoroly praised by the "Journal." In that fight she presumably took a stand to make McAndrew do the "fair thing," and then at the last minute went completely over to McAndrew's position. It is more than a guess that history will repeat itself in spite of her avowal for "fair play" at tomorrow's meeting.

Teachers Ready for Long Fight.

From McAndrew's past actions in enforcing his iron rule over the heads of the Teachers' Federation it is not at all likely that he will surrender in this latest attack on the teachers.

The board sustained him in the fight on councils and in every other recommendation he has made. It can hardly be expected that the board will carry this fight to a finish with McAndrew in spite of the little flurry aroused in their midst by a few naive members of the board who look for justice in a fight between boss and employe.

Many teachers have attended the last meetings at which McAndrew failed to put in an appearance. Many teachers will attend this meeting. But that they are not going there with any illusions as to what the board will do is certain from their only too recent experience in their defeat in the fight on teachers' councils.

Chicago Federation Rejects Resolutions to A. F. of L. Meet

Resolutions calling for a campaign for organizing the unorganized workers, for investigating the question of unemployment and for condemning the Ku Klux Klan activities as detrimental to organized labor were tabled at the Sunday meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Arne Swabeck, delegate from Painters' Local No. 194, Andrew Overgaard, Machinists' Lodge No. 390, and J. W. Johnstone, Painters' Local No. 147, urged that resolutions covering them be ordered to be sent to the American Federation of Labor for its 44th convention to be held next month at El Paso, Texas. Secretary Nockels headed the drive against these resolutions.

Another resolution, calling upon the A. F. of L. to organize a series of mass meetings thruout the country condemning the Ku Klux Klan, introduced by the same delegates after causing a little skirmish, finally met with a call for division of votes and was tabled with 23 against and 94 in favor of tabling.

A third motion recommending to the A. F. of L. convention a resolution denouncing the imperialist tendencies of the United States capitalists was entirely ignored. It was also tabled. Swaback, Overgaard and Johnstone spoke for their resolution, urging the seriousness of these questions and the need for Chicago labor to take a definite stand on these important matters.

"NOT a single representative in the United States senate represents the working people" declared Senator Frazier of North Dakota. Who does Frazier represent in the name of 1776? Surely he cannot represent the cursed "predatory interests." Perhaps Frazier is right. On second thought we leave out the "perhaps." He is right. And the same goes for the house of representatives, tho the beefy blatherskite Berger would at least claim to represent the "common people" who ever the devil they are.

CAPITALIST party labels never never meant less than they do today. Republicans and democrats change their political affiliations as often, if not more frequently than they change their shirts. The Chicago Daily News, puts on the official gas mask when discussing Len Small. So does the DAILY WORKER but for a different reason. Small is not content with robbing the workers. He is an all-round artist. The long fingered governor is bringing the capitalist system into bad odor. Hence the nasal armor.

THE Communists point out the rottenness of the capitalist system and continually tell the workers that they have the power and the ability to clean the political and social atmosphere by dropping the darned thing into the historical abyss. And they will do that little thing some day. The republicans who hold that there should be honor among thieves are against Small and those who hold that a thief should not be bothered with scruples of any sort are for him. The workers who understand what is back of the quarrel between the thieves, are supporting William F. Dunne, the Communist candidate for governor and the only candidate who represents the interests of the working class.

THE Federated Press notes with subdued alarm deviations in the direction of reaction in that muchtouted organ of Christian liberalism, the Christian Science Monitor. During the war the Monitor was one of the most rabid militarist sheets in America. It did every thing that the most exacting war monger desired with the exception of publishing the casualty list. Only when important persons like the Emperor of Austria died did it depart from this rule.

WHY Christian Science Monitor is opposed to war beggars the imagination. It believes there is no such thing as death. The killing of human beings being the most distressing feature of war, if such a thing as death is only a trick of the imagination, wars could be as diverting and much safer than polo playing. The Monitor is a staunch defender of capitalism. Any paper that defends capitalism cannot be other than reactionary.

avenue, where he described himself as a "social worker."

"Azotov" and Jake Spolansky were friends, and Jake's brother was a charter member of Azotov's little gang of "avengers." Co-operating from time to time was Spolansky's brother-in-law, Margolies, who had come on from Seattle with a fake I. W. W. card in his pocket and had established himself as a stool pigeon, spying on the local Communist movement.

His Memory Changes.

During deportation proceedings in Gary, Spolansky denied knowing "Azotov," but later, in Chicago, he admitted it.

The "Knights of the Red Star" were in existence less than a week. As soon as Gary Communists got wind of the organization, they pulled out the few honest workers who had been deceived into joining it, thus leaving it nothing but a body of detectives.

For a long time, especially during the period of the "red raids," all sorts of wild crimes were attributed by the police to the non-existent "Knights of the Red Star." Threatening letters were received by prominent government officials. Bombs were discovered in corridors and under front porches. Always there was a big hullabaloo, with scores of public and private detectives hired to drag out the villians —but no "member" of the death-dealing "Knights of the Red Star" was ever discovered by the eager pursuers.

Fraud Put Over Party.

One of the crudest incidents came in connection with the alleged attempt on the life of Maclay Hoyne, then state's attorney of Illinois, and now accused of blackmail by a poor ex-final lawyer. Hoyne was at that time in charge of the trials of a large group of "reds" consisting of 41 members of the Communist-Labor Party and 85 members of the Communist Party, who had been arrested in the brutal Palmer raids.

According to Chicago newspapers an attempt was made upon the life of Hoyne by a would-be assassin, who fired a shot thru the window of Hoyne home. The "Knights of the Red Star" was first declared to be responsible, and then an attempt was made to frame up Alfred Wagenknecht, now an active member of the Workers Party and at that time executive secretary of the Communist-Labor Party.

It was declared that on May 25, 1920, Hoyne had received a threatening letter, signed by Comrade Wagenknecht. The make-up of the letter was ridiculous. Wagenknecht no doubt has his faults, but the spelling and general misuse of English displayed in this letter would not be attributed to him even by his worst enemies in the radical movement. Following is a copy:

"New York—May 21, 192—Mr. State's Attorney Hoyne and dirty dog Henry Berger; and Barnhardt and Mike Flanegan of the Thiel agency —We want you all to know that you all have been found guilty by our committee; of conspiring against 200 men and women and therefore I have been instructed to write to you and let you know that you will be shot at the first opportunity we get. We mean all of you; especially Flannegan, the dirty crook dictitive; this is our second letter to you—relize the men or you will be shot soon. We have spies as well as you got and we know what you are planning as well as you know what we are planning.

"You can sat goodby to all your friends if don't relioe these men in ten days; we know that the bankers including the prisident of the first national bank; that we will put him in hell just as well as not. We may meet him some this days and make him a surprise of something and the other bankers too.

"By order of the national executive board:

"Baker, Lindgrand and Bilan.

"A. Wagenknecht, executive secretary.

"This is you last notice."

Detectives Wrote Letters.

The Labor Defense Council has a copy of this letter on file, as well as a number of similar letters written by detectives and purporting to come from radicals. We have reason to believe that most, if not all, of them were written by Mike Flanagan, of the Thiel Detective Service Co., the same Mike who did such heroic work in putting over the Illinois criminal syndicalist law.

In a future issue of the DAILY WORKER, I shall give some other instances of Mike's frame-ups, with which the adventures of Jake Spolansky are interwined. Buy the DAILY WORKER, and read of the adventures of Mike and Jake, both honorary members of the order of "The Knights of the Red Star"!

FRANCE FORCED TO RECOGNIZE SOVIET POWER

Will Request Moscow to Open Parleys

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The committee appointed by Premier Herriot to find a formula for the recognition of Soviet Russia by France has finished its labors and submitted its report to the premier.

France will follow the British precedent in first granting the Soviet government de jure recognition, before proceeding to discuss the many differences that exist between the two countries.

Soviet's Most Bitter Foe.

In view of the fact that France, during the regime of Poincare was Soviet Russia's bitter foe, the action of the French government is particularly gratifying to Moscow. The Communist government does not see in the new policy a relenting of hostility to the workers' republic on the part of the French capitalists, but rather to a recognition of the strength of the Soviet government and the corresponding decline of capitalist power.

Diplomatic Language.

The Herriot committe found the following formula: "The French government, rembering the long friendly relations always maintained with the Russian nation, is disposed to recognize the Soviet government as a government of all territories which accept its authority, and in consequence the French government is ready to engage them in conversations for a settlement of differences existing between the two countries in a manner to safeguard the interests of French citizens."

The telegram containing this formula will be sent to Moscow early next week. It will also contain an invitation to Russia to open negotiations. The first meetings are scheduled to take place in Paris.

man who boasted that he "didn't give a damn for the law except when it serves my interests."

Edward T. Stotesbury, banker and coal mine owner, head of the bankers' group of Coolidge slush fund raisers. His son-in-law was mixed up in the famous "Dot King Murder." By the way, the investigation into the case was scandalously squelched after it was discovered that the Stotesbury son-in-law had the girl on his payroll at the rate of one thousand dollars per visit. "Dot" was a prominent and successful member of the 400 among the demi-monde.

Manufacturer of Yarns.

Joseph R. Grundy, not the husband of the universal Mrs. Grundy, but a yarn manufacturer of Bristol, Pa. He will be expected to tell an amazing yarn on the witness stand. He was charged by the G. O. P. campaign committee with the task of raising $300,000 among the manufacturers of his state who profited by the tariff on woolens.

Nathan T. Folwell, treasurer of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia.

George W. Simmons, vice-president of the Mechanics' and Metals' National Bank of New York.

William V. Hodges, treasurer, Republican National Committee.

W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Another "Yarn" Manufacturer.

T. V. O'Connor, former labor leader (and a darned crooked one-at that—Ed.) and now chairman of the United States Shipping Board. He will be asked to show cause why he should not be classed as a common liar for his statement that LaFollette is financed by Russian money via Mexico. Unless he does so the Soviet government may sue him for libel.

Theodore Gary and John T. Kennedy, both Kansas business men and others of less prominence will be called as witnesses.

Good Campaign Stunt.

While the LaFollette managers do not consider it criminal to raise large campaign funds, they see an opportunity to get the edge on the campaign publicity by placing the G. O. P. on the defensive. The services of Frank P. Walsh, an expert in this kind of work, have been secured by the LaFollette management and his opening promises many headlines and much smoke, also some fire.

The democrats will also be called on to reveal the source of their campaign contributions, but they are ashamed to take the witness stand. Their insolvency is disgraceful. Nobody is so low that he cares to be seen putting a dime in the democratic hat.

It seems that Borah is doing the same service for LaFollette in this investigation that the Republican Brookhart did for Wheeler in the Daugherty quiz.

Capitalism Preaches the Doctrine of Submission to Chicago's Negro Workers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the whole Negro press warns the Negro workers against the Communists. This press of the Negro workers, like the capitalist press of the white workers, fears lest labor will become class conscious and build its own power.

The Negro press is especially hysterical during these presidential campaign days, when Coolidge money is plentiful, and the coffers in the business office can be replenished for the lean months ahead.

In other ways, however, the Negro is being taught humility; urged to accept things as they are; asked to believe that he has already achieved his goal under capitalism.

* * *

It was doctrine of extreme humility that dripped its propaganda all thru the pageant, "Milestones," given by the so-called South Side Community Service, at the Auditorium Theater. This was probably one of the most ambitious efforts of the Negro race, in Chicago, but it was 100 per cent propaganda for the republican party.

The pageant was given in nine episodes. But never during a single moment was the Negro held up as a fighter for his own rights. In Egypt he was the slave of successive dynasties, pictured only as pleading to the kings of the Nile, "Let My People Go." He was shown as idol worshipper, abject in his idolatry. In the "African Village" scene, the slave traders come and kidnap the Negro natives wholesale, more submissive than the helpless animals of the forest. The whole village surrenders to the white slave hunters without a blow. They are equally helpless on the auction block in the American slave market. On the cotton plantations they are made to appear as praying, psalm singing victims of the slave drivers, sending up their wails to the Christian God, instead of bowing before the idol left behind in Africa; both with equal results.

The pageant attempts to deify Abraham Lincoln as the liberator of the black race, raising him to the pedestal of a God. There is not even the taint of an effort to show that chattel slavery was swept away as a result of the clash of economic interests between the growing capitalist class of the North and the feudal landed class of the South.

The complete prostitution of this Negro pageant to the purposes of the white dominant capitalism is best shown when a whole episode is given over to a tribute to Colonel Charles Young, said to be the only Negro to climb to this rank in Wall Street's military machine. The climax comes with the showing of the graves of Negro soldiers on Flanders Field, the black victims of Morgan's war, decorated by Negro mothers, with Negro children waving American flags and singing "America," half the audience sitting, half standing.

Toward the end of the pageant a belated effort is made to show that the Negro race, in America, has produced some outstanding figures. Among these, however, we find much attention given to a Negro comedian and a Negro business woman. No effort is made to visualize the growing importance of the Negro in industry, nor to give even an inkling of the great problems confronting both the Negro and white workers alike.

Perhaps an insight into the moving forces responsible for this pageant, with its propaganda of Negro submission, may be found in the fact that Mrs. Medill McCormick, wife of one of the most prominent stockholders in the Chicago Tribune and candidate for United States senator in the recent primaries, gave a luncheon recently at the Chicago Women's Club as part of the campaign to put this dope over.

The names of all those present at the luncheon were prominently published in the program. They read like a directory of the wives of "our best bankers and business men."

It is the duty of every thinking Negro to make war upon this kind of poison. The Negro worker, no more than the white worker, can make progress for his class, by bending in submission to the forces that now rule over him. The Negro worker is the victim alike of the alliance between the Negro and white politicians, between Negro and white business men.

Only thru recognizing and fighting for his class interests will the Negro worker move forward. In this campaign, the Negro worker will deliver a blow at his own class interests by allowing himself to be misled by the McCormicks, the Chicago Tribune, and other instruments of republican capitalist misrule.

In this year's presidential campaign the Communists call alike upon white and Negro workers to stand erect and fight their common enemy—the dominant ruling class. Increasing support by Negro workers of the Communist campaign means new blows struck at wage slavery, the successor of chattel slavery, in exploiting the black race.

Every attack of the Negro press, as well as the white press, on the Communist movement, is added proof, if any is needed, that the Communists are the only true spokesmen of the whole working class. All races, all nationalities, all workers most move forward together for the common victory of all labor against capitalism.

workers than the other two capitalistic candidates."

Kept Press Wakes Up.

Of course Foster's advocacy of a Workers' and Farmers' government and the abolition of the capitalist system brought a rise from the press. The "Times" stated, under a head-line "Urges revolution," "Revolution by Communists to gain control of the government and industries of the United States was predicted and advocated by William Z. Foster." This report of course, will have the desired effect of impressing the bourgeois readers of the "Times" with the dreadfulness of Foster and the Communists, even tho it is an incorrect report of the speech. Foster did not predict "revolution by Communists," but revolution by the proletariat, the working class, to which the Communists stand in the position of leaders. Of course, a capitalist news-writer would not be expected to see the distinction or to make it if he did realize it, but no Communist would ignore this very vital point.

Negro Hits Coolidge Rule.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Prof. Kelly Miller, world-famous mathemtician and member of the faculty of Howard university here, in a circular letter to other leaders of the Negro race in America, pronounces the record of the Harding-Coolidge administration toward the Negroes one of broken pledges and indifference.

ORGANIZED LABOR IN INDIANAPOLIS AIDS MC NAMARA

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 19.—The Central Labor union of Indianapolis, has voted to defend John McNamara, secretary and business agent for the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' union, in jail here on a charge of having attempted to destroy the million-dollar building owned by the Elks club.

At the same time, Sheriff George Snider and Chief of Police Hermann Rikhoff announce that they have their forces ready to double the guard if the need arises.

The controversy is assuming the nature of a labor war. On the one side are the unions from workers, backed by the organized labor bodies of Indianapolis. On the other are the open shop builders and the "law enforcement" officials.

The feeling of the labor bodies on the subject of the McNamara arrest runs high, partly because it is generally understood that McNamara is being persecuted, and partly because the bail demanded to release McNamara from jail has been placed at $20,000—a sum which the workers have found themselves unable to raise.

A. W. Lyday, secretary of the central labor union and representative of the labor bodies in the controversy, says that he believes the persecution of McNamara threatens the destruction of all union principles.

Even Prosecuting Attorney William H. Remy has explained the indictments on which the arrest was made as a piece of legal strategy devised by Attorney-General Lesh. He admitted that it would be hard to prove that McNamara was the man who did the damage to the Elks building.

LaFollette Tries to Get Crowd with the "Labor Party" Label

(Special to the Daily Worker)

BENTLEYVILLE, Pa., Oct. 19.—At least two hundred miners crowded into the Miners' Hall here to listen to a Communist address delivered by Jay Lovestone.

In a nearby hall there was being held another meeting addressed by a LaFollette agent. Despite the fact that this meeting was held under the spurious name of the labor party, there were only a handful present. The LaFollette forces boasted of an attendance of at most sixty. Some of the miners left the LaFollette meeting before it was over and came to the Communist gathering in the Miners' Hall. One of these workers showed his disgust with the so-called progressive labor party outfit by donating five dollars to the Communist campaign fund.

"There are today more than four hundred thousand workers walking the streets, out of work in the proudest, richest city of the United States—New York. The rest are working, now working at most only three days a week. Twenty out of every hundred steel workers employed a year ago are now jobless. One out of every four farmers in the fifteen wheat and corn states are virtually bankrupt.

"This was the picture of the present economic situation given by Lovestone. In analyzing the role of the government and the various political parties, Lovestone said: "We have today a whole zoo, a full mangerie of bosses' parties. We have the elephant republicans, the donkey democrats and the bobcat progressives. But we have only one working class party in the field—the party of the Communists, the Workers Party of America, which is as frank in its hatred of the capitalist class and its rule as the bosses are in their opposition to the establishment of a workers' and farmers' republic in the United States."

Newspaper Drivers Take Up Question of Strike to Win Demands

Strike by all union newspaper drivers of Chicago against every paper in the city, with the single exception of the DAILY WORKER, was being considered yesterday by the local union at its meeting at Chauffeurs' Hall, 220 S. Ashland avenue.

The strikers demand pay of $45 a week, the six-day week and the eight-hour day, and a two weeks' vacation every year with full pay. The drivers at present get only $36 a week, and are forced to work nine hours a day, receiving no vacation whatever.

Many of the newspapers have offered a scale of $40 a week for six days and $42 a week for seven days. The union is determined at the start to refuse anything less than their demands.

The capitalist newspapers of the city, fearing that their low rate of payment would bring a strike shortly, have organized a group of over 300 scabs, the union men claim. The local is making plans to deal with these scabs.

CONVENTION OF I. W. W. TAKES UP FIGHT IN COURT

Plans to Take Place of Both Factions in Fight

By KARL REEVE

The temporary administration elected to displace all officials of both factions of the I. W. W. controversy, will represent the entire I. W. W. in Judge Dennis E. Sullivan's court room at city hall this morning, by order of the convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, now meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall.

Asked to lift the injunction, to recognize the convention, and surrender their offices, the Rowan-Bowerman faction refused to do so with the one exception of J. A. Griffith.

Bowermnn, Rowan Defiant.

When informed that they had been suspended from their offices, the "Bowerman-Rowan general executive board" sent a communicaton to the convention, thru the temporary administration, declaring that the G. E. B. set up by Rowan and Bowerman would continue to function and would refuse to surrender their authority. The letter signed by Rowan practically defied the authority of the I. W. W. convention now meeting.

The temporary administration committee, consisting of Ed Fahey, I. U. 310, secretary-treasurer pro tem; Charles Gray, I. U. 110, assistant general secretary-treasurer pro tem, and Leonard Broman, I. U. 120, general organizer, reported that James Rowan, P. D. Ryan, Harry Trotter and Fred Bowerman refused to relinquish funds and books and to endeavor to have the injunction lifted.

The communication from the Rowan group declared the industrial unions must first secure their property now in general headquarters. They declared they would not recognize the convention as long as delegates were seated whose credentials were signed by Doyle and Fisher, and until Doyle, Fisher and Morris turn over to them the offices and headquarters and vacate their official positions.

Griffith Recognizes Convention.

James Griffith, one of the original signers of the injunction petition and member of the Rowan group, and until his suspension by the present convention, chairman of the G. E. B. of the I. W. W., sent a separate statement to the convention. Griffith declared he recognizes the authority of the convention, and will appear before them at any time they request it. "I recognize you as the I. W. W. convention and will appear before you and give a financial statement or other information when you so request," Griffith wrote the convention.

It was learned that as soon as Rowan heard of Griffith's action, he immediately informed Griffith he was no longer a member of the G. E. B., Rowan, as serene as ever, despite the repudiation by the convention of his injunction tactics, is holding meetings of his self-appointed "general executive board of the I. W. W." The two signatures to Rowan's G. E. B. communication to the convention were typewritten, and it is declared by delegates that one of these men is out of town. Those who participated in Rowan's board meeting which Saturday repudiated the convention were Trotter, Bowerman, Rowan and Ryan.

Try to Settle Court of Court.

One of the delegates, terming Rowan as "czar of the lumber woods," moved that these four men be suspended from the I. W. W. pending their trial and the hearing on the lifting of the injunction, but he was ruled out of order by Chairman Welinder. Delegate Joe Jordan urged that the convention go on record as being opposed to the injunction instituted by the Rowan group. "This injunction has put a lock and key on our headquarters," Jordan reclared. "Something the master class has not been able to do for 16 years of the history of our organization. We have been appealing to these so-called 'fellow workers' to come to some agreement with us. They have ignored us and our committees and Monday morning they are going into the master's court with our affairs." The W. W., taking up the matter of the injunction against the I. W. W. in California, the principle of boycott, and the question of factions within the I W. W.

Smith declared that the I. W. W. must formulate a definite policy on non-resistance. "Are we non-resistants or are we hot," he asked, referring to objections of some I. W. W. members to space in his paper favoring the use of force as a weapon against the capitalist class. Smith declared himself committed to the use of force to overthrow the master class and to defend the revolutionary rights of the I. W. W. against attack.

"Is the I. W. W. a revolutionary organization or is it not," asked the editor of Solidarity. "Does the I. W. W. endeavor to overthrow the capitalist system of industry or is its function to run industries after they have been taken over by the workers."

Discuss California Situation.

Smith declared it to be folly to pursue the policy of going into California to fight the injunction against the I. W. W. until a mass movement of the wobblies could be carried out. convention then directed the temporary administration committee to represent the I. W. W. in court and ask for the lifting of the injunction. Meanwhile efforts are still being made by the committee to settle the affair out of court.

The committe was ordered by the convention to take over all property, books, vouchers and funds of the I. W. W. from both factions. The Doyle-Fisher group agreed to co-operate and has gracefully stepped out of office. Their faction seems to hold the balance of power in the convention, and the sentiment is unanimous against the injunction tactics of the Rowanites.

Table Smith's Report.

James Rowan refused, earlier in the day, to sign his name to a notification by the convention that he was removed from office. Rowan is maintaining offices in Room 607-608, 126 North La Salle street.

A report from Verne Smith, editor of Industrial Solidarity, was tabled after it was brot out that charges have been placed against Smith, who is involved in the controversy. Smith's report dealt with fundamental principles for the future action of the I. "We have sent in our best organizers one after the other," he continued, "and we have given them a home in San Quentin penitentiary where they must remain for a long time and do the organization no good."

Smith declared that he is in favor of the principle of boycott when it can be successfully carried out, but that, "I am convinced that it is injurious to the I. W. W. to devote so much space to the boycott of raisins, oranges and other products." Smith said the results were not big, and that the time and building of the organization was in most cases more fundamental and more important work. His report was the only note struck in the convention thus far, dealing with fundamental future principles of action of the I. W. W.

Ed Delaney, secretary of the Los Angeles defense committee resigned after presenting his report. He recommended the reorganization of the defense offices, and declared that printed matter being issued by certain members in bulletins are greatly injuring the organization and doing the men in prison harm.

16th ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE I. W. W. OFFICIALLY REPORTED

BY mutual consent of 26 of the delegates that were assembled in Chicago for the 16th annual convention, it was called to order in the Phoenix Hall, 405 W. Division St., by fellow worker Joe Jordon, in the afternoon of Oct. 13.

The afternoon session was spent in discussing ways and means of affecting a conciliation with the delegates who were not present. At the close of the session a motion had been adpoted by a majority vote to the effect that the convention would convene at the Emmet Memorial Hall on the [illegible] avenue. Fellow worker P. J. Welinder was elected temporary chairman, with L. McCarthy temporary recording secretary.

The second day's session was taken up in electing a credential committee and hearing their report on the delegates present. Five of the delegates were contested during the proceedings, the rest were seated. A short time after the afternoon session convened, four of the five delegates who were not present at the first session arrived and were seated. Fellow worker Snitko of I. U. 440 was unseated.

On Oct. 15, two delegates were unseated, because of having their names affixed to printed matter which the delegates contended involved them in the present controversy. They were fellow workers Caesar Tabid of I. U. 310 and Mike Sapper of the small industrial unions. Another delegate for the small industrial unions who appeared to take fellow worker Sapper's place was also contested, on the grounds that she had no minutes or anything other than a petition to prove her right as a delegate. A delegate from I. U. 520 was also refused a seat in the convention on the same grounds. At the close of the day's session a committee was elected to visit the industrial union headquarters, for the purpose of determining the voting power of the assembled delegates. A prior motion having been carried which had decided the question in this manner. Each I. U. would be allowed voting power on a basis of prorating the dues paid into their industrial union headquarters by the I. U.'s membership for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1923, and ending Oct. 1, 1924.

The committee who had been elected on the above mentioned question reported back to the body on the following morning, their report was accepted and the following votes were allotted each delegate and industrial union: I. U. 110 ninety votes, seven delegates present, each delegate receiving twelve and six-sevenths votes; I. U. 120 with two hundred votes, six delegates present, each to receive thirty-three and one-third votes; I. U. 210 and 220, fifty-six votes, two delegates present, each to receive twenty-eight votes; I. U. 230 ten votes, one delegate present: I. U. 310, eighty-seven votes, four delegates present, each to receive twenty-one votes; I. U. 320, nineteen votes, one delegate present, each receiving six and one-third votes; I. U. 440, fifteen votes, two delegates present, each to get seven and one-half votes; I. U. 510, one hundred and twenty-two votes, two delegates present, each to receive sixty one votes; I. U. 520, thirty votes, no delegate present; I. U. 410, five votes, no delegate present; I. U. 460, sixteen votes, no delegate present; the small industrial union delegate was granted ten votes. A delegate for I. U. 330, who had been duly elected to the I. U. 330 convention, but who was not seated, was seated in the general convention with one vote.

Following the settling of the voting question, fellow worker P. J. Welinder was elected permanent chairman with L. McCarthy [illegible] cording secretary. A conductor and all committees necessary for the convention were elected. The convention was adjourned at noon to allow the different committees time to function. At this morning's session a motion was also carried to take down the entire convention proceedings in verbatim report.

On the fifth day business started in reality. The committees brought in their respective reports and were accepted. A special order of business was declared to deal with matters on the controversy. The afternoon session saw the passing of a motion suspending from office all of the general administration officials. Following is a list of those affected: Tom Doyle, general secretary-treasurer; James Morris, assistant general secretary-treasurer; Joe Fisher, general organizer; J. J. McMurphy, alternate general secretary-treasurer; James Rowan, G. E. B. member from I. U. 120; P. D. Ryan, G. E. B. member from I. U. 310; Fred Bowerman, G. E. B. member from I. U. 440; Harry Trotter, G. E. B. member for I. U. 520; Chas. Gibson, G. E. B. member for I. U. 230; Arthur Linn, G. E. B. member for I. U. 110; Sam Kapon, G. E. B. member for I. U.'s 210 and 220 and J. A. Griffith, alternate general organizer. Suspension of these officials took place at five p. m., Friday, Oct. 17. In their stead a committee was elected from the floor of the convention who are as follows: Ed Fahey, I. U. 310, general secretary-treasurer pro tem; Chas. Gray, I. U. 110, assistant general secretary-treasurer pro tem, and Leonard Broman, I. U. 120, general organizer. The three above named men will act temporarily, until the controversy is settled or other action is taken by the convention, they are to be under instructions from this body.

Morning session of the sixth day was passed in reports of the committees. The resolution committee reported on three resolutions and their recommendations were acted upon. One of the resolutions dealt with the time men coming out of prison should be out before taking any office in the organization. Another also dealt with matters pertaining to prisoners.

In the afternoon session a special order of business was voted on to hear the reports of officials. The secretary of the California branch of the general defense committee reported and was accepted. The report of [illegible] resignation were accepted. The editor of Industrial Solidarity and Industrial Pioneer reported, his report being tabled. Following that came the report of the Finnish monthly magazine, Tie Vaupauteen; it was accepted as progress. Then came the report of the Italian paper, Il Proletario, which was laid over to new business because of its nature.

Near the close of the session the duly elected temporary officials reported and were: James Rowan, P. D. Ryan, Harry Trotter and Fred Bowerman would not recognize this convention.

PATERSON MAYOR'S THREAT TO DEPORT STRIKERS CALLED BUNK

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The threats of Mayor McLean and Police Chief Tracey, of Paterson, to deport allen strikers arrested is called "bunk" by the American Civil Liberties Union. The action of the police, the union charges, is intended as an effort to "intimidate strikers and to break their ranks which have stood solidly for over eight weeks." The Civil Liberties Union will continue its fight for free speech in Paterson.

The Church League for Industrial Democracy, comprised of Episcopal church members, are going to investigate the strike situation, the league announces.

DUNNE SPEAKS ON RUSSIA AS IT IS TODAY

Workers of Milwaukee Hear of Achievements

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 19.—William F. Dunne, Communist candidate for governor, of Illinois, and recently returned from a trip to Russia where he attended the Fifth World Congress of the Comintern, spoke before a large audience on working class activity in Soviet Russia.

His statement that Russian workers and peasants are the absolute masters in government and industry brot great applause from the audience. He gave a word picture of the effect of this condition on the general well being of the communities.

"This fact finds expression in every avenue of working class activity," he said. "There is a feeling of security, of happiness, of confidence in the future that is found in no other country in the world. The working class knows that Russia and everything in it belongs to them. They have accepted the responsibility of rebuilding war shattered industry and the Communist Society for a nation of 150 million people. The Communist party in Russia is based on the working class and cannot exist twenty-four hours without its loyalty and support."

Masses Confident.

In discussing the progress made so far in Russia, Dunne said immense strides have been made in Russian industry since 1921. "The confidence of the Russian masses in their future is perhaps best shown by the fact that the signing of the Anglo-Russian treaty, the most important diplomatic event since the signing of the Armistice, created far more excitement in London than it did in Petrograd or Moscow."

"The Russian workers are greatly interested in American industrial methods. The book that sells most in Russia is the Life of Henry Ford. The Russian workers read it to discover the secret of his industrial success.

Pioneers of New Society.

"A great new proletarian culture is permeating all of Russia. Art, literature, drama, mass sports are brot directly to the workers. There is rising in Russia an entirely new society, the foundation for which was laid from the power of workers and peasants organized in the Soviet and led by the Communist Party."

Comrade Dunne's speech was heartily received by the audience and the concensus of opinion was that the news he brot from Russia was an inspiration to all earnest workers for Communism everywhere.

Ku Klux Klan Is Going on the Rocks Out in California

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 19.—A serious split in the ranks of the Ku Klux Klan in California was revealed here today when secretary of state Frank C. Jordan refused to file articles of incorporation for the secret order presented by James F. DeBorde of Los Angeles, on the grounds that DeBorde and his associates do not represent the real Ku Klux Klan but merely a dissenting faction of the parent organization.

coal operator and one of the most vicious enemies of the union members. But in 1910 he was chief of the organization and as bitter foe of radicalism as John L. Lewis or Farrington are today.

Farrington, it seems made statements reflecting on the character of the international president. It would almost be impossible for Farrington to lie about him, even allowing for his unusual aptitude for prevarication. However Lewis compelled him to recant and the two documents which follow show how little reliance can be placed in Farrington's words.

The T. L. Lewis Letter

The first letter was sent out from the international office in Indianapolis. It is addressed to the members of the United Mine Workers and reads as follows:

"Brothers—Many of you know that I have been the subject of the most vicious attacks by certain members of our organization.

"In Illinois this year, delegates in sub-district conventions have been deceived into adopting resolutions condemning me for some act that I have not committed.

"I have no fault to find with members of the organization for what has been done by delegates in convention, but I believe that when a convention, local union or member condemns another without the evidence or even attempting to secure the evidence it is worse than sending people to jail without a trial or a hearing.

"To condemn without a hearing or trial and without reliable evidence is not in accord with my understanding of the principles of labor unions.

"To the mine workers of the country I desire to say that I defy any member of the organization to produce any evidence or proof that any act of mine will bring discredit on the organization or its members.

"You know that Frank Farrington who was elected International Board Member by the membership of Illinois has made many statements reflecting on me as an individual and as a member and officer of the United Mine Workers of America.

"You will receive with this communication a fac-simile of a letter signed by Frank Farrington. This letter explains and needs no comment from me.

"I invite the most rigid investigation of my official work and personal conduct and am quite willing to submit to the unprejudiced judgement of the mine workers of the country. I ask for no special favors but I believe that I am entitled to justice.

"Yours for the success of the United Mine Workers and the triumph of its principles.

"T. J. Lewis."

Farrington's Retraction.

When this document was sent to the membership, accompanying it was a fac-simile letter of Farrington's retraction of everything he had charged Lewis with. This letter is dated, May 21, 1910, from Indianapolis [illegible]

"To the Members of the International Executive Board:

"As you are aware, the letter written by me on August 26, 1909, contained many statements, reflecting on the honesty and integrity of T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"I take this opportunity of making a complete retraction and withdraw every statement contained in that letter reflecting upon the honesty and integrity of T. L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, for the reason that the statements were based on unreliable information and so far as I know the statements are not true.

"In addition to the above, I made a number of statements in the Belleville, Ill., Sub-District Convention on April 11, 1910, which reflected on T. L. Lewis, International President, and the statements were not true. I have since learned that International President T. L. Lewis is not guilty of the charges I made against him at the Belleville, Sub-District Convention.

"I realize that I have done International President T. L. Lewis an injustice and withdraw and retract the statements made by me at the Belleville Sub-District Convention.

"Frank Farrington."

Admitted Lying

Thus Farrington over his own signature admits that he lied about T. L. Lewis, or else told the truth and later on denied the truth in order to save his pacon from the wrath of the Lewis machine. This conduct is entirely characteristic of Farrington. Where or how he got the reputation of being a "strong man" is difficult to imagine. He is not even an outstanding figure among the labor fakers, but with the aid of money and gunmen he has built up a myth around himself as the republican party has done with little Cal Coolidge.

1913 Farrington decided to settle down and become socially respectable. He married William Green's office manager and took a two month's trip for a honeymoon, charging up the expenses to the Illinois Miners' Union. This luxury of Farrington's cost the miners the tidy sum of $900.00, not including the two month's salary which Farrington drew in addition to the expense. No doubt he showed his bride the orange groves in Alabama, bought with funds the miners are only able to suspect the source of.

Operators' Close Friend

That Farrington was on very friendly terms with the operators can be seen from the clipping from an Indianapolis paper which states that the couple received many gifts. "One was a big mahogany chest of solid silver from Francis S. Peabody, president of the Peabody Coal Company and member of the war industries board at Washington."

It is reported that very close relations exist between this coal-operator Peabody and the president of the Illinois Miners' Union. It is reported that Farrington is even a member of the company, surely the miners cannot expect that a man who is on such good terms with their enemies can fight their battles for them! Farrington, the favored son of the coal operators. Can anybody imagine Duncan McDonald, while he was secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Miners' Union, receiving gifts from the coal operators? Or Alexander Howat of Kansas? Or Jim McLaughlin of Nova Scotia? No indeed. The only gifts those men ever received from the coal operators was free lodging behind the prison bars. Men may be judged by the company they keep. Labor leaders who are in intimate and profitable terms with the employers are not the kind to be trusted with the interests of the workers.

Farrington Mine Owner?

Farrington is charged with being a part owner of the Peabody Coal company. Later on in this series evidence will be produced of a nature to convince even the skeptical that these charges are well founded.

The high-water mark of Farrington's treachery to the Illinois miners came during the socalled "outlaw strike" of 1919.

The history of Farrington's actions during this strike will be told in subsequent articles.

LIBERALS AND TORIES AGREE ON UNITY PACT

Triangular Contests Are Barred

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The election campaign here is in full swing. The liberals and tories have made an agreement whereby triangular contests will be avoided and the full force of the two parties brought to bear against the labor candidates. At the same time the Labor Party executive is attempting to arrive at an agreement with the 14 liberals who voted with them against the conservative motion which brought the dissolution of parliament.

It is quite apparent to everybody that this is a contest between the laborites and the conservatives. The result of the election will eliminate the liberals as a political force of any significance in the country.

Tories Attack Russian Treaty.

The conservatives are using as their main argument the Russian treaty agreed to by MacDonald, one of the pressure of the left wing elements in his party. MacDonald defended the treaty at his Glasgow meeting on the grounds that granting a loan to Russia would revive British industry. The conservatives are opposing the loan to Russia in line with the policy of the Federation of British Industries, the organization of the big industrialists of the country.

Lord Beaverbrook, the Hearst of Britain, is attempting to fix up an agreement with the conservative party whereby Lloyd George will join them. Beaverbrook supported George during the war and helped him in his fight against Asquith, but abandoned him after the war. Now that he has some use for him he has taken him up again, and is attempting to smooth the way for the entry of George into the ranks of the conservatives.

At the recent congress of the labor party the proposition that the Communists would not be allowed to affiliate, that local labor parties were to refuse membership to Communists and were also forbidden to nominate Communist candidates was overwhelmingly defeated. This decision came from the MacDonald clique, and was a step taken to prove to the middle class that the labor ministers are opposed to Communism.

Nominate Many Communists.

In spite of this decision against the Communists, in many localities the local labor parties are nominating Communists as their candidates in the present election. The disgraceful exhibitions of jingoism given by the MacDonald gang has disgusted many of the rank and file of the party. The spectacle of Thomas, colonial secretary warning the "foreigner" against encroaching upon the rights of the British Empire has been received by the local labor parties as an intimation that the leaders of the party are going even further to the defense of British imperialism that they did in the past.

Many of the conservative candidates are using the snobbish exhibition made by the labor ministers in their court dresses, fancy garden parties, and the other trimmings that they treated themselves to as soon as they entered office, as campaign fodder. This disgraceful imperialistic policy pursued by MacDonald while in office has given ammunition into the hands of the capitalist parties to be used against him. And these parties are hypocritical enough to use it even tho there was no difference between the policies pursued by MacDonald and those of the capitalist parties. But the fact that the capitalist parties are able to use the fads and frills indulged in by the petty middle class persons who composed the MacDonald cabinet is cause for shame to the working class of the country.

Hot Contest Predicted.

The united front of the liberals and conservatives against the labor party will result in a hot contest. But it is unlikely that the differences between them can be patched up in such a short time, and particularly when there has been no change in the situation to warrant them combining for the formation of a government. Besides this the combination can only be at the expense of the liberals who are much weaker than the conservatives.

The fact that the labor party is able to secure hundreds more workers for an election than the other parties, and that these workers in the constituencies are possessed of a crusading spirit, gives the labor party a great advantage in the election. It is most likely that the labor party will be returned with a slightly increased majority and will form the next government.

The Communists here declare that another term in office for the MacDonald group would thoroly disillusion the workers regarding any benefit they will gain from these reactionary lin goes in office.

54,800 PIECES OF LITERATURE TO FINNISH PARTY BRANCH AT DETROIT BACKS UP RED WEEK TO THE LIMIT

A larger literature distribution during Red Week than has been undertaken by many city central committees in large cities, larger even than some of our party districts have had, will be carried on by the Finnish branch of Detroit, Mich.

The 400 members of this branch will each receive a unit of 137 pieces of election campaign literature for distribution during the week of Oct. 26 to November 2. The total number of leaflets, pamphlets, stickers and DAILY WORKERS these 400 members will distribute is 54,800.

A check for $200 to pay for the literature reached the national office from the Detroit Finnish branch yesterday.

This is a challenge to other party branches. Not that we expect many branches to do better than a $200 remittance and a complete mobilization of its members for Red Week. But we do expect every party branch to take part in this effort to organize a nation-wide distribution of Communist literature during the last week of the campaign.

The Negro branch in Chicago was the second branch to announce its complete mobilization for Red Week. Its eleven members contributed their quota of $5.50 for eleven literature units.

Eleanor Massey of the Kansas City branch carried out the command to mobilize to the letter. She writes that all members have been mobilized except three, two of whom are not in the city and one must be excused because he had his arm cut off in the packing house he worked in. She ordered ten sets of 137 pieces each. It is against this maiming and slaughtering of workers that we are mobilizing for the distribution of three million pieces of campaign literature during Red Week.

"BIG BIZ" RIGS THE MARKET TO AID COOLIDGE

Claim New Steel Merger Is on the Way

By LAWRENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—From one of the biggest firms on the New York stock exchange comes assurance that a new steel merger is on the way, and that all that now impedes the "expansion and development" of business is the uncertainty as to Coolidge's election.

Stock brokers thruout the nation are put on notice that a depression in the value of industrial stocks is likely until after election. One of the Boston brokers even ventures to say that an effort is to be made to depress stock "in order to impress the country with the necessity" of electing Coolidge on Nov. 4

Expect Coolidge Victory.

Others suggest in bulletins to their clients that there is really no serious danger of Coolidge's defeat, but that until the result of the election is definitely determined prices will go down. The Boston firm which talks as tho a market-rigging deal for political purposes were under preparation, advises its customers to sell one-half of their holdings at once, in order to take advantage of lower prices later.

How far the stock gamblers have been brought together by the big bankers to "do their bit" for their class candidate is not fully disclosed as yet. Their correspondence, however, is all woven about the one central theme—a pained surprise that any secret action of the American people should want to disturb and actually change conditions under which big business is taking more profits every day!

A Word to the Wise.

They caution the investors and brokers in the country at large to be vigilant and active to defeat this disturbing element, and to remember that the rewards of victory are just ahead, in bigger profits, more "conservatism" in the federal government and general settling of all public questions in favor of the big fellows.

FINNISH COMRADES JUST WANTED TO HEAR KRUMBEIN TALK

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Comrade Krumbein was badly worried by creditors. The treasury was exhausted. Funds were needed at once. The finance committee was sending out appeals for money, but it was a moment when money was needed in large amounts.

The Finnish Branch, Brooklyn, had pledged $500, of which they still owed $300. It was decided to have Comrade Krumbein visit the meeting of the branch executive committee.

On the way over, he prepared a nice speech on the necessities of the campaign. When he arrived he was immediately granted the floor, and shown every courtesy. He launched into his subject at once, speaking about seven minutes. It was a critical situation. He felt he must impress his hearers, and delivered what he knew to be the best speech of his life.

As Krumbein finished, the chairman rose, and handed him a check for $300, which had been prepared in advance. Astonished, he exclaimed, "Well, why did you let me speak?"

"We didn't want to interrupt you," said the chairman.

JEWISH COMMUNIST DAILY CALLS ON ITS READERS TO AID IN DRIVE FOR DAILY WORKER SUBSCRIPTIONS

Editorial by SCHACHNA EPSTEIN,

In the Freiheit, Jewish Communist Daily, of Oct. 9.

In the present critical period, we wish to remind our comrades and sympathizers once again of the very important part played by the Communist press. The press is our only means of reaching the broad masses of workers and penetrating the remotest working class centers.

The Communist movement in this country has one English daily—the DAILY WORKER. The quite young the paper has already proven itself to be a fighting, courageous, stimulating newspaper. The DAILY WORKER has in its brief existence already won the love of its readers and aroused fear in its enemies.

The DAILY WORKER is now carrying on a campaign to increase its circulation. The paper constantly seeks to penetrate more and more working class homes. The DAILY WORKER asks for no money, but wants you to help get new readers, new circles of influence.

We call upon comrades and friends to take an energetic part in this campaign of the DAILY WORKER and to help our only English daily increase its army of readers.

KUZBAS PROJECT MAKING HEADWAY SAYS TOM MANN

British Revolutionist Pleased with Outlook

By TOM MANN.

(For The Federated Press.)

Tom Mann, long secretary of the Amalgamated Engineering Union of Great Britain, was on the first Kuzbas provisional committee in 1921. This is an account of his visit this year to the Kuznetzki Basin on the river Tom.)

Traveling in the Chita train on the Trans-Siberian railway we went to Jurga, the nearest station on the main line, about 2,300 miles from Moscow. The sixty-five miles remaining to Kemerovo was done by buggy with horses rather than wait for train next day. My companion and I were astonished at the wonderful luxuriance of the crops ready for harvest on the peasants' farms.

Reaching Kemerovo we were soon in touch with the American section of the colony and facilities were afforded for a detailed inspection of the mines, chemical plant, machine shops, farm, dairy, co-operative society, union offices, etc.

I was most favorably impressed with nearly every department and phase of development. I was down the mine twice, one day going down by the incline or drift, a pretty rough road at that for one who has said goodby to youth as I have. But I was familiar with underground conditions having worked down a coal mine in middle England fifty-five years ago and indulged in amateur coal and metal mine inspection in various parts of the world since then.

Good Working System.

I found it much the easiest when we went down the central shaft, and made direct for the 42 foot seam of coal. I have seen many seams, some less than two feet, but nothing deeper than 14 feet until I saw this at Kemerovo. The estimate is that in the Kuzbas region alone there is more coal than in the whole of Britain. The methods of work at Kemerovo are good. A new shaft is being sunk and schemes are in hand for higher efficiency.

I was very much impressed with the chemical plant. The principal of the chemical department is a fine man, Dr. Mahler, German by birth who has lived most of his life in America and seems to fill his position perfectly. The production of coke is the foundation of the works, and the by-products afford unlimited scope. Much additional machinery is required to admit of all the by-products being obtained but extensions are constantly taking place, and considerable machinery is on order.

The By-products.

Should the Kolchugina mine and electrification schemes work out according to plan, as I believe it will, it is reasonable to expect rapid development of the district. For great success it will be necessary that the peasants shall appreciate the use of fertilizers which the chemical plant will provide. Recent days there was no disposition shown by the peasants to get machinery. Maybe this was due largely to the practical difficulties in the way. I was in the company of the government agent responsible for trying to meet the demand for fertilizers and for implements and machines. He told me the government was only able to supply 40 per cent of the actual demands last year. This indicates a revolution in the psychology of the peasant and those who are ready for machine cultivation are ready for using fertilizers.

All Contented.

Community House, where the Americans eat and hold locals, etc., at Kemerovo is a center of educational activity. I had many talks with the men, and in no case did I find anyone disgruntled. They treated me not merely with respect but with real comradelike heartiness. I had the opportunity of private talks with experts and with ordinary rank and filers; all of them were cheerfully optimistic and have full faith in the increasing success of the colony. There are all told about 4,500 persons in and about the colony, and only one mile distant is a purely Russian town of 6,000 and villages scattered around.

Harmonious Relations.

My conviction is that the technicians are equal to their task. The relation between the Americans and the Russians is entirely harmonious. The standard of life is substantial and steadily rising, and if I were twenty years younger I should be glad of the opportunity to actually join and help in the development of the Kusnetz Basin, and share in bringing this part of Asia into direct and actual social and industrial relationship with Eu

30 Millions for Farm Education.

MOSCOW.— Thirty million rubles ($15,000,000) is to be spent for bolshevik propaganda in the farming district of the Ukraine. However, this propaganda is not the sort which secretary Hughes sees in his dreams. It is agricultural education for better crops and how to avoid recurring famines. It is based on the harvests of the experimental farms of the department of agriculture which were 5 to 6 times as good this year as the peasant harvests.

AN APPEAL BY THE WORKERS PARTY OF POLAND, SECTION OF THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL

COMRADES! WORKERS! AND FARMERS!

On Aug. 16 in Lemberg (East Galicia) Joseph Dietrich and Nicholas Solonenko were court martialed and shot for an alleged participation in a bombing attempt against the powder house of Lemberg.

The fact of the matter is, those who actually had put the bomb under the powder house were not shot nor indicted. Voldzimierz Gruszczak, a Lemberg detective from police headquarters, testified, that Cechnowski and Smalka with the knowledge of police headquarters and by their order have placed the bomb in the powder house, which proves that the whole thing was a frameup arranged by the police.

Frame-up Innocent Men.

The stool-pigeon Cechnowski's notorious participation in the trial of Baginski and Wiezorslewicz in Warsaw, is known to all. For despite all attempts to strangle the truth the "defensive" (military secret service of Poland) did not succeed in concealing that the bombs in this affair were supplied by the stool-pigeon Cechnowski. The officers of the Polish army, Baginski and Wiezorsewicz, framed up by this provocation of the political police, rot in a dungeon, sentenced to life imprisonment while Cechnowski the stool-pigeon continues his activity of bomb placing and probably carrying thru the country trunks full of bombs.

What is the purpose of those provocations? The agents of the czarist "Okhrana" would organize terroristic attempts in order to discover them thereafter. Today these frame-ups they gained and held their influence on the cowardly, rotten to the core, czarist bureaucracy.

The same methods are now being used by the Polish "defense" gang on the stultified, scared into idiocy, Polish bourgeois society.

Supported by a Decaying Society.

To boost its merits the "defensive" sends statements to the papers about discoveries of Communist plots which do not contain a word of truth. The "defensive" is engaged in open blackmail and fraud. It raids some students' excursion for a perfectly legal meeting of a labor union and then advertises such an exploit as a capture of the general staff of the Communist Workers' Party of Poland.

The consecutive set of terrific explosions of munition stores in Warsaw (Lazienki) in Italy, France and other European countries did arouse a vivid alarm in the working people of those countries. Such catastrophies are the direct outcome of militarism, of the mad war preparations of all bourgeois states. These munitions are unavoidable and will occur the more frequently as the old explosives left over from the last war disintegrate. Under the mad militaristic bourgeoisie, nobody can be sure that in any moment of the day or night the earth under his feet is not going to quake and the roof won't fall on his head.

Orgies of White Terrorism.

To divert from themselves the rightful indignation of the people and to justify new orgies of white terrorism, the bourgeoisie tries to indict the Communists for their own despicable doings.

The provocation of Lemberg was framed up to blacken and vilify the Communist Party in the eyes of the working people. The provocation of Lemberg is a capitalist offensive against the working class to increase exploitation of the workers. The bourgeoisie knows that only the Communist Workers' Party of Poland leads the workers in their struggle against the capitalists.

After the criminal sentence of the court martial of Lemberg which sentenced to death two innocent victims of a police-provocation, ones of the dirtiest bourgeois scribblers, a member of Polish parliament, correspondent to the "Hyena" (Christian-National Alliance) and former spy of the czarist general staff, Vladyslaw Rabski, incited a mad hounding of Communists.

Democrats Tools of Bourgeoisie.

Following in the footsteps of this miserable hyena, the central organ of the Polish socialist party, "Robotnik" always the flunkey of the bourgeoisie and its "Defensive" if so ordered, rushes into print with a slanderous editorial against the Communist International. This dirty sheet of the miserable betrayers of the workers, which served the Hapsburgs at the time of German occupation in Poland, and now cringes before the bourgeoisie and assists them in their every attack upon the workers, pretends to believe the reports of the "Defensive" and in a knavish way accuses the Communists of the crimes perpetrated by the police provocators.

At a time when the working class strains all its energies to prevent its being dragged down into the utmost abyss of abject misery and slavery its enemies scheme to inject mistrust into its ranks.

Shame to Traitors.

Shame to the traitors of the Polish socialist party which takes a hand in this criminal frame-up!

The combination of capital, the "Defensive" and socialist opportunists sewn with a red thread, will not succeed in misleading the working class.

The Communist Workers Party of Poland points out with pride that it always opposed terrorist plots, seeing in such actions a petty bourgeois anarchist deviation of the labor movement.

The social democracy of Poland and Lithuania, as well as the former "Left Wing Polish socialist party" have branded the bombist and plotting methods of the so-called revolutionary faction of the Polish socialist party, with Mr. Pilsudski at its head, they pushed the flower of the working class youth into the perilous path where the boundary line between the revolution and banditism was effaced. But the Communist Workers Party of Poland remained faithfully by its principles.

Must Defend Themselves.

The Communist Workers Party acknowledges the necessity of an immediate self defense against the provocation. We honor the heroic memory of Comrade Engel. But we recognize the need of self defense against the police-snakes. Our fighting method is a mass action of all the oppressed and exploited growing into the armed insurrection of the workers, farmers and soldiers against the capitalists and landlords.

If in the course of this fight we shall find it necessary to organize proletarian fighting squads, they will be organized not for terrorist plots but in order to support the fighting class conscious masses. Our clean and open methods in the revolutionary struggle justifies us to brand this ignominious provocation of the bourgeois and socialist opportunism against the revolutionary proletariat of Poland. We appeal for support to the Communists all the world.

Workers and farmers of the world, you shall know that in Poland stool-pigeons are thriving with impunity. They carry bombs around with them which they use to frame up innocent victims and have them sent to the scaffold. From these frame-ups they derive monetary profits and political jobs.

You shall know that the madness of bourgeois militarism and provocation endangers you and your families with ruin, and destruction.

You shall know that this nightmare will not vanish, until we will overthrow the rule of the bourgeois criminals by bold revolutionary fight under the leadership of the Communist Workers Party of Poland and establish in Poland the revolutionary rule of the workers and farmers.

Down with the government of exploitation, unemployment, murder and provocation!

Down with the Polish socialist party, the party of the flunkeys of the bourgeoisie!

Long live the armed insurrection of the workers, farmers and soldiers!

Long live the proletarian dictatorship!

Long live the Polish Soviet Republic!

Central Committee of the Communist Workers Party of Poland.

Dance in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 19. — The Lenin branch of the Young Workers League of Baltimore will give a dance Oct. 26, at 1110 E. Baltimore St. The proceeds will be divided among the campaign fund of the party, the National Executive Committee of the league and local league. All comrades and readers of the DAILY WORKER are requested to be present.

CANADIAN FILM SHOW BIG SUCCESS

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—The first venture into working class motion pictures to be made in Canada took the form of a showing of "Polikushka" in the city. It was a great success in every way, 1,250 people attending, despite the fact that all arrangements had to be made within one week.

All Canadian showings are arranged by the "Canadian Proletarian Films, Limited," at 28 Wellington Street, East, Toronto.

The film, "Polikushka," is a masterpiece in every respect, and was listed by the National Board of Review as one of the best pictures in the world. It is made by the famous Moscow Art Theatre from a story of the same name by Count Leo Tolstoy. While it does not deal with modern labor types or conditions, the oppression that hounds a poor serf to his death is symbolical of the sufferings of enslaved Labor thru all the ages. The newer Russian pictures have a more virile, red-blooded message of revolt.

The Canadian organization will endeavor to route all films made famous in this country by the International Workers' Aid, 19 South Lincoln Street, Chicago, Ill.

NEGOTIATIONS MOVE SLOWLY IN TEXTILE UNIONS

'Federated' Exchanges Notes with 'United

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Federated Textile Unions of America have closed their convention in New York with the drafting of an answer to the United Textile Workers' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, on the question of amalgamation.

The federated unions express their regret that the U. T. W. "conditions laid down . . . are exactly the same as always offered," which Lawrence LaBrie, secretary of the federated unions, declares is "absorption of the Federated by the United, not amalgamation."

Call Proposition Fair.

"The entirely fair proposition of the Federated Textile Unions of America, to hold a joint convention, where all points in dispute might be aired and decided, will intimate to all our attitude on the question of amalgamation," reads the Federated's letter.

"We would have abided by any decision of such a convention composed of the rank and file and ratified by the members," concludes the Federated's answer. The United Textile Workers offered to allow other textile workers' organizations to come into its union under the U. T. W. constitution, which LaBrie and other Federated officers claim does not provide for the kind of organization in which the Federated unions wish to participate.

Claim 16,000 Members.

The Federated Textile Unions claim 16,000 members, most of them in the American Federation of Textile Operatives, workers in cotton and woolen mills.

The Amalgamated Society of Lace Operatives, Tapestry Carpet Workers, Miscellaneous, and a few local unions with no national organization are affiliated in the Federated Textile Unions, John Burns, president of the lace operatives and a lace curtain worker himself, explains the organization as one of extreme decentralization. No delegate offices are maintained and all officers work at their trades, he claims.

In time of strike a small assessment never yet over 10 cents per worker, is levied on the organization to supply funds. The assessment is made after a strike has continued for four weeks.

Say Trade is Organized.

Burns says that his own trade is almost 100 per cent organized. Pascheque, N. Y., and Zion, Ill., which is owned by Marshall Field and where the lace operatives have struck three times for organization, are the only open shops.

The union was "brought from the old country," Burns says, but even now all the machinery for laces are imported from England. Burns says his organization is 35 years old and quite antedates the U. T. W. altho the Federated has existed only three years. He claims that his union had the first unemployment insurance in the United States.

Seaplane on Rampage.

ROME, Oct. 19.—A seaplane that crashed upon a house in Novigno, exploded, set fire to the building and burned the pilot to death today. Three girl bystanders were injured.

WAGE CONTRACT VIOLATED BY COAL BARONS

Barrackville Miners to Fight Wage Cut

(Special to The Daily Worker).

BARRACKVILLE, West Va., Oct. 19.—The Bethlehem Mine Corporation operating mines at Dacota and Barrackville, West Va., signed a contract with the United Mine Workers of America known as the Baltimore agreement. The contract was a three year one.

One month and fifteen days, after the agreement went into effect the coal operators posted notices stating that they were compelled to cease operation for causes beyond their control.

Began to Build Fences.

After the mines were closed for four months, the operators proceeded to build seven or eight foot fences around the plants. After the fences were built, they posted another notice declaring that a new wage scale carrying a 50 per cent wage cut was in effect.

The whistle then blew for work. The men who had previously signed the three-year contract failed to respond. The operators hired gunmen who toted big pistols and maces to protect the imported strikebreakers. The scabs are placed inside these fences and the gunmen are ready to drop anybody trying to take a look at the strikebreakers on the inside of the fenced enclosure.

Agreement on Their Hands.

The union miners, who are on strike appeal to the workers of the United States for support in their struggle against the coal bosses. The miners have a perfectly good Jacksonville agreement on their hands, which gives the operators a right to violate it at will, but apparently John L. Lewis is too busy trying to elect Calvin Coolidge, the strikebreaker, president of the United States to pay any attention to such things as a violation of contract on the part of the coal operators.

The striking miners are now scratching their heads and wondering what good is this famous three-year contract, that was flourished in their faces as a "great victory" by Lewis and the other reactionaries in the miners' union.

ESTABLISH CLOSER RELATIONS IN BANKING BETWEEN UNITED STATES AND UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The establishment of closer banking connections between Soviet Russia and the United States, primarily with a view toward facilitating the steadily increasing trade intercourse between the two countries, is looked for as a result of the arrival in this country of the director of the Bank for Foreign Trade of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—"The Russian Commercial Bank,"—Mr. Vitaly S. Korobkoff.

Mr. Korobkoff has made his headquarters in the offices of the Amtorg Trading Corporation at 136 Liberty Street. During his stay in this country Mr. Korobkoff will come in personal touch with a number of leading American banking institutions interested in the prospects offered by the development of trade relations with Soviet Russia and especially in connection with the heavy trade turnover effected in recent months thru the Amtorg Trading corporation, the All-Russian Textile Syndicate and other organizations carying on trade with Russia.

Plan Handling of Money.

Incidentally Mr. Korobkoff will make arrangements for the more efficient organization of the forwarding of money remittances thru the bank which he is representing and which has already handled about 50,000 remittances from this country during the past five months.

In a statement prepared for the press, Mr. Korobkoff explained that the Bank for Foreign Trade of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is the successor to the Russian Commercial Bank which was reorganized during April last and is at present one of the Soviet big five banks each of them specializing in one leading branch of the public economy.

Thus the State Bank is chiefly a bank of issue and serving the other banks, the PromBank, or the Industrial Bank serving chiefly the needs of the industries, the Vsekobank, or the All-Russian Co-operative Bank, is engaged primarily in financing the co-operatives, the Agricultural Bank, and the Russian Commercial Bank which is the Bank of Foreign Trade of the Union of Sovet Socialist Republics.

Bank Organized in 1922.

The Russian Commercial Bank began its operations in December 1922, with stock capital of 10,000,000 gold rubles. Upon its reorganization in April 1924, it doubled its capital, and its chief stockholders became the leading Russian commercial organizations engaged in foreign trade such as the Commissariat of Foreign Trade, the Exportkhleb, and similar organizations.

During the four months, from May 1 to September 1, the transactions of the bank developed with a marked rapidity. Its balance sheet showed an increase of about 70 per cent, the deposits trebled, and its discounts and loans showed an increase of 100 per cent. At present the bank is contemplating a new issue of stock amounting to 20,000,000 rubles, bringing up the paid capital to 40,000,000 rubles, or upward of $20,400,000.

On September 15, the working capital of the bank amounted to 41,950,000 rubles. The bank centered it attention on the financing of the foreign trade to such an extent that during the three months, June-August, the credits for foreign trade amounted to 85 per cent of all its credit transactions. The bank is extending its operations thru the organization of new branches in cities in the Soviet Union which are strategically situated in relation to foreign trade, as Odessa, Kharkov, Batoum, etc. In the East the bank is working thru the Russo-Persian Bank and Far Eastern Bank of which it holds considerable stock.

Help in Russia's Recovery.

Mr. Koroboff also pointed out that the banks in Russia have already contributed considerably to the process of agricultural and industrial recovery which is witnessed in the Soviet Union, and they are destined to play a still greater part in this process. The sound basis upon which the banks are established and the healthy development which they have shown give assurance of their strength and vitality. The financial soundness of Soviet Russia has been best demonstrated in the accomplishment of the monetary reform and the stabilization of the currency which will, no doubt, go down as the greatest economic achievement of the Soviet Union during this year.

It is true that the currency circulation is still far behind what it was before the war. The monetary reform was accomplished without causing any marked disturbances in the general development of business, such as were witnessed in Germany and Poland and the growth of stable currency has been steady. The currency in circulation has increased from 303,100,000 rubles in December, 1923, to 630,900,000 in July, 1924.

By September 15, the mass of money was increased to about 630,000,000 rubles. The State Bank has all thru been exceedingly careful in the exercise of its power of issue. Chervonetz notes which were made the basis of the new currency have been issued only against strong security. Another feature was that not the whole mass of chervontzi issued had been brought into circulation, so that the surplus always served as security for the smaller treasury notes which have been issued simultaneously.

Of 417,500,000 rubles worth of chervontzi issued up to the July, only 306,200,000 rubles were in circulation while the rest remained in the treasuries of the State Bank and the Commissariat of Finances for the redeeming of treasury notes the total of which in circulation in July amounted to 162,160,099 rubles.

Trade Balance is Favorable.

The monetary reform was made possible to a great extent by the favorable trade balance of Soviet Russia in 1924. During the first six months of the year exports from Soviet Russia amounted to 150,500,000 rubles and the imports to 83,900,000 rubles, thus ending with a favorable balance of 66,600,000 rubles.

Owing to the growing financial stability of the Soviet Republics the preliminary plans for the budget of 1924-1925 amounting to 2,000,000,000 rubles show that it will be balanced with a probable deficit of only 80,000,000 rubles. This deficit will be covered by the issue of small coins for which there is a great demand in the country.

In view of the stabilizing economic conditions in Soviet Russia, Mr. Korobkoff is confident that the interest in the possibilities of trade with Soviet Russia shown by business and banking interests in the United States will eventually lead toward satisfactory arrangements for the acceleration of the trade relations between the two countries for their mutual benefit.

To Combat Openshop Contract

WILKES-BARRE, Pa.—The building trades council of Wilkes-Barre is protesting against the award of public improvement contracts to bitterly anti-union contractors who pay far below the prevailing wage. The council was recently reorganized. Its campaign is being vigorously supported by Labor News, official organ of the Wilkes-Barre Central Labor union, founded in August 1924.

WORKERS FACE HUNGRY WINTER IN MINNEAPOLIS

Slack Stomachs Find a Kool Komfort in Kal

By LESLIE R. HURT
(Special to the Daily Worker.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 19.—The workers of Minneapolis are already beginning to feel the terrible effects of unemployment. Hundreds of men and their families are facing hunger and privation this winter. Little children attend school in tattered and torn clothing. The Gateway park district, where the "employment sharks" hold forth, a congested daily with seekers of jobs, but they discover that there are but few to be obtained.

Employment Sharks

In many instances the workers are charged as high as ten dolars for the privilege of "slaving" for an "openshop" contractor at thirty-five or forty cents per hour as a common laborer. There is some talk of the possibilty of it being necessary to establish "bread lines" again this winter as was done here in 1921-22. At many rate the workers are beginning to relize that they will be "Keeping Cool With Coolidge" when the cold, wintry blasts hit Minneapolis.

That the unemployed may expect no sympathy, nor relief, from the present mayor's administration is proven by Mayor "General" George E. Leach's consistent refusal to sign the bond issue for the building of the proposed municipal auditorium which is to cost approximately $3,000,000 and which would provide employment for several hundred men.

The Contract Plan

The mayor insists that the building be constructed under the contract plan, while labor aldermen in the city council ask adoption of the day labor system. The mayor is supported in his views by the Citizen's Alliance and the Builders' Exchange members, the bitterest enemies of the organized workers in Minnesota. The councilmen threaten court action to force Leach to attach his "John Henry" to the bonds so that the work may be commenced immediately, but evidently "orders are orders" to Leach and it is certainty that he will hold off as long as possible.

When "General" Leach made his last campaign for re-election he posed as a friend of the organized and unorganized workers. Certain "political wise-acres" in the local labor movement were instrumental in forcing Alderman Gottfried Linsten to withdraw as the candidate of the working peoples' league in favor of Leach. It is safe to say that it will be a dangerous thing the next time for the "fakers" to attempt another "sell-out."

Market Flooded

Benjamin Gitlow, workers Party candidate for the vice-presidency, in one of the best speeches ever delivered in the Twin Cities, last Thursday night pointed out the fact that the workers have produced so much since the war that the markets have become flooded with a surplus that cannot and will not be disposed of for some time to come. Thus it becomes necessary for capitalism to throw the workers out of their jobs and to close their plants. The lines are being drawn closer—hunger and poverty stalks thru America.

Rally To Communism

And yet thousands of disillusioned, jobless slaves will flock to the LaFollette banner, but the intelligent, thinking, class conscious workers will rally to the cause of communism. Foster and Gitlow offer the only logical solution to the problem of unemployment. The Workers Party will stir up sentiment for the establishment of a farmers' and workers' government that is sure to come.

BUILD THE CAMPAIGN FUND!

The Ticket of the Workers Party Is on the Ballot in New York

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 19.—Placing a new party on the ballot in New York is a complicated job that requires unending patience and time. It is a laborious, costly, proceeding, but the successful completion of the task justifies every sacrifice made, for we are now in a position to reach masses of workers with our message, who would otherwise have given us no consideration.

In order to take advantage of the opportunity presented to us we must have money to pay for literature for free distribution. We must have money to tour speakers. Money is needed to pay the hall rents for meetings. Signs and posters must be gotten out at once. It is estimated that the cost of this job will amount to five housand dollars. Nothing can be done unless the necessary funds are obtained, and these are needed at once, if we are to take advantage of our opportunity.

Forward your dollars and those of your friends to the headquarters of the Workers Party Campaign Committee, 210 East 12th Street, New York City. Make checks payable to Charles Krumbein, Treasurer.

RUSSIANS CONSIDER UNITED STATES LEADER AND ORGANIZER OF WORLD IMPERIALISM BACKED BY MILITARISM

By ANISE.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—Just as in the days of the post-war intervention against Russia, British workers formed a Hands Off Russia movement, so now, when the powers are intervening in China with money and ships and munitions, Russian workers spontaneously in many places have organized a Hands Off China protest.

America is universally regarded in Russia as the leader and organizer of world imperialism backed by militarism. No doubt many Americans still think their country has only benevolent intentions and that it is wicked of foreigners to suspect her. But they do suspect her, all of them, and they cite Mobilization day, and new discoveries of gas warfare and many other symptoms to prove that America is the most warlike and imperialist nation on earth today, except per haps France, which is backed by America.

To the Russians the Dawes plan is the control of Europe by American bankers. And in the far East, in China,—well, America's control in the armed intervention, is taken for granted. The Japanese papers, for instance, are discussing whether Japan shall help in intervention, "since it is organized by America and will thus only strengthen our chief enemy."

Spot Workers Entering Temple

AKRON, Ohio.—Rubber barons in Akron alarmed by the fear that their employes may unionize, have started a campaign of espionage at the Chamber of Labor. The employment manager of the Firestone company is reported to have scrutinized the union headquarters for two continuous hours looking for employes sympathetic to unionism.

Immediate discharge is understood to be the penalty for organization, but plans are being perfected to make it possible for intelligent rubber workers to form an organization despite the employers' surveillance.

Arrest Woman Cigarmakers

TAMPA, Fla., October 19.—Woman pickets around the strikebound Tampa cigar factories are being arrested by the police in an apparent effort to break the iron-bound walkout which has been in effect for over a month. The 15,000 union and nonunion cigarmakers demand wage increases and other concessions. The few woman strikebreakers who have tried to enter the factories met with no violence but they heard such vigorously expressed opinions of themselves from their sisters on the picket line that they pulled in their necks and ducked. A federal conciliator is on the scene. The average wage is under $20 a week.

WORKERS PARTY GIVES AID TO SILK STRIKERS

Organize Committee to Aid in Relief

The machinery of the Workers Party has been pressed into service to aid the Paterson silk workers to raise funds for the successful continuation of their strike.

A communication has been addressed by C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, to all district organizers of the Workers Party, "authorizing them to organize Paterson Strike Relief Committees in all large industrial centers and to make a systematic campaign for funds to assist the silk strikers."

Fred Hoelscher, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Silk Workers, declared, in a communication to the Workers Party, "Among groups and organizations in several cities which are already collecting funds for the strikers are members of the Workers Party. The Workers Party has an independent relief committee in New York City and has collected hundreds of dollars to date.

"You are probably aware of the new development in the strike which we believe are of importance to the American labor movement as a whole; many injunctions have been issued and the local police authorities closed the hall where the strikers have been holding daily meetings.

"The hall has now been re-opened on condition that no outside speakers be permitted to address the meetings. We can assure you, however, that we will do everything in our power to establish our rights to have Paterson again become a part of the United States."

International Language.

The workers of Rockford, Ill., are now enthusiastic about Esperanto, the most firmly established and most generally accepted international language, according to a Rockford comrade. A club for studying and carrying on the propaganda of this language was started Sept. 28, at a meeting at Workers' Hall. Starting with only nine members, it has now gathered together more than twenty-five, and many more are coming. Anybody wishing to get in touch with this movement should write to the secretary, Comrade K. A. Peterson, 916 6th Street.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A FROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL

4903. Figured silk is here combined with plain crepe in a matched shade. This style is good for kasha, or the new printed violes and crepes. It may be finished with the short "cap" sleeve, or with the long bell portion.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10-year size requires 3 yards of one material 32 inches wide. If made as illustrated, in the large view with short sleeves it will require 1¾ yards of figured material, and 3¾ yards of plain material. With long sleeves ¼-yard more is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 13c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A SIMPLE APRON STYLE.

4882. Unbleached muslin, drill, gingham, or chambrey may be used for this style.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 3¾ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. Hearst and Japan

When William Randolph Hearst wanted war with Spain he sent one of his best reporters to Cuba, with instructions to send every bit of news that would serve to arouse the fighting spirit of the American cannon fodder against the Spanish "enemy." The correspondent was ordered to serve atrocities up so they could be devoured with relish in the United States.

"Enemies" in those days had not yet learned the art of cutting the arms off babies, raiding convents and such other refinements of the art of civilized warfare, later on conceived in the foul brains of the journalistic perverts of capitalism during the late world war.

Hearst evidently did not make a phrenological examination of his correspondent. He was a keen disappointment. He turned out to be painfully honest. Shortly after his arrival in Cuba, he wrote back, saying that he found no atrocities. He did not even see a big husky Spaniard steal candy from a kid. There was no sign of preparations for war with the United States. His assignment was a waste of money, he wrote, and suggested that he be allowed to return to the United States.

Hearst wired back: "You provide the news; we'll provide the war." He did.

Today Hearst is very busy trying to hasten the inevitable war between the capitalists of the United States and those of Japan. But the capitalists will fight by proxy. The actual fighting will be done by the American and Japanese workers and by the workers of the world. A war between America and Japan would not be a private affair. The other capitalist nations would step in. Hearst, his army of writers, headed by the notorious pen harlot Arthur Brisbane, and his army of cartoonists, are picturing hordes of grinning Japanese flying to this country in hundreds of airplanes to drop bombs on peaceful American cities and destroy railroads, factories, and in general wreck the country.

How many normal human beings can imagine that even the Japanese militarists could entertain such an insane war plan, is difficult to comprehend. But there is method in Hearst's madness. He is out for a big air navy and in order to work up a great popular demand for his scheme he first proceeds to frighten the people with a horrible picture of Japanese airplanes spreading death and destruction thruout the country.

This war between the Japanese and American capitalists will come, not because Hearst wants it but because of the conflicting interests of the capitalists of America and Japan. This disaster cannot be averted by pious homilies on the evils of war. It can only be averted by the working class of Japan and the United States taking the powers of government away from the capitalists of their respective countries and organizing Soviet governments on the ruins of the robber capitalist system.

Anatole France

The French government honored the great master of letters with ceremonies such as usually accompany the passing of great political leaders. But there was very little in common between Anatole France and the bourgeois government that paid homage to the greatest figure in modern French literature.

Anatole France was a Communist, tho the enemies of Communism will use every means at their disposal for suppressing that fact. He openly took the side of the working class and gloried in the great Russian revolution.

His writings were translated into many languages and he was one of those honored by having his books placed on the Index Expurgatorius by the Vatican, the headquarters of world superstition and intellectual darkness.

Shortly before his death it was reported that Anatole France recanted his atheistic views and returned to the fold of the Roman Catholic church. It was a lie made out of the whole cloth. France retained his consciousness until very near the end, and the black-robed agents of hell fire and damnation were not able to take advantage of his dying moments to cram their hokum down his throat.

Three hundred thousand people attended the burial service of Anatole France. But many millions all over the world honor him for his work, and future generations will profit by his writings when the efforts of the literary lackeys of capitalism will be buried in the ash heap of history.

The Biter Bitten

Don Chafin, notorious anti-labor gunman of Logan county, West Va., was recently sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta for violating the Volsted Act, or in plain language for common bootlegging.

Don Chafin's record in West Virginia is a bloody one and none—not perhaps even those for whom he shot and killed the union miners—will mourn for him in his present predicament. As a rule, filthy human vermin of the Chafin type are not held in high esteem by their paymasters. When they have outlived their usefulness, they are given the cold shoulder.

The chief gunman of Logan county is no novice at violating the law and Judge George McClintic is well aware of that fact. But Don Chafin made the mistake of thinking that because he got away with the murder of union mine organizers and striking coal diggers that the protective armor of the scab coal operators would save him from the attacks of the prohibition sleuths.

And perhaps this assumption would be correct but for the fact that the coal operators apparently have no longer any use for Don Chafin. John L. Lewis is too busy trying to send Calvin Coolidge back to the White House to bother about organizing the slaves of Logan county. The old officers of the West Virginia Coal Miner's Union have quit and the coal operators of the Logan industrial battlefield are no longer faced with the dreaded enemy in the form of the union.

Don Chafin was a necessary evil to the coal barons in time of stress. When shooting is to be done, it is handy to have a professional murderer around. But in times of peace even a scab coal operator is particular about the kind of human animal he is compelled to associate with.

Don Chafin is sentenced to serve two years in Atlanta. The coal miners will find some consolation in that. But it is not cheering to know that the coal operators no longer have need for Don Chafin. If they had the gates of Atlanta would open for him.

Branting and the King

Dr. Hjalmar Branting, leading Swedish socialist and big gun in the Second International now known in the political underworld by the alias of the "Labor and Socialist International," again is premier of Sweden, having been called upon by His Majesty the King to form a cabinet after the conservative government was defeated.

During the war the term "King's socialists" was applied by the left elements in the socialist movement to those who took service in the capitalist governments as ministers. Vandervelde in Belgium, Henderson in England and Thomas in France were conspicuous among those who became part and parcel of the enemy's governing arm.

Today "King's socialists" are a drug on the market in Europe. The kings seem to get along better with their socialist politicians than with the so-called conservatives and liberals. The reason is not that the so-called socialists are more humble in the presence of royalty. The real reason for the popularity of the socialists as servants of capitalism and royalty is to be found in the fact that the capitalist parties have lost the confidence of the working class and that the capitalists are now relying on the social traitors who still use the phrases of socialism to keep them on the backs of the workers for another while.

When the conservatives fail to make the capitalist machine go, the socialists are called in to carry on the work. As the Communist International says, the socialists are the last bulwark of capitalism. The Brantings in Sweden, the Blums in France, the MacDonalds in England, the Eberts and Scheidemanns in Germany, the Adlers in Austria, the Vanderveldes in Belgium, and the Hillquits, Bergers and LaFollettes in America, are the last line of defense of the capitalist class against the rising tide of proletarian revolution.

The Daily News knows by this time that Spolansky sold it a gold brick in his "Red Exposures."

A Whirlwind Finish

The first Communist election campaign will come to a close on November fourth. Its closing days will be marked by an intensification and increase in the number of campaign meetings now being held all over the country from coast to coast.

Never before in the history of our party have so many and so uniformly successful meetings been held.

The Foster-Gitlow meetings are the spearhead of our election campaign. Foster and Gitlow bring the candidates of our party, crystallize in the minds of masses of workers the Communist issues put forth by our party.

Great organizational support for our party, as a result of the present campaign meetings, cannot be immediately expected. The LaFollette hysteria is at present too widespread.

The Communist exposures of Coolidge and Davis, and especially of LaFollette, are a great contribution to the American Communist movement. When the LaFollette movement with its polyglot program fails to retard the inevitable economic trend of capitalist society, and when the LaFollette movement stands exposed because of this failure, millions of workers hitherto influenced by it will recall the Communist criticism of the LaFollette movement and the predictions being made about it in our meetings.

In the concluding weeks of the election campaign, tremendous efforts must be put forth to make the final meetings a whirlwind success. Not for some time to come will we have such an opportunity to carry to the masses in American industry and on the land the message of Communism.

The teachers can strengthen their fight against McAndrew by really class conscious action against the Big Business school board that oppresses them.

The Carpenters' Convention

By MIKE ROSS.

THE twenty-first general convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America is over. As militants in the labor movement it would be well for us to analyze that convention and see what prospects it holds for the class conscious workers.

Next to the miners, it is the largest labor organization in the United States. The latest report of the secretary showed that it had 367,000 members.

From a strategic standpoint the building industry falls behind mining, transportation, or the steel industry.

While strategically not as strongly situated as other industries, the building trades are the most powerful in the American Federation of Labor. They are the backbone of the A. F. of L., being nearly half its strength.

So strong is this union in the A. F. of L. that William L. Hutchenson, the general president, openly defies Gompers. When the board of jurisdictional awards gave the erection of metal trim to the sheet metal workers, Hutchenson withdrew from the building trades department of the A. F. of L. and is conducting a war against it with some success.

This internally destructive war has been going on for several years and threatens to destroy the building trades. Hutchenson, at the convention, considered this the inevitable result for the carpenters.

During the first three and a half days of the convention, Hutchenson ruled with an iron gavel. Everything progressive was "Fosterism," and all the Fosterites were threatened with expulsion. Delegate Mulcahy, who tried to organize an opposition against the old-age pension, was beaten up by thugs. Fear was instilled into the weaker delegates.

So fast did the machine work that report after report was declared accepted before one could wink an eyelash.

Rosen Fights.

During this time only one delegate tried to get the floor. He was not recognized, told to sit down, or called out of order. An appeal from the decision of the chair brought a terrific roar from czar Hutchenson, "Sit down!" This lone militant was delegate Rosen of New York, who was later nominated for general president.

It began to look as if no one would get the floor, but after the nominations for general officers, which were held on the fourth day of the convention, Hutchenson began to allow a little freedom of discussion.

His machine, by this time, was well fortified. The constitution gives the general president the right to appoint the committee on rules. It in turn gave Hutchenson the right to appoint all other committees. Each committeeman got paid from $10. to $35. per day for his "services." He appointed over 100 committeemen.

Left wing work was extremely difficult. An amalgamation resolution was ruled out of order; advocating a labor party was "partisan politics," hence out of order.

Progressive Proposals Killed.

All progressive measures were killed by the machine.

The recall amendment, biennial conventions instead of quadrennial, election of organizers by referendum vote instead of by appointment, general executive board to be elected by the district the members represent instead of by the entire country, election of all district council officers by a referendum vote, election of the committee on rules by the delegates, the right of the president to expel or suspend to be abolished, resolution favoring organizing the unorganized, job control, affiliation with the building trades council, condemnation of Hylan for compelling men to work under unfair conditions, all these measures were crushed by the reactionary steamroller and in their place many reactionary measures were passed.

Even the American Federation of Labor is too radical for Hutchenson. A resolution endorsing the A. F. of L. political policy was ruled out of order as partisan politics, and a resolution endorsing the workers' education bureau of the A. F. of L. was voted down because Secretary Duffy said the names of the workers' education bureau and the Trade Union Educational League were too much alike and would confuse the members so that they wouldn't know which is which.

The only progressive thing that was passed was the endorsement of the five-day week. This was evidently done as a sop, even the reactionaries speaking for it.

Revolt Comes at Last.

As the convention developed, opposition to the machine grew stronger and stronger. A revolt was coming and it broke out in the last day of the convention during the report of the committee on appeals and grievances.

The first important appeal came from Fred W. Burgess of Philadelphia, who was suspended from the brotherhood because he endorsed the Philadelphia Labor Defense Council and his name appeared on its stationery.

His case was lost on a technical constitutional point which did not exist or at the best, was very doubtful. He did not even get a chance to argue on the merits of his case.

This angered the delegates.

The next appeal, a constitutional question dealing with the right of local unions to have power over sick donations, was undoubtedly upheld by a yes and no vote, but Hutchenson declared it lost, and a further division by a show of hands was refused. This angered the delegates still more. Their protest came in full fury on the next case, which was an appeal dealing with the repeal of the old age home clause.

Ends in Uproar.

Delegate Mulcahy, who pleaded the case a few moments, was interrupted by a delegate who said he was out of order, and Hutchenson ruled accordingly.

Mulcahy refused to sit down and insisted on his right to appeal. He was then expelled from the convention by Hutchenson.

Cries of "Boo," "Czar," "Let's go home and leave him rule the empty chairs," were heard thruout the hall. During the turmoil, the president declared the convention over.

From the acts of the convention, one is justified in saying that the officials are more reactionary than ever before, but the rebellion of the mass of delegates was also greater than ever, and this at a time when the carpenters were enjoying the greatest prosperity in history.

The Opposition.

In this fight there were two distinct opposition groups. The larger group did not base itself on the class struggle and had no fundamental issues. It divided into fractions, each fighting for its own particular issue.

Mulcahy, leader of the Rhode Island faction, fought for the repeal of the old age home clause. Burgess, of Philadelphia, for more democracy. The New York group, led by Tom Ryan, centered their fight on certain measures which would take the power away from the New York district council and make it more democratic. The constitution is so reactionary that Halckett and his bunch in New York rule as if over an absolute monarchy and it is almost impossible to get rid of them.

All of these groups, however, agreed that they must get rid of Hutchenson and their candidate is Willis K. Brown, who did support some of the time during the entire convention.

The Real Left Wing.

The smaller group was led by Rosen of New York. This group centered its fight around measures that would strengthen the union and the class power of the workers and every step that led in that direction was fought for. Such resolutions as affiliation with the building trades department, a joint drive to organize the unorganized, and development of job control, were introduced by this group. Their candidate for general president is Morris Rosen of New York.

About twenty-five more militant delegates in addition to those present would have swung the entire opposition around Rosen, and the power of the reactionaries would have been challenged in no uncertain manner.

Organization of Militants Needed.

The opposition is now big enough to smash Hutchenson's machine, but it lacks aggressive leadership, and the necessary organization. This opposition will increase tenfold with the end of the building boom and will steer into reformistic channels unless the militants become real active, take the lead in the fight, and steer it in the direction of the class struggle.

The amendments passed by the convention will be submitted for a referendum vote. Only one of them should receive our support, the five-day week. Nearly all the rest are reactionary and should be voted down.

The carpenters' union is a giant with a small head who has been so sleepy that he has not moved. This giant is now stirring and threatens to break the chains that hold him. If the militants want to utilise the strength of this giant they must begin at once. The prospects for the militants are now more rosy than ever, but only thru activity will they be able to lead this giant.

For the first time in the history of the carpenters' union a real progressive is running for general president. This should stimulate the militants and line the membership up behind Rosen and the militant measures he stands for.

The Communist Campaign in Illinois

By KARL REEVE

THE Workers Party in the Illinois State campaign, as well as in the presidential race, is the only party in the field which has a constructive program for the working class.

The Workers Party program, which favors the immediate formation of unemployment councils, workers' control of industry and government, and the downfall of capitalism, is carried into the Illinois governorship race by William F. Dunne.

The republican and democratic candidates, reflecting their national capitalist bosses, Davis and Coolidge, are tools of the master class. As representatives of Wall Street, of the Manufacturers' Association of Illinois, of the wealth of the country, neither candidate can be expected to run for election on a program advocating measures of real benefit to the workers.

The democratic candidate for governor, Norman L. Jones, is making his race on the strength of the time worn slogan—"turn the rascals out." Jones is Judge, not a member of a union, who is backing to the limit John Davis, presidential candidate of his party. Davis, is well known as a corporation lawyer who has used his talents against the workers and in the interests of the coal barons and other trusts. Jones, in supporting the Morgan attorney waives all right to be considered as a workers' candidate. There is but one political party in the field which is for the overthrow of the capitalist system of exploitation—the Workers Party.

Jones has been spewing much hot air against graft. He has put forward not one definite measure for the benefit of the working class. Jones is merely for "honest government," and "more efficiency and economy." As is so often the case, however, when thieves fall out, much interesting matter has emanated from the democratic headquarters at the Sherman hotel in the shape of documents which summarize the corrupt regime of Len Small, republican candidate for re-election as governor of Illinois.

Governor Small, despite his long record as a grafter and crooked politician, has succeeded in lining up the "leaders" of Illinois labor on his side. In his campaign for nomination in the republican primary fight, it will be recalled that Victor Olander, John Fitzpatrick, John Walker and the other officials of the Illinois and Chicago Federations of Labor used their offices, paid for out of the dues of union labor, as campaign stations for the nomination of Small. The offices were stacked high with literature and manifestoes were sent out signed by the Federation of Labor officials advising all trade unionists to vote for Small.

Into this republican political battle came Farrington, whose record is now being bared in the DAILY WORKER by T. J. O'Flaherty, Farrington advised the coal miners that it was imperative that they vote for Small—that it was to the interests of labor to re-elect him.

In the light of the stampede of the labor leaders of Chicago and Illinois to the banner of Small, his record becomes doubly interesting to the workers. Upon what grounds did Olander, Nockels, Walker and Fitzpatrick support Small?

Small drew his strength in the primaries from two main sources—the active campaigning of the labor fakers, and the funds which he used himself to send out campaign literature.

A bill for an injunction asked by Edward McDonnell, against State Auditor Andrew Russell and Oscar Nelson, state treasurer, revealed that $44,214.10 spent by Small to send out campaign literature, came from the state funds.

"Len Small, for the purpose of obtaining for himself the votes of the republicans of the state of Illinois, and to secure political support at the primary, ordered or caused to be ordered printed certain pamphlets entitled 'Pardons and Paroles,' in the number of 1,850,00, consisting of some 47 pages, which were circulated thruout Illinois," states the injunction, which has become part of the legal record of Sangamon County.

"By reason of the printing and publishing of the pamphlets above described, the said Len Small personally became indebted in the sum of $44,214.10 to the following firms," continues the Springfield injunction, "Illinois State Register, $4,900.42; Illinois Printing company, Danville, $11,639.52; Schnepp and Barnes $9,589.44; Illinois State Journal company $3,664.81; Phillips Brothers, $14,419.90."

This campaign material, which broadcasted by the ton, much of it to trade unionists thru their officials, was paid for, the injunction revealed, by the treasurer of the state of Illinois, following the issuance by Small officials of authorized vouchers. In replying to this injunction, Small's henchmen denied nothing but declared, "The proper answer to the purpose for which the newspaper criticisms were made," and could not answer for Len Small.

Governor Small established campaign headquarters during the April primary campaign in the state arsenal in Springfield, but it eventually came to light that Small again misdirected state funds for the use of his private campaign for nomination. Katherine Miller, a Springfield girl, revealed that she was employed to work in this arsenal by Small's Springfield manager, Otto A. Elliot, together with employes of the various state departments.

Miss Miller declared that she was hired to do clerical work, but found that she had to spend all her time addressing, folding and stamping campaign literature for Small.

When Miss Miller went to draw her pay, she found she had been paid from the treasury of the state of Illinois for "repairing civil war flags." Further investigation revealed that Small's campaign expenses were being partially paid out of a state fund of $31,500, which the 53rd general assembly had appropriated for repairing the regimental civil war flags of the state of Illinois.

Another charge against Len Small which has now become public property is the accusation that Small's appointee, Chairman Miller of the board licensing physicians, dentists, pharmacists and nurses sold licenses to the highest bidders. Small retained Miller several months after positive proof of the illegal issuance of licenses had been given him. Miller peddled these licences instead of licensing only those who had completed a course in a reputable school teaching the above professions, which is the legal requirement.

Then there is the case of Werner W. Schroeder, from Len Small's home town of Kankakee. Schroeder acts as personal attorney for Small, and defended him when Small was tried in Waukegan. General voucher No. 232357, dated June 30, 1923, signed by Governor Small states, "For clerical services rendered the governor on legislation enacted by the 53rd general assembly from January 6 to June 30, inclusive, $10,000."

There is no record of just what "clerical" work Schroeder did for Small. Suspicion points to the fact that Small diverted state funds to pay his personal attorney. At any rate, Schroeder was a costly clerk to the state. Small has not yet explained this enormous fee which was paid from state money to Small's personal lawyer. Nor has Small explained what "clerical work" relative to legislative matters the lawyer performed for the state, nor upon what basis such an enormous sum was paid to a clerk.

Such is the man indorsed by Frank Farrington, who pretends to speak for the Illinois miners, and by Victor Olander and John Fitzpatrick on behalf of the Illinois and Chicago Federations of Labor. Such is the corruption with which the American Federation of Labor has been smudged from top to bottom by following Gompers policy of rewarding friends and punishing enemies. Such is the man that the Illinois labor fakers call a "friend of labor."

3,000 RUSSIAN COMMUNISTS HELP TO STRENGTHEN THE CO-OPERATIVES

By ANISE.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—Three thousand specially chosen Russian Communists have been added to the workers in co-operative and state trading organizations following the resolution of the Communist party to strengthen the co-operatives. Of these 545 have been sent into the offices of foreign trade, 395 into state internal trade, 724 into credit organizations, while 1,367 are in the local and regional stores and organizations of the co-operatives.

This is a measure regularly adopted by the Communist party when it wishes to strengthen some new branch of the government or the general machinery of social life in Russia.

"Co-operation" in Caucasus.

I met one such "co-operator" down in the mountains of the Caucasus, 15 miles beyond the end of the railroad. He had come only a month before, but had already organized a co-operative milk-selling station with 150 members among these pastoral mountaineers. The slopes of the mountains are covered with cattle, while their owners live the entire summer in the hills, a long coat serving as their tent against wind and rain. They are not Russian, but one of the races that under the czar had no chance for education and organization.

Here among these half-nomad folks, the Communist had installed a receiving station which was sending thousands of quarts of milk daily to the sanitariums in the health resorts of the valleys. He slept in a shack, slightly less weather-proof than the average tent, and the only structure for miles around.

Improve Type of Cattle.

He was enthusiastic not only to organize the population but to improve the type of cattle, the methods of caring for them and in general to introduce agricultural education into this distant region.

This is going on all over Russia thru workers sent out to educate the people and weld it together under the general program planned by the Communists.

NEW ELECTIONS IN GERMANY

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

EVEN the Chicago Tribune is not so certain that Calvin Coolidge will be elected official janitor of the White House for the next four years. One of the Tribune's favorite political forecasters has lost his customary assurance and now ventures to prophesy what will happen next year unless Silent Cal is elected. Chaos and disorder! Militant democrats and progressives threaten civil war if Coolidge follows the advice of some of his cronies and continues to hold office indefinitely in case of a deadlock. Unemployment, starvation, etc.

* * * *

THE election campaign will not end on November 4 this year even for the capitalist parties. They will continue to horse trade until March 4. The Communists never end their political campaigns. On March 4, they count the noses of Communists and Communist sympathizers who can vote, draw a deep breath and start in on a new campaign. Election campaigns do not happen every week, but Communist campaigning never ends this side of the social revolution.

* * * *

THE big day for the Communists of the United States is not Nov. 4, but Nov. 7, the anniversary of the Russian revolution. In every city, town and hamlet where a Communist group exists, there will be a meeting or an affair of some kind to celebrate the greatest event in human history, the establishment of the first proletarian government. Similar meetings will be held in every country in the world. Ours is indeed a world party. And every Communist in America, no matter how tired after the arduous labors of a campaign carried on under unusual handicaps, will put his shoulders to the wheel and make the November 7 meetings a huge success.

* * * *

THE republican papers in Chicago, the Tribune, News and Post, have all hopped onto the Jones bandwagon. Jones is the democratic candidate for governor of Illinois. Small is the republican candidate. What do capitalist party labels mean now-a-days? Less than nothing. There is no difference between the two old parties and no fundamental difference between the LaFollette party and the two old ones. Whatever difference appears now will fade away within a short time. They all stand for the capitalist system.

* * * *

SMALL is rather fortunate in having the Tribune and News as opponents. The masses no longer heed those papers. The very fact that they oppose Small gives him prestige in

FOSTER EXPOSES LA FOLLETTE IN ELECTION DEALS

Talks on Unemployment and New War Threats

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 20.—William Z. Foster, noted strike leader and Communist candidate for president of the United States on the Workers Party ticket, in his speech delivered at New Star Casino here, was drastic in his criticism not alone of Coolidge and Davis, but particularly of Robert M. LaFollette.

Foster emphasized the coming unemployment crisis and the threat of a new war.

Unscrupulous Political Trader.

He said: "Robert M. LaFollette, the man who is being hailed as a Messiah by liberals, professional labor leaders, and many misguided workers in the present campaign, is guilty of the most unscrupulous political trading ever witnessed in American politics.

"Here in New York he is entering into a deal with Al Smith, the Tammany candidate, with the socialist party in apparent agreement. LaFollette is to hand over the progressive and socialist votes to Smith, and in return Smith will knife Davis and throw his Tammany following to the Wisconsin senator.

"LaFollette is posing as a martyr in California because there the supreme court, influenced by the Coolidge machine, refused to allow his electors to go on the ballot. Yet a few days ago LaFollette agents, Attorney General Ekern (to whom he wrote the famous letter denouncing the Communists in the St. Paul convention) and Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, tried to pull the same stunt on the Workers Party presidential candidate in Wisconsin. It was only due to the aggressive action of the Workers Party and the wide publicity which it developed that forced LaFollette's agents out of their untenable position and put the Communist candidates on the Wisconsin ballot.

Last Reserve of Capitalism.

"LaFollette is the last reserve of capitalism, and he is performing the same historical function that MacDonald performs in England and Herriot in France. The LaFollette

SPOLANSKY IN NET AGAIN AS FACT JUGGLER

Tampers with Truth in the Salsedo Case

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Who killed Andrea Salsedo? Was it, as Jake Spolansky affirms, fear of his own comrades, or was it hysteria induced by six weeks' torture under the brutal police "third degree" that finally, in May, 1920, caused this mild-mannered young Italian idealist to fling himself from a window high up in a building on Park Row, New York City?

Once again, Spolansky's financial interest in playing up "conspiracy" has led him into tampering with dangerous, double-edged facts.

The Labor Defense Council Happens To Know the Facts.

As revealed here in the DAILY WORKER, they present an indictment not only of Spolansky but of the whole degenerate police system, with its "confession" producing "goldfish rooms" in Chicago and its "chambers of horrors" in New York.

In the Chicago Daily News of yesterday, Spolansky tells of more fantastic plots; this time, for a change, they are anarchist plots instead of Communist plots. He presents no evidence whatever, but to make his story seem realistic, he goes into detail about the homicide of Salsedo, which is one of the best-known cases in the history of the department; he retails, with fancy flourishes of his own, the old yarn fabricated by former Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, when under fire for his "red raids" of 1920. As usual, Spolansky pretends to be telling the story for the first time.

Spolansky's Tale.

Spolansky tells us how Salsedo, "an anarchist typesetter of Paterson, N. J.," was arrested on evidence given to the detectives by a fellow anarchist by the name of Ella, and remained, "by his own free will" in the custody of the police over a period of weeks, during which time (says Spolansky) he "confessed to everything" and gave

LOOKS AS IF U. S. CONSIDERED ITSELF AT WAR WITH SOVIET RULE

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Anton Karachun's appeal for clemency, denied by Secretary of War Weeks, will be reconsidered as the result of a hearing given by war department officials to Attorney Thomas M. Woodward and Roger N. Baldwin, who are to file new briefs and present further evidence.

Karachun enlisted in the American forces during the war, altho he was a citizen of Russia. He was sent to Siberia and forced to fight against his fellow Russians. He deserted, was captured, and was sentenced to serve 20 years in prison for desertion.

Woodward and Baldwin argued that Karachun could not be guilty of desertion to the authority of his own nation, nor be legally obligated to fight against his own people. But even if he were guilty of desertion, the United States was not at war with Russia, and for desertion in time of peace the maximum legal penalty is 5 years imprisonment. He has already served 4 years.

Action by the department is anticipated in 4 or 5 weeks.

GITLOW WILL GET HEARTY WELCOME AT REVERE, MASS.

(Special to the Daily Worker)

REVERE, Mass., Oct. 20.—Benjamin Gitlow will speak here Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, at Eagle's Hall. Revere had a series of successful open air meetings during this campaign which has put the Workers Party in closer touch with the working masses. Especially effective was the meeting with J. J. Ballam, candidate for governor of this state, who held the largest crowd we have had yet for fully two hours exposing the corruption of the two old parties and the betrayal of the working class by LaFollette. It was a straight-from-the-shoulder Communist talk and made clear to all workers that this system is crumbling and there is only one way to meet the situation, by the social revolution.

Our campaign meetings have paved the way for a successful meeting for Comrade Gitlow Thursday night. Revere will close the election with this meeting and all preparations are ready for a tremendous demonstration.

The city that earned a banner from the DAILY WORKER will not disappoint our standard bearer.

ROWAN FACTION KEEPS THE I.W.W. CASE IN COURT

Convention Condemns the Injunction Sought

While the I. W. W. convention now in session in Emmet Memorial Hall was issuing a statement condemning the injunction brot by the Rowan-Bowerman faction, James Rowan was appearing yesterday before Master in Chancery Fred Bernstein asking for a postponement of the case.

When the temporary administration committee of the I. W. W., elected by the convention, asked Rowan to withdraw the injunction proceedings from the capitalist courts in the interests of the I. W. W. as a whole," Rowan refused point blank, declaring he will go thru with the injunction.

Griffith Withdraws Name.

James Griffith declared in Bernstein's office yesterday that he wished his name withdrawn from connection with the injunction against the Doyle-Fisher group, as he recognizes the temporary administration committee's authority.

The injunction hearing was again postponed by request of Rowan's lawyer, William Bigelow. The Rowan group seem to be delaying proceedings as long as possible, the I. W. W. national headquarters meanwhile being locked up by the temporary injunction.

The statement sent by the convention to the rank and file membership related what action has been taken so far and asked the support of the membership in straightening out the controversy within the organization.

Wastes Organization's Funds.

Fred Bernstein gave the wobblies something to think about when sitting as judge over the injunction case, he asked them why they didn't settle their affairs out of court, but Rowan remained obdurate. "You are wasting all the funds of your organization to no purpose," said even the capitalist judge, but Rowan declared he will go thru with his injunction against the Doyle-Fisher group.

The temporary administration committee, now conducting the affairs of the organization in the place of the suspended general executive board and the administration officers, announced that George Williams has been appointed temporary business manager of the Industrial Solidarity and Industrial Pioneer, I. W. W. publications, in the place of Frank Gallagher who resigned yesterday.

Hold Up Audit.

The auditing of all books and accounts of the I. W. W., by the convention has been held in abeyance until the books of both factions can be secured and investigated. The grievance committee, which is to report on grievances not pertaining to the controversy, was told to get busy and hand in a definite report on which the convention might act.

All suspended officers of both factions have been ordered to appear before the convention at ten o'clock this morning and give their reports to the convention in written form, and to

SPECIAL DAILY WORKER ISSUES FOR NOV. 7TH

Nov. 1 and Nov. 6 the Dates of Two Editions

Special editions of the DAILY WORKER, in commemoration of the seventh anniversary of the glorious Russian Revolution, will be a feature of nation-wide celebrations that will be held by American Communists during the week of November first to seventh.

The DAILY WORKER will have two special editions for this working class celebration, one of which will appear Saturday, Nov. 1, and the second of which will be issued Thursday, Nov. 6.

Rally Our Best Writers.

The pens of the ablest writers in the American and international Communist movement have been enlisted in the effort to make these special Russian Seventh Year numbers of the DAILY WORKER unparalelled in the history of celebration editions.

This year's anniversary is of particular interest and importance to the workers, not only of Russia but of every other country, since it marks the definite rise to security and reconstruction.

While the conditions of the workers of the European capitalist nations are becoming worse with the passage of days, while more and more workers are feeling the bitter lash of starvation in the unemployment crisis in capitalist America, the workers of Soviet Russia are having their conditions bettered daily.

Imperialist powers, one after the other, are rushing to give belated recognition to the workers' republic and any final doubt as to the stability of the Soviet regime and its retention of the confidence of the masses has been dispelled with the swift elimination of the last counter-revolutionary attempt in Georgia.

Among the Contributors.

Among those who will contribute to the special issues are: Stalin, secretary of the Russian Communist Party, William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, William F. Dunne and J. Louis Engdahl, editors of the DAILY WORKER, Earl R. Browder, editor of The Workers Monthly, C. E. Ruthenberg, Workers Party secretary, Alexander Bittelman, Max Bedacht, Oliver Carlson, Tom John O'Flaherty, James P. Cannon, and a host of others.

Workers Party branches all over the country are urged to send in their bundle orders for the DAILY WORKER special issues so that the amount to be printed may be calculated and no branches disappointed.

I. W. W. CONVENTION PLANS TO RE-WRITE ENTIRE CONSTITUTION

The entire constitution of the I. W. W. is to be re-written from cover to cover, and the present constitution of the organization has been laid on the table, following the action taken by the I. W. W. convention in Emmet Memorial Hall, yesterday.

The convention passed a report of the committee on constitution and by-laws declaring :. "Resolved that the constitution of the I. W. W. be re-written to conform to the principles of the preamble of the I. W. W. and that we accept the preamble of the I. W. W. as written."

It is admitted by the delegates that the constitution as it now stands is "inconsistent, contradicts itself in many places, and in some parts conflicts with the preamble of the I. W. W. and the principles of a revolutionary working class organization."

EBERT ISSUES DECREE ENDING THE REICHSTAG

Means New Government After New Election

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—President Ebert, the socialist head of the German republic, this afternoon signed a decree dissolving the German Reichstag.

This means a new government and a general election.

Compromise Fails Again.

President Ebert's action was prompted by the advice of his cabinet all compromise having failed. The new elections will be for the people to determine whether or not they wish a nationalist government.

Chancellor Marx had spent the day in an effort to extend the government coalition so as to include German nationalists in the cabinet. It had been hoped that dissolution of the Reichstag would be averted owing to the belief that such action would shatter world confidence in German financial and commercial stability.

MacDonald in Hard Fight.

LONDON, Oct. 20. — Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who is facing a hard fight for re-election to commons in the Aberavon district, issued an election statement today making direct appeal to the people to return to him to power.

"I ask the country to give me power to carry on the work of the labor party," said the manifesto, "if only a minority of the government laborites won it would rid the country of its confidence in the labor party.

The tories, gaining in confidence now are talking of securing a safe majority.

SUPREME COURT FOR JURY TRIAL IN CONTEMPT CASE

Decision Grows Out of Big Railroad Strike

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Strikers charged with contempt of federal injunctions during the railroad strike of 1922 are entitled to trial by jury, the United tSates supreme court ruled today.

A similar ruling was made in the case of persons accused of violating injunctions issued in other labor disturbances.

Claim Repairs Interfered With.

The court sustained the right of Sam Michaelson and nine other railroad workers to a jury trial on a charge of contempt in violating an injunction restraining interference with employes of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad.

They were charged with attempting to prevent repairs being made to locomotives.

In another case the court said that S. C. Sandfour, tried in Kentucky without a jury for contempt of court, was entitled to a jury trial. He was charged with contempt during a strike of employes of the Canoe Creek Coal company.

Lower Courts Reversed.

The circuit court of appeals in affirming the district court held that the jury trial guarantee of the Clayton Act applied to the case, but held the act unconstitutional in this respect. The decision was reversed by the supreme court.

The supreme court of the United States today announced a recess from October 27 to November 17.

25 Dead in Movie Disaster

ATHENS, Oct. 20. — Pickpockets were blamed by police today for the false alarm of fire and stampede which cost 25 lives with 18 injured in a motion picture theatre here yesterday. Most of the victims were children.

ROME, Oct. 20.—A special set of stamps, depicting the four principal Roman churches and the opening and closing of the jubilee will be issued to commemorate holy year, the government announced.

On a Labor Faker's Trail

FARRINGTON IS SHOWN AS BOSS' "INSIDE MAN"

Uses Union Constitution Against Coal Diggers

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Eight.)

The rank and file of the Illinois miners are firmly convinced that Frank Farrington is an agent of the Illinois coal operators. When asked why, if this is the case, they continue to elect him, they grow resentful and declare that they have never voted for him. In fact, the writer traveled thru a great part of the coal mining districts of this state and he did not meet half a dozen miners who admit they voted for Farrington. But Frank counts the votes, which makes a big difference.

There are many reasons why the miners believe Farrington is a paid agent of the coal operators. In the first place, they know he never works gratis. He always has had his hand out for the long green. His dealings with Frank L. Smith, the candidate for the republican nomination for governor in 1916 against Frank L. Lowden is evidence of this. According to Farrington's own testimony, he refused to move until Smith came across with the money.

FARRINGTON IS

(Note—In previous articles it was stated that Smith was a democrat. He was a republican. Farrington, like Lewis, is a republican in politics, tho he does not let political lines stand in the way of his dealings with the coal operators.)

Wanted Separate Pact.

During the strike of 1922 Farrington, in opposition, to the decision of the International Executive Board tried to negotiate a separate agreement between District 12 and the coal operators. This plan was frustrated

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS TEXAS STAND FOR "STRICTLY WHITE PRIMARIES"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The supreme court of the United States today affirmed action by Texas courts in holding legal "strictly white primaries" in Texas.

A suit by C. N. Love and other colored citizens of Houston was brought against James S. Grifith and other members of the city democratic executive committee and the Houston election judges for ordering primary elections participated in by white citizens exclusively and denying the colored citizens a claimed right to vote for selection of candidates for city offices.

The colored voters brought suit in the local court to restrain the democratic executive committee from holding a strictly white man's primary. This court and other Texas state courts held the question was political and not judicial and the courts were without jurisdiction.

STRIKE OF 18,000 MINERS THREATENS IN PENNSYLVANIA

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Oct. 20.—A general strike of 18,000 miners at twenty collieries of the Glen Alden Coal company is expected to break today due to the company's utter disregard of the new wage agreement. The miners charge, thru their grievance committee, that the company is not living up to its agreemen with the union.

While the miners are working out final plans for the strike the company is negotiating with John L. Lewis asking him to prevent the strike.

NELSON GETS IN BAD IN RABID JAB AT M'CABE

Swabeck Helps Return Attack on Reactionary

Disgust of the delegates to the Chicago Federation of Labor with the reactionary and underhand tactics of Vice-President Oscar Nelson was clearly shown at the last meeting of the Federation.

A resolution recommending that the Chicago federation follow the example of the Illinois State Federation of Labor in conducting an investigation of the activities of Dawes, and pointing out in addition that Secretary of Labor Davis, who is supposedly "friendly to labor," had endorsed the candidacy of Dawes, and that therefore Dawes and Davis must be of one mind, was introduced by Delegate McCabe, representative of Painters' Union, Local No. 180.

Nelson Clouds the Issue

In spite of the fact that sentiment in the Federation ran one hundred per cent against Dawes and Davis, Oscar Nelson attempted to cloud the issue by questioning the personal motives of McCabe.

"It is not because Delegate McCabe wishes to dispel illusions concerning Davis that he introduces this resolution," said Nelson. "It is because McCabe has a personal grudge against Davis."

Nelson accused McCabe of having left the fraternal organization known as the Loyal Order of the Moose to accept a position with the Fraternal Order of Owls, and of having acted as a "stool-pigeon" in one organization for the benefit of the other. For this reason, Nelson said, McCabe had incurred the enmity of Davis, who is at the head of the Moose organization. Nelson went so far as to mention that McCabe had been in jail, and implied that his personal integrity was not above question.

McCabe Returns Attack

McCabe denounced the implication that he was a stool-pigeon and a spy. He told, too, how the time he spent in jail was the result of persecution by an enormously wealthy corporation, and how he had been acquitted of the charge placed against him—a fact which Nelson had failed to mention.

Nelson's efforts to cloud the issue at stake were roundly scored by Arne Swabeck, delegate from Painters' Local Union No. 194. Swabeck pointed out that connections of delegates with such organizations as the Loyal Order of the Moose, or the Ancient Order of Owls, had nothing to do with the question of whether or not Dawes and Davis were enemies of labor. He showed that no one in the Federation questioned the anti-labor attitude of Dawes, and recalled the activity of Davis in introducing laws which would require every immigrant to have his finger-prints taken, thereby giving the government a chance to shadow him in all of his activities.

Slander Typical of Nelson

"The attack on Delegate McCabe is typical of the tactics employed by Nelson," was a charge brought by Swabeck which brought thunderous applause from the delegates.

A weak attempt on the part of Nelson to justify his stand brought expression of anger to the lips of the delegates present, and caused Delegate, of the Painters' Local 194, to leave the hall in disgust.

A resolution asking that the American Federation of Labor be requested, at its 44th annual convention, to go on record as opposed to the imperialist tactics of American capitalists, and asking that the A. F. of L. employ all the power and influence of the organized labor movement of the United States to compell the withdrawal of armed forces from foreign territory, was tabled at the instigation of Secretary Ed Nockles after the delegates had suggested that it be referred to the executive committee.

Foster Exposes LaFollette's Deals illusion is the greatest obstacle to the development of the working class and its struggles."

Speaking of unemployment, Foster said: "I have come clear across the entire continent from the Pacific coast. I have spoken to audiences of workers everywhere. I am shocked at the widespread misery and unemployment existing generally. More than half of the coal diggers of Illinois, where I had three meetings, are completely out of work. The rest are working but a few days a week. I have just come here from New England and there thousands of textile workers are unemployed and their families living in misery and suffering. These unemployment crises are, under capitalism, a curse of the workers' life. We want to stop this inevitable unemployment of capitalist society. It is only by taking the government and power into our own hands, by establishing a workers' and farmers' government, and abolishing the capitalist system and ownership of industry, that unemployment can be finally ended."

But Prepare for War.

On the subject of war, Foster had this to say: "The capitalist governments talk peace in order to cover up their preparations for war. Did you notice the volume of peace talk produced by the capitalist statesmen within the last two months? In Geneva, at the sessions of the assembly of the League of Nations, they talked peace.

"In their parliaments they swore by peace, and the angel of peace was seen hovering over every governmental office of Europe and America. They indulged in an orgy of peace. It is the same kind of peace which existed in 1914, just before the outbreak of the world war. It is the false peace of the capitalists to hide their nefarious war measures.

Join the Workers Party!

"England and Turkey are at each other's throat over the oil fields of Mosul. The United States and Japan are fighting each other for power in China with the aid of Chinese mercenaries. England and the United States are quickly mobilizing their forces in preparation for a coming showdown, while France and England are simply maneuvering for position as a first step towards new conflicts.

"We must not delude ourselves about the ability of the workers to prevent new wars, as long as capitalism remains in power. The only way to fight war is to fight against capitalist rule, for the workers to seize political power and to establish a workers' and farmers' government in the United States as well as in every other country. This can only be accomplished by the building of a strong mass Communist Party." Foster concluded with an appeal to join the Workers Party, American Section of the Communist International.

Spolansky Juggles Facts Again

out important information implicating anarchists in all parts of the country. Then (continues Spolansky) he became frightened that his comrades would punish him as a traitor; whereupon he jumped from a 14-story window, thus taking his own life.

Jake is forced to admit in his article, however, that "Ella never went so far as to make a full confession." What he does not tell us is that no arrests or discoveries of any sort have been disclosed as a result of evidence supposed to have been furnished by either Ella or Salsedo.

Following is the DAILY WORKER'S true story of the affair, compiled from information in the hands of the Labor Defense Council.

Unlawful Arrest.

Because he was an alien, and because Palmer had to have alien victims for his "red raids," Salsedo was unlawfully arrested for deportation, without a shred of evidence against him, on a warrant secured from the federal department of labor. The warrant required the official executing it to grant his prisoner a hearing—that is, to take him to an immigrant station where he could be examined and could defend himself according to law before a duly authorized examining immigrant inspector. This was not done. From the hour of his arrest to the moment of his death, Salsedo was in the custody, all unknown to the department of labor, of secret service detectives. He was given no hearing such as the law required and the warrant of arrest commanded.

An explanation of Salsedo's captivity was adopted by Mr. Palmer and his gumshoe gang, to the effect that Salsedo and Robert Ella were detained by their own will in the Park Row building from which Salsedo's body tumbled. "Subsequent to the issuance and before service of the warrants could have been effected," Palmer declared, "Salsedo and Ella disclosed some very important information in connection with the bomb plot of June 2, 1919." The "important information" referred to by Mr. Palmer is still a secret.

Delivered After Two Months.

Both Salsedo and Ella were still in the custody of Mr. Palmer's detectives when the Salsedo homicide occurred, which was two months after the detectives received the warrants of arrest. Both were held by them in secret custody until the homicide. No steps were taken meanwhile toward bringing the prisoners to an immigrant station for lawful custody and requisite legal hearing. But no sooner had the Salsedo homicide occurred than those same detectives of justice detectives hustled Ella out of their custody and into the custody of the immigrant officials at Ellis Island. This spasmodic delivery of Ella to his lawful custodians is not easily reconcilable with a wholehearted acceptance of the theory that for the preceding two months he and Salsedo had been prisoners "by consent"—even if that kind of imprisonment were not a legal novelty.

And the pretenses of the department of justice dicks, which have gone the way of all the other thrilling pretenses about bomb plots, are hardly consistent with the refusal of the department of justice to prosecute Ella, nor for their urgency in demanding his speedy deportation.

"Third Degree" Caused Death.

That the long detention of Salsedo and Ella by secret agents of the department of justice in their building in New York was a gross violation of law is clear enough. It is also clear that this lawlessness on the part of the agents of capitalist law was accompanied with "third degree" cruelties culminating in Salsedo's dramatic death.

No investigation of the affair appears to have been made, either by federal or by state authority. Nothing is definitely known except that Salsedo was lawlessly a prisoner, that he was held incommunicado in a secret prison controlled by detectives of the department of justice, that his prison was fourteen stories above the street, and that his body struck the pavement with an impact that turned it to a pulp.

More on Spolansky Coming.

The Labor Defense Council will continue to expose, thru the medium of the DAILY WORKER, the further "anti-red exposures" that Spolansky may cook up for the Chicago Daily News. Moreover, the Labor Defense Council has in the last few days come into possession of additional information concerning Spolansky himself. All this will be made public in the DAILY WORKER.

Wu Suffers Losses.

LONDON, Oct. 20. — Casualties in the fighting between General Chang Tso-Lin's Manchurian troops and the Chihli forces of General Wu Pei Fu in the Shanhai-Kwan sector of the northern Chinese battle front were estimated at 40,000 in a Central News dispatch from Tien Tsin this afternoon.

Fly Swatter in Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — A fight over the ownership of a fly swatter patent was settled today by the supreme court of the United States, which refused to review a lower court decision giving the patent rights to a Pennsylvania company.

LAKELAND, Fla., Oct. 20.—Several Atlantic coast line bridges between Fort Ogden, 72 miles south of Lakeland and Punta Gorda, 80 miles from here, were washed away this afternoon according to information reaching here.

INCREASE OF $6.60 IS WON BY DRIVERS

Newspaper Toilers Get Other Concessions

An increase in wages of $6.60 per week over the old scale of $36.50 was gained by the newspaper drivers of Chicago by their threat to strike against all of the newspapers of the city.

Another gain of the union was the right to full-time pay for the days on which the drivers are required to work only part time.

The bosses have been in the habit of hiring the men for a full day, sending them home after a few hours, and paying on the basis of time spent in working. Hereafter, a full day's hire will mean a full day's pay.

Only the packing of the convention hall by drivers who were right-hand men of the bosses prevented the drivers from gaining their demand for an eight-hour day and a vacation of two weeks. The hall at 220 S. Ashland avenue holds a hundred people. More than three hundred drivers were forced to wait outside of the hall while decisions were made inside.

The DAILY WORKER led the way in acceding to the demands of the strikers. As soon as the demands of the drivers became known, the DAILY WORKER sent to the executive board of the union a letter saying that it would grant willingly the demands that were finally put up. Drivers at work for the Communist paper voted to accept the settlement, and refrained from striking.

By acceding to the demands of the strikers, the DAILY WORKER drew the line which would have to be toed by the other newspapers of the city. All of the papers settled with the men within a few hours.

BORAH LUGS HIS SLUSH SLEUTHS TO WASHINGTON

Not Much Excitement is Expected

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Washington, the fountain head of political corruption, is agog these days with expectancy over the announcement that Senator William E. Borah intended to move his slush fund investigating committee to the Capitol.

Washington likes investigations so well that it considers it a matter for protest to hold a probe anywhere else. Ever since Coolidge succeeded Harding as chief tenant of the White House, it was one darned probe after another. The probes are by no means ended. They were simply adjourned until after the elections.

Not so Exciting.

The probe into the slush fund is not expected to be as sensational as the other quizzes.

It looks like the united front of the democrats and LaFollettites against the republicans. It is purely a case of envy and political campaigning. All capitalist parties are making frantic appeals for funds and the class lines are not drawn. But the big capitalists are putting their money behind Cal knowing that Davis hasn't a chance, tho it is an open secret that he is looked upon with much favor by the big fellows.

Frank P. Walsh who is the leading interrogator for Senator LaFollette expects to have associated with him in the task of making the republican boodle hounds talk, Samuel Untermyer of New York, a democrat and prominent supporter of Davis.

Government Crisis in Great Britain Halts Anglo-Russ Treaties

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—Ratification by the Soviet government of the Anglo-Russian agreement has been postponed owing to the governmental crisis in England, it is definitely stated in a resolution of the central executive committee of the government, introduced before the all-Russian congress of Soviets.

Favorable termination in the near future of the negotiations with Japan and early unconditional recognition of the Soviet by France are expected, according to the resolution.

The foreign commissariat is instructed to continue its policy of promoting and consolidating friendly relations with foreign countires.

The War in the Desert.

ROME, Oct. 20.—Two Italian airplanes which bombed the oasis of Jalo, heretofore considered impossible to reach, returned safely, after an eight-hour flight to Benghazi. Jalo was headquarters for Senussi insurgents.

Hope Slips for Grand Duke as Russia Cheers Chicherin's Challenge

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, there are a few pretenders left to the fallen throne of the Russian czars. But the world is taking them less and less seriously. This is true even of the capitalist world, that has troubles of its own.

Even the correspondents of the kept press are getting tired of sending out propaganda for "lost hopes." Milton Bronner, for instance, in his correspondence to the Buffalo Evening Times, has a laugh all his own at the pretensions of Cyril Romanoff, cousin of the late Czar Nicholas II, to the title of czar.

* * * * *

The "grand duke" has his adherents, a dwindling number, outside the borders of Soviet Russia. Fearing that no one would soon be left to pay any attention to him, the duke recently issued a pronunciamento from his retreat at Coburg, Germany, calling himself the czar of the Russians, and a lot of other things.

The correspondent, Bronner, thereupon, decided to issue a proclamation on his own account, claiming it to be more fitting to the times than the duke's own declaration. Bronner's effort is worth preserving, in that it repeats to a great extent, what Communists have been contending these last seven years. Bronner's effort on behalf of the duke reads as follows:

THE LAST OF THE ROMANOFFS.

"I, Cyril Romanoff, by virtue of my cousinship with the late Czar Nicholas II, and spurred on by various kinsmen and advisers, hereby proclaim myself czar of all the Russias — outside of Russia.

"I announce myself:

"Grand Duke of New York's phantom Russia.

"Grand Duke of London's little Russia.

"Grand Duke of Paris' make-believe Russia.

"Grand Duke of Berlin's transplanted Russia.

"I proclaim myself the titular ruler of all the charming Russian princess who escaped with their lives and their ropes of pearls; of all the noblemen who saved their skins and their English bonds and stocks; of all the 'poor' Russian to be seen in Europe's great capitals eating expensive meals, drinking costly wines and dancing in the gay cabarets.

"Incidentally, I am also ruler of the real Russian patriots who lost their all in the revolution, and who are now to be seen peddling matches on Galata Bridge in Constantinople, acting as waiters in German restaurants; singing in Parisian cafes, and otherwise eking out a bare living."

* * * * *

It is seven years now, since that Red November Day, Nov. 7, 1917, when the Bolsheviks took power in Russia, that the grand dukes have been hanging around the seats of capitalist power, in Europe, and in the United States, hoping for the return of czarist rule at Moscow.

But today the throne room, in Moscow's Kremlin, of the czardom that is gone, thunders with the applause that greets the remarks of Georg Chicherin, commissar of foreign affairs of the Workers' Republic. That applause doesn't sound so good to the ears of the self-styled grand duke, in far-off Germany, no more than it does to the ears of the foreign ambassadors in Moscow who are in attendance at the meeting of the All-Russian Executive Committee.

Chicherin declares that the world's imperialists, who thru the Dawes plan turned Germany into a vassal state, now seek to destroy Soviet Russia's independence in devious ways.

"Never," cried Chicherin, "will they succeed. We will fight back such attempts with every means at our command."

* * * * *

Chicherin warns that the imperialists of the Versailles peace, joined by the United States thru the Dawes plan, may now attempt to draw Germany into the combination against Soviet Russia. This is the Germany with its socialist president, Fritz Ebert, that provides a sanctuary to the scum of the fallen czardom, and becomes an ally of world imperialism.

This is the Germany of the Second (Socialist) International that recently tried to strike a new blow at Soviet Russia thru plotting for the overthrow of Soviet Rule in Georgia. But the counter-revolutionary effort in Georgia failed most miserably. Sure prophecy of the fate that awaits every other effort to undermine and destroy the Russian workers' victory.

BEST MARSH CAN DO IS TO PLEA WITH COOLIDGE TO FIRE WALLACE

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A demand that President Coolidge remove Henry C. Wallace from the office of secretary of agriculture has been telegraphed to the White House from California by Benjamin C. Marsh, managing director of the Farmers' National Council.

Marsh reminded Coolidge that a president is known by the cabinet he keeps, and that "even tho the meat packers contributed heavily to pay off the deficit of the republican national committee incurred to win the 1920 election," Wallace's maladministration of the packers' and stockyards' act was so notorious that his further presence in the official family of Coolidge could not be regarded as an accident.

In a letter to Wallace, replying to an attack on Marsh by the secretary, Marsh calls attention to the fact that Wallace received "large payments for the ads of the railway executives and financial owners in your paper called Wallace's Farmer," when the Farmers' Natl. Council was fighting the Esch-Cummins' bill. He also reminds Wallace that the latter "refused for two years and three months to take legal action to compel the meat packers to keep honest books altho we repeatedly urged you to do so." Finally he promises to keep on Wallace's trail, and that of the "farm organizations subservient to the financial interests whom you have so faithfully served as secretary of agriculture."

answer any questions the convention may wish to ask.

Charles Grey, in making a supplementary report to the convention yesterday afternoon, declared that the injunction proceedings, if not settled out of court, will cost the I. W. W. from five to ten thousand dollars for lawyers and other fees. Grey told the convention that for yesterday's appearance before the master in chancery, the I. W. W. had to pay $100, and that for every day of the actual hearing the I. W. W. will have to pay $500. In spite of this Grey said, Rowan remained steadfast in his refusal to take the controversy out of the jurisdiction of the labor-hating judge.

Two delegates to the convention withdrew as delegates just before adjournment yesterday, on the ground that the convention is prejudiced in favor of the Doyle-Fisher group. The delegates, Matt Johnson and Pat Campbell, did not take part in yesterday's session. They wrote Chairman Welinder withdrawing because they "find that over one-third of the delegates took part in the controversy on the side of the Doyle-Fisher group."

Ryan of the Rowan group argued wild charges yesterday that thirteen delegates now seated in the convention have no right there. He charged Rumbaugh with throwing away his wobbly card twice, and also made charges against Fred Fisher, Joe Jordan, Delegates Mann, Thompson, Hanson, Grey and others.

U. S. Supreme Court Postpones Argument In Anita Whitney Case

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Charlotte Anita Whitney's appeal to the U. S. supreme court from the sentence of one to fourteen years passed upon her by a California court for mere membership in the Communist-Labor Party in 1919, was up for argument Oct. 16, but was postponed for a month or more. Management of the appeal in the supreme court in the national capital has been entrusted to the American Civil Liberties Union.

This case rests upon the issue as to whether a citizen may be imprisoned for having merely belonged to a proscribed organization, when not convicted of having entertained and advocated proscribed ideas.

The California supreme court, by a divided vote, upheld the verdict of guilty. Miss Whitney has been at liberty under bail, pending final decision at Washington.

TRAITORS TO COMINTERN ARE REBUKED BY SWEDISH WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—The results of the general elections in Sweden are as follows: The Communist Party 62,412 votes, which gives the party four seats in the Rigsdag; the Hoglund group which split the party and went over to reformism only polled 25,900 votes, which proves that the Swedish workers who are not fooled by Mr. Branting's social-democracy, are still following the leadership of the Communist International. Hoglund only succeded in discrediting himself and his group and by his few votes his group will have one member in the Rigsdag.

RUTHENBERG IS FIRST SPEAKER AT OPEN FORUM

Talks on Parties and Issues in Campaign

"Parties and issues in the election campaign of 1924," was the subject of a talk given on Sunday evening by C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, to more than three hundred party members and sympathizers, who had gathered in the Ashland Auditorium to attend the first session this year of the party's open forum.

Explains LaFollette Movement.

Comrade Ruthenberg reviewed for his hearers the character of the republican and democratic candidates and platforms. He then launched into an explanation of the movement headed by Senator LaFollette.

"The LaFollette movement finds its basis in the discontent of the small manufacturer and property owner with the dominance of Wall Street. The fact that many labor unions have thrown their support to LaFollette does not make of the LaFollette group a labor group, for leaders of the LaFollette type neither can nor will act in the interest of the workers. This has been amply proved by the activities of LaFollette's prototypes in Europe—Herriot, MacDonald, Ebert, etc.

"Against the movement of the petty bourgeoisie, seeking a method of class collaboration, the Communist Party raises the standard of revolutionary action."

First of Winter Season.

This lecture was the first of the series which will be given at the Ashland theatre every Sunday evening this winter. Comrade Harrison George has been selected to act as permanent chairman.

Exposing the frequent "exposures" of the "reds"—particularly the "exposures" by the one hundred per cent American, Jake Spolansky, now running in the Daily News, will be the task which Comrade J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will undertake at the forum next Sunday evening. A week later, Comrade Alexander Bittelman, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, will speak on "Communism versus LaFollettelism."

Every lecture is to be followed by a period in which the audience will ask questions of the speaker. For a short time afterwards the meeting will be thrown open for discussion.

CAL'S CHIEF LABOR SKATE BANS STRIKE

Lewis and Operators Keep in Touch

By THOMAS MYERSCOUGH.
(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Oct. 20—Only a few hours passed between the calling of a general strike of the Glen Alden Coal company properties, by the general grievance committee of the local unions attached to these mines and the publication of a lengthy telegram from John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, to the effect that the strike was illegal and that the men must return to work.

The strike was ordered by the general grievance body at a meeting in Wilkes Barre on Saturday afternoon, but the Sunday morning papers carried a lengthy article built around Lewis' telegram and a statement by District President Cappellini, ordering the miners employed by the Glen Alden Co. to disregard the strike order. Lewis' order dated at Springfield, Ill., was in response to a wire from a high official of the coal company, which indicates the very close connections held by these people.

Lewis Close to Bosses.

If Cappellini's statement is to be taken at face value, then it is apparent that Lewis was in receipt of the news regarding the strike order, even before the president of the district who lives on the ground, so to speak.

That the miners employed by the Glen Alden have just cause to take strike action no one will deny, for there have been grievances galore during the past three months, and the slow process employed to adjudicate same has more than worn out the patience of the men affected.

In spite of this order, the mines of this company were nearly all idle Monday and Tuesday, while the officials have ordered special meetings to enable them to assemble the rank and file and urge the return to the task of piling up profits for the coal barons. While the men responded to the strike call in large percentage, it is conceded that they will return just as quickly, with few exceptions, and punishment of the Lewis kind will be summarily dealt to those refusing.

Discharged Without Cause.

We can well ask, "what are grievances to Lewis, when the coal company profits are temporarily stopped?" For it matters not that men are discharged without cause, or are, by one of the many tricks employed, forced into the army of the unemployed without the formality of being fired. This kind of a thing is what the strike order was based on.

Of course, the vice-president of the coal company, in a statement made public Monday, admitted that there were men who were not employed, but that the company was doing its best to take care of them. The fact is that there are all kinds of wrongs being perpetrated by all the coal companies, and when it takes a couple of months to get even a hearing on the grievances, it not to be wondered at when the men decide to go on strike.

Defending Coal Lords.

Cappellini knows this, for he is the one who was most instrumental in forming the general grievance bodies and for that very reason. With him tho it is different now. He is just as eloquent as Lewis himself in defending the coal lords against the things that completely stop their profit, even tho there are none so adept at game as he was when he was engaged in his fights with former president Dempsey and later with president Brennan.

This region, because of the many wrongs perpetrated against the miners, is famous for such strikes, so much so that Lewis sent a commission of international board members down here to threaten the men against local strikes, and the coal companies have not failed to take advantage of the threats made against the miners in this respect. They have been known to laugh at the grievances brought before them, telling the men that they dare not strike.

Strike Belated.

The Glen Alden strike was called and took effect in spite of the warning, and it should have been called long ago by the the officials, if they were at all concerned in the welfare of the membership. On the other hand another general strike of another coal company was averted by the action of the company in ordering some of their employes to join the union. This was the Hudson Coal Co., but their action was not taken until they could see that the general grievance body meant business and had assembled to take a strike vote. At the meeting there appeared a representative of the coal company, a district official and a federal mediator.

Several strikes of a local character were also had at the mines of the Pennsylvania Coal Co., and one of them held out after all the others had been scared back to work. At this mine an attempt was made by international board member Campbell to get a "return to work" vote, but despite his efforts and those of federal mediator Davis, a gun display by an unidentified miner broke up the meeting, and it's all because the men are treated as they are, as mere wage slaves.

News articles in the local press tho are of a tone that indicates that the life of the general grievance bodies is going to be shot to pieces by being outlawed. While there is nothing to indicate that the officers have decided on such action, it is well known that the constitution is very flexible on the subject and the only thing that is necessary to outlaw them is an order to that effect.

These bodies have been a good thing for the miners, they have provided a means of centralizing their strength and power, for at regular intervals men from each of the mines meet at a central point and the grievances at each of the mines are aired and action is decided upon.

Need for Protection.

Mention of this is made so that the miners will begin now to protect themselves against any attempt to do away with the general grievance committees, for to allow this weapon to slip out of their hands will mean the end of the only meager bit of protection the anthracite miners have to depend on. What should be done is to merge the different grievance bodies into an all-embracing general body, whose first task would be to bring about some degree of uniformity in wage schedules and working conditions. All power to the workers who pay the bills, prepare to replace the tyrants who now rule instead of serving you, with men who know your needs and fear not to fight for them.

WE ARE TAPPING YOU ON THE ARM

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

A VERY old man was walking ahead of me. His shoulders were stooped. He negotiated the curbs with difficulty. His head bowed low, shook to and fro constantly. His legs seemed to insist that shoes were made to wear out sidewalks. Looking at him made me feel as I did in younger days when stealing rides on brick wagons—days before asphalt was invented and concrete discovered. Looking at him made me wonder if he'd make another ten feet before he fell apart.

A spritely young woman advanced towards the old man from the opposite direction. She smiled at him knowingly but he did not see. All he saw was the sidewalk. As she passed him she tapped him on the arm. The old man walked half a block, stopped short, looked around—but his acquaintance had turned a corner. It took half a block for the tap to register in the old man's brain.

There are 400 cities in the United States in which the Workers Party has organizations. We're tapping each of these 400 on the arm. We are reminding you that on Nov. 7, 1917, the workers, peasants and soldiers of Russia established the first Red Republic. We're reminding you that for seven years the proletariat of Soviet Russia have kept the Red Flag flying in the face of the vicious Wall Streets of all countries. We're reminding you that a 100 per cent Communist organization should celebrate this anniversary of the seventh victorious year of Soviet Russia in every one of the cities where it has membership.

Will our tap on your arm register instantly? Or will our locals and branches "look down, see nothing but sidewalk, walk for half a block, stop short, look around" only to abruptly become aware that Nov. 7 has slipped around the corner, not to return during 1924.

I talked to a comrade about this story of tapping you on the arm. He thought a bit more emphasis would be obtained if I took the half block and with it hit our tardy affiliations over the head. Maybe—maybe there are a few, a very few locals and branches who have so far forgotten themselves that they have forgotten Nov. 7 and Soviet Russia. We'd all hate to believe it, tho. And we don't. And who would dare to liken our locals and branches to decrepit old men! In us there is the youth, spirit and inspiration of a cause that is winning!

Communist organizations are not the kind that, looking at them you wonder whether they will last another month before they fall apart. Communist locals and branches never fall apart. They constitute an iron fist which grows and grows until it is large enough to hit the final smashing blow.

WE ARE READY—ARE YOU?

It is a foregone conclusion that every City Central Committee will celebrate the seventh anniversary of the birth of Soviet Russia, Nov. 7. This will total 93 demonstrations.

Every branch in cities where there is no city committee must also celebrate. There are 307 of these.

That makes a total of 400 cities where we have affiliations.

WE ARE READY TO HELP EVERY ONE OF THESE 400 IN EVERY WAY!

We will send you posters with which to advertise.

We will send you a number of the most artistic pins our movement has yet produced, a relief of Lenin and the party emblem in bronze, which are to be sold at your meeting.

We will print a program for your meeting in your language in your federation paper. This program will contain speeches by Lenin and others which are to be read at your celebration.

We will send you an English speaker if you apply.

WRITE US AT ONCE!

If we are to help you then you must write us today. You must let us know that you intend celebrating the seventh anniversary of Soviet Russia. You must begin today arranging the details for your celebration.

Every celebration held will sharpen one of our main instruments of struggle. That is, the net proceeds of all celebrations held, excepting 25 per cent which will remain in the district, is to be sent to the DAILY WORKER, our English daily, so that it may work on and on for the revolution in this country.

To support the DAILY WORKER should enthuse you equally as much as celebrating the victory of Soviet Russia. For victory here is also essential and the DAILY WORKER will help us to victory mightily.

ON THE JOB THIS MINUTE! BEGIN ARRANGEMENTS AT ONCE! YOUR IMMEDIATE AND EARNEST ATTENTION IS DEMANDED!

"BLACK JACK" DESCRIBES CAPITALISM

Our retired-on-full-pay-general has just said something:

"Let us look cold facts in the face. If we knew to a certainty that armed conflict would come in 20 years there would be an immediate demand for preparation. YET THAT IS THE APPROXIMATE INTERVAL THAT WE HAVE HAD IN THE PAST BETWEEN MAJOR WARS."

In plain language, the kind of peace capitalism can guarantee to the workers is a war in every generation. Three MAJOR wars AT LEAST in the average lifetime of every person who is lucky enough not to die in one or the other of these wars. And yet how "Black Jack" and the yellow socialists rave about a little, single "revolution by force and violence!"

There will be a major war every twenty years, says Pershing. What about all the peace slogans and schemes of the capitalist class whom he serves at full pay: the war to end war, the Washington Disarmament Conference, the Dawes Plan of Pacification, the new Disarmament Conference in July, 1925, the Peace Protocol of the League of Nations signed by 54 capitalist governments, the pious, pacifistic balderdash of the MacDonalds, the LaFollettes, the Herriots? All froth, says Pershing, who is in on the know. The approximate interval between major wars is twenty years.

Klan "Buries" Underwood.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 20.—Eighteen members of the Jefferson county grand jury which was recently asked by Senator Underwood to investigate Ku Klux Klan lawlessness, took part in a Klan celebration here yesterday, acting as pallbearers in the burning in effigy of Senator Underwood, conducted by the Klan.

Senator Underwood has charged that the Klan is terrorizing the state of Alabama with its invisible empire. The grand jury members were among the most conspicuous in the Klan celebration, in which 1,000 klansmen were initiated into the Klan before 15,000 spectators.

Two goats, one labeled Oscar Underwood and the other Al Smith, brot up the rear of the procession which "buried" Underwood in a mock funeral.

COURT BLOCKS RELEASE OF 41 NEGRO SOLDIERS

Have Already Been 7 Years in Prison

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 20.—An attempt to secure release for 41 of the Negro troopers of the Twenty-fourth infantry, sentenced to life imprisonment by a general court-martial in December, 1917, on a charge of taking part in a race riot at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, has been frustrated by the United States circuit court of appeals here.

The court has upheld the decision of the United States district court at Leavenworth, Kansas, in denying writs of habeas corpus to the Negro prisoners.

Facts Are Falsified.

The true story of the Sam Houston race riots, which has been consistently falsified by the capitalist newspapers, resembles the story of many other "race riots" for which the Negroes have invariably been imprisoned. It is universally admitted by impartial observers of the Sam Houston affair that a group of Negro soldiers came upon a policeman brutally beating a Negro woman with his club. One of the soldiers tried to remonstrate with the officer, and asked why the woman was not arrested, instead of being assaulted. For his pains, the Negro received a blow from the officer's club. The other Negro soldiers came to the rescue, and manhandled the officer. And the citizens of the town came to the help of the policeman, and drove the soldiers away, firing on them as they fled.

For this affair thirteen of the Negro soldiers were hanged—after a pretense of trial—and many more sentenced to long terms in the federal penitentiaries.

Suffer Terrible Conditions.

From the few men who have been released from the prison can be learned something of the terrible conditions to which the American government condemns its prisoners, and especially its Negro prisoners. Almost unbelievable brutalities—physical and mental—are inflicted on these men.

That the friends of the Negro prisoners will have a difficult time in obtaining a shortening of the sentence is again indicated by the refusal of the courts to permit opportunity for a fair hearing.

Pittsburgh Miners And Steel Workers Greet Communist

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 20.—Miners and steel workers are giving an enthusiastic response to the Communist mass meetings organized by the Workers Party in the Pittsburgh district.

At the meeting addressed by Jay Lovestone, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, at Pittsburgh, several hundred workers turned out. Election literature was well sold and the working men gave liberally to help wage the Communist campaign. Four new members were enrolled at the meeting by the party.

Lovestone told his audience about the present conditions of the working and farming masses. The role of the government and the political parties was traced by the speaker at length. Speaking of the capitalist candidates, Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette, Lovestone declared: "A politician is to be judged by the company he keeps. Coolidge made his way to the White House as a bell-hop for Murray Crane, the head of the vilest school in American employing class politics. Davis, the leader of the democrats, won his first chevrons by helping the West Virginia coal operators evict striking miners.

"He became a national disgrehend in Wall Street politics when he argued for the draft law, conscripting millions of workers and poor farmers during the last imperialist war." The audience was especially interested in the analysis of LaFollette and LaFollette-ism as made by the speaker.

Great enthusiasm was aroused among the workers when Lovestone showed that the only way out for the workers is in their assuming complete political power, setting up a proletarian dictatorship, and organizing an American Soviet Republic to take its place rightfully as a member of an international federation of Soviet Republics—the goal of the Communist International. Israel Blankenstein, the acting district organizer, presided.

RUSSIANS CHARGE AN AGREEMENT EXISTS BETWEEN UNITED STATES AND THE BRITISH AGAINST CHINA

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—That the simultaneous interventionist actions of the great powers in China were preceded by the reaching of an agreement between them on taking China under their tutelage and dividing her into "spheres of influence," is the belief prevalent among Moscow political circles.

In particular, there circulates a version that there exists a special agreement between Great Britain and the United States, which arrangement may have been entered into at the time of secret[illegible] visit to London.

Such surmises find further corroboration in the reports being received from Peking on the co-ordinated action of the British, the American, the French, and the Japanese representatives as well as the commandants of the foreign land and naval forces in China, the activities of the Britishers at Canton and those of the Americans at Shanghai being more especially conspicuous.

Missouri Comrades Mourn the Loss of Very Devoted Worker

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 20.—It is with sad regrets that we report to you the death of our beloved Comrade Rune Lubertousky, 37 years old and wife of Comrade Morris Lubertousky. A bad cold resulting in pneumonia took our comrade from us.

Comrade Lubertousky became interested in the movement 20 years ago and she was an ardent worker in the cause ever since. She was very active in the Kansas City local of the Workers Party along with her husband and nothing was too much or too difficult where party work was concerned. She is survived by seven children.

Conscious that the end had come, she met death with the poise and dignity that she executed all tasks before her. Calling for her seven children and her husband to her bedside, she kissed them all good bye and passed away. The burial took place at two o'clock the afternoon.

POLICE TORTURE YOUNG STUDENT ELEVEN DAYS TO GET HIS 'CONFESSION'

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Friends of Ziang Sung Wan, formerly a student of Columbia University, arrested in New York for the murder of Dr. Ben Sen Wu; Dr. C. H. Hale and Dr. Theodore T. Wong of the Chinese mission in Washington and subsequently sentenced to death five years ago are rejoicing in the news that the supreme court of the United States has ordered a new trial.

Use of the "third degree" to torture a "confession" from the prisoner led to the court's decision, says the statement handed down by Justice Brandies. Ziang Sung Wan was tortured for 11 days by a superintendent of police in Washington and half a dozen detectives — tortured so strenuously that the dicks exhausted themselves. On the eleventh day he signed the "confession" which led to his conviction.

THRONGS CHEER COMMUNISM IN BIG RED NIGHTS

Bronx and Brownsville Hear Party Speakers

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Red Nights in the Bronx and in Brownsville were a tremendous success. The two sets of eleven meetings, addressed by fifty-eight speakers, were well attended and then the audiences and speakers all repaired to the grand wind-up meetings at 10:30 p. m. where H. M. Wicks, J. Padgug, R. Grecht, J. S. Poyntz, C. Krumbein and H. M. Winitsky addressed the Bronx grand wind-up and A. Trachtenberg, F. Warshafsky, B. Lifshitz, J. S. Poyntz, H. M. Wicks, H. M. Winitsky addressed the Brownsville wind-up. Neither the Bronx nor Brownsville have ever experienced such a thrilling adventure and it is a safe bet that the comrades will never forget the wonderful enthusiasm and spirit called forth by these Red Nights held by the New York comrades.

HOOVER SEES INCREASE IN U. S. FOREIGN TRADE OVER PRE-WAR ERA

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has announced that the foreign trade figures for the nine months ending Oct. 1, show a decided increase over the pre-war trade of the United States.

For the nine months ending Oct. 1, the exports from the United States totaled $3,124,146,000. At the same time the imports were $2,904,137,000.

The foreign trade expansion of the United States exceeds that of any other country. It was during the great war that the American business interests developed their commercial machinery, built up their industries, and took away many markets from the European competitors.

The increase over the 1913 figures, however, big as it may be, is actually not as big as surface indications would lead one to conclude. One must take into account the great rise in prices since the pre-war days.

It is also to be noted that there has been a sharp drop in the foreign trade of this country since the war days when European industry was not competing to the extent that it does today with American interests in the world market.

LAFOLLETTE IN K. C. WITH HIS BOBCAT CIRCUS

Dozen College Kids Out to See Parade

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 20.—The circus has come to town! To work up the crowd a professional cheer leader and pep-per-up was hired who drilled them over and over again in "Onward, Christian Soldiers!"

Then a huge flag was unrolled and a dozen college guys on the stage gave some rah-rah yells!

The chairman talked for twenty minutes on the wicked sugar barons, who rob every family in America of $30 a yer. The ghost of Spreckles appeared and cried in anguish: "Don't bite the hand that's feeding you." He solicited donations for "our incorruptible champion." Branch 63 of the Workmen's Circle (who refused to give a cent to the Paterson strikers) gave $25 for "honest government." Much regret was expressed that the lone official of the scab carpenters had gone south with the funds so that no help could be looked for from that source. Our old friend Tim O'Neil, who collected (and kept) contributions for the farmer-labor party last spring, bolted to LaFollette and was then kicked out by Bob LaFollette, Jr., is back on the band wagon. His price originally was the governorship. They convinced him that his third grade English was a bar to any office above the sheriff's. He came down to that. He runs a scab restaurant and uses rat-printing. His assessment had been greased out of him in advance evidently—he made no sound!

Then the Big Noise arrived. He droned on for half an hour about the heroic age, the Epic of the Conquest of the Great West. In those splendid days men lived out their lives in happy prosperity. The trust appeared! He then shoveled off ten minutes of bull on that splendidly statesmanlike—Sherman Anti-Trust law. The enforcement of that will bring back prosperity to our merchants, bankers, manufacturers and—as an afterthot!—workers and farmers. His "constructive suggestions" included "Peace on Earth, God Will to Men" but left out both the "Resurection of the Dead" and the "Second Coming of Christ." He advocated everything else—fifty seven separate, distinct and numbered panaceas!

His route from K. C. is west to the Coast. Comrades in the western towns are advised to get several hundred copies of the Daily for free distribution and a hundred copies of the "La-Follette Illusion" by Lovestone to sell.

COLLEGE STUDENTS FOR RECOGNITION OF SOVIET RUSSIA

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 20.—"Recognize Soviet Russia" was the verdict in a debate here at the Swarthmore college in which American and English college students participated.

The subject for debate was: Resolved That All Nations Should Recognize the Present Soviet Government of Russia. In the affirmative were Gerald Sparrow, and A. Marshall of Cambridge University of England and F. Duval of Swarthmore. In the negative were Miss Buchanan and R. Perdew of Swarthmore and Richard Butler of Cambridge.

A vote taken of the audience sustained the affirmative. Vote was 322 affirmative; 195 negative.

GERMAN COMMUNIST DAILY SHOWS DAILY WORKER IS DOING PIONEER SERVICE FOR NATIVE-BORN TOILERS

(Editorial by LUDWIG LORE in The Volkszeitung, German Communist Daily, of Oct. 15, 1924)

When the socialist party came of age, when after long preparatory work it had developed into a real organization, when in addition to the sacrificial devotion and enthusiastic co-operation of its members it enjoyed the sympathy of broader masses, it created the "New York Call." But when the socialist movement split in two there as well as in Europe, the enthusiasm and devotion for the reformist part of the socialist movement and its institutions evaporated.

The downfall of the New York Call, which had been upheld for fifteen years thru heroic sacrifices, became merely a matter of time. The socialist party, for which no radical worker could feel any enthusiasm, lost its daily organ in the language of the land.

The Communist movement has replaced the reform socialists in the heads and hearts of revolutionary workingmen. Neither persecution by the authorities nor police brutalities, neither the regulations of reverseful capital nor the lies and libels of the bourgeois press were able to halt the progress of the revolutionary working class movement. Slowly but surely it made headway, conquered one position after another, until at last within the past year it had grown strong enough to proceed to the publication of a central organ in the English language.

The DAILY WORKER is now almost one year old, and it has bravely held its ground. In all the battles of the American proletariat it has been a fearless leader. It has taken advantage of every opportunity to mobilize the class conscious workers against capitalist exploitation and oppression. Wherever the capitalists planned or undertook new attacks against the workingclass movement, it eagerly entered the fray against the foes of labor and their government tools. The American working-class has never had a more reliable defender of its rights, one that understood better that the best defense is an attack.

But our central organ accomplished much more than that. It reached those circles that are closed to the non-English party press, and thru its educational articles on the International as well as the American Communist movement it overcame many of those prejudices that existed regarding "Moscow," Communism and the aims even in the best meaning and nonpartisan working class circles. Here the DAILY WORKER accomplished real pioneer service, which could not have been performed by any other party organ.

Altho our English organ has in this way already created for itself a far reaching influence in those circles of the working class that can be designated as "sympathetic" during the short time of its existence, its sphere of influence can and must naturally be extended still further.

We all know workers and working-class families in which a fighting organ of the character of our DAILY WORKER would be welcomed, if they only knew of its existence. All of us—or at least most of us—have fellow workers, friends, acquaintences, sick benefit or society members, who can be won as subscribers without great difficulty, if only an earnest effort is made to secure them. Every new reader is a re-inforcement for our revolutionary army, is an active recruit for our Communist fighting force, is like the snowflake, which when pressed together with thousands of others finally becomes a might avalanche, against which all resistance is vain and useless.

Therefore, Comrades, GET SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR OUR DAILY WORKER. Strengthen it and thereby make more powerful the Communist, the revolutionary working class movement.

He Still Has Hopes.

MICHIGAN STATE ANXIOUS TO KEEP W. P. OFF BALLOT

Did Not Rely on Its Local Talent

By CYRIL LAMBKIN.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 20.—As an the case of Berrien county against the Bridgeman defendants so in the case of the Workers Party against the election commission of Wayne county, the state of Michigan did not rely on the county attorneys, but took a hand itself to defeat the effort of the party to go before the workers of Michigan thru the ballot. It sent an assistant attorney-general of the state to represent it in court.

The State Got Busy.

Counsel for the party immediately on being notified that its ticket was ruled off the ballot started mandamus proceedings from the court directing the Wayne county election commission to show cause why the party ticket should not be put back on the ballot.

Saturday morning the time the order was made returnable, Clare Retan, assistant attorney-general appeared in court and denied that there was such a thing as the Workers Party, that the party ever held a state convention, that it ever elected a state committee, or that it adopted a vignette.

The attorney for the party, of course, would not permit the state to dispose of the case without touching the real issue of using the law to keep the ticket of a workers' revolutionary party off the ballot. On his motion an adjournment was granted until Monday afternoon to prove the facts denied by the state.

A Visiting Judge.

The case came before Judge Carr judge of the circuit court for the county of Ingham in which is situated the capital of the state, Lansing. Judge Carr came as a visiting judge to Wayne county about the time we were ruled off the ballot. Because Wayne county has not enough judges to take care of all the cases in that county, the principal city of which is Detroit, and because judges in many of the smaller circuits have not enough to do a law was passed providing for such judges to hear cases in Wayne county. It is a strange coincidence that the case of our party against the election commission should come before this outside judge.

Ukrainian Agency To Deport Radicals Hits the Tobaggon

(By Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The end of the fight on the use of fake Ukrainian passports by the department of labor to deport Russian radicals who cannot be legally deported to Russia in the absence of diplomatic relations is indicated in the action of the immigration officials at Ellis Island in releasing Efroy Okoletenko, who has been three times sent abroad and three times returned.

He is "paroled in his own custody" now, which amounts to an unconditional release, according to the American Civil Liberties Union, until diplomatic relations are resumed with Russia.

His release followed his recent return from Europe where the foreign authorities refused to accept the passport issued by the "Ukrainian Diplomatic Mission" at Washington, an agency recognized neither by the American state department nor by the Ukrainian Soviet Republic. Following recent disclosures by the American Civil Liberties Union, the bushess of the mission has apparently ceased. In Canada its representative was arrested and its business stopped.

VOTERS FAT AND LEAN BLOWING 'BOB'S' BUBBLES

Workers Hugging the LaFollette Illusion

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 20.—Robert M. LaFollette came to Detroit recently to enlist the aid of Michigan in pursuit of the presidency of the United States.

"There is only one issue," he told an audience of more than six thousand persons most of whom had paid a dollar to hear him, "and that is whether the government of the United States shall be in the interest of all the people, or in the interest of a privileged few."

Dirty Work Bob.

For almost an hour he went on to expose the corruption and iniquity following in the trail of capitalism. But no indictment of the capitalist system came forth. He pointed out how in the last forty years corruption in government has been growing until now it has reached a scandalous stage. He told of attempts, some of them successful, of millionaires buying seats in the senate of the United States.

He related how campaigns have been conducted with the aid of huge slush funds, and told of his having in his possession evidence of one to be gathered in the present campaign to insure the election of Coolidge president of the United States. He dwelt on the eight billion dollars of American capitalists' money invested in highly hazardous foreign bonds and predicted that the American youth would be called upon to shed its blood to safeguard this investment. "War," he expressed this situation eloquently, "waits upon the threshold of foreign affairs."

Bob the Only Remedy.

To overcome the menace of a new great war, and the other evils mentioned, what does he offer? Nothing, only himself as candidate for president. The one positive plank mentioned in his Detroit speech, that of a constutional amendment permitting congress to overrule a five to four decision of the supreme court was made in a very apologetic manner, which left the impression that it would take a long time before that would come to pass. He said no one need fear this amendment which will be proposed at some future time, and which will have to be passed first by a two-thirds vote of each house of congress and then ratified by three-fourths of all the states.

In the course of his speech he made the admission that two per cent of the people own seventy per cent of the wealth.

Surrounded by Fat Men.

The other speakers were Judge Jeffries who acted as chairman, attorney Sybrant Wesselius of Grand Rapids, the chairman of the state central committee of the LaFollette party, Philip LaFollette, and Ferderick Howe, former commissioner of immigration, who made the collection speech. Not a single representative of labor spoke, altho many of them were seated on the platform and acted as ushers.

Wesselius often stated, while engaged in the defnse of the victims of the Bridgman raid, that 95 per cent of the Amercan people were morons. This might explain his espousal of the LaFollette cause.

The audience was about evenly divided between small business people, professional men who hoped to get some political jobs in case of victory, and working people.

Official Report Says Trade with Russia Increases

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK.—A favorable balance of trade amounting to $9,991,000 is shown by the latest official figures for the foreign trade of Russia for the period January 1—June 1, 1924. Imports of materials for industrial and manufacturing purposes have increased in Russia, while exports continue to be chiefly foodstuffs, raw materials, and oil.

With Great Britain, the United States, Sweden, Norway, China, Persia, Austria, Australia and Czechoslovakia, imports into Russia exceeded exports. With Germany, France, Italy, and other countries the exports from Russia were in excess.

The volume of trade between the United States and Russia during the period has increased both in absolute figures and in percentage. Imports of cotton, food products, leather, tanning materials, machines and apparatus, machine parts, automobiles and metal manufactures came to Russia largely from the United States. Exports to the United States were furs, manganese ore, caviar, seeds, medical herbs, timber materials, and small quantities of manufactured goods.

THE POWER COLUMN

Twice every week—this column uncovers to your view the motive power behind the DAILY WORKER. Here for the interest and inspiration of every reader—and especially the DAILY WORKER agents and committees—are tried and proven suggestions and accomplishments to drive the DAILY WORKER to further conquests.

Here is POWER—the power of brain and effort of men and women of the working class who not only believe—but ACT!

NICK STAKISH—BRICKLAYER

A MAN OF FEW WORDS—AND A GOOD SUGGESTION

NICK STACKISH of Adah, Pa., does not mince words—nor waste them. The other day he sent us this letter:

Adah, Pennsylvania.

Dear Comrades: Enclosed you will find $6.00 for the sub of one new reader. Please send me some more bricks. Yours truly,

Bricklayer NICK STAKISH.

During this campaign to "Build the DAILY WORKER" we have received many brief letters. Usually the less they say the more they have accomplished. They save our time and they build our DAILY WORKER. And as grateful as we are we can only list them among the D. W. B. U. —among the active group that is responsible for the hundreds of subscriptions that are pouring into the DAILY WORKER office.

But Nick Stakish has an idea. A simple but constructive idea that we want other builders to adopt. He says: "Please send me some more bricks." And that's the idea. Many have done their share, many have filled in the bricks sent them and have "heaved them back" to the DAILY WORKER. But if you can do more—if you did what was asked of you and still have no sore arm from "heaving them back,"—simply drop us a line. Do as Nick Stakish did. Just write: "Please send me some more bricks." Or if you insist on greater brevity write: "More bricks." If you add your name and address you will get them from our brickyard as fast as the government will allow. And you will build a greater working class newspaper. You will make the DAILY WORKER larger, stronger, better!

And Look What They Did in Detroit!

Whenever a few wise Bolsheviks put their heads together something is bound to happen. In this city that is the field of operation of District Organizer Edgar Owens, the comrades decided to generate more POWER to "Build the DAILY WORKER." Subscriptions were being secured—but not enough of them. Bundle Orders were sold—but too few of them. So they put their heads together—and linked their efforts. They ORGANIZED!

The C. C. C. took the DAILY WORKER under discussion. As a result a DAILY WORKER COMMITTEE with Chairman D. Treschak and Secretary Phillip Raymond was organized. But being far-sighted Communists they did more. They nominated an agent to look after BUNDLE ORDERS. Bundles of Communist dynamite for mental explosion in "darkened domes." This comrade also looks after the bundle and news stand sale of all Communist language papers. But above all the Detroit DAILY WORKER Committee has done something that merits emulation in every local in the country. For the notice of all locals of the WORKERS PARTY we capitalize: THE LOCAL DETROIT DAILY WORKER COMMITTEE ORDERS A BUNDLE OF THE DAILY WORKER EVERY-DAY FOR EVERY BRANCH OF THE PARTY IN DETROIT.

They have assigned a small bundle (size of the bundle depending on the size of the branch) that every branch must sell every day.

This means that the branch must dispose of the papers outside of the branch whose membership most likely are already subscribers. What better way to urge the sale of the DAILY WORKER at union meetings, at the shop—wherever workers are. Here is a sure-fire method to "Build the DAILY WORKER." Adopt it! It will get subs surely—it will build your local by making more wise Bolsheviks—more Communists to generate still more POWER for the DAILY WORKER and the American labor movement. By all means—LOOK WHAT THEY DID IN DETROIT—DO IT

Important Trial Soon to be Held in Maine

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GREENVILLE JUNCTION, Me., Oct. 20.—With the Y. M. C. A. in the role of labor prosecutor and the Ku Klux Klan and International Paper Company in the background, the coming trial of John Berg, lumberjack, on a charge of criminal libel is arousing great interest.

The trial will take place in the December sessions of the criminal court at Dover-Foxcroft, county seat of Piscitaquin county, a pulp wood country dominated industrially by the big paper combine.

Fourth to Face Trial

Berg will be the fourth man to go to trial on charges arising from the publication in certain newspapers of boycott notices appealing to the workers to boycott the lumber T. M. C. A., Crofts Mercantile Co., and the Moosehead Clothing store of Greenville Junction, an important lumber center.

The boycott followed the refusal of the Y. M. C. A. and other lodging houses to sell lodging to a group of lumberjacks who were attempting to organize their fellows. When the men could not get roms for the night in town they went into a neighboring lumber camp for the night, later returning with a large group to test their right to stay in the town and do union business. The business men retaliated by organizing a mob and driving them out of town.

The deportees then began a boycott campaign. The boycott notices were published in papers put out by the Industrial Workers of the World which developed a considerable movement among the Maine lumberjacks since the summer of 1923. The boycott proved somewhat effective. Business fell off at the interdicted places. The business interests took their case to the grand jury and indictments were returned.

Met Prison Sentences

Trial of Robert Pease, general organization committee member of the lumber workers' men, and of Willard Parent and John Lacello follow on "conspiracy to boycott" charges. They were sent to prison for one to two year terms. The case against Berg was then pressed in a criminal libel count. He is alleged to have distributed the papers containing the boycott notice. Fred H. Moore of the Sacco-Vanzetti case is defending Berg. Other attorneys represented Pease, Parent and Lacello.

Berg's case is a hard one. He is a Swede and the resident population of the county is possessed of an anti-foreigner psychology. Berg's jury will be impaneled from a body of voters who gave Brewster, the republican Ku Klux klan candidate for governor a total of 1,900 votes out of 2,000 cast. The resident population has little understanding of the seasonal lumberworkers, most of whom are Scandinavians, Finns and French-Canadians.

Enemy of Unionism

International Paper Co. has the reputation of fighting unionism to a finish. It does not want any disturbance to labor conditions under which the pulp wood workers labor from sunrise to sunset. The company has enormous influence in the community. It not only controls the jobs, through a system of logging contracts but it has built more than 80 miles of highways which are used by the resident population.

"Church Member" Gets His.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 20.—Despite the testimony offered by his friends and his pastor that he was a "good church member," Arthur Rice was found guilty of aiding and abetting in the tarring and feathering of 20-year-old Dorothy Grandon last July. Rice is the third member of the tar and feather party to be convicted. Seven-teen other Myersville resident are involved.

Jurisdictional Squabble.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Union carpenters here are on strike, in accordance with the policy of their international, against a decision of local builders to give the work of setting metal window frames to the sheet metal workers and the ornamental iron workers.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the facts and conditions that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. NEW ENGLAND MILL TOWN TO GREET GITLOW

Workers in Lawrence Make Big Plans

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 20.—A special membership meeting here of the Workers Party laid plans for the largest meeting ever held.

The Winter Garden on Essex street has been engaged and the local comrades expect to fill the Garden, which seats 3,000, to overflowing. The Lawrence comrades raised $150 at the membership meeting for advertising and rent.

Automobiles have been engaged to advertise the meeting with red fire and signs. A big banner will be put up on Essex street advertising Foster and Gitlow and the Workers Party candidate for governor of Massachusetts, John J. Ballam. Ten thousand throw-aways and 500 posters have been printed and are to be distributed by every party member at special meetings thruout the mills of Lawrence.

Gitlow was active in the 1922 strike in Lawrence and the textile workers will turn out in masses to hear the message of the Communist candidate for vice-president. Besides Comrade Gitlow, James Ried, candidate for United States senator in Rhode Island, and secretary of the Amalgamated Textile Councils of America will be chairman, and John J. Ballam, Communist candidate for governor of Massachusetts, will be one of the speakers. The Lithuanian chorus will sing the International and other revolutionary songs.

MIDDLEBORO STRIKERS APPEAL FOR FUNDS AND URGE WEAVERS TO KEEP AWAY FROM THE MILL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., Oct. 20.—The weavers of the Nemasket Mills, Middleboro, came out on strike Sept. 11, against the running of two kinds of filling on two looms. At a mass meeting of the rest of the help, held a few days later, they voted to strike with the weavers. This makes a whole mill strike. All textile workers are asked to keep away from Middleboro till this strike is settled.

The strikers are solidly organized and will put a real fight. It is up to all textile workers, especially the weavers, to come across financially, to help these strikers to stay right on the battle line until the strike is won. Their victory, remember, is the victory of all weavers. The extension of the two-loom system must be stopped. The Middleboro workers are manning the front line trenches in the first organized strike against this damnable system since 1902.

You workers who are drawing wages must pass up the ammunition. When this battle is won we propose carrying the fight to a number of other "dumps" and establishing the "Middleboro maximum" as the standard of weaving in all mills, requirements above which we will strike against doing. The fight is on! Your duty is now to dig deep and do your share in the fight! Send donations by mail to the above address, or give to collectors at the mill gate on pay night. Put your donation in an envelope and give it to the collector at gate.

Big Textile Mill at Lawrence, Mass., Works Only Four Days Weekly

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 20.—The Pacific Mills, second largest in Lawrence, are working on an average of four days a week in the print works and about 70 per cent of the machinery is in operation with about the same percentage of workers.

The delegate of Lawrence weavers to the Federated Textile Union's convention in New York has returned and reported to the American Federation of Textile Operatives, which has members in Pacific Mills. A shop committee organization exists in Pacific Mills, with a factory committee supposedly representing the workers. It is not under the control of the A. F. T. O. but of the company, according to workers in the mills.

BISCUITS DOG RAMSAY'S STEPS IN THE ELECTION

Bribery Charge Hurled at Renegade

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald invaded the "enemy's territory," in the midlands today facing hostile demonstrations.

At Monmouth a big crowd turned out. Some cheered and others hissed the premier.

Seek Reinstatement Of Glassberg in New York Public Schools

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Appeal for the reinstatement of Benjamin Glassberg, history teacher of Brooklyn Commercial High, dismissed five years ago for alleged lack of loyalty to the U. S. government, will be made again by the New York Teachers' Union, according to President Linville. The failure of the board of education to reinstate Glassberg on Oct. 8 was condemned by Linville in a letter addressed to Joseph E. Miller, secretary of the board.

Linville writes: "The action of the board in accepting from its president (George J. Ryan) a misleading statement of the facts in the case, and in submitting to the influence of a prejudiced outside body, the American Legion, will most certainly be challenged." The matter is coming up at the general meeting of the Teachers' Union.

Wage Cut Brings Strike.

PALMER, Mass., Oct. 20.—Attempt of Thorndike Cotton Mills to cut wages 11 per cent caused a walkout of all 550 employes. Charles A. Tabor, mill agent, failed to get them back at a meeting he addressed. The cut came when the company increased the schedule from three to 5 days a week. The strike became 100 per cent effective very quickly. A few workers reported at the dye house but these joined the rest after they had finished some jobs on hand.

MASSACHUSETTS COURTS CONVICT ANOTHER WORKER

Merrick, Shoe Worker, Victim of Frame-up

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 20.—Massachusetts courts registered another decision against a workingman when John E. Merrick, fromerly an active member of the Shoe Workers' Protective union was convicted of "being an accessory before the fact" of the planting of dynamite near the shoe factory of Knipe Bros., Ward Hill.

Charge Case is Frame-up.

Members of Shoe Workers' Protective union who were supporting the Merrick defense, charge that the case against Merrick was a frameup by the police officers and the shoe company. Knipe Bros. is a labor-baiting concern, the only shoe company in Haverhill which has refused to sign an agreement with the Shoe Workers' Protective union. Merick was active in the movement to organize the town thoroughly.

A $2,000 reward, which the shoe company offered, following the finding of the suitcase with the dynamite, incited the police to the frameup, unionists charge. The evidence against Merrick consisted of a piece of brass and the back of an alarm clock, similar to the clock found in the infernal machine. Police say they found these in a garage which Merrick keeps. They admit they had been in the garage on several occasions after Merrick's arrest and the defense charges that they planted the material.

Appeal to Higher Court

Policemen Ryan and Hussey were badly confused under cross examination by defense attorney Sullivan and told conflicting stories of the finding of the loaded suitcase and their talks with Merrick after his arrest. The infernal machine would not have exploded without more attention. Two wires protruding would have to be coupled together to work damage. The defense charges that the fact that the infernal machine was not set for explosion indicates that it was planted for show and not for action.

Appeal is being taken to a higher court. Merrick's fellow workers believe firmly in his innocence.

Coop Farmers Sell Alfalfa

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Distribution of $70,000 has been made by the Roosevelt Haygrowers' Association, farmers cooperative marketing organization, to its 300 members. This represents $12 per ton for No. 1 alfalfa and grain hay with a further distribution of $8 per ton to be made when the pooled hay is finally sold. All hay now being sold by the association is bringing $20 per ton.

Openshop Daily Surrenders

PHOENIX, Ariz.—After operating as a non-union paper for more than four years the Arizona Gazette Phoenix afternoon daily, has signed an agreement with Typographical Union 352. The Gazette was one of the stanchest superters of the open shop movement, having locked out its union printers March 11, 1920.

Want the Women Now.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. — Since women employed in beauty parlors and hairdressing establishments are beginning to threaten the position of the barbers employed in regular shops, a special mass meeting has been called by the local barbers' unions to consider means for getting the women into the organization.

Blind Conduct Debate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. — Sightless men and women of the New York Federation of Workers for the Blind debated the question of whether the blind should be employed in special workshops or in competition with those who can see at the Sage Foundation, 130 E. 22nd street, but no decision was given by the judges, all but one of whom was also blind.

WOOLEN TRUST OFFICIALS LIVE WELL BUT WORKERS ARE CROWDED INTO DRAB TENEMENTS AS USUAL

By ESTHER LOWELL
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

SHAWSHEEN VILLAGE, Mass., Oct. 20.—Shawsheen Village is American Woolen company's newest venture. Neat rows of gray, white-trimmed, one-pattern colonial houses stand well-spaced in little barren plots.

The village has the look of a Hollywood real estate subdivision. In these dwellings company officials and Lawrence Rotarians live. Most of the workers live in drab little houses in South Lawrence or in 2- and 4-family tenements.

Dominating the village are the huge red brick mills and administration offices of the American Woolen company. Across mill-lined Merrimack river in Lawrence, American Woolen mills, its Washington mills, and others belch smoke into the blue Shawsheen.

Kept at Killing Pace.

William M. Wood, president of American Woolen Co., has shrewdly kept mills running full time during most of the long depression of the last year or two. Wood has not cut wages but has increased prices twice in the last month on spring fabrics. An old German weaver who works at Shawsheen mills says Wood couldn't cut wages at the new mill because no one would work for less at the pace required. Each weaver tends six looms instead of two or four as usual.

"Those young French-Canadians may be able to stand it, now anyway," says the German weaver, "but when they're 50 they won't. They'll wear out early at that pace."

Two kinds of looms are operated, draper and Knowles magazine. The latter is too elaborate, says the German weaver, and doesn't work well. It is for fancy weaves and mixed silk and wool weaving.

"We get hell for flaws, too," he adds. "The Massachusetts law for grading fabrics is followed in some mills but not in American Woolen. We get all Grade B and no fight about it." When asked about wage cuts he replies: "You'll have to repeat. Weavers are hard of hearing, you know." Then he answers that wage cuts won't come until after election.

Too many highly skilled mending girls have been hired for burling, or cleaning out knots, Shawsheen workers say, so that the girls, although fairly well paid by piece, work so few hours that they earn little.

Get Out Magazine

AW Employees Booster, American Woolen's monthly magazine sedative for its workers, is published by the department at Shawsheen, where all company administrative offices are now located. All year it urges workers to buy yarns from Prospect Sales Co., which, it does not add, is only AW's sales company. In June it tells workers to buy coal for winter then because of possible shortage, but does not add because American Woolen is interested in Southern Illinois Coal Mines, Inc. The $200 prize for the best musical composition of an AW worker goes to a New York salesman for Harmony March, the theme of which is harmony, harmony between fellow workers; employers and employees. The favorite story is From Bobbin Boy to Overseer (in 35 years).

American Woolen has 59 mills in all New England states and Bradford mills in Louisville, Kentucky. Wm. Wood is associated with the biggest financiers of the country in the Chase National Bank, N. Y. is vice-president of Wm. Morgan Butler's Home Market Club to keep up the high tariff for woolen and cotton manufacturers; and directs many other enterprises.

German Capitalist Parties Are Broke; Can't Have Election

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Chancellor Marx strove today to avert a cabinet crisis. Indications were that he would succeed.

It was reported that the chancellor would fill the vacancies in the present government with "professionals" not bound to any particular party. In this way dissolution of the reichstag probably could be avoided. All parties are opposed to dissolution because of the scarcity of party funds for election purposes.

PHILA. COMRADES, PLEDGE SUPPORT IN SILK STRIKE

Collect Money and Send to Paterson Strikers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 20.—Philadelphia members of the Workers Party and the Y. W. L. have shown a true spirit of proletarian solidarity towards the striking silk workers of Paterson.

Upon receiving the call for aid from the strike committee, the party immediately called a membership meeting and distributed 100 lists to the members, made arrangements for a collection at a picture showing held by the International Workers' Aid, and issued instructions to each member to raise the question of Paterson strikers' relief in his union and fraternal organization.

The results after two weeks are more than gratifying.

From the 20 lists returned so far over $100 has been collected and immediately sent to the strike committee. Comrade Morris Shafendier has made a record collection on his list of $18.95; many other comrades are coming near this figure. The shoefitters in the shop of Lards & Shubert have sent $11.25 thru Sophie Rodus; this however, is just to demonstrate their class solidarity.

At a play given by the International Workers' Aid, a collection of $345 was taken up by our committee and sent to the Paterson strikers.

These achievements are remarkable in view of the fact that the party is carrying on an intense campaign for Foster and Gitlow, that is absorbing every minute of time and every ounce of energy from our members.

The Paterson strike is one hundred miles away; the Philadelphia Communists stand shoulder to shoulder with the strikers in spirit and extend their moral and financial support with wishes for a speedy and complete victory.

Court Holds Stone Cutters Liable in Attack on Union

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 20.—The International Stone Cutters' Association of America is cited to trial in federal court at Danville, Ill., Oct. 22, 1924. From all appearances it is a repetition of the Danbury Hatters' case. The international union and the individual members are being sued by the open shop bosses for holding up certain jobs.

The officialdom and their lawyers are advising the members to plead for mercy in this federal court.

Copies of the DAILY WORKER distributed among the more enlightened workers brought promises of greater co-operation with the Workers Party. A publicity agent was appointed to send in detailed news of the trial for publication in the DAILY WORKER.

Boston Fur Bosses Sign.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 20.—Injunctions against striking fur workers have been denied eight of the ten shops not signed with the International Fur Workers' Union. Thirty-two individual shops have signed up in addition to the Boston Fur Merchants' Association and less than 20 per cent of the Boston fur workers are still on strike.

HARD WINTER FOR 25,000 IN COTTON MILLS

Much Poverty in Tariff Towns of G. O. P.

By ART SHIELDS
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 20.—For a picture of the misery of unorganized textile workers today the reader is invited to the old town of Lowell, where 25,000 cotton mill workers are entering a winter that promises to be the hardest in two decades.

About half the workers are putting in an average of three days a week in the dozen big mills that flank the Concord and Merrimac rivers. The rest have no work.

Times have been hard for a year. They are becoming desperate as savings disappear and debts increase. A Portuguese grocer showed me his credit books with the bills his customers owe. The first was for $157.68 The little day to day entries he compared with those of a year ago. They are ordering less sugar, coffee, bread, macaroni, cheese and necessities generally than a year ago. And the so-called luxuries have almost disappeared from the list. He does not know how he and they will get through the winter unless times get better.

I visited a half dozen homes at random. In the first an Italian family, with eight children, was crowded into three rooms. A dish of stew, no bread, was on the table before them. One of the kids played a fiddle for desert. Neither father nor mother can get work in the mills. The kids are too small.

In the next place was a middleaged Belgian couple, with a boy of 16. He left the old country long after his parents: he was in Belgium during the German occupation. He is not eating any more now than he did then. That family lives on credit and the $7 a week the boy earns on a three-day-a-week mill job. Neither parent has worked in three months. The father had a chance to get on in a mill that is trying out a few weavers on a new speedup system, with $8 to 40 looms to a man. "You are an expert weaver," he was told, "we'll give you a chance." He turned it down, considering it a scab job.

By scab job he meant one exceeding all the traditions of the craft—a job that meant one more weaver pushed out of doors." The mills are unorganized—that is no union has job control, but there is a measure of solidarity in resisting the attempt to push limit of endurance to the last extreme and to enlarge the unemployed army. Yet the speed-up system is coming in. Twenty-four to thirty-two looms to the weaver are no longer uncommon. The Draper loom is crowding out old equipment.

When a weaver's looms are doubled the man displaced is sometimes given an unskilled job at the loom filling—assisting the weaver at unskilled wages. Fifteen dollars a week at full time is high for this sort of work in Lowell. There are cases of men working for $7 a week.

Like other New England textile cities the workers are from many lands. French-Canadians lead. Portuguese come next and there are many Greeks, with Italians, Russian, Poles, Irish, Finns and others.

The manufacturers are boosting Coolidge and the Fordney-McCumber tariff, which is supposed to safeguard Lowell from cheap European labor.

Boycott Scab Football Stadium.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 20.—By unanimous vote the Marquette university stadium was put on labor's unfair list by the Milwaukee Federated Trades council. The university, which will have its football attendance cut down by the boycott, refused to use union labor in the construction.

Dodging a Big Issue

Coolidge declares that "unemployment has disappeared," Davis says he will make it disappear if put in Coolidge's place, while LaFollette is silent on the subject. The effect of the position of each of these capitalist candidates is the same, so far as the workers are concerned. In each case it is but a means of evading that which is the biggest issue before the working class. The only proposal for action that will enable the workers to combat the menace of unemployment which threatens to destroy the labor unions and all the small achievements, painfully won thru years of struggle, of the labor movement, comes from the Workers Party, the party of the Communists in America.

There are no false promises in the Communist proposals. Foster does not tell the workers that if they vote for him that thereby the unemployment problem will be solved. No, the Communists tell the workers of America that they can win nothing without relentless struggle against the ruling capitalist class. Paper ballots cast in the election are well enough, if cast for Communism, as a means of agitation and mobilization of the workers for the struggle—but the struggle itself comes in the shops, factories, streets, unions—wherever the masses of workers gather their strength and wherever they come into conflict with the repressive powers of capitalism.

Only thru struggle can the workers win any advancement whatever. And in the question of unemployment, the only program of struggle is that given to the working class by the Workers (Communist) Party. A vote for the Communist candidates in this election is an enlistment in the struggle against unemployment on the lines of the Communist program. All workers, organized or unorganized, must close their ranks in solidarity for this struggle. The alternative is to see our organizations melt away before the coming onslaughts of the Morgan-Rockefeller-Gary-Dawes forces of the "open shop." The fight against unemployment is the chief issue before the American working class.

Harding's Favorite Scribbler

Shortly before the late President Harding succumbed to the assaults of his chef and his bootlegger, he expressed his enjoyment in reading an article in the Saturday Evening Post, by Samuel G. Blythe, one of the leading scribblers on that five cent national advertising medium. A post mortem examination of Harding's body did not show which of the two, his chef or Blythe, contributed most to his demise, but it can be said without fear of contradiction that any mind into which the stuff Blythe writes is injected for a considerable period of time, will suffer irreparable injury. Fortunately, however, only minds of the Harding and Coolidge type can stomach such drivel.

Blythe is now engaged in the task of proving that Robert M. LaFollette, candidate for president on his own ticket, is a "red." The object of this kind of propaganda is to scare money out of the bankers for the benefit of the Coolidge slush fund. The bankers know quite well that LaFollette is a staunch supporter of capitalism. They also know that Charley Bryan of the black skull cap is also a supporter of the system. But they prefer strikebreaker Coolidge whose mind would fit very nicely in the head of Calvin, the founder of the Presbyterian religion, tho the modern Calvin lacks his namesake's initiative. Wall Street will supply that deficiency.

Blythe blithely tries to prove that there is a united front between the Communists and LaFollette. If this is so, we have something new in the united front line. The Communists are busy proving that LaFollette is a positive menace to the working class movement; that he wrecked the farmer-labor party movement and is the last line of defense in America of the capitalist system.

LaFollette on his side denounces the Communists because they want to overthrow the capitalist system and establish the rule of the workers thru a workers' and farmers' government. This means the dictatorship of the proletariat, and LaFollette will not have any such thing, even if he has to go "back to Methusalah" for pure democracy. He conveniently ignores the dictatorship of the capitalists.

There are so many capitalist liars in the field that it is pretty hard to keep track of them all. We only concern ourselves with the outstanding ones. Blythe is a whopper.

On the Eve of a Great Anniversary

Our hearts begin to beat faster and our minds think quicker every year at this time when we approach the annual anniversary of the Russian Bolshevist revolution. It is our day of days, the guide and beacon for our lives and struggles.

November 7, 1924, will mark the completion of seven years—mark the number!—seven years of proletarian rule in a country of nearly 180 million people, occupying about one-sixth of the globe's surface. And on November 7 of this year the class conscious workers of the world will again join in a mighty chorus of jubilation at the greatest victory of their class, the success of the Russian revolution as embodied in the triumphant existence of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The Workers Party of America, section of the Communist International, has already begun preparations for the celebration of the great anniversary. In every nook and corner of the land, where militant proletarians are struggling for a better day, there will be heard, on the day of celebration, the voice of triumph and brotherly greetings to the brave fighters in the Russian revolution.

We shall make it the occasion for more militancy and more intensive struggle against our own masters, the capitalists of the United States. We shall renew the building of our party and our press with increased vigor and determination. For it is only by a militant struggle against our "own" capitalism, looking toward the day of its complete elimination, that the American working class can properly celebrate the great anniversary of the Russian Bolshevist revolution.

Here Comes Red Week

While the capitalist political wizzards are digging their beaks into their respective dung piles, looking for filth to hurl at each other in the mad scramble to land in the White House after November 4, and hang out their shingles as political specialists for Morgan and company, the Communists are busy fitting out the workers with spectacles that will enable them to see straight and later on consign the capitalists and their system to the museum of history.

Between October 26 and November 2, the Communists of America will distribute millions of pieces of literature. While the capitalist parties peddle hokum, having for its object the confusion of the masses, the Workers Party spreads educational propaganda which insists on the workers using their own power to solve their own problems.

The solution of those problems cannot be even seriously attempted until the workers take the reins of government into their own hands. How this can be done is told in these pieces of literature. It is short, snappy and convincing.

The Workers Party is now a full fledged political party. It is waging the political struggle on all fronts. The job in front of us is to increase its efficiency as a fighting revolutionary political party. The distribution of millions of pieces of literature during the Red Week is a splendid test of our development. Boost Red Week! Send in orders for literature to the national office of the Workers Party, 1113 West Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Dying Liberalism

The present election campaign in Great Britain shows that liberalism in politics is on its deathbed in that country. The liberal party has 100 less candidates in the field this year than in the last election, while the number of labor candidates has increased by over one hundred.

A united front between the conservatives and the liberals has been established in constituencies where a three-cornered contest would be considered to the advantage of the labor party candidate.

Manifestos carrying practically the same message have been sent from the headquarters of the conservative and liberal parties. The Soviet treaty is the main object of attack.

Lord Beaverbrook, publisher, who helped to make Lloyd George head of the government during the war, again calls on the "Welsh wizard" to head a coalition cabinet. Winston Churchill has joined the tories. The militant conservatives in the liberal party are joining the tory party. Those not so militantly conservative are coming to the labor party. A new orientation is taking place which is resulting in the passing of the once powerful liberal party.

Religion and Capitalism

A full page advertisement in a Chicago evening paper plays up religion as one of the main bulwarks of society. It is. During the war the churches of all denominations, even the Christian Science church, which claims to be the least bloody of various Christian creeds, made the capitalist God say anything his masters, the capitalists, wanted him to say. It is a great mistake to think that God made the capitalists. On the contrary, he is made in their image and he would not reign for twenty-four hours without their support. On the other hand he is worth every nickel that it costs to keep him in good condition.

Calvin Coolidge is one of the best publicity men in the United States for the religious opium joints. Coolidge missed his vocation. In fact he was born in the wrong century. His real forte would be directing the operations of the Iron Maiden under the Roman inquisition.

The churches are making strenuous efforts to revive the dying interest in religion. But the times are against them.

by the action of the progressives in the district. They pointed out that not alone would Farrington's plan be bad for the miners of Illinois—Farrington had agreed with the operators on a substantial reduction in wages—but it would wreck the strike throughout the country.

At that John L. Lewis charged Farrington with strikebreaking and accepting money from the operators. Is it surprising that the coal diggers would come to the conclusion that their president is on the payroll of the operators, considering his actions? The operators were highly appreciative of his efforts in their behalf during the 1922 strike. Farrington never has any trouble with the coal barons. His chief cause of worry is the progressive element in the union. On them he vents his wrath.

Opposed Special Convention.

In March 1917, ballots were sent out from the Secretary-Treasurer's office, calling for a special convention to consider the Northern Illinois machine agreement. This agreement aroused much opposition among the miners and resulted in several local strikes, the men refusing to operate the machines.

President Farrington walked into the board room of the district offices in Springfield and inquired if it was true that ballots calling for a special convention were sent out. He was answered in the affirmative. He then made the following remark: "If every God damn son of a b — — — in the organization votes for a special convention there is not going to be any called. If these God damn bastards are trying to break up the organization, I'll break it up for them myself."

There were present when this statement was made: John L. Lewis, Springfield; James Pitman, Carrier Mills, James Box, Virden; G. J. Frick, Marion and C. S. Stohlberg, Springfield.

Contempt for Membership

This statement reveals the mental attitude of "Czar" Farrington toward the rank and file. He has the most utter contempt for the masses and while this contempt is shared by the officialdom of the United Mine Workers of America, outside of the progressives, Farrington is less successful in camouflaging his attitude than the rest.

Let the miners pay the dues that cover Farrington's salary and keep their mouths shut, is his guiding thot.

The miners who worked the so-called long wall mines of Northern Illinois were tricked into the agreement by Farrington, but when they learned what had been imposed on them they revolted. But Farrington had them tied up in a knot and sold "according to the constitution." When they revolted, he took down the rules and brutally informed them that he would force them to work under the agreement or fill their places with scabs.

This is where constitutions come in handy to the labor fakers. Farrington did not bother about violating the constitution when he traded the miners' votes to Frank L. Smith, the republican party candidate for governor. But the sacred agreement with the boss must be kept for the sake of Farrington's bank account and his future prospects. The coal operators like to deal with a man who can force the miners to take whatever they feel like giving them. It pays them to have a man like that as president of the Miners' Union. But he must be able to deliver the goods, so Farrington did not let the grass grow under his feet in placing the iron heel on the miners who refused to work under the machine agreement.

Farrington Speaks

Instead of hurling epithets at Farrington, we have followed the policy in these articles of letting the big labor faker speak for himself. We have placed the versatile agent of the coal barons on the stand and allowed him the privilege of reading his own indictment. The following letter to Mr. Peter Grubich, Secretary L. U. 620, LaSalle, Illinois, is as brazen a piece of work in behalf of the coal operators as we dare say, the oldest member of the Illinois miners' union can recollect. The threat to crucify the men who had struck, on the cross of gold, furnished by the coal barons of Illinois was bad enough. But Farrington was not satisfied with that. He also decided to smash their fellow workers who assessed themselves to keep the bread in the mouths of their comrades' wives and children while they were standing up for their rights against the operators.

The Tell-Tale Letter.

The letter follows:

"Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14, 1917.

"Mr. Peter Grubich,
Secretary L. U. 620,
LaSalle, Illinois.

"Dear Sir and Brother: I am writing you concerning the rebellion of the members of your local union over the adoption of the machine agreement negotiated to cover the operation of machines in the long wall mines of Northern Illinois.

"My understanding is that the present status of this trouble is as follows: Your members have refused to work on the machines but the hand men are still at work and propose to assess themselves for the purpose of supporting the idle machine men.

"So that there will be no misunderstanding among your members as to the exacts facts in this case, I advise you that their positions is a violation of paragraph B of the 20th section of our Joint Agreement and cannot and will not be countenanced by the district officials.

[illegible] Service

"For your members to assess themselves to support the machine men who are idle because of their refusal to recognize the provisions of a legal agreement would be illegal and your members would not be obliged to pay the assessment, nor are the companies obliged to collect the assessment and the companies have already notified me that they would not do so. Furthermore, for your local to use any of its funds to support these machine men during their period of idleness would be a violation of section 25, article 14, International Constitution and later on I propose to have our traveling auditor go over your local accounts and if this audit develops that any of your local funds have been used for the purpose of supporting these machine men, I shall enforce the provisions of the constitution in that respect.

"The machine agreement was negotiated and signed in good faith and there is no legal way whereby its provisions can be amended and set aside except in a regular joint scale conference and the members of the United Mine Workers of America are legally and honorably bound to respect its provisions."

(Note that Farrington, as already stated, declared he would not tolerate the calling of a special convention so that the rank and file thru their delegates could have a say on this agreement.)

The Strikebreaker President

"As president of the Illinois Miners' Union, I am bound to employ every means at my command in order to induce or force them to do so and I now officially advise that unless your members go to work on these machines I shall have no choice but to revoke your local charter and I shall not falter in my duty in this respect. Instead I shall take the necessary steps to have your local charter revoked and once it becomes necessary for me to have it revoked, it will not be restored except as provided for in section 12, article 20, International Constitution. If your local charter is revoked your members will be deprived of all the rights and privileges accorded members of the United Mine Workers and if any of them should meet with death during the period of revocation or before the expiration of thirty days after your charter has been restored their heirs will not receive the $250.00 death indemnity provided for in section 23, article 14, District Constitution.

"Evidently your members are being misled and deceived into the belief that there is some means whereby they will be able to escape working under this machine agreement. So that you may know the truth, I say to you most earnestly, there is no escape from its provisions and your members should be acquainted with the fact. The time is now past for any further parley or delay about this matter and I instruct you to lay this letter before your members and particularly before the machine men immediately and inform them that, unless work on the machines is resumed, your local charter will be revoked and perhaps some of your members permanently expelled from the organization.

"I would like to be advised immediately, or as soon after as it is possible for you to present this matter to your members, as to what they propose to do.

"Yours truly,
"Frank Farrington, President."

Constitution Used Against Miners

After reading the above one cannot help coming to the conclusion that the constitution, to Farrington, is merely an instrument to hog tie the coal diggers and force them to accept any agreement that Farrington in conjunction with the operators put over. Every disciplinary clause in the constitution is called into play to punish those who use their only weapon, the strike, against the bosses. Threats of revocation of charter, threats of suspension, threats of expulsion, threats of loss of death benefits—all these threats are used in behalf of the coal operators.

Is it surprising that the coal diggers of Illinois believe that Farrington is on the pay roll of the Illinois coal operators? Is it surprising that the coal operators should give Farrington handsome and costly wedding gifts while they give jail sentences to men like Alexander Howat and Jim MacLachlan, and other leaders who are loyal to the miners? Is it surprising that Frank Farrington is the favored son of the unspeakable Len Small, the capitalist politician, while Duncan McDonald is universally denounced by the capitalist press? There is a reason. The men who are denounced by the coal operators and their kept press are loyal to the workers. Farrington is loyal to the coal operators. He is their chief "inside man" in the coal miners' union of Illinois.

Use of Criminals

Future articles of this series will deal with Farrington's actions during the "outlaw strike" of 1919, his hiring of sluggers to beat up delegates from the mines and his slush fund which he was compelled to give an account of by the International Convention. The DAILY WORKER will publish photographic evidence of the use of gunmen and panderers by Farrington in order to crush the strike. People who have wondered why Small opens the gates of Joliet from the inside to men and women of the underworld, will be no longer mystified when, they read the story of the "outlaw" strike of 1919 and the disreputable characters used by Farrington to slug the strikers into submission.

the eyes of the workers. The workers know the Tribune and News as militant organs of capitalism and foes of the working class movement. What the masses don't yet realize is that the fight between Small and the News-Tribune clique is not a fight over principle, but a fight over loot.

YET, there is something encouraging in the growing skepticism of the masses toward the capitalist press. This change is manifestnig itself in the increasing circulation of the DAILY WORKER, the only working class daily in the English language that leads the workers in their everyday battles against the capitalist enemy and points out the road to their emancipation. The present circulation drive of the DAILY WORKER, which ends on Nov. 7, the anniversary of the Russian revolution, is meeting with phenomenal success. The circulation manager and his corps of voluntary helpers are working overtime taking in the flood of subscriptions, and he is taking in more members into the DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union, every day, than there are pennies in a five dollar bill. This proves that the workers are waking up.

* * *

GOOD news has a habit of coming in torrents. The Prince of Wales paid us a visit—or rather the stockyards, but then we must not be too particular. It is true he left many sick hearts and sore heads after him. But the Duke of Alba and his better half—very much better from the point of view of pulchritude—came along right after the prince left and took a peep at the hogs. The hogs were not so interested in the duke as they were in the prince. Now comes the news that James A. Stillman, the banker, who has long been a thorn in the side of our upper class, because of his foolish suspicion that his wife had an Indian guide complex, has made peace with Mrs. Stillman.

THIS is all very interesting, particularly to the unemployed workers. They can pick up a copy of the New York Times, if they exist in the metropolis and reclining luxuriously on the benches of Bryant Park, get a mental thrill out of the news that banker Stillman, was able to present his newly married daughter with a million dollar necklace after paying lawyers a couple of millions during the past two years in an illegitimate quarrel with his wife.

* * *

ISN'T it consoling to know that even tho millions are starving with hunger, our ruling class can live oblivious of such things as unemployment, hunger and want? Yet this kind of life will not go on forever. In 1914, the czar of Russia and his henchmen were enjoying life, and the Russian workers were not so happy. But today, the Russian workers are on the top of the heap and the czar is very much at the bottom.

SU YAT SEN TO SEIZE CUSTOMS

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

GENERAL Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord, is cleaning up on the forces of General Wu, the Chihli dictator. Both generals are consummate grafters. Chang is supported by Japan, more or less openly. Wu is supported by British and American capitalists and their governments. If an American worker living in China demanded a higher wage from his employer and on the latter's refusal to accede to his request repaired to the American consul, asking for his assistance, said consul would immediately assume that his upper story was out of plumb and would have him sent to the nearest psychopathic hospital.

YET this is just what the capitalists use their consuls for, to enable them to carry on their business more profitably. Of course, we are not told that the United States government is a capitalist class machine. We are told it is for the benefit of everybody. But it has ambassadors and consuls in every country in the world to do the work of the capitalists and if everything does not run smoothly, the battleships of the United States are called into action to say the last word in the matter.

• • •

THUS we have American agents in China paid by the government for the sole purpose of looking after the interests of the American capitalists. Ditto French, British, Italian and Japanese capitalists. On the other hand the ambassadors, consuls and agents of Soviet Russia in China and in other countries are looking after the interests of the Russian workers and also taking a benevolent interest in the welfare of all workers. The Soviet government, directed by the Communist Party holds that the interests of all workers are identical and that their one and common enemy is the capitalist class of all countries. That the leaders of Soviet Russia have held unflinchingly to this ideal amid all the years of sacrifice and suffering, surrounded by enemies with tempting offers of personal gain, makes one of the brightest pages in the history of the human race.

• • •

WHEN LaFollette denounces "class government" the socialists applaud him. Yet there is a class government in Russia. No question about that. But it is a government of that class that comprises at least 95 per cent of the population, while the class government of America is in the hands of five per cent. That makes the difference. There will be class government as long as there are classes in society. Russia is paving the way for the Communist society, that will eliminate all classes. Then we will have a world of workers, and class governments, dictatorships and all rule by force will disappear as all governments since the dawn of history were merely organs of suppression.

BLOOR MEETINGS THIS WEEK IN INDIANA AND ILLINOIS CITIES

Fresh from successful Communist campaign meetings in Verona and Decatur, and a tour thru the coal camps of Southern Illiois, Ella Reeve Bloor winds up her tour of Illinois with meetings this week in Joliet, Waukegan, Rockford and DeKalb.

Following these dates, "Mother" Bloor, who has had enormous crowds and sold many campaign pamphlets, speaks in several large Indiana towns and industrial centers. Comrade Bloor's dates follow:

Waukegan, Wednesday, October 22, Workers Hall, 517 Helmholtz Ave.

Rockford, Thursday, October 23, Workers Hall, 511—7th St., 8 p. m.

DeKalb, Friday, October 24.

INDIANA

Lake County, Indiana Harbor, Ind., Saturday, October 25, Roumanian Hall, Penn Ave. & Washington St., 7:30 p. m.

Hammond, Indiana, Sunday Evening, October 26, K. P. Hall, Homan and Ogden Ave.

WORKERS GREET COMMUNIST IN ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Foster Puts Toilers on Right Political Track

By JOSEPH MANLEY

Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

William Z. Foster, presidential candidate of the Workers Party, spoke in Rochester, N. Y., to an audience three times the number that recently heard Norman Thomas, the socialist-LaFollette supporter.

The Foster meeting, in contradistinction to the Thomas gathering, was a strictly working class affair.

Workers Turn Out.

Metal trades workers, printers and garment workers formed the bulk of the audience. A large number of prominent Rochester trade unionists were present. A feature of the meeting was the singing by the Ukrainian Chorus.

Following this splendid chorus, a large number of Italian clothing workers, assembled in the body of the hall, sang informally many revolutionary songs, all of which helped to make the spirit of the meeting enthusiastic and revolutionary.

Foster's appearance on the platform was greeted with prolonged applause During the course of his speech his humorous sallies at the expense of Roosevelt and Smith and their fake prohibition issue, brought forth much laughter.

Exposes Wheeler's Tactics.

Foster exposed the unscrupulous political trading being conducted by LaFollette and his agents. He cited particularly how in Montana LaFollette's running mate, Wheeler, has double-crossed the Montana farmer-labor party and is supporting the senatorial candidacy of Thomas J. Walsh, the tool of the Aanaconda Copper company, and the chairman of the democratic convention at New York.

In New York, Foster charged, "LaFollette has made a deal with Al Smith, the Tammany democrat, to hand over the progressive and socialist votes to Smith and in return Smith will knife Davis and throw his Tammany following to LaFollette."

This expose of the methods of LaFollette cause consternation to a handful of LaFollettetites who had come out of curiosity. Their feeble indignation was laughed at by the workers seated close to them. At the conclusion of Foster's speech a storm of applause lasting many minutes concluded the meeting.

The Workers Party of Rochester was enthused over the success of the gathering. A large amount of literature was sold, "subs" to the DAILY WORKER were taken, and in addition to the audience having paid twenty-five cents admission, they contributed liberally to the collection.

The future of the Workers Party in Rochester, as a result of this meeting, and its activities in the first Communist election campaign is assured of success.

Proletarian Partyites Shown.

The Rochester devotees of the proletarian party are now forced to admit that in this great election struggle thruout America, Communism, proletarian dictatorship, and the organization of Soviets, have become familiar ideas to masses of American workers who could not be reached by the class room methods of the proletarians. The Workers Party of Rochester is the party of Communism, Marxism, and Leninism.

Score Hurt When Motor Truck Hits Loaded Street Car

More than a score of persons were injured, three seriously, today when a heavily loaded motor truck crashed into a street car just outside of the loop. The collision telescoped the front of the street car loaded with men and women enroute to work, and threw the passengers into a panic. occupants of the car fought each other for exit, trampling over the injured who had been thrown to the floor by the jolt.

The seriously injured are: Raymond Carroll, 18, Philip Albrecht, 34, and George Rogers, 22.

MYSTERY BLAST KILLS SIX ON U. S. WARSHIP

Plans Made for Usual Investigation

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Investigation into the explosion aboard the United States cruiser Trenton, which resulted in the death of six naval men and in the injury of 14 others, has already disclosed the fact that there was no powder outside the magazine except the two charges which were being hoisted into the gun turret for immediate loading and firing, according to the message received by the navy department this morning from Captain Kalbfus, commanding the cruiser.

Navy Was Tuning Up.

The explosion occurred on the cruiser during target practice off the Virginia capes, one of the numerous maneuvers of the American navy in preparation for coming imperialist wars.

The cause of the explosion is officially stated to be a mystery, but those who remember this accident on the battleship Mississippi recall that the investigation was hushed up when it was being shown that the deaths of the sailors was due to inefficiency and carelessness of the lives of the young workers who enlist for service "in order to see the world."

Conduct Usual Investigation.

The Trenton had gone to the drill grounds from the Washington navy yard after bringing home the body of Major Robert Imbrie, American vice-consul at Teheran, Persia, where he was killed by a mob. Imbrie was well known as a representative of Standard Oil in Persia.

Investigations will, of course be conducted, but when the inevitable results will show that carelessness was the cause of the explosion, the cover of official silence will quiet any further discontent that is felt at the continued accidents that result from naval target practice.

U. S. Goverment Suit Against Doheny Opens In California Court

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—The government's suit against the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company; the Pan-American Petroleum company; Edward L. Doheny, head of both companies, and Edward Doheney, Jr., his son, was opened here today.

In its suit the government is attempting to force cancellation of oil leases executed in favor of the Doheny companies, giving them rights to the Elk Hills fields of the naval oil reserve units in California.

SPOLANSKY IN TRAP

In fabricating his silly "solution" of the famous Wall Street bomb explosion, Jake Spolansky has fallen into a DAILY WORKER trap. The Labor Defense Council has documents and other material which expose the real participants in the conspiracy. Spolansky will not like the exposure, but DAILY WORKER readers will. Watch for the article by Manuel Gomez in tomorrow's DAILY WORKER.

MAC DONALD WILL GO DOWN IN HISTORY AS WORLD'S FUNNY MAN

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—In a speech devoted to Ramsay MacDonald's rule in England, G. Zinoviev, president of the Communist International, said that the prime minister will go down in history as one of the world's funny men. In spite of his declaration that he would have nothing to do with Moscow, he must now champion the cause of Soviet Russia. He must also defend Communist Editor Campbell, whom he had arrested but since released under pressure.

"MacDonald," he said, "ploughs the field for the Communist harvest. His government is the finest cinematograph display for us in the international political theatre."

GRIFFITH SEES EFFORT TO SPLIT THE WOBBLIES

States Views to Annual Convention Here

Leaders in the Rowan-Bowerman group are endeavoring to split the Industrial Workers of the World, James Griffith declared to the convention of the I. W. W. in Emmet Memorial Hall yesterday.

Under a severe cross-questioning by the delegates, Griffith admitted he had been the first to sign his name to the injunction which brot the I. W. W. controversy before a capitalist court, and that he had signed an order issued to the members that they send no funds to Industrial Solidarity, the General Defense Committee or the Industrial Pioneer, official publications of the I. W. W.

Griffith States His Stand.

In stating his principles, Griffith declared: "During the war the I. W. W. became a highly centralized organization, but now the war is over and we should develop our work on the job.

"We should lay down a definite policy and follow it out. There are two conflicting ideas now within the organization, one which emphasizes revolutionary theories, and one which emphasizes job control."

Griffith's financial report discloses that Rowan has refused to submit any financial statement even to Griffith, declaring he would keep his own financial record.

Charge Preamble Violation.

The report disclosed that Griffith has given out $60 as an advance payment to William Bigelow for legal expenses in putting the injunction over.

When asked if he believed that in taking the I. W. W. into a capitalist court he was violating the preamble of the I. W. W. which states that the master class and the employed class have nothing in common, Griffith declared that the reason for signing the injunction was to "tie up the funds as I knew that no matter which side controlled them the controversy would continue. I wanted the coming convention to decide the internal affairs." Griffith refused to talk further on this point.

Griffith admitted that he had refused to sign or accept a notification of the meeting of the delegates in Phoenix Hall a few days ago, and did not even

WALL STREET PLANS TO EXPLOIT EUROPE LIKE OTHER COLONIES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—In the offering for public subscription today for 250,000 shares of six per cent preferred stock of the United States and Foreign Securities corporation, New York bankers announced the formation of a gigantic financial mechanism to finance European enterprises.

When fully organized, the new corporation will have outstanding $25,000,000 in first preferred stock, 50,000 shares of second preferred stock, and 1,000,000 shares of common stock, which is to be distributed to purchasers of preferred stock, the backers said.

FARRINGTON IS SHOWN IN ROLE OF BOSS' TOOL

Fined Miners Who Got Wage Increase

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Article Nine.)

While attending the last convention of the United Mine Workers of America held in Indianapolis, I was struck by the consistency with which the officials upheld the interests of the mine owners against the members, locals and districts of the international that had occasion to use the strike weapon against the bosses, oftentimes to enforce the terms of agreements reached between the operators and the miners.

One could not help realizing the truth of Mark Hanna's characterization of Sam Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, when he introduced the two worthies at a banquet of the National Civic Federation as "my trusted labor lieutenants."

Capitalist Tools

There is no doubt but the majority of the officials of the American Federation of Labor are very willing servants of the master class. The actions of the leaders of the U. M. W. of A. at the last convention showed that quite plainly. The most vicious attacks were made on the union members who defended their right against the greedy bosses while the coal op-

WALL ST. GIVES TO DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN FUND

Broker Barney Baruch Heads List with $25,000

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Senator William E. Borah, and his senate committee this afternoon completed the preliminary skirmishing in connection with the investigation of campaign expenditures.

Clem L. Shaver, democratic national chairman, and James W. Gerard, the party treasurer, appeared before the committee and reported on their campaign collections to date.

Get Only $548,440.02.

A total of $548,440.02 has been collected to date by the democratic national committee to finance its presidential campaign, James W. Gerard, the party treasurer, testified.

A list of the large contributions to the democratic fund was submitted to the committee at Borah's request. The largest contributions, according to this list, were amounts of $25,000 each given by Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the war industries board and Jesse H. Jones, of Houston, Texas, director of finance for the national committee.

Grill Pennsylvania Bankers.

Senator Borah adjourned the committee until two o'clock tomorrow afternoon, announcing that at that time he would examine the Pennsylvania bankers and manufacturers involved in "slush fund" charges.

The charges include Joseph R. Grandy, who took the lead in raising republican funds in that state.

BRITISH MAY OPENLY AID THE FASCISTI

MacDonald Govt. May War on Workers' Rule

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CANTON, China, Oct. 21.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of the revolutionary government of Southern China, today declared his intention of seizing customs receipts in Canton in order to raise funds for his Red Army.

This action may cause the British government to openly participate in the civil war on the side of the Chinese Fascisti.

Predicts United Nation.

British forces have already on more than one occasion given support to the Canton merchants, but in case Sun carries out his threat, it is believed that the British government, tho still under the direction of Ramsay MacDonald, socialist premier, will make open war on the workers of Southern China.

Sun Yat Sen in an interview to The DAILY WORKER representative in Canton, declared that China will be a united nation and that India will also achieve her independence.

Puts Blame on Imperialists.

He blamed the imperialist powers of the world for the present civil warfare. The Chinese revolution must go on, he declared, until the old system is rooted out bag and baggage.

Dr. Sun was generous in his praise of the attitude of Soviet Russia toward China. He seemed proud of the friendly relations that existed between Canton and Moscow and said that Soviet Russia was the only government in the world, that was helping the Chinese masses on the road to unity, peace and prosperity.

"Under the czarist regime," declared the revolutionary president, who by the way looks extremely healthy considering his recent death by assassination, as reported in the capitalist press, "Russia was the foe of China. But since the workers seized power, they have shown time and again that the interests of the Chinese workers are as dear to their hearts as the interests of the workers within the borders of the great Workers' Republic.

Russia Shows Friendship.

"One of the first acts of the Soviet government," continued Sun, "was to abolish the extra privileges for foreigners and to remit the Russian share of the Boxer indemnity. Russia is the only country that has met us with open arms. The other countries have persecuted us. Is it any wonder that the Chinese masses should have a deep feeling of love in their hearts for the mighty power of Red Russia?"

Asked if the Chinese workers were influenced by the anti-Communist propaganda put out by the capitalistic newspapers in China, principally the British papers, he replied:

Not Worried by Lies.

"The Chinese workers are not as unintelligent as our enemies pretend to believe. It does not take very much thinking on their part ot realise that these people who are putting out this anti-Soviet propaganda, are their own persecutors and they understand that the capitalist sheets hate the Soviet government because it is a workers' government.

"The cry of Communism has no terrors for the workers of southern China. In fact, they delight in being called Red and look on the Red flag as the only banner worth fighting under.

"The great powers are afraid that if China is united and the thieving tuchuns put where they belong, another and greater Japan will confront them. Wu Pei Fu, who is supported by the British and American governments, are trying to unify the country by force and establish his dictatorship which would be an improvement on the Manchu dynasty.

"I could have unified China, but the capitalist powers are fighting me. We must develop China industrially. China is an agricultural country with a surplus population which brings problems of banditry.

British Fear for India.

"The American state department follows Downing Street," said Sun. "The British know that the Hindoos are following closely the developments in China. They know that once India goes, the empire is no more. India is the keystone of the British imperial system, but we predict that the day of the British empire is drawing to a close."

I. L. G. W. EDICT ON EXPELLED IS CALLED STUPID

Johnstone Reviews New Sigman Declaration

Hitting the recent action of the General Executive Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union regarding expelled members as stupid, J. W. Johnstone, assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, declares that the fight to secure a revolutionary leadership for the union will continue until it is victorious. Johnstone's statement follows:

Edict on Expelled.

AGAIN the International Ladies' Garment Workers' official family have shown their contempt for the rank and file, in the action of the general executive board in handing down the stupid decision that the expelled members who were adherents of the T. U. E. L. can rejoin the organization as new members, only on probation.

That during this period of probation they will not be allowed to hold office and will, for two years, be carefully watched.

And if they should commit any act not in line with the corrupt and treacherous Sigman-Feinberg-Perlstein policy, they will be forthwith expelled.

Officials Are Destructionists.

This decision, immediately following the mass revolt of the membership in New York City, a meeting called by and under the leadership of the T. U. E. L. against the open betrayal of these very officials, only emphasizes the fact that this small band of unscrupulous officials are determined to destroy the organization rather than yield to the demands of the membership.

The settled policy of the G. E. B. is to carry on an unrelenting war against the militants in the union, and to completely surrender to the employers.

The meeting held in Cooper Union, called by the T. U. E. L. where thousands of members were turned away, showed how extensive the revolt against these bureaucrats has gone. Local unions, formerly under the control of the machine, joined in this great protest under the leadership of the T. U. E. L., in spite of the fact that the T. U. E. L. has been outlawed by the royal decree of the G. E. B. and a packed convention. This mass revolt, which is deepening every day, is against the cowardly betrayal by a corrupt leadership, who deliberately crushed a winning strike and placed the fate of 50,000 cloakmakers at the tender mercies of a committee of bankers and politicians.

Decision is an Insult.

The decision of the G. E. B., following this tremendous protest, is an insult and a challenge to the intelligence of the membership. Sigman and company are having the time of their lives trying to find ways and means of stopping the revolutionary activities of the T. U. E. L. Slugging, discriminations, removal from office, expulsions from the union, then the complete outlawing of the T. U. E. L. has been their program of action up to date, and the answer to all these attacks is the Cooper Union protest meeting.

Retain Expulsion Club.

Now Sigman and his "comrades" of the Second International are being forced to pretend to take back to membership the expelled members, but they propose to again hold the club of expulsion over heads in order to stop their activities.

They are going to watch them very carefully for two years. Why two years? This is probably Sigman's idea of strategy aimed to keep these militants out of the next convention.

The rank and file has also been carefully watching, and what they saw was the official family betray the interests of the workers that they are supposed to protect. And the Cooper Union protest meeting was their answer to what they saw.

Union is Weakened.

Outlawing the T. U. E. L. weakens the union, but does not eliminate the T. U. E. L. from the struggle. All the coercion of capitalism cannot stop the league from leading the workers in the struggle. The triple role of the Needle Trades Section of the T. U. E. L. against the reactionary conduct of Sigman-Feinberg and Co., makes militants faster than they can be expelled.

The militants in the I. L. G. W. U., following the lead of the T. U. E. L., are determined to clean house. They are determined to replace the present incompetent official family and their policy of "the identity of interest between labor and capital" with a revolutionary leadership and a policy based upon the class struggle and to make the I. L. G. W. an instrument of the revolutionary struggle.

Signed: J. W. JOHNSTONE,
Assistant Secretary of the Trade Union Educational League.

WORKERS PARTY ROUSES PHILLY FROM SLUMBER

Quaker City Is Covered with Daily Workers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 21.—Philadelphia Communists responded to the first general call to action on Red Sunday, Oct. 19, with an unprecedented spirit of enthusiasm and energy.

Within two hours, from ten different points in the city, fifty thousand copies of the Philadelphia edition of the DAILY WORKER were distributed with a precision that promises great results to the DAILY WORKER, the Gitlow meeting and to the party.

Cover LaFollette Meeting.

Besides the house to house distributions, our comrades introduced the DAILY WORKER and the Communist campaign issues to three LaFollette mass meetings.

The comrades participating in the distribution report such interest and sympathetic response to the DAILY WORKER and the Gitlow meeting advertised in the paper for Friday evening, Oct. 24, at the Labor Lyceum, at 6th and Brown streets, that our committee is making efforts to secure an adjoining hall and permit for an open air meeting near the hall to accommodate the almost certain overflow meeting.

Members of the Young Workers League have played an important role in this distribution and have added much to its success while at the same time distributing several thousand leaflets advertising the great youth Mass Meeting and Concert for Wednesday, October 29, at the Eagles Temple.

A word must be mentioned of the splendid success of the party concert and ball held Saturday evening preceding the distribution of the DAILY WORKER.

Tribute to John Reed.

A record crowd was present, and the good humor that prevailed during the entire evening can only be attributed to the first class concert program which included several selections from the orchestra and a tribute from the audience to the memory of John Reed.

Philadelphia will wind up the campaign with a great campaign rally mass meeting in the Bannater Maennerchor Hall at 2nd and Norris Sts., on Monday evening, November 3, with Wm. Weinstone of New York as the chief speaker. More details of this meeting later.

In the meantime all preparations are being made for our seventh anniversary celebration of the Russian Revolution for November 7.

PLAN 10-DAY DRIVE OF OPEN AIR MEETINGS

Big Wind-up Is Planned for Chicago Campaign

Campaign headquarters of the Workers Party is planning to increase the number of open air campaign rallies in spite of the chilly weather.

The meetings have steadily increased in size, with workers waiting on the corners for our speakers to start, and a number of new members have been brought into the Workers Party.

Oct. 25 to Nov. 3.

Plans are being made now for a great ten-day wind-up of open air and indoor rallies and noon-hour meetings at factory gates—from Oct. 25 to Nov. 3. Fifty to sixty street corner meetings will be held during these days preceding election day. The following comrades have been lined up so far for these "red" demonstrations: Browder, Bittelman, Kruse, Engdahl, Wagenknecht, Johnstone, Owen, Earley, Reeve, Hammersmark, Shachtman, Maurer ,Gomez, Swabeck, Herd, George, Edwards, Dozenberg, Carmon, Henderson, Kaplan, Cline, Carlson, Mass, Shaap, Overgaard, Kjar, Herzon, Stewart, Harvey, Garver, Buckley, Gannes, Williamson, Bloch, Zokaitis, and many others will be added.

Further details regarding the final drive in the Chicago Communist campaign will appear in later issues of the DAILY WORKER.

Carlson Spends Three Days in Detroit; Then On to Grand Rapids

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—The Detroit Young Workers' League have made elaborate preparations for the meetings to be addressed by Oliver Carlson, who is completing his national tour in which he reported to membership meetings in all the large cities on behalf of the national executive committee.

Carlson was a delegate to the recent congress of the Young Communist International and is reporting the decisions of that congress to the league membership together with an amplification of the program of work adopted by the League National Executive Committee. League members in Detroit should turn out to this meeting and hear the report.

In addition to the membership meeting, a public meeting has been arranged jointly by the Young Workers' League and the Workers Party, for Friday, Oct. 25.

The District dances of Carlson are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 23, 24 and 25. After leaving Detroit he will speak in Grand Rapids, Oct. 26, and Muskegon, Oct. 27.

Honor Russian Geographer.

CAHAN'S FORWARD JOINS DAILY NEWS' ATTACK ON "REDS"

Abe Cahan's Jewish Daily Forward had to get its fingers into the red baiting pie of the Chicago Daily News. It accomplished its ambition by republishing, word for word, the report of Vic Lawson's "News" that Peter Lucas and John Hendrickson, "just over from Soviet Russia," had been arrested for putting up the posters of the DAILY WORKER, advertising its exposure of the Daily News lies.

Cahan's sheet didn't take the trouble to investigate or it would have found that Lucas and Hendrickson are both employed by the DAILY WORKER, that they are members of the Young Workers League, and have never been to Russia.

The "incriminating Communist literature from Soviet Russia," that Cahan's socialist Forward, reported the two young comrades had in their possession consisted of posters advertising the DAILY WORKER series, "The Truth About the Communists." But that is Cahan and his organ of yellow socialism.

read the communication sent him by the convention.

The label of the I. W. W. which was supposed to be in his keeping, he declared had been used by A. F. of L. shops to do the Rowan and Bowerman printing altho without his consent, and the seal of the I. W. W. has also been used by the Rowan-Bowerman officers. Griffith admitted that section six of the I. W. W. constitution relating to the use of the I. W. W. label had been violated by his faction. He declared that he has no cash on hand.

It was brot out by Delegate Joe Jordan that Griffith had accepted the office of general organizer and chairman of the executive board when tendered him by Rowan when he had been defeated by Fisher for that office in the last I. W. W. election.

"I have heard my associates say they are in favor of a split in the I. W. W.," Griffith admitted when questioned by Chairman Welinder. "I myself have never advocated a split." Griffith said that Rowan and the others had favored calling their faction to a convention in Spokane, but he had finally prevailed on them to call a convention in Chicago for the same date as the Doyle-Fisher convention call, Oct. 13. He did this, he said, to try to avoid a split. He declared a move is on foot to split Industrial Union 120 away from the I. W. W.

Up for Next Week Case.

Charles Gilson also submitted his report to the convention, as a G. E. B. member, and his case will be taken up later under grievances. Gilson is in neither the Doyle-Fisher nor the Rowan-Bowerman faction. He seems to be in a bit of trouble wandering in confusion between the two groups. Gilson answered, "I don't know" or "I don't remember" to most of the questions the delegates asked him.

A telegram was received from the Vancouver branch of the I. W. W. indorsing their stand in recognizing neither faction.

Fisher is Grilled.

The report of Joe Fisher, organizer and former chairman of the G. E. B., who is now under suspension, was laid over until the grievance committee makes its report.

Fisher was subjected to a severe grilling by the delegates. Referring to the controversy over the balloting in the disputed M. T. W. U. case, which was investigated by Fisher, a delegate said: "Didn't I tell you that your report on the balloting was that of a trusting child. You simply asked the M. T. W. U. officials if they had done anything wrong, and they said 'No.'"

Dawes Plan Forces New Election in Germany as Ebert-Marx Rule Fails

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Dawes plan and the Morgan loan begin to sink in the quicksands. The government of Chancellor Marx, in Germany, that made the deal with Wall Street, has fallen. New elections have been ordered that may also sweep away the socialist president of Germany, Fritz Ebert, who has held that position since the creation of the German republic.

* * * *

The Communists alone are in an advantageous position as Germany goes to new elections on the issue of the Dawes plan. The Communists alone have fought the Morgan scheme to vassalize the whole German nation.

It was only thru the temporary support of all the bourgeois parties, from the socialists to the Fascisti, that Chancellor Marx was able to line up the German reichstag for the world's bankers. Now, as the Dawes plan goes into effect, with the cost of living rising and unemployment on the increase, Chancellor Marx finds his support slipping from under him.

* * * *

As a last resort an attempt was made to organize a five-party government, to include not only the people's party, centrists (catholics) and democrats, participating in the present government, but also the nationalists (Fascisti) and the socialists.

Every possible inducement was extended by the Marx-Ebert government to the Fascisti to come into the coalition. The socialist seemed ready to swallow anything. But the democrats balked at the proposal. Fascist associations, and Dr. Marx had to announce his failure to keep the badly wrecked governmental machine going. The dissolution of the reichstag was then ordered.

* * * *

The German Communists can be depended on to take every possible advantage of the strategic position they now hold. They are now in a better position than ever to unmask the carefully laid scheme to bring Germany in on the Wall Street side of a new war against Soviet Russia.

How graciously the diplomats of London, Paris and Washington were inviting the Germans to come into the League of Nations! The invitation of the British labor premier, supreme capitalist pacifist, to come into the Black Capitalist International certainly sounded alluring. But the entrance of Germany to "The League" was conditioned on her agreement to partipate in wars or blockades under the orders of the League of Nations. It made no difference that Germany was unarmed. She was to be used as a buffer state against Soviet Rule.

* * * *

The election struggle in Germany cannot help but develop into another clash between the Communists and the Fascisti of the Nationalist Party. The Fascisti can be depended on to turn against the Dawes plan from purely jingoistic and nationalistic motives. The Communists will carry on the fight for the overthrow of all German capitalism, for an alliance with the Russian workers against all world oppression.

* * * *

The election will probably be set for Dec. 7. New hosts of German workers will be called on to decide whether they are ready to march forward to liberation under the Communist slogan of "All Power to the Workers!" or content to remain forever enslaved to German capitalism under Fascist rule.

HEARSE CALLED FOR CALIFORNIA SOCIALIST PARTY

By J. G. REED

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 21. — Class collaboration has eaten so deeply into the vitals of the socialist party of this state that its bones are beginning to fall apart for want of flesh and muscles to hold them together.

For twenty years now this party has maintained a headquarters and published a paper in this city. Today sees the passing of its headquarters in Oakland and the removal of what is left of "The World" to a two-by four office in San Francisco.

As long as the socialist party maintained a semblance of working-class character it was able to hold together, but when that party consented to become the tail-end of the LaFollette kite, the party split wide open. The Johnson-Beals-Katz-Serb crowd bolted the party leaving it to the Cameron King-Hoar element.

Today in all this state the socialist party does not maintain one permanent headquarters, nor does it hold regular propaganda meetings. And what a comedown this is when in 1919 this state boasted of party locals in all principal cities. San Francisco, Oakland, and Los Angeles had memberships around 500 each. Such places as Eureka, Fort Bragg, San Jose, Sacramento, and Fresno maintained headquarters and thriving locals. Today not one of these can speak of anything but a paper membership.

At that time the socialist weekly, "The World," was publishing around 10,000 copies weekly. Now it it publishes 2,000 it is doing a land office business.

All working-class organizations that attempt to compromise and collaborate with capitalism are doomed to the same failure as pictured above. As the DAILY WORKER has frequently pointed out, the only function for working-class political parties and labor unions is to carry on a class struggle leading toward the final overthrow of capitalism. Any other motive is doomed to failure.

The socialist party in California is kicking its last. Call the hearse!

ed with the poisonous rubbish that is spread upon the screen. How often has a class conscious worker on seeing pictures extolling stoolpigeons, fat bankers, manufacturers, North West Mounted Policemen, generals, priests, and capitalist lackeys in general, hungered for a real working class screen drama? Only on very rare occasions can one see a fairly decent picture produced by a capitalist concern.

BUT thanks to the International Workers' Aid, the workers are not entirely dependent on the capitalist movies. I have seen pictures shown by this organization that compare favorably from the artistic and mechanical point of view with anything produced by the rich capitalist concerns. But the real delight in seeing the pictures shown by the I. W. A. is in their splendid education and inspirational value. Besides the films of Russian scenes there are fiction films like "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" which is a love story woven around the love affair of a red soldier. An opportunity is offered working class organizations to have showings of those pictures in their localities at a very low cost. Comrade William Kruse is in charge of this very essential arm of the working class movement, and those who desire to have those pictures shown in their neighborhood can get all the necessary information from him at 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Ill.

IF all the sentences imposed on violators of the prohibition act in the last three years, were handed to one individual, he would have to spend 7,000 years in jail—unless he was a millionaire. In which case he would be released after serving the first thousand. The report of prohibition Commissioner Haynes, shows that 177,000 arrests have been made, 39,000,000 gallons of liquor were seized, 11,000 cases and 444 ships were confiscated, $18,000,000 fines were imposed. Quite a law-abiding country, ain't it?

Vote Communist This Time:

Party's Union and Shop Collections Grow

BAKERS' LOCALS 1, 8 and 164 of the Amalgamated Foodworkers, with a total membership of 5000, have just endorsed the Workers Party and its candidates, William Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow. To back up their endorsement each local has contributed $100 to the Workers Party election campaign.

Waterproof Garment Workers' Union No. 20 contributes $5.00. Shoeworkers' Prot. Union No. 54, which is in bad financial condition at the present time, also sends $3.00 to show its goodwill.

In unions that are not as progressive as these militant locals the workers are refusing support for LaFollette. Instead, they are conducting a strenuous campaign in the shops to collect funds for the only workingclass candidates in the field, Foster and Gitlow.

Shops where the latest collections have been made are the Blum and Metenthal Leathergoods Shop, $12 by S. Laderman; Chesterfield Furniture Mfg. Co., $17.55 by S. Bologi on List No. 21775.

Fraternal organizations are also continuing to send in funds. Workmen's Circle Br. 421 sends in $5; No. 564 sends in $15; and Arbeiter Sick and Death Benefit Fund No. 217, $3.

Many individuals, to show their goodwill, are also doing good work. A. H. after giving a personal donation of $50, and raising $150 among friends, sends in another $25 of his own, with $25 contributed by a Doctor X.

These collections if they continue to come in at the present rate till the Tag Day to be held Oct. 25 and 26, will enable the committee to conduct a stirring campaign for the Workers Party.

The campaign is swinging into its high level. Our work is already bringing forth responses from the masses thruout the various sections of the district. We have every hope of making enormous gains for Communism. The amount of our work depends on the funds that we can raise. More money means more leaflets for free distribution, more meetings arranged, more signs put up on buildings, and more posters and other campaign material printed.

Dollars delivered to the Campaign Headquarters now are worth far more than a week later. The materials those dollars will buy can be ordered and distributed so much earlier. Settle up for all funds collected now.

Make those shop collections which have not yet been made. Bring in the money without delay. Make checks payable to CHARLES KRUMBEIN, 210 East 12th Street, New York City.

OLGIN SPEAKS IN DRIVE TO GET FREIHEIT HOME

Jewish Communist Daily Seeks Own Plant

Our Jewish Communist daily, "The Freiheit," is carrying on a nation-wide drive to purchase the building they are at present located in at 153 East Broadway, New York City.

"This drive must lift the terrific burden of continuous deficits off our shoulders and place the paper on a solid basis financially," Moissaye J. Olgin said in discussing the campaign.

Get Big Response.

Olgin is speaking at a series of meetings thruout the country on Soviet Russia in 1924, the proceeds of which go to the Freiheit. Olgin says the meetings he addressed so far in Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Detroit were very successful. The enthusiasm is remarkable. The audiences which are composed chiefly of Communists and sympathizers also contain a large number of interested spectators who want to learn something about Russia first hand. Every meeting brings enthusiastic response and splendid collections.

Six Months in Russia.

Comrade Olgin has only very recently returned from Russia, where he spent six months as a representative of the Workers Party of America.

Most of his time there was devoted to work in factories and among the peasants to gather information of New Russia.

He also was a delegate to the fifth congress of the Communist International and was very active in the third congress of the Red International of Labor Unions.

Soviet Structure Firm.

Great cheers and applause greeted Comrade Olgin in Detroit when he said that "after seven years of struggle and suffering and starvation, of bleeding to death on the various fronts and of sters, stubborn reconstruction work both in the fields of industry and agriculture, the Soviet structure of the present is as firm as a rock, which no attacks and no machinations of the imperialists of the world, aided and abetted by the socialist revolutionaries and the mensheviks of the Second International, can shake.

"Russia isn't what is was four or five years ago. Russia has reconstructed her industries. Russia has improved her transport. Russia has generally increased her resources. And what is most important, Russia has created a Red army consisting of the sons of workers and peasants, officered by sons of workers and peasants and imbued with the Communist ideal.

Red Army Most Powerful Weapon.

"The Red army understands the tasks of the Soviet republic. The Red army is ready to defend the conquests of the revolution. The Red army is the most powerful weapon in the hands of the working class in its struggle with all enemies from within and without. And should the socialists of the Second International conspire with the capitalist governments of the world to create new disturbances the way they attempted to do in the recent bandit uprising of Georgia, which turned out to be a ridiculous failure, admitted by its perpetrators themselves, the Russian army, backed by the entire toil Russia, will hit and hit hard and mercilessly so as to wipe out the incentive for further attempts."

He delighted his audience with anecdotes about the peasants and their reaction to the new improvements put into the villages, as for instance the lighting up of the little village huts by electricity.

Calls Socialists' Bluff.

In Pittsburgh, the Jewish Forward socialists distributed leaflets slandering the Soviet government and making silly, petty attacks on Comrade Olgin. But when Olgin replied to these attacks in the leaflets and called for questions from the deluded socialists in the audience, not a word was uttered by any of them.

WORKERS PARTY TELLS STONE OF LABOR IN PRISON

Cal's Attorney General Shows His Ignorance

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 21.—Harlan Stone, attorney-general of the United States, in reply to a resolution passed by New York trade unions and fraternal organizations demanding the freedom of persons convicted for the expression of opinion, denies that there is any "person in the United States today undergoing imprisonment in any federal court for the free expression of opinion.'"

In the letter sent to Charles Krumbein, New York district organizer of the Workers Party, Mr. Stone further goes on to state that "neither the president nor this department has any jurisdiction whatever regarding the extension of executive clemency to persons who have been convicted for violating a state law."

90 in California Prisons.

When interviewed here today Krumbein made the following statement, "There are today 90 workers imprisoned in the state of California, for attempting to exercise the right of free speech guaranteed them by the constitution of the United States.

"In Massachusetts, Coolidge's home state, Judge Thayer has just confirmed the sentence of the two workers—Sacco and Vanzetti. This case has attracted national and world-wide attention. In all there are 106 workers in the United States, who are in jail in utter violation of the federal constitution.

"The fact of the matter is that the federal government thru the agents of the department of justice, has taken a prominent part in these state cases, often furnishing evidence and materal assistance.

"Especially was this true in the Bridgeman case in Michigan where William Z. Foster, and C. E. Ruthenberg were tried at the instigation of the agents of the federal department of justice. Mr. Stone's attempt to plead "lack of jurisdiction" is simply a subterfuge.

Workers Would Like to Know.

"Has Mr. Coolidge in his campaign utterances made even the faintest mention of his attitude toward the imprisonment of these men and women? Does Mr. Coolidge mean to imply that he can by resorting to a legal technicality evade responsibility for the existence of this standing menace to the free activity of the working class? The workers would like to know."

START 7,000 MILE TRIP TO DISCOVER NEW ROUTES FOR AIR MAIL

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

MITCHELL FIELD, L. I., Oct. 21.—Lieut. M. L. Elliott, U. S. A., hopped off today on an inspection trip of the east-west air mail routes that will keep him flying over 7,000 miles for a month.

The primary purpose of the trip is to find new air ways for mail planes. The war department authorized O. E. Cesare, an artist, to accompany Lieutenant Elliott and make sketches of the country covered.

The first stop will be Bellefonte, Pennsylvania. Then the plane will go to Cleveland, Bryan, Ohio, Mt. Clemens, Michigan, Columbus, Nebraska, Salt Lake City, and San Francisco, California, Los Angeles, San Diego, El Paso, Texas, San Anton'o, Chicago and back to Mitchell field.

BIG RESPONSE TO SPECIAL NOV. 7TH EDITIONS

List of the Articles to Appear Announced

The announcement that the DAILY WORKER will issue two special editions in celebration of the seventh anniversary of the Soviet Republic of Russia has brought enthusiastic response from the readers of the paper.

The first special anniversary number will come out on Saturday, Nov. 1, and the second, Thursday, Nov. 6.

Russia Works Toward Communism.

Specially prepared articles will be written for the two numbers, covering every phase of the revolution, thru its preparatory stages, the dark days, the bitter and heroic struggles and the upward road to victory.

These special issues are significant at this time because of the international position of the first workers' republic. While the capitalist nations of the world are being torn with the contradictions of their own political economy, while the workers everywhere face unemployment, lengthening of the workday, cuts in wages, new wars and misery, Russia's new citizens are happily working towards the new society, Communism. While capitalism becomes more shameless and naked in its decrepit bankruptcy, Russia is forging a new age in the crucible of revolution.

Branches throut the country are urged to place their orders immediately for the special celebration meetings.

Some Features Announced.

It is announced that the following articles will feature the two special editions:

Seven Years of Soviet Russia, by William Z. Foster.

The Class and Party That Made It Possible, by William F. Dunne.

Seven Years Ago, by Max Bedacht.

The Russian Revolution and the American Communist Movement, by Alexander Bittelman.

Leaders of the Russian Revolution, by J. Louis Engdahl.

Gompers and Russia, by Earl Russell Browder.

The Russian Revolution and the Communist International, by Charles E. Ruthenberg.

Russia's Youth, by Oliver Carlson.

Hughes and Russia, by Tom John O'Flaherty.

The Proof of a Revolutionary Theory, by James P. Cannon.

Russia and the Oppressed Nationalities, by Harrison George.

The International Position of Soviet Russia, by I. Stalin, secretary, Communist Party of Russia.

NO REDUCTION IN THE SUGAR TARIFF GIVES $40,000 TO TRUST DAILY

(By Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—No reduction in sugar tariff rates will be made at this season by President Coolidge, in spite of the recommendation to that effect made to him by the tariff commission. Consumers will continue to pay the additional $40,000 a day to the sugar combine.

A hint from the White House that Coolidge would take no action on sugar tariff rates is enforced by a news item issued by his campaign committee. It quotes William Oeschger of Denver as saying that Colorado will go republican because the big profiteers like the present sugar and wool and mineral tariff rates.

MERRY TALE IS WELL TOLD BY CARL HAESSLER

F. P. Man Squirts Sarcasm on Fink

By Carl Haessler.

(Editor of the Federated Press)

William Randolph Hearst is indirectly responsible for a belated rehashing of time-honored, motheaten, frostbitten, threadbare jumble of anti-red yarns in the Chicago Daily News just when everyone thought they had been finally buried with the political decease of Harry M. Daugherty and the hurried and assisted exit of sleuth William J. Burns from the department of justice espionage bureau.

News Sees Red

Hearst's evening daily has been giving the Daily News the blind staggers in the race for circulation, though the Hearst sheet sells for 3c and the News for 2c. Hearst also charges 5c Saturdays while the News with its enlarged picture edition sticks to 2c. Various circulation dodges were tried by the News; prizes for best detective story solutions, best photographs, crossword puzzle prizes etc. The news columns became more rank to seduce readers from the yellow competitor.

Finally the supreme yellow stunt was launched on October 14 with an 8 column streamer across page one reading "RED" PLOTTERS IN AMERICA.

Jake Belly Flaps.

It appears that Jake Spolansk, one of the more clownish Burns agents in the department of justice, got the hook soon after his chief was chased out of Washington. The kink in the Daily News circulation coincided with the kink in Spolansky's breadbasket and the two kindred spirits got together to cook up the red series for mutual profit. The installments are tedious and clumsy warmed-over accounts of some fact and much fiction served in what the News evidently regards as Hearst style.

The full ridiculous measure of this prehistoric gooding in the News is taken by the DAILY WORKER in a page one announcement appearing on the day the red series began.

DAILY WORKER Chorties.

"Bolsheviki!" the Daily Worker exclaims. "Chicago is their center. Don't read their 'exposure' by a 'retired' secret agent when you can read how they act and what they believe every day in the official 'red' newspaper, the DAILY WORKER."

The sauce to this red salad is unconsciously served by the Daily News itself in its introduction to Jake Spolansky's tattered tale: "These rumors," the News seriously declares, "have been passed over with a laugh. They have been looked upon by many as constituting a national bugaboo and stories of what the Communists or radicals were accomplishing have been often set aside as fairy tales.

Even so. Except where circulation is threatened by an able and unscrupulous competitor and where an unemployed dick is scratching for tea beans.

TROTSKY URGES CHINESE TO JOIN THE CLASS WAR

Greets Oriental Society in Fight on Imperialism

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—The following telegram was sent by Leon Trotsky, People's Commissar of War, in reply to a message addressed to him by the Oriental Society for Struggle Against Imperialism:

"I wholeheartedly join the program of the struggle against world imperialism, which is now preparing finally to enslave China.

"In your fight, whose progress will depend on the growth of consciousness and organization of the toiling masses of China and those Chinese intellectual elements who are faithful to their people, you may count on the conscious support of the revolutionary proletariat of all countries, on one hand, and on inevitable antagonisms between the world imperialistic depredators, on the other.

"True to the will of the founder, the Union of Soviet Republics will altogether and entirely remain on the side of the oppressed against the oppressors. By their opprobrious work of violence the imperialists are driving the Chinese people to hate every foreigner and everything foreign.

"It is, however, the task of Chinese revolutionists, in order to guard the Chinese people from chauvinism, to teach it to distinguish in every capitalistic nation between two fundamental classes—the imperialistic bourgeoisie and the revolutionary proletariat.

"It is only in union with the workers of the world that the Chinese democracy will repel the new imperialistic onslaught on the national independence of the Chinese people.

"I hope to dwell more in detail on this world-important question in the near future. To support the liberative struggle of the toiling Chinese people is the duty of each revolutionist and the more so is it the duty of the anti-imperialist committee."

"Hands Off!" Movement Grows.

MOSCOW, Sept. 21. — Latest available reports show that the "Hands Off China" Society numbers over 45,000 members, without Moscow; the membership includes individual persons and collective bodies from among all classes of people—workers, employes, peasants, and all parts, even the remotest ones, of the Union—Ukraine, Caucasus, Siberia, Turkestan.

Not a day passes in Moscow without there being some meeting in factories, offices or military units, with reports giving information on events in China. Everywhere resolutions protesting against attempts of imperialistic intervention are being enthusiastically adopted.

EVEN HODGES MUST ADMIT DAWES PLAN IS HOSTILE TO WORKERS

The Dawes plan as an instrument of class oppression by international financiers is the keynote of an address delivered by Frank Hodges, former secretary of the British miners' union and member of the recent Labor government of England. Speaking to a meeting in the center of one of the coal mining areas of Great Britain on September 20 he predicted that the Dawes plan would bring forth a great capitalist offensive in the countries outside of Germany against the established conditions of the working class.

Earl of Overland Now Carries Title of Count of No Account

TOLEDO, Oct. 21.—Clarence Earl, dubbed Earl of Overland for the role he played in the Overland automobile strike here a few years ago, has been indicted in Texas for using the mails to defraud in connection with a fake motor scheme.

A picturesque figure, Earl imposed himself upon the heads of the Overland company, became vice-president of the firm, assumed the role of "trust man of industry" to the Babbitts of Toledo, and proceeded to lead his company into a disastrous struggle against union labor.

The strike proved the Waterloo of this industrial Napoleon. His personal fortune crashed. Sheriff's deputies replaced the armed guards he had installed about his palatial home to ward off attacks by the "anarchists and reds." Exquisite furniture and expensive bric-a-brac were knocked down to the highest bidders while Earl disappeared. Now an obscure news dispatch from Texas records his disastrous encounter with the law on fake promotions charges.

NEGROES WITH WHITE FRIENDS LAW VIOLATORS

At Least That Is What Chicago Police Think

In the opinion of Officers Cooper and O'Brien of the third district police station, any Negro who has white friends and visitors is a criminal, and must be arrested.

Last week William Gray, a Negro workman, and his wife, who reside at 4145 Vincennes Ave., were visited by a white couple, friends of the Grays.

The two above mentioned Sherlock Holmes policemen spied the white couple enter the house where Negroes reside, and straight away went to Mr. Gray's flat, rang his door bell and announced that all the occupants were under arrest.

The Grays, their white friends and a roomer of theirs were all taken to the police station. In court this case was continued because the officers admitted that nothing disorderly was found at Mr. Gray's flat. In other words, the two policemen objected to the whites visiting Negroes.

Has it come to pass in Chicago that Negroes are liable to arrest solely on account of having white friends and visitors? It appears that way.

The writer, a Negro, has more white friends and visitors than Negroes, and I am pondering if some of the insignificant specimens of humanity and capitalist minions, the policemen, will place me and my white guests under arrest for the crime of being friends.

The policemen have been carrying on a reign of terror during the past year by molesting, insulting, assaulting and arresting Negro and white couples, and Negro and fair complexioned Negro couples. They undoubtedly received instructions from higher ups to carry on this dirty work.

This illustrates to what extent the capitalist minions and hirelings will go to in their efforts to prevent Negro and white workers from becoming friendly, and to keep them separate and apart.

Fortunately, however, in spite of all the vicious tricks of the capitalist exploiters, Negro and white workers are becoming friends and are mixing and mingling together.

Liberal Women Alone Greet Debs In Berger's City

By G. S. SHKLAR.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 21.—Considerable indignation has been aroused in the socialist and labor circles at the announcement that Eugene V. Debs is scheduled to speak in Milwaukee on January 6, under the auspices of Milwaukee Forum, a privately owned institution.

It is strongly rumored that the socialist party of Milwaukee did not want to organize a lecture for Debs in Milwaukee. The membership of the socialist party and progressive trade unionist are wondering why in the city of socialist administration, Debs must speak in a small hall holding only 300 people at the most.

It is also interesting to observe that so far no mention of Debs' lecture appeared in the Milwaukee Leader—the private enterprise of Berger and company.

The socialist party having used Debs' prestige in order to put across the LaFollette betrayal is now afraid even of the revolutionary phraseology of the old leader and he must come to this city of beer and socialist administration fame to speak under the auspices of the liberal women and long after elections.

SMALL BIZ IS VICTIM OF BOTH G.O.P. AND DEMS

Falls Under Dictatorship of Wall Street

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Republican normalcy is strewn with the wrecks of 1,688 banks and 72,839 commercial concerns, according to statistics of business failures reported monthly by the United States department of commerce.

The total liabilities of these corporations which have failed since 1921 amounts to more than $2,700,000,000.

Squeeze Small Business

These figures show that the small business men has been subjected to the same squeeze play which reduced tens of thousands of farmers and wage earners to greater dependence on the dominant financial powers.

To a large extent these failures mean that the small banking, industrial and trade business are being more completely subjected to the economic dictatorship of the New York banks.

The republican-democratic controversy over the responsibility for these failures emphasizes the joint responsibility. The democratic administration allowed the financiers to finance the war in a way to produce a maximum of inflation with excess profits. The democratic administration sponsored the federal reserve act which protected the giant financial interests in the resulting deflation.

But the republican party also sanctions these financial policies which benefit the money power. It has shown itself unwilling or unable to save small business and the farmers from the tide of the failures which inevitably follow inflation. Both parties are committed to the theory that the interests of the financiers who control the country's credit are of paramount importance.

Failures Increase.

The rapid increase during the last 4 years in the number of business failures and in the liabilities involved is shown in the table which lists the banking and commercial failures since 1913;

	Banks		Commercial
Year	No.	Liabilities	No.	Liabilities
(Democratic)
1913	120	$31,649,000	16,032	$273,816,000
1914	216	56,084,000	18,280	357,852,000
1915	133	22,204,000	22,156	387,137,000
1916	48	6,992,000	16,993	194,248,000
1917	45	16,456,000	13,855	172,426,000
1918	34	5,136,000	9,982	162,080,000
1919	61	6,451,000	6,451	112,304,000
1920	120	50,709,000	8,890	247,131,000
(Republican)
1921	508	172,016,000	19,652	628,232,000
1922	276	77,736,000	23,676	623,858,000
1923	576	205,536,000	23,146	623,874,000
1924	428	153,239,000	16,735	304,460,000
(6 months)

These figures show that the number of business failures has nothing to do with the mere fact that one or other of the old political parties happens to be in power but a great deal to do with the same rottenness in the existing economic order which produces the unemployment from which labor suffers periodically.

Same Under Both Old Parties

If the Harding-Coolidge regime is responsible for the tremendous outbreak of failures in 1921-1924 then the Wilson regime may be held responsible for the outbreak in 1913-1915. The fact is that both old parties which encourage and serve the continuance of capitalist economic order are equally responsible and the table above is just an exhibit of their lameness they are willing to perpetuate. It's normalcy for the great capitalist, chaos for the smaller fry and the workers.

Lured to the White House.
(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. — Twelve nationalities were represented in the group of 40 business men actively engaged in the Coolidge campaign, who were piloted to the White House the other day to gaze upon Cautious Cal. In imitation of Mark Hanna's performance in the McKinley campaign of 1896, money raised for the G. O. P. is being spent in numerous excursions leading to a photograph with the White House as a background, and with a grateful speech by the candidate as the crowning thrill. This expense will not show on the books of the campaign committee.

WALL STREET JOURNAL VERY BUSY APPLYING WHITEWASH TO CAL COOLIDGE IN BOSTON BANK SCANDAL

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The Wall Street Journal, which came gallantly to the rescue of Charlie Dawes' tarnished banking reputation when there were none so poor to do him reverence, enters the lists again to clear president Coolidge of all blame in connection with the banking scandals that flourished during his governorship of Massachusetts.

Thru the Boston News bureau, affiliated with The Wall Street Journal, the Coolidge version of the scandal is given publicity.

In brief, the defense for Coolidge is that former State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell, of Massachusetts, is a blackmailer and a liar. The testimony in court by Burrell that he deposited state funds in a shaky Boston bank in excess of the legal limit, this at the direction of Governor Coolidge, is admitted, but declared false. Dates are cited to show that the Burrell story does not hang together.

ENTHUSIASTIC TAG DAY RESPONSE

New York Branches Undertake to Beat Quota

THE final conference of Tag Day secretaries demonstrated that the idea is being well received among the party membership. Branches are reporting excellent responses from the membership. The action committees are all working well on the situations confronting them, and organizations generally are being perfected. Volunteers will be provided with attractive arm bands, official credentials, and the beautiful Foster-Gitlow buttons for tagging.

The English downtown branch reported that they had assessed themselves a quota of $150, fifty dollars more than their allotment. The English Bronx Nucleus ... their quota from $100 to $175. The Young Workers League branches accepted an allotment of $3 per member, which is fifty per cent higher than the quotas assigned to the Workers Party branches.

Following is the list of allotments to branches:

KEPT PRESS TAKES UP WORK WHERE GOVT. SAYS IT HAS QUIT

(By Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Justice and state department officials have assured Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, that no attempt has been made during the past two years to interfere with the issuance of a passport to any citizen because of his political or economic views or his political or labor record.

At the department of justice, Baldwin was informed that espionage upon citizen and alien radicals had ceased since the resignation of Daugherty. No further espionage on radicals is contemplated.

On the day this statement of policy was made, the Washington Star began publication of the Spolansky "red plot" stories, which are being syndicated thruout the country as a campaign roorback.

Twin City Radicals Give "Lawful" Plutes the Horses' Giggle

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—It was the horse laugh on the reactionary "law and order" elements of Minneapolis when none of the conservative book stores were found to have copies of the U. S. constitution in stock. The Well-Dickey Banking Co., which had promised to give away copies of the antiquated document was up a stump until it tried the radical book shop as a last resort. This shop, the Modern Bookstore, run by Alexis Georgian, who is under deportation orders as an undesirable radical, had the stuff. Fifty copies, each with an advertisement of a defunct Socialist paper on a fly-leaf, were hustled over and dished out by the bank.

Butcher Workmen Organize.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 21.—An organization drive conducted by Butcher Local No. 454, Amalgamated Food Workers, in Paterson is educating the public thru special advertising in the local press. A demand for union labelled meat products from union butcher shops has grown up.

FARES RAISED IN PHILADELPHIA BY TRACTION TRUST

Straphangers Are Hit by 20 Per Cent Boost

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., —The street car company of this city raised the fare from 6¼ to 7½ cents. This means an increase of 20 per cent. Hundreds of thousands of workers are affected by this action of the company whose yearly earnings reach into heavy millions. A feeble struggle is being put up against the increase by various business interests who fear that the high fare might have a detrimental effect on their business.

The mater has been once "investigated" by court which ruled, as it was expected, in favor of the company. An appeal was taken apd the matter again "investigated." The cry raised this time is that it is the workers fault that the fare was raised. The workers, the business interests claim, are getting too high wages, for which the "people" are now asked to pay.

Those familiar with the conditions of work in the P. R. T. know that one cannot get too fat on the wages paid by that company and that the company now simply sees an opportunity to increase its profits. The new "investigation" will undoubtedly bring the same results as the first.

It is up to the Central Labor Union of Philadelphia to demand that an impartial investigation committee be organized consisting of representatives of the Central Labor Union and of the working class political parties of the city. Only then will the workers be assured of getting the true reasons why the company made its 20 per cent increase in fares.

Let the Central Labor Union resist this increase by all means at its disposal. It is within the power of organized labor to stop this new grab of the P. R. T. at the expense of the workers if a serious effort is made.

Half Million Join In Plea for Life Of Bernard Grant

Appeals for mercy for Bernard Grant, now awaiting execution for his part in the robbery of a tea store, here, during which Patrolman Ralph Souders was slain, today passed the half million mark, the volume being swelled daily by communications, from all parts of the world. An entire corner of the office of Attorney Thomas Swanson, Grant's counsel, is heaped with letters on the case, the majority of which cite the Leopold-Loeb life sentence in voicing their belief that Grant should not hang.

The writers hail from the entire range of the social scale from former Ambassador Gerard to persons whose writing is almost indecipherable.

Grant now is under a stay of execution which has moved the date of his hanging from Oct. 17, to January 16.

GITLOW SHOWS THEM IN KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI

Puts it All Over Speech of "Wisconsin Boob"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—Ben Gitlow made a splendid impression here ... he spoke at length on the record and personnel of the three capitalist parties.

"Wisconsin Boob" had spoken the night before and it was a treat after his mulligan stew to have every question analyzed from one angle alone—its bearing on the workers and farmers. Gitlow talked in simple language on the cause of crisis— glut there is surplus value. The LaFollette speakers had laid it down that panics come only from "wicked monopoly"—and that there had never been any before 1898!

A strong delegation of "pure-and-simple" LaFollette men came and squirmed in acute pain as Ben discussed the past of Boob's "Angels"—Spreckels and Vanderlip. They—sweet souls—had thought LaFollette was financed by their dimes and quarters! The Boob's concept of honesty differs from the Communists, who believe as Trotsky puts it: "We must never deceive the workers. We can play a double game with the enemies of the proletariat, but not with the proletariat itself."

MAN OF GOD IS INDICTED FOR SWEETIN MURDER

Other Christians Lead Him to His Father

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Oct. 21.—The Jefferson county grand jury today returned first degree murder indictments against Reverend Lawrence M. Hight, unfrocked minister of Ina, and his paramour, Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, confessed "love pact" poisoners of their respective mates, Mrs. Anna Hight and Wilford Sweetin.

The ex-minister and Mrs. Sweetin will be arraigned in circuit court here this afternoon.

Following their plea, the court will set the trial date.

Such was the interest in the case that before daybreak today scores of afmers and fire residents, with their families, camped on the courthouse steps, many of them bringing basket dinners along.

Clothing Workers Raise Funds for Foster Campaign

Local 54, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union is very active in its support of the candidates of the Workers Party. In spite of the orders of the general office that all members of the union are to collect funds for the LaFollette campaign the members of this local have endorsed the Workers Party ticket and called a mass meeting for the campaign. They have already contributed $100 and are now coming thru once more. The following is a list of shops which have contributed to the Workers Party campaign.

PROGRAM AND CONSTITUTION OF THE WORKERS' SPORT ALLIANCE OF THE YOUTH OF AMERICA

The purpose of this organization is to unite the now existing working class sport and athletic organizations of this country to work for the physical and mental development of the working class men and women on class lines. One of the main objects is the development of mass sports against individual sports.

All workers' athletic and sport organizations that accept our program are eligible for membership in this organization. Each organization pays $2.00 affiliation dues. The W. S. A. of A. charges its affiliated organizations 2c per capita tax per member per month.

The highest authority of this organization is the national convention held at least once every three years. The executive committee is empowered to call conventions at shorter intervals if necessary.

Delegates to the convention are elected from the local central bodies of the organization on the basis of one for every 500 members or major fraction thereof; every local central body is entitled to at least one delegate.

The executive committee is empowered to levy an assessment of 25c per member three months before the convention is called; the convention expenses are to be paid out of the proceeds of this assessment.

The convention settles all matters pertaining to the past activities of the organization, and decides upon the future course to be taken by the organization. It elects an executive board of nine; five of the executive board members must reside in the city where the national headquarters are located.

The executive committee is the highest body between conventions and is responsible to the convention for all its actions. The executive committee elects from among its members the national secretary and all other necessary officials, and is responsible for their actions. The executive committee supervises all the activities of the alliance and its affiliated bodies, and reports about them to the national convention; it also passes on the applications for membership that are tendered to it. The executive committee shall have power to make decisions in all matters in which a change in principles is not involved, and the decisions shall be binding until altered by the convention. Any unit that is dissatisfied with the decisions of the executive committee has the right to appeal to the convention.

All members and units must refrain from taking part in the affairs, games or contests arranged by organizations that are antagonistic to the organized workers and their cause. (In case a member or unit is engaged in such sport or athletics that they cannot find any opponent inside the organization, it may engage in contests on the outside upon receiving special permission for so doing from the executive committee.) The executive committee has the power to suspend anyone breaking this rule.

On a Labor Faker's Trail

erators were excused for their violations of the "sacred contract".

The bureaucracy of the United Mine Workers of America are a privileged class. They have fortified themselves behind a system of patronage and have formed a combination of officials that is pledged to stand solidly united against the encroachments of the rank and file. It was this law of self preservation that forced the two hated enemies, Farrington and Lewis to bury the hatchet so that they could fight the progressives and save their own position.

Shown In True Role

The great rebellion in the ranks of the coal diggers of Illinois in the year 1919 reveals Frank Farrington in his role of strikebreaker and capitalist lieutenant. It was at this time that he beat all his past records for treachery to the workers and loyalty to their enemies.

Before the war, four-fifths of the bituminous mine workers earned less than $600 a year according to a report made by the immigration commission. The commission modestly set the standard of subsistence of a family of five at $900 a year. Surely not an extravagant figure.

When the war broke out in Europe in 1914 the coal industry was at a low ebb, but the war demand created a market for coal and production went up quickly.

Owners Made Millions

In 1916 the miners secured a slight increase. In the meantime the cost of living soon made the slight increase look ridiculous. In April 1917, the operators agreed to another slight increase. In the meantime the owners were making millions on war orders. The price of coal went up. The cost of living went up. Everything went up but the miners' wages.

Woodrow Wilson, by executive order created the fuel administration and placed his friend Dr. Harry A. Garfield in charge. Dr. Garfield was a good friend of the coal operators and succeeded in tying the miners up in a new agreement, which was to last not more than two years after April 1, 1918.

The following paragraphs in the agreement are significant. If they were written by Don Chafin or Warren S. Stone the scab "union" coal operator they could not be more in favor of the coal barons:

"Whereas, stoppage of work in violation of the agreement has become so serious as to menace the success and perpetuity of the United Mine Workers of America and our joint relations, this conference instructs the district executive boards to meet operators in their various districts for the purpose of agreeing on a penalty cause where none now exists, and if necessary meet to amend and strengthen existing clauses so as to make the penalty more effective in preventing strikes and violations of agreements.

Bosses as Fine Collectors.

"All fines provided for in all agreements shall be automatically collected, and any operator failing to collect and forward to proper parties such fine shall pay a penalty of $2.00 for each employee subject to be fined, the same to be collected and retained in the miners' district organization. And in no case shall any fund be refunded except by mutual agreement of accredited representatives of operations and miners.

"It is further agreed that where any employee enters suits in the civil courts to recover any fine collected in accordance herewith the district organization shall reimburse the operator for the expense incurred on account of such a suit.

"This agreement is subject to and will become effective only on the condition that the selling price of coal shall be advanced by the United States government sufficient to cover the increased cost in the different districts affected, and will take effect on the first day of the pay period following the order advancing such increased prices."

Coal Barons Got Everything

It will be seen that in this agreement the operators stood to lose nothing. Even the paltry wage increase was made dependent on the government advancing the price of coal.

But the pact tied the miners up in a knot. Strikes were penalized and the bosses authorized to collect fines from the workers. In order to insure that the coal operators would diligently collect the fines, a penalty clause was written penalizing the operators for a possible failure to penalize the miners.

The operators were protected in every way from the coal diggers. The January, 1918, convention of the United Mine Workers meeting in Indianapolis, accepted the Washington Agreement. Dr. Garfield in the meantime secured an advance of 45 cents per ton in the price of coal.

The living costs of the year 1917 were made the basis for the 1918 wage increase and tho the living costs mounted rapidly no further increases were made until 1920.

Appeals To Patriotism

The miners were told that it was unpatriotic to ask for higher wages while soldiers were killing Germans at the rate of thirty dollars a month. Many capitalists were working in Washington at a dollar a year! It was afterwards shown that they were really "working Washington." Charley Schwab, the millionaire steel manufacturer who worked for one dollar a year, was spending $250,000 a month. The fat war contracts paid well.

The coal operators were making fabulous profits. In the meantime the coast of living continued to soar. The miners were tied up with an agreement that gave all the breaks to the bosses.

The year 1919 witnessed a slump in the coal industry. The war was over. The coal barons had made their millions and were out for a good time. The coal diggers were left sucking their thumbs. The labor leaders looked quite prosperous. Only those who went down in the mines and dug the black diamonds had the dirty end of the deal.

Morgan Had Won

The miners were getting hungry and demanded a new wage agreement. It was alright to talk patriotism during the war, but the killing was over. Morgan had won and now it was time for those who did the dirty work to be given the consideration they were promised. But the soldier who went to the front for Wall Street, the miners who toiled in the bowels of the earth to keep the wheels of industry moving, were left in the lurch.

President Farrington, of District 12, refused every request for a new wage agreement. He even went so far as to take drastic measures to prevent the paying of premiums or bonuses above the wage rate stipulated in the agreement. This seems to be unbelievable but it is the truth. Farrington actually took steps to punish miners who managed to secure a higher rate of compensation for their work than what was agreed on in the Washington pact.

Patience Exhausted

The miners kept their temper until the war was over. They felt that once the horrible nightmare was past, things would be different. The hostility of their district officers irritated them.

But tho the war was over the capitalist dictatorship was still going strong. The end of the war did not mean the end of the Garfield agreement and even with the miners who dared to strike with that pistol pointed at his head. The miners discovered that according to the terms of that agreement as interpreted by the coal operators the war would not be over until two years after April, 1918. The government, the coal operators and the union leaders kept jockeying with the miners' demand for the abrogation of the war-time contract until finally certain Illinois coal operators, taking advantage of the situation started a move that looked like an attempt to break down union conditions that were secured after bitter struggles.

The Fight Was On

The battle opened around the Belleville sub-district, where the miners struck the mines, in retaliation against the action of the operators.

Another incident that helped to bring the insurgent movement against Farrington and his crew of boss specialists to a head, was the Mooney protest strike. Despite the opposition of the district officials the miners of Illinois voted overwhelmingly for the strike. So the miners of Belleville, received their pay after the Mooney strike, they found their pay envelop short from three to five dollars each. The penalty clause of the Washington agreement was working overtime This was the spark that set fire to the powder magazine of the Illinois miners' discontent and the battle was on.

How Farrington met this rebellion against his infamous co-operation with the coal operators will be told in subsequent articles.

LA GUARDIA SAYS HE WILL DEBATE W. P. CANDIDATE

Forced by Pressure of Party's Challenge

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Heartened by the moral support of the socialists and his gangsters, Congressman LaGuardia has accepted the challenge to debate the Workers Party candidate, Juliet Stuart Poyntz. A letter of challenge has been sent out by Harry Winitsky, Workers Party campaign manager, to Marie MacDonald, a socialist of long standing, and now campaign manager of the republican, Major LaGuardia.

After evading the challenges issued by the Workers Party candidate on a number of repeated occasions, the world war hero finds himself pinned down and at last he has accepted. The time and place of this debate will be announced soon.

It will be remembered Comrade Poyntz was arrested last week while in the midst of an impromtu debate with Maj. LaGuardia at an open air meeting on 111th St. and Lexington Ave. She was released at the station house as there was no one to press any charge.

Altho it was the socialists and a gang of their hoodlums who disturbed the meeting, the police picked out the Workers Party candidate for arrest. After the arrest of Comrade Poyntz, this gang of hoodlums made an attack upon the audience around the Workers Party platform. LaGuardia speaks blandly and pretends innocence, while his gangsters are using the same terroristic methods as the fascisti of his native Italy.

CAL'S LAST BOW IN HEAD OFFICE OF OPEN SHOP

Will Dedicate Home of Chamber of Commerce

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Coolidge has chosen as the ideal setting for his final speech of the campaign the new "open shop" national headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which will be dedicated ten days before the election.

Julius Barnes as president of the chamber will be master of ceremonies, and Hoover will assist. Officers of the chamber are jubilant, inasmuch as they hve identified the administration with their anti-labor policy.

At the time of the passage of the Esch-Cummins transportation act, the chamber was foremost of the lobbies in support of the railroad corporations' plan to break the power of the unions. It conducted a series of nation-wide referenda among business men, framing its questions in such a wxy as to bring in an overwhelming majority vote in favor of anti-strike legislation, the anti-union shop, cutting of wages and general hostility to the workers.

The huge palace which Coolidge now is dictating for the business lobbyists occupies the site of the Daniel Webster and Henry Adams houses, across LaFayette Square from the White House. It was ordered to be built exclusively on the non-union plan, but the contractor made a deal with the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor whereby the unions would furnish men to do the work and would say nothing about it.

One of the chief activities within the structure is intrigue between the various officers as to melon-cutting in the shape of higher salaries and expense accounts.

Flames Threaten Village.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 21.—A forest fire is threatening Amoskeag Village near here today and already has destroyed a large quantity of valuable timber. The blaze broke out shortly before noon and fanned by a north wind soon reached great proportions. Aid was summoned from this city to battle the flames which threaten the little town.

JUGGLING JOBLESS DATA

"IT would appear reasonably safe now to assume that busier days for the nation's workers lie ahead"—so writes a financial expert in the Chicago Daily News on Oct. 8. He is whistling in the graveyard. Two facts are brought forward to support his optimism, the first that the unemployment situation did not get any worse during August, and the second that the index of joblessness had almost reached the worst point in ten years. Yet the graphic chart which illustrated his own article holds out no hope for recovery. During this pre-election period in 1920 there also was a level stretch, a spurt upward even, yet within six months the index dropped from 119 to 77 (taking average employment in 1923 at 100). In a similar period this year the drop was from 95 to 85, but the end is not in sight.

Dawes has tried his hand at telling the bankrupt farmers that they were rich and did not know it. So the statisticians are busy trying to tell the army of the jobless that they are really working all the time. The argument would be much more convincing if it were put into a pay envelope.

GERMAN COMMUNIST DAILY URGES AGAINST DAWES BOND PURCHASE

NEW YORK.—An appeal to Americans not to buy the Dawes preparations bonds from the bankers who subscribed for the German loan is made by the German Communist daily, the Volkszeitung, in its editorial columns.

After pointing out that the security is flimsy, and that the bankers and the Dawes commission take a huge slice of the plunder, the Volkszeitung declares:

"Purchasers of these bonds will show by their investment that they hope the German workers who must pay the interest and principal will patiently bear the load piled upon them. Purchasers further demonstrate that they want to keep the German workers in subjection. Should they rebel against the whole system and overthrow it the bonds won't be worth the paper they are printed on.

"No friend of the German workers, hoping for their triumph over German and international capital, will buy a Dawes bond."

No Money for Night Schools.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. — Over 300 teachers in the evening schools of New York are fighting to be restored to their positions and are being assisted by the Teachers' Union. An evening Excess Teachers' Association has been formed of the teachers who were told that there was no money for their services.

City Throws Out Scab Bread

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Nonunion Ward bread is on the scrap heap since Oct. 6 in the municipal institutions of Syracuse. The city purchasing agent called the union officials to his office to inform them that only union bread will be used by the city thereafter Pressure by organized workers thru Bakers' Local 30 is responsible.

Teachers' Union Must Check Up on Actions Of Board Officials

(By Federated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—"The purpose of the Teachers' Union, as I see it," said Ruth Gillette Hardy, first vice-president of the New York Teachers' Union, addressing the first general meeting of the organization, "is not primarily to better wages and conditions, but to formulate a new theory of administration: Education for democracy and more democracy in education." The speaker had just returned from a round-the-world tour of British dominions where she studied their methods of educational administration. The theme of her address was Promotion Without Politics.

"There are too many lawyers here," Miss Hardy asserted, "and lawyers recognize only the two categories of legal and illegal acts." In Britain, she pointed out, a large body of "things not done," but not forbidden checks the actions of public officials. She was not hopeful that such a force of public opinion could be developed in this country to enforce promotion by merit instead of by political favoritism, but she suggested that the plan of British colonies of having an appeal board to which any rejected candidate for promotion might refer his case be urged for American usage.

A resolution charging that the board of education acted "under pressure of the American legion' in refusing to reinstate Benjamin Glassberg, history teacher dropped during 1919, for alleged disloyalty to the U. S. government, was passed by the teachers. The resolution calls for a joint mass meeting of protest to be arranged with the American Civil Liberties Union.

Electrical Workers At Pittsburgh Hear Communist Message

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 21. — Despite the interference of a competing meeting addressed by a LaFollette agent, the Workers Party today held a rousing meeting outside the big Westinghouse plant in East Pittsburgh.

During the noon hour while hundreds of workingmen were filing out of the huge electrical factory, Jay Lovestone addressed a crowd of four hundred on the Communist campaign and why the working and farming masses of this country should establish a Soviet Republic in the United States. Comrade Lovestone pointed out to them that the United States is today the wealthiest country in the world and that the working class made it such. "It is you workers and your brothers toiling on the farms who have produced the three hundred billions of dollars of wealth found in the United States today. This has been taken from you and your brothers thru paying you, for example, the wages you are getting in the Westinghouse, an average of 43 cents an hour. The time is at hand when you must organize in self defense to restore the great resources and wealth of this country, which are yours, to yourself."

The Westinghouse workers listened eagerly to the Communist message, Comrade Miller of the Young Workers' League presided. Many DAILY WORKERS and campaign pamphlets were sold amongst the electrical workers.

Arizona Labor Marks Time

TUCSON, Ariz.—The 13th annual convention, Arizona State Federation of Labor, in session at Tucson indorsed the national child labor amendment and pledged itself to secure ratification at the coming session of the legislature.

Resolutions were passed advocating the weekly payday bill and the proposed anti-company store law which was defeated in the last legislature, and favoring legislation against prison made merchandise. A resolution condemning the Ku Klux Klan was also adopted.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 21. — The deaths of four more persons among the 75 injured in a wreck on the high speed Niagara Falls trolley line was feared today. The four were among the thirteen more seriously hurt confined to hospitals.

COAL MINERS AT WESTVILLE HEAR OF JOB CRISIS

Told of Struggle in Car Shops, Steel Mills

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

WESTVILLE, Ill., Oct. 21. — The mines here owned by the United States Steel Corporation will completely shut down this winter throwing 2,000 men out of work, Karl Reeve of the DAILY WORKER, predicted in a Workers Party campaign meeting in Cornelius Hall.

This prediction was based upon the slackening of the steel industry thru out the entire country.

Hits the Dawes' Plan.

Reeve showed how the capitalist class is organized internationally thru the Dawes' plan and the league of nations, and declared the Communist International to be the only international organization devoted solely to the interests of the working class.

He denounced Davis and Coolidge as Wall Street tools and showed that LaFollette is an upholder of the capitalist class.

Reeve told of his experiences as a reporter for the DAILY WORKER in the Gary steel mills, the Pullman car shops and the Western Electric company. He showed how the capitalists have brot on another unemployment crisis and dominate the lives of the workers thru their control of industry. Reeve stated that the Communists favor working class control of industry and government along the lines of the Soviet government of Russia.

Police Chief Attends.

He related the struggles of the Russian people to successfully keep the working class in power against the combined assault of the capitalist countries of the world, including the United States. He denounced the war propaganda now being conducted by the United States and declared that the schools, press, church and government are using their power to try to divide the workers and keep the employers of labor with their profit system in power.

William Moyer, chief of police, was an interested spectator, and donated $1 to the collection. Joe Uraski, who acted as chairman, and several others present agreed to join the Workers Party as a result of the meeting.

Beauty Workers Strike.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. — All beauty parlor workers south of 14th street, New York, have been called out on strike by the Independent Beauty Parlor Workers' union, recently organized. The union workers are getting their unorganized fellow workers to join in the fight for better pay and shorter hours. A wage scale of $30 for all around operators; $35 for men hair cutters; $30 for marcellers has been formulated by union organizers and the girls and the demand for a 9-hour day instead of the usual 12-hour day of the beauty parlor workers is part of the strikers' program.

Alien Actors Must Join.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Foreign actors who come to act in the United States must join the Actors' Equity Association whether hired abroad or here, the Equity Council has decided. Foreign actors need not pay initiation, but must pay dues and report to Equity here as American players do in Great Britain, the council declares.

Omaha Food Workers Organize.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The Amalgamated Food Workers' Union has granted a charter to the bakery workers in Omaha, Nebraska. Local No. 13, Omaha, is planning a fight against the long hours in bakeshops and increased wages, as some shops pay only $20 a week to bakers.

Eight Hurt in Wreck.

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 21.—Eight persons were injured, some believed seriously, when train number 26, St. Louis to New York, express, left the track at Longfellow, 18 miles east of here, shortly after noon. Two cars were overturned.

HELP PATERSON STRIKERS' WIVES AND CHILDREN, URGE COUNCILS OF WORKING CLASS WOMEN IN N. Y.

The women of the United Council of Working Class Women are busily engaged in collecting funds and are organizing committees to collect food for the Paterson strikers. The United Council appeals to all working class women to help the women and the children of the strikers.

The brave Paterson strikers have withstood the onslaughts of their bosses for ten weeks and the bosses are helped by the whole capitalist force to break the union which is the only weapon of the workers in the present system. The women and children of the strikers are looking to you workingclass women to help them. They need money and food. Are you going to let them starve? Are you going to let the bosses break the unions and force them to accept the four-loom system which breaks down their strength and resistance in a short period? Those women who want to help can enlist in the army of the United Council and they will have territories assigned to them where food or money will be collected. Your help is needed.

Following is a report of money collected and turned into the strikers up to Oct. 14:

Local Council No. 7, open air meeting Sept. 27	$10.00

Packers Put Old Plan for Squeezing Farmers Into Effect

(By The Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Because traders on the Chicago livestock market have made serious and forceful complaint of violations of the packers' and stockyards' law by the big packers in Chicago, a federal complaint has been issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace against Swift and Co., and Armour and Co., including the North American Provision Co., charging them with refusing to buy hogs from the traders at the stockyards. The specific charge is that in September the Swift and Armour concerns refused to take hogs from anyone except the commission men receiving them direct from the farmers. This discrimination was typical of the packers' methods of squeezing the farmers before the Federal Trade Commission investigated them in 1918.

FACTORY PUTS STAMP OF FEAR ON CHILD'S FACE

Ignorance Also Product of Early Toil

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—"I was raised on a farm where my father compelled me to labor from sunup to sundown raking hay, shocking wheat, cultivating corn, picking cotton, milking cows and feeding pigs and chickens," says Mrs. H. E. Brodie, of Richmond, in a letter of protest to one of the business journals which is assailing the child labor amendment.

"My health was completely broken down. Fortunately, at the age of 17, with my mother's backing, I refused to labor as I formerly had done, but was sent to a rural school.

Get Little Schooling

"Numbers of our neighbors' children were sent only two months each year, January and February, when it was too cold for outside work.

"For the last three years I have watched a girl who was placed in a factory by her mother at the age of 14. She has not attended school within that time. There is stamped upon that girl's features a look of timidity, ignorance and longing never to be erased—and there are thousands just like her. I have a neighbor 70 years of age who cannot read or write. She weeps when she speaks of her girlhood for she never attended school. Her father kept her in the fields cultivating crops and in the woods cutting timber."

Big Biz Sheets Busy.

Business publications thruout the south are hotly denouncing the child labor movement, but almost wholly upon the ground that it would rob the parent of authority over the child.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

FROCK FOR SLENDER FIGURES

9890. Silk, alpaca, crepe or kasha could be used for this style. It has straight lines and a very new and attractive collar. The sleeve may be short or in wrist length.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires 4⅝ yards of 32-inch material if made with long sleeves. If made with short sleeves 4⅛ yards will be required. The width of the dress at the foot is 1⅝ yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

A DRESS FOR SCHOOL

9667. Figured woolen and serge are here combined. Velvet and crepe, or taffeta and velvet are also a good combination for this model. Gingham and linen would combine well, as would also poncee and crepe.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. An 8-year size requires 2¼ yards of one material 40 inches wide. To make as illustrated requires ¾ yard of plain material and 1¾ yards of figured material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1924-1925 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Stir the Shops!

The very best place to carry on a working class campaign is in the shops and factories where the workers gather to earn their living. It is there that minds are open to the measures, parties and candidates that stand for concrete solutions of the problems of bread and butter facing the working class. It is in the shops that the workers will see most clearly, for example, the difference between Foster, the union organizer and fighter for the workers, and LaFollette, the lawyer and fighter for the middle class. The Sick Men

William Gibbs McAdoo has good intentions toward the candidacy of John W. Davis, but gall in the bladder is not as necessary a part of a politician's equipment as gall in the head. So says McAdoo's doctor.

McAdoo vowed that he would campaign for Morgan's favorite attorney just as soon as he returned from Europe. When he returned from Europe, instead of taking the stump he took to the hospital.

He still had hopes that his health would improve sufficiently to enable him to take the platform for candidate Davis. But his doctor would not hear of it. The best he could do was to issue a political bulletin, in which he showered confetti on Davis. Some of it landed on LaFollette. William's brother, Malcolm, is on the LaFollette bandwagon. Like the Bryan brothers, politics seems to be a family affair with the McAdoos.

Al Smith also promised to take off his coat and fight for Davis. But he also got sick. Instead of fighting for Davis, he is fighting for Tammany Hall and against Dr. Norman Thomas, who appears to have reached the conclusion that Al is not as good as he ought to be, but considering his early training he is better than the company he keeps. Al has not taken off his coat for Davis. But he gives him the glad mitt whenever he sees him and bares his teeth, as much as to say: "Well, you old horse-thief, how do you like running for president?" The humor is subtle and hard to catch.

The assistance given to Davis by his rivals for the democratic nomination would make excellent material for a Mack Sennet movie comedy. Al Smith is so sick that he had his picture taken in an invalid's chair. But that does not prevent him from making several speeches daily in order to get himself elected governor of New York.

McAdoo may be ill, but we venture the guess that if there was an operation necessary it was due to rupture brought on from excessive laughter at his dearly beloved friend Davis, who is as much out of place in this campaign as a total abstainer from alcohol on the staff of the prohibition director.

It looks as if the democratic party might as well look around for an undertaker. McAdoo's oil did it as much harm as the Ku Klux Klan. The elephant is a husky beast and can stand the punishment. The jackass is dying. McAdoo and Al Smith are succeeding in making a good imitation of the donkey's bray in laughing at the efforts of Davis, who may go down in history as the last of the democratic Mohicans. Whether he goes down in history or not, he will surely go down to defeat next November.

Wounded in Action

The new chief of the American Legion is Jim Drain, one of the he-men so much admired by the American capitalists. The New York Times gives the new commander a lengthy boost with a photograph in which Drain is shown minus one arm. We are informed by the Times that arm is "somewhere in Flanders."

But the distressing fact is that Drain's arm is mingled with the dust of Spokane county, Washington, U. S. A., and that it became separated from the rest of the Drain anatomy while that worthy was squirrel hunting.

Drain's anatomical loss was also his gain, financially and politically. He learned from history that not the least of Admiral Nelson's attraction for Lady Hamilton was his empty sleeve. Drain has an empty head to complete his equipment. In this respect he has it all over Nelson.

When Gabriel's trumpet blows on the Day of Judgment—according to our religious teachers—and the various parts of the Drain person start a united front campaign in order to appear presentable before Saint Patrick or Saint Peter or whatever saint is on duty on that day, Drain will not be obliged to drain his funds buying a passport to France in order to collect the balance of himself. He will be a 100 per cent American.

This is regrettable, but the truth must be told at all costs. It would be much more profitable for Drain and his backers if he could prove that a savage Prussian "Hun" bit off his arm from the shoulder while he was holding off single-handed an army of plundering Germans bent on pillaging an orphanage and perhaps eating the tenants for breakfast.

It might also interest our readers to know that before Jim Drain was elected head of the American Legion he made a living panhandling the capitalists for funds to support his magazine, "Arms and the Man." Its principal backer was Dupont.

Calvin Coolidge may be silent, but he is not deaf. He hears Wall Street's voice.

Hogs and Humans

The nineteenth annual convention of the Institute of American Meat Packers is now taking place in Chicago. The slogan of the convention is: "Give the Hog a Square Deal."

These money hogs never even considered the workers who make it possible for them to turn the hogs on the hoof into money in their jeans.

The meat packers urge the workers to be kind to the hogs. It is an improvement on the theory of "civilized warfare" or the practice of allowing a condemned murderer to eat his fill of his favorite food before he goes to the electric chair or the gallows.

"Don't prod the hog with a pole. He can be driven just as easily without being prodded." So can the workers as the capitalists have learned. Instead of using Simon Legrees with heavy whips to drive the workers, the capitalists nowadays use labor fakers and preachers of unity between capital and labor.

The meat packers are not concerned with the hog's comfort while he is alive, except in so far as comfort affects his ability to put on weight. But the packers are very much concerned with the appearance of the hog when he gets as far as the knife and fork on his way to the stomach of the consumer.

Our capitalist rulers are very excited over hogs, cats, dogs and horses, but the welfare of the workers is the last thing that enters their mind. Workers can be replaced with less cost than animals. The labor market is teeming with human slaves waiting for an opportunity to sell their labor power. If one of them dies the boss loses nothing. Another worker just as good is only too willing to take his place.

The Fighting in Canton

The efforts of the bourgeoisie of Southern China, aided by the British government, to overthrow Dr. Sun Yat Sen and his revolutionary government still persist. As the DAILY WORKER has frequently stated, a shipload of arms and ammunition was sent by the British bank in Hong Kong to the Canton merchants with which to arm their Fascisti. Despite protests of the Sun government the arms were delivered—under the guns of British warships.

But the Canton revolutionary workers did not relish the idea of seeing guns that would be used against them in the hands of their enemies. So they seized the arms.

The events of the past week show that renewed efforts are being made by the merchants with the aid of the foreign capitalist governments, chiefly the British, to get rid of Dr. Sun Yat Sen. It should be noted that only in that part of China under the jurisdiction of Dr. Sun are labor unions legal. The workers in the rest of China are not allowed to organize.

It appears strange that the British labor party government should sponsor such crimes as have been committed against the masses of China by the British capitalists. But after all it is not so strange. The British section of the Second International is a governing organ of capitalism and is rendering to the British capitalists who have money invested in China the same kind of service that it renders to those who profit by the exploitation of the people of Egypt, India, South Africa and other colonies of the Robber Empire.

The only government in the world that is giving the Chinese masses a friendly hand, is the Soviet government of Russia under the direction of the Russian Communist Party.

The Scabby Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association is one of the favored socio-religious organizations of the American capitalists. On it they shower their generosity. In practically every city in the country the Y. M. C. A. has fine structures, built by the money raised from its capitalist supporters. And this money is a good investment for the capitalists.

The Y. M. C. A. has long been notorious as a strike-breaking organization. Evidence to support this charge is easily available.

The latest anti-labor act of this craw-thumping, bible-pounding, hypocritical crew to come to our attention is the prosecution of John Berg, a lumberjack in the state of Maine. The Y. M. C. A. refused lodging to the lumber workers who wanted to organize their fellow workers. The town babbits backed up the Y. M. C. A. and the lumberjacks instituted a boycott in retaliation. Then the capitalist prosecutor got busy, and Berg is indicted on a criminal libel charge.

The task of overthrowing the capitalist system is no easy one. The capitalist system is buttressed not alone by its armed forces under the direction of the government, but by the thousands of institutions like the Y. M. C. A. that draw sustenance from the robber system and in return serve as the willing tools of capitalism for any dirty work they may be called upon to do.

"Hell an' Maria" Dawes praised Eugene V. Debs in Terre Haute, Ind., Debs' home town. The General gave Debs credit for his willingness to sacrifice. The General has not yet gone on record as giving William Z. Foster credit for anything, except for being a revolutionist. Dawes knows who his real enemies are.

The socialist party hopes the sentiment for a labor party will be finally crystallized at the next January meeting of the C. P. P. A. The Bible says that "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick."

British Laborite Speaks in Germany

By ISRAEL AMTER.

MR. FENNER BROCKWAY, secretary of the Independent Labor Party of Great Britain, came to Berlin to speak at the "No Mome War" meetings of the Amsterdam Trado Union and Second (Socialist) Internationals. Mr. Brockway got the usual stuff off his chest; way face baleful lying; the last war convinced the peoples that it must never happen again.

But in spite of this hatred of war, it is the duty of the arch-pacifists to be on guard. They must propagate and organize, till the whole world will rise and put an end to this method of settling disputes between man and man, and resort to the more humane, progressive method or arbitration.

These meetings were attended by the whole galaxy of the social-democratic and trade union leaders. There were a lot of small shopkeepers and lower government clerks there, too, all dressed in prince alberts and silk top hats—that is all who possessed such objects of the ice age. A fine crew to protest and agitate against war! Workers were few—for the workers are not only tired of war—but also tired of hearing all this nonsense of stopping war by only talking against it.

Brockway a Pacifist.

Since Mr. Brockway was in Berlin, there was nothing more natural than that the German War-Resisters' Union should arrange a meeting and have Mr. Brockway talk. A most attractive subject was selected for his speech: "The British Labor Party and Peace." Surely this would fit in with Mr. Brockway's own ideas of peace.

Who is Brockway? In addition to being secretary of the I. L. P., he is a parliamenteer. When the world war broke out, he refused to serve, and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Before his confinement, however, he had formed the War Resisters' Union, and during the period of the war, he managed to collect a few thousands of young men and women of a similar train of thot. There are 6,000 in the Union at the present time (the leaflet distributed at the meeting stated 16,000). So here we had a man who knew all about peace and the methods of bringing it about.

Old Men are Audience.

Mr. Brockway told about the joy he felt in speaking at this meeting—of standing face to face with people of a former enemy country and knowing that they had the same emotions about war that he entertained. (It must be stated that there were not many of these enthusiasts present. The meeting was to begin at 7:30 sharp, but by that time only about 70 people were present. So the chairman, who evidently was a socialdemocrat, decided to wait a while. Finally 110 persons had paid 50 pfennigs to hear Mr. Brockway speak and there was no hope of others coming, so the meeting began. The audience was composed chiefly of elderly men and women with a sprinkling of youths. Frau Helene Stoecker was there to tell Mr. Brockway of the deep joy that his speech had awakened in the breasts of all enlightened Germans.)

Then Mr. Brockway, in a few words, outlined to the audience the form of organization of the Labor Party. He also described the difference between the three groups of the I. L. P. The first group generally is against war between nations and against a forceful social revolution, but believes that there the instances in which force is unavoidable. The second group is against imperialist war, but for force in the social revolution. The third group is against both imperialist war and the use of force in any way." MacDonald belongs to the first group—and Brockway, with twelve other I. L. P. members of the house of commons, to the last group.

Talks About Labor Party.

Brockway considered it a somewhat risky thing for the Labor Party to take over the government in the existing circumstances. "I, as a pacifist, believed that the Labor Party could not take power under such circumstances. But as the whole Labor Party was not pacifist, there was no reason why it should not assume power." Then followed the usual empty excuses about the Labor Party not being able to carry out its full program owing to its being a minority and therefore exposed to the danger of being kicked out, if it antagonized the bourgeois parties too too great an extent. "Any policy MacDonald pursues must win the co-operation of the European nations, especially of France."

To be sure, "MacDonald might have denounced the Versailles treaty. He might have denounced reparations, the Ruhr occupation, the League of Nations, representing, as it does, only the victor nations. . . . (Applause sounding very much like an opera claque). He might have announced the willingness of Great Britain to renounce Gibraltar, Honzkong and Singapore and have appealed to the nations to support his policy." He might have done so, but he didn't, for as Mr. Brockway stated, MacDonald must "win the co-operation of the European nations."

The Independent Labor Party is still opposed to reparations. It regards them as "a temporary expedient to give Germany and Europe a breathing space." "The treaty with Russia will be before the house in the next weeks. Following this policy will come debts, disarmament and security." Just what the Russian policy would be, he did not declare.

Applauds MacDonald.

Then Brockway became philosophical. "The war was a manifestation of a civilization that was collapsing . . . But now the corner is turned. There is a tone of hopefulness, for which the foreign policy of MacDonald is chiefly responsible." Brockway held the achievements of the British Labor Party as the main stimulus that led to the fall of Poincare.

"The Independent Labor Party is completely dissatisfied with the Labor Party policy toward India. At the coming conference of the Labor Party, the Independent Labor Party will propose that all the Indian parties make recommendations for self-government and submit them to the British Labor government for approval. We believe that the British troops must be withdrawn from India. The method of rule of Iraq by bombing must cease."

"Some may ask why the Danish labor government can pursue a complete disarmament policy and not the British. The reason is that the Danish are self-contained; they have no imperialist tradition, which Great Britain passess. We believe that Denmark can carry it out. . . . A great deal of education must be carried out, in view of Britain's imperialist history, before complete disarmament can be realized."

Mr. Brockway and his group in the house of commons are doing "heroic" work. They are voting against all militarism, all war, all imperialist plans. "There are now 6,000 war-resisters in England. There will be many, many more in case of a dispute between capitalist nations that lead to war. If we can get such groups in England, France, Germany, the small countries of Europe, American and Australia voting against war, it will be a break with the old war methods."

Speech Full of Contradictions.

Mr. Brockway, a young man, very much resembling a Y. M. C. A. missionary, delivered himself of this in just 35 minutes. No questions or discussion were allowed. "The meeting was in the form of a demonstration," said the socialdemocratic chairman—with 110 persons present! It is a good thing that no questions were asked and no discussion allowed, otherwise Mr. Brockway would have been put in an embarrassing position by the Communists present, explaining the "peace" of the British Labor government.

But as Mr. Brockway did not explain these contradictions, let us look into his speech more closely. "One step at a time enough for me," is Ramsay MacDonald's phrase. So first the Russian treaty, then the Dawes report, then the league of nations. The Anglo-Russian treaty looks pretty black at this moment, for part of the liberals and the conservatives are against it. The return of Churchill to the conservative party is regarded as a bridge between the liberal and the conservative party to erect a united front against the Labor Party—and defeat the treaty. That will end MacDonald's first "step." Then the Dawes report. The workers of England are beginning to protest against it. But, more than that, the industrialists of Great Britain, Holland and France—not to speak of the United States—are worried stiff about it. If Germany is to pay, she must produce 14 billion marks' worth of goods for export alone and dump them on the world market, which today is not able to do much buying. That will mean sharp competition with the imperialist nations. And this is the second "step." The strengthening of the league of nations is the third "step." On Sept. 22, Arthur Henderson stated before the league of nations, that, of course, obligatory arbitration for all nations is the basis of the disarmament pact proposed by the league. But . . . "In cases in which the British fleet is engaged in military operations at the order and with the approval of the league of nations—and we give the solemn promise that we shall not enter into action without this approval—we demand full freedom of action for the fleet, which is essential for assuring ready results. No one can ask that the permanent court should be a body for examining military operations." Of course not. The league of nations is not there for that. It is a body to talk, pass resolutions—and keep its hands off such things as the military operations of its constituent bodies—especially of Great Britain. And thus speaks a man who is a member of the Independent Labor Party, a "representative" of the working class. These are the voice and the words of British imperialism.

Pacifism Not Applied to India.

It is these same men who are massacring Indian peasants and workers; bombing the inhabitants of Mesopotamia; threatening war in the Sudan; beating, deporting and murdering the natives in British Africa. It is these men who instigated the Georgian uprising, in the interest of the British oil interests and in the hope of getting a point in the south from which to intervene in Soviet Russia. It is these same men who landed British marines in China, in the hope of sicking up the country and getting a point in the east from which to attack Soviet Russia.

Yes, Great Britain has an imperialist tradition and history—and it is being continued and intensified by the British Labor Party. But the whole Labor Party is not pacifist, said Mr. Brockway, and therefore nothing else could be expected. But the leaders of the British Labor Party are the leaders of the Independent Labor Party, and most of the Labor members are Independent Labor Partyites. Some of them are against any use of force—like Mr. Brockway; some are for force in the social revolution but against imperialist war; some believe that "there are instances in which force is unavoidable"—like Mr. MacDonald, who also is against the use of force between nations. Is China no nation? Is Soviet Russia no nation? Is Egypt no nation? (Of course, Indian is no nation—she is "unavoidable instances," in which MacDonald favors the use of force, just as he threatened its use against the striking dockers and tram workers. These are just the "unavoidable" instances in which imperialism uses force. And for this MacDonald is building new cruisers and enlarging the air fleet; for this he holds an imposing military review. So what is the difference between MacDonald, Baldwin, Curzon and Lloyd George? Herriot, too, was heralded as the man of peace, and he is carrying out Poincare's policy to a dot. He and MacDonald are doing so, because they must—for imperialism will dictate. (And MacDonald has to pursue policies that will "win the co-operation of European nations"—which are imperialist—and satisfy the imperialists of Great Britain.)

Labor Party Sycophant of Wealth.

It is all humbug and a lie. The Independent Labor Party, MacDonald, Henderson, Snowden, Webb and Brockway is part of the pack of British imperialist wolves whose tongues are dripping with the blood of workers and peasants in all quarters of the globe, and whose teeth, grown sharp thru Britain's imperialist tradition and history," are aching to crush and crunch the bones of more workers' and peasants' bodies.

The British financial and industrial magnates were shrewd in selecting these hypocritical leaders to do their dirty business. This is the day of "democracy." Let the workers have a show. Nothing can happen as long as they have such leaders as MacDonald, Henderson and Brockway—and besides these leaders will only discredit their party and the workers, disillusioning still more than a few of the liberal and conservative parties.

It is a very neat scheme—and the Independent Labor Party is playing its part in the rotten game very well. It adds to its glory and well-being by having an arch-pacifist as its secretary. What could suit the imperialists better? Brockway and his twelve colleagues in the house vote consistently against war and imperialist plans—and his party carries out the plans. Fakers every one of them!

"One step at a time is enuf for me," says MacDonald. So, too, speaks British imperialism.

COOLIDGE BLOW AT RUSSIA FAILS

Soviet Workers Greet Paterson Silk Strikers

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

WARREN S. STONE, one of Robert M. LaFollette's chief backers, has not yet replied to the charges made against him by John L. Lewis, regarding the Coal River Collieries case. Again we warn our readers that between Lewis and Stone, there is only a choice between two evils. Both are outstanding labor fakers, but in this case, and thru no fault of his own, Lewis is in a more favorable position while Stone is in the same category as the non-union coal operators.

* * *

OUR readers are acquainted with the story, but "for the benefit of those who are here for the first time" as the chairman of an open forum used to say with monotonous regularity every Sunday, the case is as follows: The manager of the Coal River Collieries, which is a company owned by members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and of which Stone is president, refused to sign a contract with the United Mine Workers of America, preferring to run an open or scab shop. Rather than sign the agreement, the "union" scab coal company shut down the mine.

* * *

JOHN L. LEWIS being a member of the republican national advisory committee, and Stone holding a somewhat similar position with the LaFollette outfit, it was decided by the G. O. P. strategists that their servant Lewis should place a tack on Stone's chair by publishing the correspondence that passed between the two labor fakers on the Coal River Collieries issue. He seemed to have the "goods" on Stone. At least the latter has not yet replied to the charges he has said "you too" to Lewis in the current issue of his official organ, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineer's Journal.

* * *

THAT Stone should treat such an important issue with the scant courtesy of one short paragraph is evidence of the cynicism with which our labor fakers regard the opinion of the workingclass of the United States. Stone sarcastically refers to the Lewis epistolary, suggests that the expenses were paid by the G. O. P., which is almost believable, and intimate that John L. Lewis was offered a cabinet position with Coolidge in case the silent man is re-elected. All these suppositions are very likely well founded.

* * *

BUT the workers of this country are not so much interested in the price of Lewis's service to the republican party, any more than they are in what Stone was promised politically, for his efforts in behalf of that old and seasoned republican, Robert M. LaFollette as they are in what Stone has to say in justification or explanation of the charge of scabbery. Instead of doing so he winds up a brief paragraph of comment on the matter by boasting that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers would exist long after "some of those other so-called labor organizations are forgotten." A labor organization that has got at least one dozen banks is not considered respectable by the Wall Street financier, Warren S. Stone.

GREETINGS TO SILK STRIKERS FROM RUSSIA

Soviet Textile Workers to Paterson Comrades

Five hundred thousand members of the great textile union of Soviet Russia yesterday sent a telegram of greeting to the striking silk workers of Paterson, New Jersey.

Across thousands of miles of land and ocean the revolutionary workers of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics heard the call of their fellow workers in the slave mills of the United States, and hastened to send them words of encouragement and good cheer.

Real Revolutionists.

The international solidarity is not a mere phrase on their lips has been proven time and again by the men and women who have established the first workers' state in history. This is true, from Zinoveiv the chairman of the Communist International to the worker in the factory and from Kalinin the president of the Soviet Republic to the revolutionary peasant, guarding the far-flung front against the forces of counter-revolution.

The tlegram was sent to the striking silk workers thru the Trade Union Educational League, 1113 West Washington Blvd., Chicago. It reads:

"Associated Silk Workers, Paterson, New Jersey.

"Comrades: Having learned of the heroic struggle of the Paterson silk workers, the All-Russian Textile Union, in behalf of five hundred thousand members and the Textile Workers' International Prouaganda Committee send hearty greetings and wish you victory.

"Long live the Paterson silk strikers!

"Long live International Labor Solidarity!!

"Kutzov, Secretary, All-Russian Textile Workers' Union.

"Lebeden, Secretary, International Textile Workers' Propaganda Committee."

RUTHENBERG SPEAKS IN CLEVELAND THIS FRIDAY AND SUNDAY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 22.—Charles E. Ruthenberg, national executive secretary of the Workers Party and candidate for congress from the 20th district of Ohio (which includes part of Cleveland), speaks in Cleveland on Friday, Oct. 24, on the west side at Carpentina Hall, 1303 W. 58th St., at 7:30 p. m. All arrangements are under way to have a big crowd greet Comrade Ruthenberg on Friday night.

Comrade Ruthenberg also speaks in Akron on Saturday, Oct. 25, and then returns to Cleveland to address a large meeting on the east side on Sunday, Oct. 26, at 6006 St. Clair St., at the J. D. Hall, at 7:30 p. m.

CHRISTIANA, Norway.—Partial returns from the general election today indicated a conservative victory.

WORKERS THREATENING GENERAL STRIKE IN VERA CRUZ, MEXICO

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 22.—Serious labor troubles are threatened if all industrial employes in the state of Vera Cruz carry out their threat to walk out before Saturday, in sympathy with the striking electrical workers of the city of Vera Cruz.

Party on Ballot in Connecticut

By WILLIAM SIMONS
(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—The comrades of District 15 have accomplished a task that seemed hopeless. Two years ago very few signatures were gathered. To get the state ticket on the ballot required 3,250 certified signatures in the hands of the state secretary by Oct. 14, after submitting them to the town clerks before October 7. 3,490 were certified by the town clerks. Two hundred more would have gotten the presidential electors on also. But the task accomplished is nevertheless a meritorious one.

Comrade Bloomfield, who was called in for a few weeks' work, secured about 1,000 names, of which about 600 were certified. The best volunteer work was done by Jennie Feldman of Bridgeport with a gross total of 800 signatures, and J. Gombos with 400. Among others worthy of special mention were Crasnitiski of Waterburk; Gurevich, Kluchen and Wolfson, of Hartford; Bruening, Spector and Kling of New Haven; Abe Epstein of Stamford.

The state ticket is composed of the following candidates:
Governor: William Mackenzie, Stamford carpenter.
Lieut. Governor: P. S. Kling, New Haven laundry driver.
Comptroller: John Gombos, Bridgeport office worker.
Secretary of State: Mary Dworkin, Bridgeport clerical worker.
Treasurer: Chas. Crasnitiski, Waterbury brass worker.

That the ticket is on is due to the work of the local campaign managers in the various cities as follows: Hartford, John Kluchen; Stamford, A. Wofsie; Bridgeport, Mary Dworkin; Waterbury, Chas. Crasnitiski.

FOSTER INVADES THE ANTHRACITE PA. COAL FIELDS

Direct from Meetings in New York City

(Special to the Daily Worker)

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 22.—William Z. Foster, candidate for president on the Workers Party ticket, invaded the anthracite coal fields today, addressing an enthusiastic mass meeting tonight at the Labor Temple.

Incidentally he told of the great Communist demonstrations that greeted him in New York City; one in Manhattan, the other in Brooklyn.

Two Great Audiences.

Both the New York meetings were held on one day at the New Star Casino, where a tremendous audience of 4,000 jammed the hall to overflowing in the afternoon and another 2,500 listened to him in the evening.

In addition to Foster, Benjamin Gitlow, his running mate for vice-president, also addressed these tremendous gatherings. Both were in excellent condition and delivered powerful speeches. New York comrades boastfully assert that these meetings were the most enthusiastic and inspiring meetings the New Star Casino has ever entertained.

The Hungarian Singing Socity, the Freiheit Singing Society and the Lithuanian Mandolin Orchestra kept up a continuous flow of revolutionary songs in which the audience and the speakers joined heartily. These songs were interrupted several times by tremendous applause for the Communist candidates.

Host of Other Speakers.

Comrades Ludwig Lore, Stachel, Julius Stuart Poyntz and Abraham Markoff, who have been very active in this campaign and have made New York City famous by their Red Night meetings, addressed the afternoon meeting and in the evening Comrade Menerooff spoke in Lithuanian, Warshafsky in Yiddish and Alexander Trachtenberg in English.

The collections taken up amounted to $449 in the afternoon and $315 in the evening. The sale of buttons at both meetings amounted to $197.

BUT DAY OF MIRACLES HAS PASSED EVEN IN SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SAN FRANSISCO. — "Sacred Heart May Enlarge" was the headline greeting readers of a San Francisco newspaper recently. To those not acquainted with the wact that tehre exists a Roman Catholic college known by that name, it might have seemed that a miracle was about to occur, or that the divine organ had become overstrained from contemplation of the antics of Bryan and his fundamentalists.

PROMISE WAR VETS SPEED ON DISALLOWED CLAIMS TO 500,000; BUT THAT'S ALL THEY WILL GET

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—A review of all disallowed claims in the veterans' bureau, amounting to more than 500,000 will be carried out on an extensive plan as speedily as possible, Director Frank L. Hines announced today.

Several weeks ago the disabled American veterans, thru National Commander Frank J. Irwin, brought the matter up to Director Hines as the most urgent proposition before the bureau and an investigation developed. There are 533,106 of these disallowed claims.

Irwin believes that many of the disabled men have not received benefits either because they became discouraged by delays or else are unfamiliar with the Reed-Johnson bill which has many liberalizing clauses that would include many men who were barred under previous laws.

LEGION HEAD WOUNDED IN DOMESTIC WAR

Irate Husband Pops Some Lead into Emery

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 22.—Col. John G. Emery, past national commander of the American Legion, world war hero and former candidate for U. S. senator, was shot in the left arm today by Seyden Simpson, husband of one of Emery's stenographers.

Emery was taken to the hospital and will recover.

On his way to jail, Simpson, who is 40 years old, declared:

"I wish I had killed him."

The chief of police turned the lock on Simpson and went out to lunch without further questioning his prisoner.

Legion Head Smitten.

Mrs. Simpson is said to be very beautiful.

The shooting occurred in Emery's real estate office following an altercation with Simpson. Mrs. Simpson had begun action to obtain a divorce and the argument between her husband and Emery arose from this.

According to office employes, Simpson entered the real estate office, asked whether his wife was employed there and when answered in the affirmative, opened fire on Emery.

Simpson's first shot went wild, but the second lodged in Emery's shoulder.

"You broke up my home," shouted Simpson, as he opened fire, it was said.

Mrs. Simpson has worked in Emery's office about three weeks.

Death List Climbs To 13 As New Victim Of Warship Blast Dies

NORFOLF, Va., Oct. 22.—One more victim of the powder explosion aboard the U. S. cruiser Trenton died this afternoon, bringing the total death list to 13. The latest victim was John Uzzolino of Newark, N. J. He died of burns. Still other deaths are feared among those severely burned.

Spanish Author Dies.

MADRID—The Spanish author, Gonzales Blanco died here today.

CHANG BATTLES CHIHLI CHIEF AT GREAT WALL

Wu Seems to Be in Very "Unhappy Position"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Shanghaikwan, thru whose gates Chang Tso-Lin's Manchurian forces must march if they are to beseige Pekin, China's capital, is now the scene of the bitterest and most bloody fighting in the internecine war ravaging the country according to dispatches reaching Washington today.

To the victor of the battle will probably go the ultimate victory in the civil war. Half of Shanghaikwan is in the hands of Chang's men, advices stated, and half is still held by General Wu Pei-Fu, commander of the Chihli (Peking government) forces.

Wu Pei-Fu has thrown every possible man into the breach at Shanghaikwan, even to the extent of being short of reserves at Chingwantao, the Chihli base, and should he be unable to stem the tide they will have to retreat to Changwantao, five miles closer to Peking, before he can make a new stand.

CONVENTION TO INTERPRET THE I.W.W. PREAMBLE

Two Ideas Fighting to Control Organization

The preamble of the Industrial Workers of the World will be interpreted by an official document to be passed on by the convention now meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall, according to action taken yesterday.

It was admitted by the delegates that there are two ideas fighting for leadership within the I. W. W.; one which believes the I. W. W. to be an organization for the propagation of revolutionary ideas and the other which believes in emphasizing job control.

Communists Show Contradictions.

Chairman P. Wellnedr told how in debate with a Communist on the Pacific the Communist was able to show many contradictions within the organization from the I. W. W. literature.

Fred Morris, who was supposed to report as assistant secretary-treasurer, reported as secretary of the general defense, declaring he had never functioned as assistant secretary.

Reorganize Defense.

Morris, whose report was accepted by the convention, recommended the entire reorganization of the defense of the I. W. W. His suggestions were given to the resolutions committee.

The convention instructed Morris to submit a written report as assistant secretary-treasurer. He declared the injunction had greatly hampered the defense of the prisoners.

New Centralia Evidence.

A report from John Nicholas Beffel was read by Morris stating that many new affidavits have been dug up exhonerating the I. W. W. for the Centralia disturbances and placing the blame squarely on the tools of capital there.

O'CONNOR FAILS TO MAKE GOOD ON SILLY CHARGE

Repeats Lie on Soviet Aid to LaFollette

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the United States shipping board, "Cal" Coolidge's favorite "labor lieutenant," expressed the belief today before the Borah investigating committee that money from Soviet Russia was being received in the United States to aid the presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette.

That the charge was utterly baseless was shown when O'Connor refused to make any direct charge or allegation to this effect and, under questioning of Senator Borah, he said he had no actual evidence of the sending of money from Russia to this country.

Denies Previous Statements.

"I believe it, tho," he declared, "although I cannot prove it."

O'Connor had discussed this situation in a recent speech in Buffalo, N. Y., but denied he made the charges in the Buffalo speech that LaFollette had received funds from Moscow.

Helped With Cal's Party.

In connection with the visit of a hundred or more "labor leaders" to the White House on Labor Day with him at their head, O'Connor admitted that he had advanced "about $385" to Joseph Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Union, to pay railroad fares and hotel bills for these men, but said that the money had been repaid to him.

O'Connor was formerly the head of the Longshoremen's Union, holding this position until he became a member of the United States shipping board.

Just before O'Connor took the stand, Chairman Borah announced that subpoenas had been issued for William B. Knox, president of the American Bankers' Association, George W. Simmons, vice-president of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, New York, and Charles D. Hilles, vice-chairman of the republican national committee, of New York.

In addition, Frank P. Walsh and Samuel Untermeyer told Borah they wanted William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, and Hodges recalled for further questioning.

Ask About Ambassadors.

It has been suggested that Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to Germany, and Theodore Brentano, ambassador to Hungary, be subpoenaed for appearance before the Borah committee

WORKERS PARTY INVITES I. W. W. TO UNITED FRONT

Communists Urge Fight Against Capitalism

A communication was sent to the I. W. W. convention in Emmet Memorial Hall yesterday, calling on the I. W. W. to select a committee of three to act with a similar committee of three from the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party in a nation-wide campaign of protest against the crushing of labor organizations by the capitalist class.

The letter, signed by William Z. Foster, chairman, and C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary, of the Workers Party, sent its warmest revolutionary greetings to the proletarian fighters of the I. W. W. held as prisoners by the common enemy, the capitalist class, and called the attention of the convention to the necessity of united action of all workers against the oppressive measures of the capitalist class.

Letter to I. W. W. Convention.

A basis for discussion is outlined to the convention, by the Workers Party letter, which is printed in full below:

To the 16th General Convention of The Industrial Workers of the World Emmet Memorial Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Comrades and Fellow Workers:

In view of the fact that the repressive forces of capitalist society are attempting by every means, legal and illegal, to crush every revolutionary labor organization and persecute its members, and in consideration of the plain necessity of united action by all such organizations upon defense against their common enemy, therefore, the Workers Party of America proposes to you the following action:

That your convention elect a committee of three to meet a committee of three from the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party to work out a nation-wide program of action.

As a basis for discussion by such joint committee, the Workers Party proposes the following actions to be jointly undertaken:

1. Nation wide and international protest against the deportation of workers.

2. A nation-wide protest against criminal syndicalist laws and particular protest and work for their repeal in states where these laws exist or are enforced.

3. A nation-wide campaign for the release of criminal syndicalist law prisoners, to include special campaigns in states where such prisoners are held.

4. A special nation-wide campaign for release of workers who have been framed up on various criminal charges, including the Centralia victims, Mooney and Billings, Ford and Suhr, Rangel and Cline and Sacco and Vanzetti.

The Workers Party of America recommends that, to carry on these measures, joint action be taken as follows:

A. Mass meetings in every large city thruout the country, with special meetings of protest in particular states.

B. A campaign of publicity thruout the entire labor press.

C. A campaign within the labor unions to rouse wide masses of the rank and file for a support of these measures.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party sends, thru you, its warmest revolutionary greetings to the proletarian fighters of the I. W. W. held as prisoners by the common enemy, the capitalist class, and declares its readiness to meet with a committee elected by the I. W. W. convention or appointed by its general administration, to discuss the above or any other measures they may offer to open the prison doors.

Fraternally,
Central Executive Committee,
Workers Party of America,
W. Z. Foster, Chairman,
C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary.

Doyle Makes His Report.

In his recommendations to the convention, Thomas Doyle, suspended secretary-treasurer, likened the I. W. W. of the present time to a starving man, walking down the street at the point of death but making a lot of noise." "We are bankrupt financially from top to bottom," he declared during his financial report.

Doyle recommended the slashing of payrolls and the drastic reduction of the number of those employed by the organization. Doyle declared that he was against the clause in the constitution of the I. W. W. limiting the term of the officers to a year. The caliber and ability of the officers is decreasing, and as soon as they learn their jobs they are yanked out. Doyle said he advised that a more easy and speedy method of recall should be devised to take the place of the one year clause.

Urges Raise in Dues.

"I am convinced that the I. W. W. is over-officered and over-employed," Doyle said. He recommended that the dues be raised and the number on payrolls be decreased. Doyle declared a clearing house method of financial organization should be instituted and the general offices put on a sound financial basis. He pointed out that many parts of the constitution, especially those dealing with the formation of the branches and districts, should be changed.

"The present controversy has impaired our efficiency to an alarming degree," Doyle asserted, "and I hope those officers of the organization elected by this convention will be equal to the task which confronts them."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF I. W. W. NATIONAL CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

The following is an official statement approved by the sixteenth convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, now meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall, and given to the DAILY WORKER by Ed Delaney, press committee of the convention.

16TH ANNUAL CONVENTION
(Day by Day)

On Monday, Oct. 20, the seventh day of the 16th annual convention opened at Memorial Hall, with all the delegates present, except those who were excused from attendance, and two delegates from I. U. 120, who later in the day formally withdrew from the proceedings, presenting a written statement with their reasons for this action. The two delegates who withdrew were Matt Johnson and Pat Cantwell. They gave as the reason for their actions the following: they felt that one-third of the delegates present were partial to Doyle and Fisher; the recording secretary had been an employe in the main office, acting as stenographer for Doyle and Fisher, and that they thought Doyle was pursuing none in the convention. With their withdrawal twenty-seven delegates now constitute the convention.

Several wires were read and filed. Committees then brought in their respective reports which were accepted, with one exception and in some instances given further instructions. The constitution committee reported in part, "That we accept the preamble of the Industrial Workers of the World as read." A further motion from the constitution committee was as follows: "That the present constitution of the Industrial Workers of the World be laid on the table and a new constitution be drafted." Carried unanimously.

The auditing committee on the main office, general defense, Solidarity, Pioneer, small I. U.'s and the Equity Printing company brought in their report, which stated they found the books all correct. The report was held in abeyance until a report is heard on the general executive board books.

Following the auditing committee the general administration officials, who had been elected on the floor to act pending the outcome of the present controversy, reported thru fellow worker Broman. He stated in part: "Fellow worker Frank Gallagher turned in his resignation as business manager of the Pioneer, Industrial Solidarity, and Equity Printing Co. We have placed George Williams in his place." He also stated that the injunction proceedings had come up before the Master in Chancery and had been postponed until Friday, Oct. 24, at the request of the attorney for Rowan and the board members who had signed it. He also stated that fellow worker Gray, now acting as assistant secretary-treasurer had asked Rowan if he would withdraw the injunction for the welfare of the organization and that Rowan had replied he would not. His report was accepted and the regular noon-day adjournment was called.

The afternoon session opened with the reading of several communications and wires. The body then went on record to publish a statement that was adopted in the morning session relative to the convention proceedings, in all of the organization publications.

Immediately following that action the body moved into new business. The report of the Italian paper Il Proletario was taken up and laid over to the grievance committee for further action.

Fellow worker Gray, of the temporary administration, reported at the request of the assembled members. He stated practically the same thing that fellow worker Broman had in the forenoon, however, he added that when the injunction proceedings started before the Master in Chancery, it would cost the organization at least $500.00 per day, and that it would probably take ten days to finish it. He also stated that the temporary officials had taken over the cash, not attached by the injunction, from Doyle, Fisher and Morris.

The afternoon session was then adjourned to allow the committees time to function.

Signed: P. J. Welinder, chairman, and Ed. Delaney, Press Committee.

PEARLS, SHAWLS AND LADY ASTOR IN POLL BATTLE

Baldwin's Chickens Fly the Tory Coop

(Special to the Daily Worker)

LONDON, Oct. 22. — Women are playing the greatest part in the present election that they have ever taken in British politics. Not only are there 42 women candidates for seats in the house of commons, but fully 300 women are taking active parts in the campaign.

Every political meeting finds women leading the heckling of the speakers, if the are not represented on the platform.

Pearls and Shawls.

Lady Diana Cooper who a fortnight ago was a star in a Broadway production, now is out early every morning in the Lancashire fog canvassing the girl workers in the mills for votes for her husband, Duff Cooper. Lady Diana affects no simple garb for campaigning. She is dressed in fashion's latest, and wearing a choker of pearls, she provides a strange contrast with the beshawled girls of the mills.

Miss Isabel MacDonald, daughter of the premier, is speaking several times daily and visiting the voters of Bassetlaw constituency in behalf of her brother Malcolm, who is a candidate.

Betty Baldwin, daughter of the former premier, unlike her brother Oliver, who is a "shirt-sleeve" laborite campaigner, is spending her time soliciting votes for the same cause, but gowned in the most recent mode. She is attempting to win the votes for the bachelor candidate, Major Robertson, who is standing for the labor party in West Islington.

Lady Astor is making her usual slanderous campaign against labor in Plymouth.

Packers Have Hopes.

An optimistic survey of business conditions and a prediction of continued prosperity in 1925 as the United States reaps the benefit of readjustment in Europe thru operation of the Dawes plan was given at today's session of the Institute of American Meat Packers' convention here by R. E. Chapman, of the American Provision and Export Co.

PROGRESSIVES SMASH LEWIS IN NOVA SCOTIA

T. U. E. L. Policies Are Again Vindicated

By J. B. McLACHLAN
(Special to the Daily Worker)

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, Oct. 21.—After fourteen months of a provisional rule, set up by John L. Lewis in District No. 26, the miners of Nova Scotia have again their district charter restored, and are again running their own affairs.

Had Lewis deliberately set out fourteen months ago to wreck the miners' union his record here could not be blacker. He started out by wrecking a strike where the miners had victory almost within their grasp.

The strike had been called as a protest against the use of government armed forces which were being used to crush the striking steel workers. So effective was the tie-up in the mines that the governor-general of Canada, had, after a conference with the miners' officers agreed to the withdrawal of the troops. (*) Hardly had these miners' officers left the governor-general, than Lewis got word of what was going on and rushed to the aid of the British Empire Steel corporation by deposing the district officers and revoking the charter and ordering the miners back to work on pain of taking away their local union charters. For this black deed Lewis will never, never be forgiven by the miners of Nova Scotia.

Broke His Word.

By such acts as these did Lewis continue to reign in Dist. No. 26. He promised the men relief last January when they again had to strike to resist a wage cut. He never kept his word, but made a contract with the coal companies behind the men's backs which enabled him to collect out of the pay envelopes of the miners $118,000. This precious contract of his he submitted to a referendum vote of the miners. It was voted down, and he told the miners it did not matter how they voted, the contract would go into effect.

Wasted Union Funds.

The men he set up as district officers were men that the miners had previously kicked out of office. These men, like the man that put them there, held the rank and file in contempt. They spent the union funds like water until the corrupt Lewis himself got disgusted with them and fired them all and restored the district autonomy, enabling the miners to elect their own officers.

Lewis sent three men from Indianapolis to audit the district books for the 14-month period. Their audit was so glaringly wrong that Lewis ordered a second audit. The excuse they made for coming back to make the second audit was that there was too much rum in the district office the first time to permit a proper audit being made.

May Land in Jail.

The second audit showed that $1,181.50 had been stolen and now the Lewis secretary-treasurer for Dist. No. 26 is up against the bonding company and may find himself in jail before it is all over.

Such is John L. Lewis' record in Dist. No. 26. With shameless treachery to the working class of Nova Scotia, he came in here; with blackest shame and dishonor he goes out.

During all this trying period not a man left the union. But Lewis expelled hundreds. The miners of Nova Scotia always had an industrial form of organization, every man from the coal face to the shipping piers being members. Lewis threw all the section men out of the union. These men looked after some 150 miles of road. Others were also thrown out, such as mine examiners.

Progressives in Control.

Today the charter is restored and the district office is filled with men from the progressive wing of the miners' union. Lewis failed completely to crush the left wing movement in Nova Scotia. As a matter of fact the treachery of Lewis and the corruption of his district flunkies has resulted in driving the great body of miners more and more to the left, and among them John L. Lewis is discredited for evermore.

In this struggle against Lewis for the past fourteen months, and in every effort to maintain the union from the disruptive attempts made both from within and from without, one man stood out prominently—that man was Joe Nearing, who has been nominated for the office of International secretary treasurer of the U. M. W. of A. Nearing is young, virile and absolutely fearless and one of the best informed members of the left wing movement in Nova Scotia. For years he has filled various offices in his local union at Reserve Mines. In this district Nearing shall poll a splendid vote against the Lewis machine.

This is indicated by the fact that the Lewis gang received no nominations except in one local where Lewis got a nomination for vice-president and even that nomination was intended to be taken as an effective slap at Lewis. We predict that the labor movement shall hear more of Joe Nearing as the years go by, and his appearance on the ticket of the left wing movement in the forthcoming international elections of the U. M. W. of A., and the vote he shall carry, out of Dist. 26, shall stamp his name on the mind of John L. Lewis as one more man that he has got to fear.

(*)Editor's Note—The troops were not withdrawn from the mining district until after the miners had been forced back to work by John L. Lewis.)

Chicago Tribune Tries to Parade as Fighter for New Against Old

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Chicago Tribune, self-styled "World's Greatest Newspaper," unblushingly admitted, lets out an awful howl, in the best trust-busting style of the rampaging senator from Wisconsin. It is wild against "monopoly"; this time the so-called monopoly of the newsgathering agency, the Associated Press, over its own dispatches.

The Tribune wants the Associated Press stuff, not only for publication in its pages, but also to send out thru its broadcasting station to listeners in on the radio, and it is going to fight it out in the courts.

• • • •

It sounds rather strange for The Tribune to proclaim that, "The issue is regarded as in effect a clash between the old and the new." The Tribune claims it is on the side of the radio, that it wants to serve the people, that it is for progress.

Just a little study of the situation will show that The Tribune is just playing its old hypocritical game of trying to put itself in a favorable light before the public.

This is The Tribune that robbed the school children of Chicago, thru midnight land deals in the board of education. This is the Tribune, champion of the Landis "open shop" schemes. This is the Tribune that is erecting its new building with scab labor. This is the Tribune that labels as "Bolshevik" every little change that hits in the slightest at things as they are. Now this Tribune claims to be the advocate of "The New."

• • • •

The Tribune is a member of the Associated Press, perhaps the world's most extensive newsgathering agency. The Associated Press is not a profit-making institution. It belongs to its newspaper members, the largest capitalist newspapers in the nation. They direct its affairs and share its expenses. Its nearest competitors are the United Press Association and the International News Service, both money-making propositions, the later owned by William Randolph Hearst. While the service of the last two agencies can be bought by newspapers, it is impossible for any newspaper in any city to get a franchise in the Associated Press without the consent of all other "A. P." newspapers in that city. Of course this never happens since newspapers already in the field, do not want competitors.

Hearst has secured Associated Press franchises only thru buying up entire newspapers already possessing such franchises, costing him millions of dollars.

• • • •

But it is inevitable that some Associated Press newspapers should be stronger and wealthier than others. It is the most powerful that have most money to spend to entrench their positions. It is like the Standard Oil trust, fighting to maintain its position against its smaller competitors, battling for their very lives.

The Tribune is strong and powerful. Its profits run into the millions annually. It has spread out into other publications. It is quick to utilize any new scheme for its own aggrandizement.

The Tribune was not slow to realize the possibilities of the radio. It has its own broadcasting station, over which it even sought to send out the proceedings in the recent Loeb-Leopold murder trial. It costs a huge sum to keep such a broadcasting station in operation. There are returns. Radio users pay no subscription price. There are no advertisers. But there is a return in the enhanced prestige of the newspaper doing the broadcasting.

The Chicago Tribune, no more than the Daily News, or any other capitalist newspaper, believes in the radio as an instrument of progress. It is merely a means for building its own power. It is a weapon with which it can crush some of its competitors, also members of the Associated Press, or subscribers to other news agencies.

But every "A. P." member has a vote in determining the policies of the organization. The little fellows, in self-defense, demand that "A. P." news be not used for the purposes of the radio.

• • • •

The issue, therefore, is not "a clash between the Old and the New," but a warfare between the two factions in the Associated Press, the rich and powerful newspapers, striving to further entrench themselves, and the smaller newspapers, with diminishing circulations and constantly on the verge of bankruptcy, ready for a new capitalist press consolidation.

• • • •

It is well for the workers, half a million of whom daily buy the Chicago Tribune, that the warfare in industry extends to newspapers as well. It is a warfare in which the workers have no interest; no more than they are interested in the struggle between Standard Oil and Sinclair Oil; between United States Steel or Bethlehem Steel, or other groups of capitalists. That is the "dog eat dog" struggle within the capitalist social order.

• • • •

The workers have but one interest. That is to build their own power. Part of that effort must be the building of an unconquerable press of their own; to make it the most powerful. That is the only struggle between "the old and the new" that is worth while; the supplanting of capitalism by Communism.

Rail Service Cut Off.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22.—Efforts to resume rail service to Nanking failed today, a passenger train being compelled to return to Shanghai. The train was stopped at Chenju, five miles out of Shanghai, on orders of Chi Shih-Yuan, military governor of Kiangsu and commander in chief of the Kiangsu forces which captured Shanghai from the Chekiang troops.

HOOVER SPENDS U. S. MONEY TO AID COOLIDGE

Anything to Make the Poor Elephant Go

By CARL HAESSLER.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Herbert Hoover's department of commerce, supposedly an impartial government unit that tends strictly to business, is in reality another cog in the Coolidge re-election machine.

This is demonstrated by little tell tale markings on two sets of envelopes recently delivered to the Federated Press office in Chicago by the postoffice department.

Sends Out Pamphlet Flood.

It is a common practice for federal jobholders to campaign for their chief when he needs help but it is generally expected that government funds and apparatus be devoted to other than partisan purposes.

Apparently secretary Hoover believes another well-known crisis of civilization is at hand and that every resource must be mobilized to save capitalism, just as relief funds and stores were used in Europe by his relief staff after the war to thwart reaction and overthrow progressive and radical governments.

Hoover's speech against government is being distributed in a national flood of pamphlet reprints. The Federated Press received two copies entirely unsolicited. The pamphlets do not say who is distributing them or paying for them. They bear no union label. The envelopes are plain large government envelopes bearing 1c embossed postage. There is no return address. Like the pamphlets they are completely anonymous.

But there was one clue. One envelope was addressed:

Federated Press 1188
511 N. Peoria St.,
175 Chicago, Ill.

The other was addressed:

Federated Press 2836
511 N. Peoria St.,
173-6 Chicago, Ill.

These serial numbers were peculiar on an anonymous once-only communication. But they furnished the key.

Helps the Poor G. O. P.

The Federated Press receives every week the official reports of the U. S. department of commerce. They bear the department's return address in one corner and the legend, Official Business—Penalty for Private Use, $300, in the other. The Federated Press address on them carries the same serial numbers, 1188 and 2836, 175 and 172-6, as did the envelopes with Hoover's pro-Coolidge propaganda—proving that department of commerce regular mailing lists and addressing machinery were put at the disposal of the Hoover campaign for the republican party.

JAKE SPOLANSKY FALLS INTO DAILY WORKER'S TRAP WITH HIS SILLY WALL ST. BLAST STORY

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Because of a certain unallocated $500,000, which it was believed bankers could be scared into handing over to the detective agencies for investigation of "reds," the lives of 30 people were sacrificed and upwards of 200 were injured, on Sept. 16, 1920, in a terrific bomb explosion, one of the most powerful blasts in police history. The explosion occurred in Wall Street, New York, between the U. S. assay office and the home of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The professional Burns and Thiel "body-snatchers," with their hired gangs of dicks, finks and stool-pigeons, got the $500,000, and several hundred thousand more. Three-fourths of all the detectives in the country, both public and private, were employed on the case for many months.

Of course "clues" were reported every day and "leads" were turned up in unnumbered thousands. But no one was ever brought to trial, or even indicted.

Blast Still is Mystery.

Officially the Wall Street bomb explosion is still a mystery. The only thing the department of justice professes to know about it—after all its arrests and bursts of activity—is that it was the work of "reds." This was the explanation adopted by the authorities at the beginning.

It was the theory the private detective agencies wanted it to adopt. It was the theory that served the purposes of ex-Attorney-General Palmer. It was the theory that loosened up those Wall Street dollars.

Now the Labor Defense Council, which is co-operating with the DAILY WORKER in the publication of the present series of articles, has been gathering information on the Wall Street bomb explosion for some time. This information explains why the affair remains such a perplexing "mystery" to the government "red" hunters.

It also shows up the latest fraud of that amusing villain, Jake Spolansky, published in yesterday's issue of the Chicago Daily News. As a matter of fact, Spolansky has fallen into a DAILY WORKER trap. Ever since the beginning of his stories in the News, the DAILY WORKER has been waiting for him to touch upon the Wall Street explosion, and thus give us the most favorable opportunity for contrasting his lies with the real truth concerning this gigantic attempt at frame-up.

The Sleuths Were Away

The explosion occured at a time when the force of dicks usually on duty in the financial district was at its lowest ebb (a circumstance which radicals could not possibly known, but which must have been well known to everyone in the detective service). J. Pierpont Morgan, for whom the bomb might have been presumed to be intended, was sojourning in Europe. His partner, Thomas Cochrane had left town for a few days. The late Henry P. Davison, another member of the firm, was not in the building.

No "red" conspiracy has been discovered in connection with the affair because there was no "red" conspiracy. It was a detective conspiracy, and the bomb was planted by an employe of the biggest private detective agency in the country.

Profitable employment for detectives was needed. Immediately following the explosion, the New York Times printed testimony by Frank Francisco, one of the investigators for the department of justice, in which he "called attention to the fact that the explosion occurred just one day after the 'Red Squad' of the department was disbanded." "This squad," continued the Times reporter, "had been active in running down bomb plots since early in the war and the last 40 members were taken from the work yesterday, Mr. Francisco said."

Tells of Rail Strike.

The origin of the affair takes us back to the great railroad strike of the previous year. A slush fund of $2,500,000 had been raised by prominent bankers interested in transportation, for the purpose of breaking the strike, not too much being said about the means to be used. More than $500,000 of this was still untouched when the strike collapsed. It remained in the hands of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who held it in trust for the joint bankers' committee.

Through activities in connection with the the strike, William J. Burns, the prosperous super-dick, knew of the existence of that $500,000. It disturbed him. He could not rest for thinking about it. And slowly the thought began to dawn upon him that if Wall Street could be scared sufficiently, the bankers, with a ready fund at hand, would be eager and willing to spend their money for the purwould also fall in, he figured, with the policy of the department of justice, which was at that time whooping up sentiment for its "red raids."

The whole thing finally took shape as a scheme involving Burns, Thiel and several other important detective agencies. The stakes were big and there was room for all.

Information in support of this was presented to the illustrated Daily News, of New York early in 1921, by Albert Balanow (alias Badin), ex-federal dick and Thiel operative—the same Balanow who testified to detective agency frauds at the time of the Michigan Communist trials, in which Foster, Ruthenberg and their comrades were defended by the Labor Defense Council. The Illustrated News declared it considered that "the accusations of Balanow are of sufficient importance to warrant a thorugh investigation by official representatives of the public and of the government."

According to the information given to the Illustrated News, Balanow was informed of a possible Wall Street bomb the day before the explosion. On September 15, 1920, a detective agency manager told him to go to Milwaukee and make a report from that point in writing to the New York chief of police. He was to explain that he had met a Russian by the name of Lechovitsky, an agent of the Soviet Government in this country, and that the later told him he was here to cause bomb explosions and create outrages. He was further to report that Lechovitsky told him that at a certain meeting of radicals in New York city plans were completed to place a bomb in Wall Street and to cause an explosion there.

"Balanow gives what he declares is the street number where the alleged fictious meeting was supposed to have taken place," continues the Illustrated News, "and a list of men of Russian origin who were supposed to have been present at the meeting. He declares this meeting was fiction and the man Lechovitsky also a fictious character. That the purpose of the announcement to the police chief was to cause publicity and to stir up the country that detectives might be employed."

Scramble for Wall Street's Gold.

In the scramble for Wall Street money that followed, department of justice operatives did not scruple to play the game of the detective agencies. There is plenty of evidence of a mutual understanding all around.

The Labor Defense Council is in possession of a facsimile letter, on the stationary of the Thiel Detective Service Co., in which T. J. Cooney then manager of the "radical department" of the agency, writes to one of his men in Chicago, as follows:

"Please note copy of the attached letter to Mr. Seib. I met Mr. Seib through Mr. Sculley of the department of justice in New York. Seib is now in the Intelligence Department and advised me that certain bankers in New York have suggested an investigation of the radical movement.

"I believe it would be advisable for you to see Mr. Seib and have a talk with him. Don't tell him too much, but give him enough information to convince him that this service could handle the investigation at New York better than anyone else. You might telephone him and make an appointment, or if you cannot find his telephone number, drop him a note, and tell him to advise you [illegible] you can get in touch with him. Simply sign it No. 81 and do not give him your name or address. You might give him a phony name to write you under.

"Please let me know the result of your interview with him."

Here we have proof of double-dealing on the part of government agents Seib and Sculley, who have on the face of it, already taken the first step toward using their positions for private gain.

The copy of the letter to Seib, referred to in the communication printed above, is also in the hands of the Labor Defense Council. It is marked "private," and extracts from it are given below:

"I do not expect to be in St. Paul for sometime to come, but if you or some of your connections expect to be in that vicinity soon, please let me know, and I will give you a note to Mr. Baldwin, our St. Paul manager. . . Should you succeed in lining up the Radical work you mentioned, I am inclined to believe that an organization such as ours, could handle it better than any other organization, as we are in touch with the situation and have men whom we can depend upon. An arrangement could be made to handle it for so much per day per operative. The rate per day would be ten dollars and expenses. Should the man in New York communicate with you, he will do so by saying, he is No. 81."

During all this time, our friend Jake Spolansky, recently graduated exposer of the "reds," was in government employ, and selling government information regularly to the Thiel agency at the somewhat startling rate of $25 a day. Jake has always had a keen eye for the shekels.

Spolansky's Latest Explanation.

Now Spolansky comes out with the "only reliable solution of the Wall Street bomb," which is revealed in the Chicago Daily News "for the first time." His story is simply that some "red" did the job, but the "red" has not yet turned up, although one of his "accomplices" is already under arrest —only the accomplice does not know it. Neither does anyone else, we might add.

Some disinterested parties have endeavored to explain the Wall Street blast as an accident, due to the explosion of a powder wagon. But this story appears to the Labor Defense Council to be as without foundation as Spolansky's assertion that the "anarchist-communist" (!) bomb-throwers attended the Bridgeman convention of the Communist Party in 1922. Powder wagons do not parade up and down Wall Street and explode in front of J. P. Morgan & Co.'s offices.

WINTER OF HOWLING BLIZZARDS, SNOW AND SLEET ON THE WAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. — The United States is due for the heaviest winter in years if the well-known "law of averages" works out.

In spite of the assertion of the United States weather bureau that long distance forecasting is impossible with the present knowledge of meterology, officials admitted today that an old-fashioned winter is overdue.

Not since 1917 has the country suffered a really bitter cold spell, according to the records. Following that season there were comparatively mild winters which indicate that December, January and February will be a grand polar celebration.

Heavy snow, howling blizzards, plenty of slept and biting cold waves —those are a few pleasures in store for the country this winter, if the unofficial predictions come true.

LUTHERANS HAD BETTER HURRY OR THEY WON'T BE NEEDED IN CHINA

Lutheran delegates representing 1,382,903 members of 5,356 united Lutheran churches thruout the United States assembled here today for their biennial settlement of problems of creed and conduct in conformity with the 39 theses of Martin Luther which were nailed to the church door at Wittenburg 400 years ago.

The questions before the convention, range from the proposal to buy an entire mission field in China to the contemplated banning of moving picture theatre organs in churches and the employment or "jazz" organists to operate them. The attitude of the church on pacifism, on the younger generation and on specific church conduct also will be set forth.

Binghamton, N. Y., Comrades Report Many Achievements

(Special to the Daily Worker)

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 22.—The language branches here, the Czecho-Slovak, Ukrainian, Russian and Lithuanian report progress in their campaign for organizing the unorganized.

The Lithuanian branch has mobilized its entire membership for red mobilization week. Each member contributed 50c to campaign literature for distribution. Other language branches are following up the work begun by the Lithuanian comrades. The Lithuanian branch has also donated $10 to the party's campaign fund. To the party's call for industrial registration our members responded one hundred per cent. Comrade Sullivan, organizer of District 4, reported at our last meeting.

There is a splendid field for work among the Polish and Italian workers which the City Central Committee is taking the initiative in drawing into the party fold. Two new branches, one Polish and one Italian will soon be organized here.

MOONEY STRIKE OPENS FIGHT ON FARRINGTON

Faker Hires Sluggers to Club Delegates

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Ten.)

That Tom Mooney, trade union organizer, was languishing behind the prison bars of San Quentin and in danger of being sent to the electric chair by the capitalists of California for something he was not guilty of, did not mean anything to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Miners' Union. But the rank and file of the organization were as much concerned with Mooney, a member of the Molders' Union, as if he were a coal digger from Illinois.

The class consciousness of the rank and file of the miner went far beyond the boundaries of the state and even of the nation. While Farrington and his henchmen were making common cause with the coal operators and their political lackeys in the republican party, the miners who actually dug the coal looked beyond the national boundaries and followed with interest and sympathy the great struggle of their brothers in Russia to defend their Soviet Republic against the combined forces of the capitalists of the world.

Fear Rebel Spirit.

It was fear of this growth of class solidarity behind Mooney and the crystallization of the rebel spirit in the Illinois Miners' Union that was one of the determining causes behind the plot of the coal operators and Farrington to crush the revolt before it became too powerful. The fining of those who stopped work in behalf of Mooney was the pretext.

The miners were enraged over this action of the coal operators and demanded a return of the fines. But the coal barons only laughed at them. They knew that they had a powerful ally in Frank Farrington, head of the miners' union, who would use all the resources of the organization to crush the men who filled the treasury out of their hard earned dollars.

Big Meeting Held.

The miners of the Nigger Hollow Mine, No. 2, at Belleville called a protest meeting and from that moment the rebellion was on in real earnest. A mass meeting was arranged early in August at Priester's Park, Belleville, and Farrington was advised of the arrangements by Board Member Wilson. The "Czar's" reply is typical:

"With reference to your telegram of 1st (August) I have instructed Reynolds, Dobbins, Myers, Schaeffer, Thomas, Walker and Mason to attend meeting to be held at Priester's Park Sunday afternoon and use every influence to curb the rebellious movement in the Belleville District."

Farrington's henchmen were at the meeting but their speeches served only to infuriate the miners. A resolution was unanimously adopted calling for the abolition of capitalism, and another voting to continue the strike.

Paid No Heed to Faker.

The meeting adjourned after arranging for another mass meeting the following week. This meeting was to be held in the open but rain forced the miners indoors. Only about one-sixth of the miners managed to get into the small hall. Secretary Treasurer Nesbit of the district office was there and used all the arts of the politician to bluff the miners. But the audience listened to him and went on with their business as if he never existed. It was plain that Farrington had completely lost control over the rank and file.

The mass meeting elected a policy committee of fifty men and drafted a statement to be sent to all the miners in the district. It decided to send committees all over the state and declared that the miners in Sub-District No. 7 would remain on strike until a new agreement was reached and a living wage granted the coal diggers.

Denounce Fines.

The statement held that the present agreement expired when the United States Fuel Commission was abolished, and that all fines collected from the men since July 1, 1919 were not collected under a bonafide agreement. A special convention was demanded and the mass meeting proposed that the movement for the demands above stated be made state wide.

Farrington and his gang were not idle in the meantime. They viewed the rising tide of rebellion with undisguised alarm. While the miners were carrying on their propaganda peacefully to impress their views on their fellow workers thruout the state Farrington was busy organizing an army of thugs from the underworld. The human vomit of Joliet prison, the pimps and murderers, came in handy to Farrington when it was considered necessary to smash the heads of the rank and file delegates who were seeking to better their conditions.

Uses Fink's Jargon.

On August 8, Farrington sent a warning circular letter to the members. "Beware of agitators and radicals," he wrote. "The elements of destruction are at work. The issue is: Shall the forces of defiance and rebellion prevail and stab our union to death, or shall an orderly procedure dominate the affairs of the United Mine Workers of America."

Note the cutthrath tactics of the arch-faker! The issue was indeed clear. It was: whether the miners' union should be an instrument for fighting in behalf of the miners or an instrument to be used in behalf of the coal operators for keeping the miners working on starvation wages and under a system of automatic penalties that robbed them of every shred of protection.

But Farrington used the jargon of the stool pigeons, and set up a cloud bank of smoke to obscure the vision of the miners. He used the same tactics that William J. Burns used when trying to jimmy a larger appropriation out of congress for his stool pigeons; the kind that Gompers used when pressed hard at conventions and the kind that all the labor fakers use when their crooked careers are threatened by the militant leaders backed by the rank and file.

Urged Patriotism.

Farrington charged the progressives with "demagoguery" fanaticism and treason. He sad the "Mooney fines" were penalities for "their defiance of their accredited leaders and the laws of their unions." He urged them to consider that the country was after going thru a war and that they must sacrifice with the rest of the nation.

He did not specify what sacrifices the coal-operators made during the war. He did not tell them of the number of millionaries thrown up during the struggle, which left 100,000 men on the bloody battlefields of Europe, the victims of a war in which they had nothing to gain and everything to lose no matter which side won.

The only concession made by Farrington to the miners was the promise of a National Convention. He scouted the possibility of a separate agreement. The "Czar's" letters in which he described the leaders of the strikers as "vested leaders" and "demagogues" only served to increase the wrath of the insurgents.

Arranged For Thugs.

Farrington decided to take extreme steps. Nothing less than preparing to wage war with gunmen and scabs on the union members who were fighting the bosses was his decision.

On August 9 he wired his lieutenants as follows:

"Consider this your authority to temporarily employ at the expense of the district organization all the local men your judgment tells you is necessary to influence the men in your district to return to work and help you control the rebellion that prevails Keep me informed as to develop ments."

The kind of "influence" that Farrington used against the militants was not of the intellectual kind. Farrington meant blackjacks.

The Slugged Committee.

A miners' committee went to Springfield to interview Farrington. The members of the committee were slugged on the streets of Springfield. The names of the men who did the slugging are: "Jack" Brown, or J. W. Brown, a notorious character and boss for the Peabody Coal company who was keeping company with a woman who ran a house of ill repute. According to reports, she is still engaged in the same line of business. Brown's name will appear again in a subsequent article.

The other members of the slugging committee, sent by Farrington to "interview" the rank and file delegates are: Edward (Red) Maher, who is now running for legal investigator, and William Wall, alias "One-eared Wall," also a candidate for investigator.

The day after the committee was slugged a great mass meeting was held in Springfield and David Reed read the following telegram from the platform:

"Collinsville, Ill., 8-8-1919.

"Frank Farrington,
"Farmers Bank Building,
"Springfield, Ill.

"Two delegates left at six a. m. for Springfield. They will arrange for mass meeting tomorrow. Will arrive at about ten-fifteen.

"Moses Johnson."

Silence Showed Guilt.

President Farrington, who was present at the meeting, was charged by Reed with the responsibility for the slugging of the Collinsville delegation. He did not deny the charge. The telegram was sent by a Farrington stoolpigeon in Collinsville, and was the signal for the sluggers to be on the watch.

The Springfield miners were not then enthusiastic over a strike for a new contract, but when the Belleville committee told of the treatment they suffered at the hands of Farrington's sluggers, they voted to go on strike and to remain on strike until all the state officers resigned their jobs."

The next article will follow up this very interesting part of Farrington's history. The evidence will convince any fair-minded mine worker that the president of District 12 is not alone an agent of the operators, whether paid directly or indirectly by them, but that for sheer brutality he can hold his own with the worst specimen among the American labor fakers.

MANY CHURCHES IN EUROPE BET ON WRONG HORSE IN WORLD WAR AND ARE NOW VERY MUCH BROKE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The war-mad churches of Europe, whose pastors blessed bloodshed and consecrated slaughter as they egged on the young into the world war are now feeling the belated effects of their betrayal of christianity.

"It is here in the religious heart of the nations that the hurt of the war is tragically felt today," declares the Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical churches of Europe, which is asking for cash to put the protestant churches of Europe on their feet again. "For on these much-tried churches of Europe has fallen blow after blow."

Many of the churches backed the wrong horse in the war, particularly in central Europe. They had been supported by the government for whom they shouted in wartime, and those governments went down before defeat and revolution. The state taxes from which the pastors drew much of their living were withdrawn. "Overnight," the bureau reports, "their income ceased or dwindled to almost nothing." They tried to rely on the great middle classes but these also were hit by the war they had loyally supported.

In Hungary some pastors of city churches have seen their wages decline to $2 a month. Many of them in Hungary and elsewhere had to go to work in offices, on farms and even in mines to keep their families going.

The annual output of religious literature has suffered. In one country alone three quarters of the religious periodicals, according to the relief bureau, have suspended and of those that remain half the subscribers have discontinued.

FINAL RED NIGHTS IN NEW YORK CITY TO LIGHT UP EAST SIDE

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 22.—The two final red nights in New York City will be held on the east side and in the down town sections Friday evening, Oct. 24, and Saturday, Oct. 25. On Friday night the Red Night will be in the fifth congressional district with a series of 12 meetings with a final grand windup at 10th street and 2nd avenue at 10:30 p. m. At this meeting many prominent speakers will address the meeting. Some of the speakers Will be, Ludwig Lore, candidate for congress in this district; Carl Brodsky, candidate in the 8th assembly district; Harry M. Winitsky, candidate for congress in the 12th district; Rugin Saltzman, Moissaye J. Olgin, Doris Liphshitz, Juliet Stuart Poyntz, Fannia Warshafsky, Alexander Trachtenberg, Rebecca Grecht and many others in Jewish and English. This will be one of the biggest red nights held by the Workers Party and it is expected that many thousands of workers will be reached by this red night.

PLENTY OF TRANSIT PLANS BUT PROFITS ARE STILL IN THE STRAPS

Mayor Dever's subway building plan which is now before the city council contains the following proposals:

A subway in Clark street, from Chicago avenue to Polk street, and extending west in Chicago avenue to Orleans street and west in Polk street to Jefferson street.

An "L" line on Milwaukee avenue to Irving Park boulevard, connecting with the subway.

An "L" line in Blue Island avenue, connecting with the subway at Jefferson street.

Numerous later extensions of the "L" line.

Construction of initial part of system with the city's $40,000,000 traction fund.

The Insull Plan.

Forty miles of extensions to the present "L" system. Would have city build subway under downtown district and if it does not desire to do this the "L" company offers to do it.

Proposal for consolidation of "L" and surface lines—one city-one fare under long term or indeterminate grant. Proposes that city build two subways under central district, one for north and south traffic, and one leading west for surface lines.

Maj. R. F. Kelker, Jr., the committee's engineer-expert, submitted a plan for eighteen miles of rapid transit lines with forty-six miles of track in the initial construction period, all of which can be financed, he claims, from the city's $40,000,000 traction fund.

COMMUNISTS OF ITALY CALL FOR UNITED FRONT

But Bourgeois Radicals Only Mumble Phrases

ROME, Oct. 22—The proposition made by the Communist Party of Italy to the bourgeois opposition against the Fascisti, demanding that a separate parliament be established to fight the Fascisti tyranny, was turned down even tho constitutional liberals do not recognize the Fascisti parliament in which they refuse to participate.

This so-called constitutional opposition is really the father of Fascism tho it is not now at all pleased with its offspring. Before Mussolini marched his black shirt bandits on Rome, these jabbering liberals were in power and while they imprisoned the workers who had arms with which to defend themselves, the Fascisti were given a free hand.

Called Benito Names.

This element formed a constitutional opposition to Mussolini after the infamous assassination of Matteotti. They denounced the fascist government as mercenary and called for the dissolution of the national militia. Of course Mussolini had the guns and refused to comply with the request. Instead he had his brigands take the oath of allegiance to the king and they were henceforth part of the regular army and not outlaws.

The fascisti are continuing their attacks on the workers, particularly on the workers of Molinella near Bologna, where the agricultural workers always had a very powerful co-operative movement, even controlling the railroad.

Murder in Daylight.

The Argrarian trust of all Italy concentrated their attack upon Molinella. During the last few days, the fascisti have committed murders in the streets in broad daylight. Ragazzia, leader of the fascisti and big land owner, killed a war cripple who was decorated for gallantry in war and was a member of the fascisti. But because he criticised the murder of Matteotti he was marked for death.

He was stabbed at night while sleeping and his murderer, Ragazzio, the arrested for the crime, was almost immediately released and is now walking the streets unmolested. This latest outrage has aroused the wrath of even some of the fascisti.

Call For Action.

Under these conditions, the Communist Party issued a manifesto calling on the fascisti opposition to form a constitutional parliament and fight the black terror. "To isolate ourselves and allow the fascisti cutthroats to spread murder thruout the land is not the right way to fight Mussolini," declares the Communist appeal. "We must join with other groups to make war on the fascist tyranny." The statement calls on the opposition parties to form a new government under the name of the workers and peasants.

Refused to Act.

But the opposition refuses to join the Communist Party in this move. The constitutionalists will continue to use constitutional methods, in a country where the constitution is impaled on the bayonet of Mussolini. There is no constitution except for the blackshirts. But the liberals still continue to talk about freedom of speech of the press and other shibboleths of bourgeois democracy while chaos increases and the conditions of the Italian workers and peasants are growing steadily worse. The saving of Italy from the terror of fascism will be the task of the proletariat and the peasants led by the Communist Party.

Well, Let's Eat!

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 22.—A train 150 miles long, more than the distance from Chicago to Indianpolis, would be required to carry the grain that has been loaded by the Canadian Pacific railway on the Canadian prairies from the opening of the crop year to date.

$4,000 for Malpractice.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 22.—The appellate court, third dictrict, today affirmed a $4,000 judgment granted Perry Lawson by the Mattoon City court against Dr. Sherman E. Bigler on malpractice allegations.

7TH VICTORIOUS YEAR—NOV. 7TH

World-wide Celebration of the Russian Revolution

JOIN IN!

THE revolutionary proletarian world will celebrate this seventh anniversary of Soviet Russia in greater numbers than ever before.

This year, added hundreds of thousands of workers who have seen the light will join the Communists in Europe, in Asia, in America, and pointing their fingers towards the rising sun, will tell added millions of workers the story of Soviet Russia.

The story of Soviet Russia is the story of the World Revolution. Soviet Russia has pointed the way. It has given direction to the world's proletariat and told how every country's working class might free itself.

Soviet Russia, the torch-bearer, has a right to demand. As the advance guard it has the right to call upon every revolutionary group in the world to tell the proletarian world, upon this anniversary of the birth of the first proletarian republic, the story of the revolution and its political significance for every land in the world.

Soviet Russia demands of you to commemorate and to celebrate. It calls upon you to demonstrate in your city your own revolutionary loyalty.

SPEAKERS ARE READY FOR YOU! ARE YOU READY FOR THEM?

Have you rented a hall? Have you ordered your printing with which to advertise? Are the comrades selling the admission tickets? It takes at least two weeks to make a mass meeting successfull. Therefore TODAY is the VERY LAST DAY you have to begin upon.

The speakers listed below are at your service. Write to your district office or the national office that you will celebrate the seventh anniversary of Soviet Russia. Both offices are ready to do their utmost to assist you.

SOVIET SPURNS RESERVATIONS IN PARIS NOTE

Demands Unconditional Recognition

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Paris has been advised unofficially by Moscow that even tacit reservations concerning debts will not be tolerated by the Soviet government in the French recognition formula. This is the cause of the delay in the official recognition of the Soviet require which was announced to take place last Friday.

The formula arrived at by the commission which was appointed by Herriot to pave the way for formal recognition, broke down Herriot's original insistence on payment of the czar's debt to France before recognition.

The growing strength of the Soviet government renders it increasingly difficult for the capitalist powers that have not already recognized the Workers' Republic to secure favorable terms.

France has gained nothing but lost much from following the advice of Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes of Washington in his Soviet phobia.

O'Connor, Cal's Aid, Fails to Make Good in Attack on Russia

Both men are touring the country making political speeches. It is suggested that they be asked whether they were recalled officially, whether they returned at government expense, who is now paying their expenses and under what instructions from the state department they are now working. It is also suggested that Secretary of States Hughes be required to produce state department records dealing with these facts, and that he be asked what others connected with the state department are being used in the campaign.

Pennsylvania Raises Huge Sum.

The campaign fund collected by Pennsylvania republicans outside the "Pittsburgh district," totals $165,000, Joseph R. Grundy of Bristol, Penn. this afternoon told the Borah investigating committee.

Grundy is the chairman of the ways and means committee of the Pennsylvania republican state committee, and was the man named as collector of the "slush fund" being raised to "buy the election" in closely contested territory.

Slow in Starting New Trial of Two Indiana Unionists

BOONVILLE, Ind., Oct. 22.— The trial of Bert Stanton and Tom Julian, union men charged with first degree murder of Wesley Rogers, non-union man, on April 9, set for today, had not been started at noon because Henry Bippus, prosecutor, was awaiting word as to whether he could secure attendance of Mrs. Datha Garrison, eye witness to the murder who had been subpoenaed and was in the state of Ohio. A former trial resulted in a hung jury, standing seven for conviction and one for acquittal. The state may ask a continuance.

Hight Wants Sanity Probe.

MOUNT VETRNON, Ill., Oct. 22.— Reverend Lawrence M. Hight, unfrocked minister of Ina, charged jointly with Mrs. Elsie Sweetin with conspiracy to poison his wife, Anna, and her husband Wilford, today filed a motion in circuit court here, thru his attorney, Nelson J. Layman or Duquoin, asking that a sanity commission be appointed to examine him.

Another Bank Quits.

DES MOINES, Oct. 22.—Notice posted on the doors at United States bank of this city today that a threatened run made closing necessary, informed customers that the bank had suspended.

The state banking department said that no inkling of the banks' suspension had been given state officials.

Children Die in Fire.

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 22.— Two children of Patrick Mahoney, Louis, 3, and Leona, 1, were suffocated to death today when their home was damaged by fire. The mother was seriously burned trying to save the children and is in the Butler hospital.

Painters' Union No. 275 Demands Action from Chicago F. of L.

Painters' Union No. 275 of Chicago, at its last regular meeting endorsed the three resolutions presented to the Chicago Federation of Labor at its meeting last Sunday afternoon.

The three resolutions called for: 1. A campaign for organizing the unorganized workers; 2. organization of a series of mass meetings thruout the country condemning the Ku Klux Klan; 3. denouncing the imperialist tendencies of the United States capitalists and demanding the withdrawal of American troops from foreign territory.

These resolutions were to be sent to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor which will be held in El Paso, Texas beginning Nov. 17.

When presented for adoption at the last meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor by Arne Swabeck, delegate from Painters' Union No. 194, Andrew Overgaard, Machinists' Lodge 390 and J. W. Johnstone, Painters' Union No. 147, the meeting voted to table them.

The secretary of the Painters' Union No. 275 was instructed to send a communication to the Chicago Federation requesting the delegates to reconsider these resolutions at their next meeting. John T. Heinrichson was elected special representatives to safeguard the interests of the local and see that action is taken on the communication.

Chicago Party and League Members!

Poll Watchers Needed for Election Day.

PARTY and League members are asked to help the Party on election day, Nov. 4, by acting as poll watchers. This is to ensure an accurate count of all votes cast for the Workers (Communist) Party candidates. It is easy to be released from work on election day. The Party will need about 300 watchers. Are you ready to help? If you are, sign below and send it in to the Local Office, 166 W. Washington St., Room 303.

——————— CUT OUT HERE ———————

I will be a poll watcher on November 4th.

BIG PROGRAM OF FINAL RALLIES IN NEW YORK COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 22.—The campaign committee of New York has arranged a series of final rallies which will be held during the last two weeks of the campaign in the various sections of the city.

The following is a list of the indoor rallies:

Webster Hall, 119 E. 11th St., Oct. 26, at 8 p. m. The speakers at this meeting will be Comrade Olgin who will give a lecture in "Russia Today." All those interested in knowing what is going on in Russia should attend this lecture.

Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton St., Oct. 28, at 8 p. m. This meeting will be addressed by Cannon, candidate for governor, Winitsky, candidate for congress, Olgin, Lore, Brodsky, Liphshitz and Saltzman, all candidates in this district.

Hennington Hall, 214 Second St., on Oct. 29. Meeting will be addressed by the candidates, Cannon, Winitsky, Lore, Olgin, Brodsky, Liphshitz and Saltzman.

Webster Hall, 119 E. 11th St., on Oct. 29, at 8 p. m. The main speakers at this meeting will be Olgin and Winitsky in English and many other speakers in Jewish. This meeting has been arranged by the left wing of the Workmen's Circle to endorse the candidates of the Workers Party.

Hopkinson Mansion, between Pitkin Ave. and East New York Ave., Brooklyn, on Oct. 30. The speakers at this meeting will be Cannon, Trachtenberg and Fannie Warshafsky.

Workers' Hall, 2347 Boston road, Bronx, on Nov. 1. The speakers at this meeting will be Cannon, Olgin, Grecht and Padgug.

Webster Hall, 119 E. 11th St., on Oct. 2, at 2 p. m. The speakers at this meeting will be Gitlow, candidate for vice-president, Cannon, candidate for governor, Winitsky, Lore, Trachtenberg and Poyntz, candidates for congress, Olgin, Lore, Brodsky, Liphshitz and Saltzman, all candidates in this district.

The meetings are being pushed by the local sections in which they are being held and the comrades should see to it that they get their friends to attend these final rallies of the campaign to hear the candidates of the Workers Party and the political issues involved in this campaign.

Remember these dates and see to it that you are present at these meetings.

JOHNSTONE WILL SPEAK AT MASS MEETING, OCT. 27

Preparations for Grand Rally Under Way

John W. Johnston, candidate for congress in the ninth congressional district, will be the principle speaker at a grand rally and mass meeting of the North Side English branch of the Workers Party, to be held Monday, Oct. 27, at the Imperial Hall, 2409 N. Halsted street.

Johnstone who is the assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, is well-known to working men of Chicago. He has been very active in his own union, the Painters No. 147 for 22 years and is a delegate from that union to the Chicago Federation of Labor. He has also taken active part in every large campaign for organizing the unorganized workers held in Chicago. Especially well-known is his work among the stockyard workers.

Every effort must be made to get a large attendance of workers at this meeting. Members of the North Side English branch should call at headquarters and get as many throwaways as they can dispose of to distribute in front of large factories and in their own workshops.

Johnstone is a splendid speaker and makes a hit with workers everywhere —the more working men and women we can reach thru this meeting the greater will be our effectiveness in this campaign.

Every member of the North Side English branch get busy!

Murder Trial Continued.

Trial of Russell Scott for the murder last April of 19-year-old Joseph Maurer, clerk in a loop drug store, during a holdup there, was again continued in criminal court today, by Judge Lynch, this time to Dec. 1.

The Circle

A Mark of Accomplishment

No campaign of the DAILY WORKER to increase its circulation has received the success of the present one.

Thousands of workers with the progress of the Labor movement at heart have become active participants of the DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union and have sent us the load of subscription "bricks" that are pouring into the office to "Build the DAILY WORKER."

These workers believe that a most effective method to aid the American Labor movement is by working for the success of a Daily newspaper that has championed actively, aggressively the workers' cause in every struggle.

They believe that, and much more—and work for it. If you do also—and want to see the cause of Labor more effectively promoted, and reaching more workers, you will cut out this brick below and add directions and remittance. Around the length of subscription that you desire for the worker you have induced to subscribe—you will place a circle. Then send it to the DAILY WORKER.

That is your mark of accomplishment for the Labor movement.

Place the circle on this brick and

STANDARD OIL TYRANNY RULES AT WHITING, IND.

Labor Slaves for John D. at Pauper Wages

By JACOB RUSAK.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Oct. 22.—The Standard Oil company, with its huge refinery in Whiting, is taking drastic measures to exploit the workers to the limit and get the most work out of the young girls who slave there at pauper's wages.

I talked to many male and female workers at the plant, and they all have hard luck stories to tell.

Partners of "John D."

The average wage of the male workers is 50 cents and of the female 35 cents an hour. The bosses are spreading propaganda that the workers should "become a partner of John D. Rockefeller and buy a share of stock in the Standard Oil. "This keeps them satisfied with their low wages, until they get wise, and keeps them working their hands off to get a "share of the profits."

The Standard Oil company makes the workers join a "union" but it is the company union, organized and controlled by the officials of the company. The workers have nothing to say as to what their hours and wages shall be, or what working conditions shall be like. The company does the dictating and not the workers.

Some of the girls told me they work so hard and fast for their measly thirty-five cents an hour, that when they come home from work they drop into bed without eating any supper. One girl said, "We've got to work on a schedule and every girl must produce a certain number candles per day, in the candle making department, or she is fired. The foreladies are on a constant watch over us and we aren't ever allowed to talk to each other during working hours, altho we stand only a foot apart at our work." The girl who told me this has been in the employ of the company four years.

Never Got An Increase

No matter how long a girl works for the Standard Oil company she never gets an advance in wages. "When we are hired they tell us there is always a chance for advancement," this candle maker said. "They tell us we can become forelades or supervisors if we only work hard enough, and behave ourselves, and comply with the rules and regulations of the company. I've worked here for four years and every time it was my turn to be advanced I was transfered to another department with the excuse that the previous department was slackening down. I am so tired of waiting to be promoted, that I have given up all hope."

The female employes are not permitted to go to the wash rooms during working hours, because they would get behind in their regular schedule of work, mapped out by the boss. "They allow us 3 minutes every three hours to go to wash rooms, and if we stay away any longer we are given a red card which means a bad mark against us," another young girl told me. "When a girl receives three of these red cads she is fired. I would rather go to prison than slave here, but what can I do? There are no Standard Oil."

Fill Library With Trash

The large library maintained at other factories in Whiting besides the Whiting by the Standard Oil company is filled with capitalist magazines and trashy middle class books. Only those books that poison the minds of the workers are permited in this library. There is not one book dealing with the everyday problems of the workers. Each employe of the company is forced to give $5 to $10 of his wages to the upkeep of the community house run by the company.

Altho the workers have already paid for this beautiful house several times over, they are not permited to run any affairs of their own there. The company runs all dances and entertainments, and makes sure that the profits go to feeding more poisonous propaganda about the Standard Oil to the employes. If anyone refuses to contribute his five or ten dollars, he is immediately discharged.

No Aid for Injured

I talked to one worker whose son fell down and broke his back, costing the Standard Oil employe $6,000 in doctors bills and expenses to send the lad away to a better climate. The worker was forced to bring his boy back for lack of funds. As soon as the boy returned to Whiting he grew worse. This worker, who has for several years loyally given his five dollars every pay day to the upkeep of the community house, appealed to the committee in charge of it for aid.

They bluntly refused, on the ground that all money collected must go to "the welfare of the community house." Nor could the worker get any help from the Standard Oil company for which he had slaved so long.

One of the officials of the company told this father it would be useless to send the boy away as he probably would not recover anyhow.

Savings Stolen From Them.

Three bankers in Whiting, Schroll, Smith, and Davis, own practically all the land in Whiting, and it is rumored that these bankers have connections with the Standard Oil company. The only way a worker can build a house is to see one of these three bankers. First they are exploited and plundered of their energy by the Standard Oil barons, then their savings are robbed from them by the land shark-bankers, and by the combined force of the Chamber of commerce of Whiting.

Fighting for Jobs at Czar Gary's Steel Mills

By KARL REEVE.
(Staff Writer, Daily Worker.)

GARY, Ind., Oct. 22.—Every morning at 7 o'clock, from one to three thousand unemployed workers gather in the chilly dawn before the gates of the United States Steel corporation and try to sell themselves in return for food.

Inside the employment office sits a tall, beefy man with a baggy gray coat, and slouchy pants, reading a newspaper. This is Mr. Egeberg, terrorizing employment agent, who holds destiny of thousands of workers in his uncouth paw.

The God of the Mills.

Many are the terrible tales whispered from one worker to another about this god of the mills, as they cower in the icy air. "He's in there now, warming himself. He wants to wait until we get the guts frozen out of us, then we'll be willing to work for his lousy forty-four cents an hour," whispers a Spanish I. W. W. member to his companion.

"You can't put anything over on Egeberg," whispers another steel worker, spitting tobacco juice. "He looks you thru and thru. Do you know why he has that job, with its fat salary? Egeberg never forgets a face. If a worker is fired from the mills for talking unionism or belonging to a radical party, he never gets re-hired. All new employes pass thru Egeberg's hands, and he weeds out the rebels."

"They say he is backed by the Ku Klux Klan," says a Negro worker in awed tones. "And he always carries two guns with him wherever he goes."

"Yes, I had a job here two years ago," chimes in an Italian laborer. "Egeberg took me into his office, pulled out a gun from his hip-pocket, laid it on his desk, and started to swear at me. 'Son of a bitch' was the mildest he called me. I couldn't say a word. I hadn't had a square meal in two days and needed that job. Egeberg told me if he ever caught me at a radical meeting, or heard me talking unionism, I could collect my time next day. I said 'yes sir.' I wanted that job."

Scene Not Imaginary.

This is not an imaginary scene, but the real thing, in which the DAILY WORKER reporter took part, and all you have to do to hear awe-stricken whispers about Egeberg is to talk to the workers in the Gary steel mills. Egeberg visits all the Communist and radical public meetings, putting his phenomenal memory to the test, and separating the goats from the sheep, finding out who are the docile slaves of the steel trust and who still have their manhood left in them.

And here is another true scene in which the snarling watch dog of the steel trust took part. Two unemployed Spansh wobblies were standing in front of the employment office gates reading a Spanish I. W. W. newspaper. Egeberg rushed out, tore the paper from the hands of one of the wobblies, kicked the other one, and yelled, "Get to hell out of here, with your I. W. W. literature. Go back to Spain and start a revolution if you want to. You fellows are nothing but dam scoundrels and the Communists are still worse. Do you know what I do with men that belong to the I. W. W. and the Workers Party? I take them by the ear and kick them to hell out of here, and they'd better not come back again if they don't want to serve time."

Asked About Their Membership.

Every clerk in the employment office is instructed to ask the applicant for a job if he belongs to a union, to the I. W. W. or the Workers Party, and if he does, the unemployed worker is kicked into the street.

This Egeberg has able assistants inside the mills. A worker who was seen by his foreman, Matt McCormick, reading a DAILY WORKER in the 10" I" merchant mills, was immediately discharged, this week. The worker, who asked that his name be kept secret owing to fear of the blacklist, bought the paper on the way to his work. McCormick, the roller boss, after discharging the worker, warned the rest of the crew that anyone bringing the DAILY WORKER into the mills would be fired at once.

McCormick then went into a bitter tirade, and praised the Gary Post-Tribune, which is controlled by the steel trust. McCormick, under the heat of the moment, admitted he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, and declared himself opposed to any radical paper.

"I'll not have any of you damn Bolsheviks bringing a paper into the mills which is against the Ku Klux Klan," McCormick bellowed, as the discharged worker started for his pay. "You damned hunkeys and Niggers can go back to where you came from if you want a revolution. This country is for Americans only, but if the foreigners and Negroes behaved themselves we'd let them stay here."

I have snooped around the steel mills quite a bit in the last few weeks. After several failures I succeeded in eluding the chief watch-dog, Egeberg, and his 189 snarling, private police assistants, and went into the steel mills. I watched the steel workers, thru an entire afternoon, standing a few inches from the molten metal, undergoing the tortures of hell and the constant danger of horrible death, for forty-four cents an hour.

I was drawn to the steel mills because I had read a lot about the "Romance of Steel," a phrase popularized by the biographer of Andrew Carnegie, and by Arundel Cotter who wrote an "Authentic History of the United States Steel Corporation," on steel trust money supplied to glorify the name of Elbert Gary.

But what romance did I find in these mills? The sweat of tortured bodies, the noise of steam hammers whacking down the molten steel, and with it the lives of the workers, into profits for the steel trust. I found the "open hearths" which take the virgin iron ore, dug by workers out of the ranges of Minnesota and transported across the lakes by other workers, into a flood of liquid gold for the steel barons.

What is this "romance of steel," which the capitalist prostitute writers glorify? Cotter's history is supposed to be authentic. Let us hear him damn the steel trust with his own words.

He tells of the romance in the founding of Gary in 1906. "In 1906 the U. S. Steel corporation's furnaces," Cotter writes, "poured out 947,377 tons of pigiron while its steel plants produced over 13,000,000 tons of ingots and ten million tons of finished material. The gross sales of the year amounted to $696,756,982 and the net profits $156,624,273.

"The corporation's capital is $1,404,000,000. The interest on this sum would keep 35,000 American families in comfort without touching the capital."

The J. P. Morgan interests; the Carnegie interests; the Rockefeller interests; Elbert H. Gary and his satellites are the ones who, bathing their hands in the gold pieces poured out of the steel mills to them by the life blood of the workers, find romance in steel.

"The majority of the steel workers collapsed early under strain and were thrown on the human scrap pile, their vitality sapped and their youth gone," writes Cotter of the time of the founding of the steel trust. "Under the most favorable conditions the steel mill is far from being a drawing room."

And Egeberg, backed by the colossal fortune of the steel trust, backed by the thugs, the newspapers, the chamber of commerce and the control of the workers' job, browbeats, fires, slugs and beats the rebel worker.

And the rebel worker, dumbly realizing that his is the historically rising class, bides his time, awaiting the day when the workers will take over the industries, and Egeberg and his masters are themselves thrown on the human refuse heap.

GOLDEN CALF IS THE GOD TODAY AND ONLY HATE FOR COMMUNISTS

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.—The heathen have descended on K. C. literally! Fifteen hundred years ago a christian mob in Alexandria dragged Hypatia, a girl philosopher, to the temple of their god, stripped her and tore her to pieces with their finger nails before the altar.

This week we are having pageants, parades and big balls staged by the Priests of Pallas and Pallas Athene herself, in person. Do the Christians propose to mob and outrage her as their fathers would? Do they even protest? They do not. Their God is the golden calf—and the blasphemers they hate are the Communists.

Indiana---A Nest of Corruption

By JOSEPH MANLEY.
Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

INDIANA, the hoosier state, is the embodiment of corruption in American social and political life. It contains a plethora of incidents and individuals typifying the struggled of the workers against their masters, the capitalists.

The senior senator from Indiana, Tom Watson, is the mouthpiece of the National Manufacturers' Association. He is a bitter enemy of organized labor and the workers generally. He is generally recognized as the senatorial voice in the senate of the otherwise dumb and silent Coolidge.

Tom Taggart, Indiana's democratic boss, has made an enormous fortune out of his management of the democratic party in the state. His palatial resort, French Lick Springs, where prohibition never enters, has been the scene of many gubfests between its owner, the late Roger Sullivan, George Brennan, Charlie Murphy and the inner circle that bosses the democratic show, selling the votes of misguided workers to the highest bidder.

A sample of political corruption in Indiana can be cited in the case of Governor McCray, now serving five years at Atlanta penitentiary, for misappropriation of funds and using the mails to defraud the bankers. Had he been guilty of defrauding the workers, he might not be in Atlanta, but would perhaps have been a success ful senatorial candidate. His crime was, that he cheated on his own class.

Indiana's largest city, Indianapolis houses the national headquarters of the largest trade unions in the country. Millions of dollars from these workers' organizations pass thru the banks of this leading open shop town. It was an Indianapolis judge, Anderson, who sent the McNamara brothers and the other officials of the Structural Iron Workers' Union to the penitentiary. It was the same Judge Anderson from this noble state, who granted the famous injunction against the miners, who have their headquarters in Indianapolis, tying up their funds and abridging their rights to strike...

Indiana is the home of Eugene V. Debs. The same Debs who formerly fought for the workers and who now finds himself in the camp of LaFollette and his kind, whom Debs, in his early militant days so vigorously denounced.

Into the midst of Indiana's politically corrupt struggle is projected the candidacy of the Communist standard bearers, William Z. Foster, and Benjamin Gitlow. Republican, democratic and LaFollette politicians can well be alarmed by the first Communist election campaign and its program now being spread broadcast by the Workers Party. The Workers Party and its candidates, Foster and Gitlow, appeal to the workers in the steel mills, coal mines, and factories of Indiana to recognize their real class interests and ignore the glib phrases of the Indianapolis labor leaders, Lewis, Hutcheson and their kind. The Workers Party is laying the foundation for a mass Communist movement in Indiana that will be a complete answer to the corruption of the parties that protect the interests of the Indiana capitalists. Thousands of workers in the hoosier state have their first opportunity to vote Communist.

Chinese Appreciate Sympathy of Soviet Rule in Red Russia

(By Rosta News Agency)

MOSCOW, Oct. 22. — In an interview granted to a correspondent of the Rosta News Agency regarding the inundation in China, Mr. Li Chia-ao stated that he was most thankful to the Soviet government for he sympathy expressed and its willingness to come to the relief of the Chinese people.

"My government"—said the Chinese representative—"has charged me to convey its gratitude to the Soviet government for the latter's sympathy, which is a token of the deep feeling of love of the governments and peoples of the Union of Soviet Republics for the Chinese nation."

International Greetings to Silk Workers

Cabling their greetings and wishes for victory of the Paterson silk strikers, the All-Russian Textile Workers' Union and the International Propaganda Committee of the Textile Workers have again demonstrated what international working class solidarity means. The Russian workers, in control of their own land and rebuilding it on the basis of Communism, are never too busy to watch earnestly the struggle of workers in other lands, and to send their messages of encouragement. The moment they learned of the Paterson strike they sent their message of solidarity. If the strike continues, the Russian textile workers will probably collect strike support from the mills and factories of Soviet Russia. They are supporting with all their power the attempts to organize international action of the working class of the world for victorious struggle.

The DAILY WORKER transmits this message with great joy, and to the Russian workers it extends the appreciation of the silk strikers and their friends for the expression of international solidarity of the workers. The whole body of textile workers in America, and the entire conscious working class will fight with greater energy and enthusiasm, under the inspiration of that ideal of revolutionary unity that is so flamingly held before them by the heroic Russian workers.

Long live the Paterson silk workers!

Long live the revolutionary struggle against capitalism!

Long live the Russian unions and their government, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics!

There Is Gnashing of Teeth

When John L. Lewis lifted the charter from District 26 of the United Mine Workers and suspended the duly elected officers of the Nova Scotia miners, the resentment among the coal diggers was very strong and justly so. Many of them thought the best way to reply to the attack of the reactionary Lewis would be to secede from the International. But for the fine work of the Communists and the Trade Union Educational League, Lewis would have accomplished his purpose—to rid District 26 of the radicals.

It was during this period of trial that the cuckoos of the O. B. U. of Canada made their appearance. As a labor organization the O. B. U. is a good gambling joint. It is competing with the Chinese, On Leong and Hip Sing tongs in Canada. From the profits of its gambling enterprise it was able to send emissaries into Nova Scotia, where the workers are revolutionary. But instead of helping them to fight Lewis the O. B. U. strategists adopted the Lewis tactics. Had they been on his payroll, the O. B. U.-ites would not have done his work better than they did.

That they failed is no fault of theirs, but of the splendid solidarity and dogged determination of the rank and file of the Nova Scotia miners, the leadership of the Trade Union Educational League and of the miners' leaders who were suspended by Lewis. The Maritime Labor Herald was also a tower of strength to the workers who were fighting two powerful enemies, John L. Lewis, and the British Empire Steel corporation.

"Get out of the U. M. W. of A. if you don't like it," was Lewis' invitation to the Nova Scotia miners.

"Get out of the U. M. W. of A. and join the O. B. U.," was the invitation of the Winnipeg cuckoos.

Despite the presence of "actor" Legere, whose latest "Follies" had a two-year run in Lawrence, Mass., the miners of Nova Scotia did not show the white feather or quit the struggle against Lewis. They stayed in their own union and flaked the Indianapolis bully to a standstill, and in doing so struck a heavy blow at Besco. They repudiated the secessionists and elected a set of militants as district officers as soon as Lewis was compelled to restore their autonomy. District 26 is still a "red" district. It is inside the United Mine Workers of America and in a position to join forces with District 12, Kansas and the other sections of the miners' union in waging war on Lewis and his crew of strikebreaking agents of the coal barons.

The victory of the Nova Scotia militants is another vindication of the policy of the Trade Union Educational League and a damaging defeat for the muddle-headed acrobats of the O. B. U. and their secessionist policy.

There is weeping and gnashing of teeth at the headquarters of the Winnipeg "wheel of fortune" outfit. It is regrettable that they were not able to get a group of workers to give their confidence game a proletarian flavor.

"Socialism Made Easy"

The above was the title of a little booklet written by James Connolly and was a popular presentation of elementary socialism which was very popular in this country.

But the title seems appropriate to the policy of the socialist party of America today in putting forward a fraudulent substitute which is guaranteed to satisfy all classes from Rudolph Spreckels to the lowly paid common laborer in the Gary mills.

The socialist united front with Spreckels, Vanderlip, Vanderbilt, Gompers and LaFollette finally brought the socialist party into the kind of company its leaders hankered after for many years. But their new allies take snuff whenever the socialists make their appearance. They have no objection to their votes but feel as much embarrassed in the presence of these renegades as Andrew Mellon would if seen walking in public with the bootlegger who handles his whiskey deals.

In New York state the Rev. Norman Thomas, near-socialist candidate for governor, is in an uncomfortable position. He is supporting LaFollette for president, while LaFollette is supporting Al Smith for governor of the Empire state, who in his turn is supporting—tho very, very precariously—Morgan's attorney, John W. Davis. Yet it is well for Thomas that Smith is giving even lip service to Davis. If Smith decides to throw his hat into the LaFollette ring and desert Morgan's attorney, then Thomas will not get enough votes to cover the front of his preacherless pulpit.

And Smith may do that little thing. Already politicians with influence are warning Smith to drop Davis, else Roosevelt may be elected. The trade union supporters of LaFollette have called on Thomas to step out and throw in his lot with Smith. They point out that there is no fundamental difference between Smith and Thomas, so far as their avowed principles are concerned. Smith is a better handshaker and favors liquor with a strong alcoholic content, while in public Thomas is a prohibitionist. How he likes his toddy in private, he does not say.

In making socialism "easy" the socialist party has finally succeeded in eliminating itself as a political entity. There is nothing left but a rather vague question mark, and an unpleasant odor.

A Clumsy Liar

The tales of blood and terror promised by Jake Spolansky to the readers of the Chicago Daily News have not yet materialized tho it is apparent that he has already fired his heaviest mud guns.

This audacious liar and particularly stupid fink has spun a yarn that for sheer disregard for truth, establishes a record even among stoolpigeons.

Jake is paid to establish the headquarters of his imaginary "Red Terror" in Chicago. He does that. Satchels full of bombs are seen at a distance but the clever department of justice spies never get even as near to them as the Senate committee investigating the oil frauds got to the famous satchel in which Doheny, jr., carried the $100,000 to former secretary of the interior, Albert B. Fall. In fact all Spolansky's plots fall to the ground—even as near to them as the Senate committee in-

It appears that this verminous brood formed a sort of closed corporation and engaged in a general business of plot-making and exposing. All business was done on the premises and orders were treated confidentially. The family made the plots at the supper table and solved them over the coffee and doughnuts in the morning. They made a living at it which shows that this is still a land of opportunity—at least for sewer rats of the Spolansky type.

One particular part of the Spolansky yarn however is enuf to create a feeling of nausea in the reader over the coldblooded manner in which this human skunk describes the murder of Andrea Salsedo by the department of justice in New York. This young Italian lad fell from a window high up in a building in a New York skyscraper. The accepted view of the story is that he was hurled from that height by government agents.

There was no evidence against Salsedo or against any of the alleged anarchists who were arrested over the framed bomb plots which were hatched by the stoolpigeons in order to create public hysteria and bring in business.

Of all the foul broods that roost on the capitalist system the stool pigeons are the filthiest.

Tag Day

The New York section of the Workers Party is displaying energy and ingenuity in using the election period for the purpose of spreading Communist propaganda, and crystallizing the sentiment against capitalism among the New York workers behind the candidacy of Foster, Gitlow and the Communist candidates in the Empire state.

Campaigns cost funds and there are no Spreckels, Vanderlips nor millionaire Hillquits at the beck and call of the Workers Party. The sinews of war must be raised from the masses in small sums. A Tag Day was decided on.

Tag Days are not new innovations, but this is the first time, we believe, that a Tag Day is proposed in order to collect funds for a political party.

The party branches in New York have taken hold of the idea with enthusiasm. A certain allotment was made to each branch but most of them raised the figure and some of them almost doubled it. The Young Workers League, for instance, accepted an allotment of $3.00 per member which is fifty per cent higher than the quotas assigned to the Workers Party branches.

The Tag Day will be held on October 25 and 26.

"Education Week" to Miseducate Children

By LILLIAN BORGESON.

THAT the public schools of this country are really the tools of the capitalist class and are recognized as such by the government, is conclusively proved by the proposed program of the United States Bureau of Education for American Education Week, a week to be entirely devoted to anti-radical propaganda and to be officially observed in all the schools thruout the nation.

From Nov. 17. to Nov. 23, the Bureau of Education in co-operation with the red-baiting American Legion and the labor-hating National Educational Association, are to concentrate on the task of instilling in the children of the working class a blind allegience to the capitalist system and a deep hatred and lasting distrust of anything radical.

A few quotations from the program are sufficient to let the workers know just what kind of education, the bureau means by "American Education." Tuesday's program is typical.

1. The red flag means death, destruction, poverty, starvation, disease, anarchy, and dictatorship.

2. Help the immigrants and aliens to become American citizens.

3. Take an active interest in government affairs.

4. Stamp out revolutionary radicalism.

5. To vote is the primary duty of every citizen.

Slogans:

America first.
Visit the schools today.
The red flag means danger.
And there are seven days in the week, for each of which is provided similiar propaganda! And that is not all! Teachers are already urging the working class children to send ten cents apiece to the National Security League to secure material for observance of the week. This National Security League is an organization of wealthy business and professional men dedicated to fighting the "menace" of Communism in this country, and one of its specific functions is to furnish "patriotic" material to teachers, especially to teachers of children in the poorer and foreign districts. This material consists of stories for the children and articles addressed to the teachers which may be transcribed by them into the language of the boys and girls. All of the material is concerned with one subject: combating radicalism.

The ruling class realizes keenly the importance of getting control of the children of the workers and drilling them in loyalty to the present system, and filling their plastic minds with wholesale lies about the working class.

Here are some of the things that the "FAIR, IMPARTIAL SCHOOLS" of our country are giving to our children:

"What is this thing men call Bolshevism? I'll tell you in a single phrase. It is the revolt of the inefficient—the revolt of men who can't do things, and want to pull down the man who can. Remember that. Keep it always in front of you. The revolt of the inefficient resenting the prosperity of the efficient."

And again.

"What is the proletariat Lenin and Trotsky whine about? He is actually the lowest in the human scale, the illiterate, the superstitious, the ignorant. A great many people mistake the word for the laboring man. Never in the world!" And further.

"To give the lowest in the human scale the seats of the mighty! A child with a box of matches alone in the house." Or take this that is being given to the children:

"Liberty, says Democracy. License, says Bolshevism.

"Equality, says Democracy. Kill those who are above you, says Bolshevism."

"What can all this be leading to," you ask. Well, more than you probably think. For not only have the capitalists the desire to create an army of loyal youth, but they have the power. The capitalist class and ready in a few years to rally to their call, whether it be to go again across the sea for another imperialist war, or whether it be to shoulder a gun at home and shoot down strikers; their aim is even more definite and sinister. Let me quote again from the publication of the National Security league.

"The Allies have won the first war, and they will win the second. Until they do, the fight to make the world safe for democracy is only half finished. Our relation to this second struggle is exactly what our relation to the first was. Though primarily involved, we cannot remain an innocent by-stander. Many are disposed to be genially tolerant of the Bolshevist. They will have to wake up again. Autocracy and Bolshevism are both bitter enemies of . . . Democracy. . . . Bolshevism is as much the enemy of Democrats as Kaiserism. It too, must be decisively settled."

Or listen to this from "The Spirit of America" by S. S. Menken.

"I wonder what effect this view (against more defense appropriations) would have on Lenin's Council, if they had the airships ready which they will soon possess, and the wicked whim to extend their area of rapine and annihilation to our shores. That these devils, committers of every crime against God and Man, might do so, is possible at any moment; and yet we are totally unprepared for defense against them or any other nation with whose purpose we might come in conflict."

Or lastly, read this from "Women and Bolshevism."

"Bolshevism and Americanism cannot exist in the same land. Our fight is not yet over. One war has been won. We are facing another war that we must fight with all our strength of will and purpose. It is the fight of Americanism against Bolshevism. Can women whose men helped in the World War, hesitate to say on which side they stand."

That is the reason for "American Education Week, from Nov. 17 to Nov. 23. Already the capitalists are organizing their forces, spreading their propaganda to prepare the working class youth for the conflict to come. And how are we to combat this? The Workers' Party has an organization whose one purpose is education of the working class children to their role in the class struggle. The Junior Section of the Young Workers League, Junior Groups under the direction of local branches of the Young Workers League and sometimes of the party, are in existence in all parts of the United States. It is the only organization in the United States which is systematically combating the vicious propaganda of the capitalists. It is the duty of every party branch, of every local of the Young Workers League, to get behind the children's movement wholeheartedly and help them in their great task of bearing the message to other working class children in spite of this organized propaganda against them. Remember! The Future belongs to the Youth!

WAITING

By ANISE
(Federated Press Staff Writer)

In the marble halls of the bathing palace,
They waited for a turn
At the mineral baths of the Cucasus,
Long lines of grumbling folks
The "Private Persons,"
Waiting for a chance to pay
Three or four dollars
And have some HOT MUD plastered on them.
In the gorgeous pavilion once reserved
For the aristocracy of Russia.

A worker standing beside me
Lauched as he told of the day
When they put him off the special branch train
That runs to the health resorts,
Because his CLOTHES marked him a WORKER.
But now he was sent by his UNION
To a place in the best sanitarium.

* * *

And we watched
The PRIVATE PERSONS,
The well-dressed men and women,
The new-rich folks of Russia,
Who had not been sent by any Union,
But came on their own to bathe here,—
How they stood or sat and waited
For some vacancy to happen.
But every 40 minutes
When they nearly reached the desk
Came a flood from the sanitariums,
WORKERS from mine and factory,
In their sanitarium bath-coats,
All with their free reservations,
And swept to the head of the table,
To take from the man who sat there
The bath-checks kept in waiting.
And after the workers were served
There might be a place or two empty
To go to that grumbling line of Private Persons.

* * *

Then one of the waiting crowd,
A well-dressed woman,
Who was used all her life
To being served by others,
Grew angry at the host
Of workers sweeping past her.
We have been waiting
"THREE HOURS, she said,
And you have all the places.
Bitt an old, bent woman turned,
A factory worker,
Sent by the Social Insurance
For rheumatism gained in the dampness of work,
To be cured in the mountains.
She tossed her long bath-coat to the other shoulder,
And waved her hand with the check
The Social Insurance gave her;
And said to the grumbling rich
Whose money bought no favors:
But WE have been waiting
Three hundred years
While you took all the places.

Steel Workers! Join Communists in Fight to Realize Labor's Goal

More than once the steel workers have shown that they know how to fight militantly for their class interests and understand the need of class solidarity.

Your conditions in the mills, however, have continually become worse. Working for the richest corporation in the world, nothing but misery has become your lot.

While the United States Steel corporation last year made a total net profit of $179,650,910, your wages average 44c per hour, in other words from $21.00 to $25.00 per week. The eight-hour day boasted of by Gary has only been partially established. Haunted by an ever-present fear of unemployment and by spies, who are paid to divide your ranks, you are driven to a terrific speed-up system of work.

Steel production has been greatly reduced, which means that many steel workers have been compelled to walk the street without any means of support for themselves and their families, many working only half time. The profits of the steel trust, however, continue to pile up.

The country is facing a great industrial depression with mass unemployment. It will particularly hit the steel industry and you must prepare to meet that crisis. You must organize and demand the right to live.

Judge Gary, Morgan, and the heads of the United States Steel corporation are the modern capitalist autocrats who rule and control the lives of millions of workers. The power and influence of these men express the system of capitalist exploitation under which we live, it dominates completely and decides the policy of the government. Garyism is the curse of the steel workers. In the last analysis Garyism and capitalism is synonomous.

The steel industry must be compelled to maintain its employes during times of enforced idleness. This can only be done thru a tax on profits placed in a fund under complete control of competent steel workers.

The eight-hour day must be established.

The standard of living of the steel workers must be raised.

The lives and limbs of the workers must be protected.

These elementary demands of the everyday struggle can only be won by strong organization, political and industrial, of the steel workers together with the entire working class. These organizations must be guided by leaders with a consciousness that the everyday struggle is a part of the class struggle, and that the interest of the employers and the workers are diametrically opposed and that it is only thru struggle that the workers are able to advance their class interest.

The demands of the steel workers have always been very inoderate, yet each time they have met with ferocious assaults from every department of the government. The courts, th cossacks, soldiers, hired gunmen, have been used to crush every attempt of the steel workers to better their conditions. This should prove to the steel workers the class nature of the struggle, and the need for class action both industrially and politically by the workers.

The giant corporataion which dominates the steel industry is a principal part of the capitalists' control of the United States government. Elbert H. Gary is an ardent supporter of Calvin Coolidge and the republican party. When Wilson and the democratic party held office in the government, the great steel strike was ruthlessly suppressed. It makes no difference to the steel workers of America whether republicans or democrats hold office in the government. Robert M. LaFollette, the independent capitalist candidate for president, represents the same system of capitalism which has developed the United States Steel corporation. He is just as ardent a supporter of capitalism as Coolidge or Davis, and his talk of "busting the trusts" will have no more effect than Roosevelt's trust-busting slogan of 1908.

Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette propose nothing that will relieve the situation in the steel industry. The only permanent solution of the problem is the abolition of the present system of exploitation and the establishment of a workers' government.

Only the Workers Party proposes to organize the workers for a militant struggle to better their own conditions. We propose the steel workers organize themselves into industrial unions; that they organize in the shops to protect their interests there; and that they organize politically to establish the working class power—the workers' government.

This can only be done by the conscious revolutionary will of the workers; by the building of a mass Communist Party.

Steel workers! Join the Communists in the struggle for the realization of this program.

A vote for Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette is a vote for the system which enslaves you. A vote for the Communist candidates is a vote for the workers' government.

William Z. Foster
Chairman Workers Party of America.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

ings are welcome into the ranks of the British labor party but the Communists are not. At least so Ramsay MacDonald has decreed. Perhaps he fears that a Communist left wing inside the labor party would puncture the tires of the McVittie "endowed" automobile. The family of Stanley Baldwin has gone over bag and baggage to the labor party and wealthy women with chokers of pearls are canvassing for votes at the mill gates for titled gentlemen on the labor ticket. The King has not yet joined the labor party but it is known that as long as the labor ministers consent to kiss his anatomy humbly and politely, he sees no reason why he should bore from within.

* * *

THE LaFollette bosters are proud of their millionaire allies. Millionaires in the United States are welcome in the LaFollette party. The workers are invited to do the voting. The published statement of every supporter of the LaFollette candidacy sent out over the LaFollette publicity declare allegiance to the capitalist system. What they want is clean government. The British labor party refuses the Communist Party admittance on the same terms as the other groups that compose the British labor party. There is a reason. The Communists fight the capitalist system. They are not concerned with playing the role of scavangers in the sewers of capitalist government.

* * *

THE capitalist system cannot even be cleaned of its filth. All the efforts of even well intentioned reformers are of no avail. It must go filth and all. The capitalist system has served its purpose in bringing the machinery of production to its present perfection. Perhaps the following story may illustrate the point:

* * *

AN Aglican bishop invited another clergyman to dine with him. The bishop had a leg of mutton which was older than was good for it. Instead of purchasing fresh mutton, he had the old leg cooked and served for dinner. His guest's smellers were in good condition, so when requested by the bishop to say grace before meals, the clergyman broke into poetry to relieve his burdened soul. This is the way he said grace:

"Good Lord above, look down with love
"Upon this leg of mutton,
"Once it was sweet and good to eat
"But now, good Lord, it's rotten."

* * *

SO is the capitalist system.

MINERS CONSIDER JOB CRISIS

AS WE SEE IT
By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

MORGAN has decided to grant a $200,000 loan to France but he has not yet made up his mind about the terms. While he is mediating over the prospective profits, the great banker is automobiling thru southern France with his wife. He may visit the battlefields where his 100,000 American victims are buried.

THE Soviet government is getting more stiffbacked every day. The French capitalists that they were quite liberal in offering recognition with certain reservation, but Moscow talks back and says that it is sick and tired of reservations. It is reported that an agreement between Russia and Japan is ready for the signatures.

THE yellow socialists are in the habit of speaking contemptuously of the Communist leaders of Soviet Russia. But let us compare the standing of the two sets of leaders: the red leaders of Russia and the yellow leaders of the rest of Europe. Today the Bolsheviks command the respect of their enemies because the capitalists fear their power. The yellow socialists, on the other hand are merely the bootblacks of the bourgeoisie and are tolerated as long as they are useful in keeping the workers from revolting.

THE tory party is expected to win in the present election campaign in Britain. The labor party is also expected to make gains. Both parties will grow at the expense of the liberal party which appears to be in the throes of dissolution. The deal made by Lloyd George, Gray and Asquith with the tories has created a deep split in the liberal ranks. The Manchester Guardan and the London Daily News are denouncing Lloyd George and speaking well of the labor party. What Winston Churchill urged one year ago—a liberal-tory coalition against socialism—is now coming to pass.

France Bows to Soviet Power

STILL DIGGING INTO ELEPHANT'S TREASURE CHEST

Plutes Shell Out to Protect Graft

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Senator William E. Borah and his committee investigating campaign expenditures of the capitalist political parties were told today by Frank P. Walsh, that the inquiry thus far had only penetrated the "fringe" of LaFollette's charge of a huge republican "slush fund" to secure the election of the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

On this "fringe" now appear the names of the principal republican money-raisers in the state of Pennsylvania, who told the committee that they had already taken in $350,000 in the fifty-three counties outside the Pittsburgh district, that they were still hard at it and expected to get more before the election.

Grundy at the Helm.

In charge of the republican collections, according to the testimony, is Joseph R. Grundy, wealthy yarn manufacturer of Bristol, and he has been assisted by Edward T. Stotesbury, of the Philadelphia branch of Morgan and company, W. H. Folwell, weaver of woolen goods in Pennsylvania and the owner of department stores in Canton, Ohio, and Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works.

Vauclain, it developed, did not do any of the actual collecting, altho his name appeared as a member of the executive committee, headed by Grundy, which brought in the money. His personal contribution to the republican fund was $6,100, but the committee brought out during cross examination that he had given $10,000 to Julius Krutschnitt, president of the Southern Pacific railroad, to be turned over to the "American Economic Institute," which proposed to conduct a campaign to "keep congress from enacting improper legislation affecting the railroads."

As to using money contributed to the American Economic League to "influence legislation," Vauclain said he was not interested one way or the other. Suggesting that "the country would be better off if congress did not meet for four years, so that we would have a chance to catch up on all the laws that we now have."

Charge Freight Rate on Coal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. — Freight rates of bituminous coal, in carloads, from mines in southern Illinois, Danville, Murphysboro, Centralia and Duquoin districts of Illinois to Omaha and South Omaha, Nebraska, and Council Bluffs, Iowa, were held by the interstate commerce commission today to be unduly prejudicial, but not unreasonable. The railroads were given 90 days to establish rates that will remove the prejudice in favor of the operators in the districts named as against those in the Belleville district.

PEKING TROOPS DEFEATED BY GENERAL CHANG

Chinese Capital Cut Off from Outside

(Special to the Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.—All telegraph and telephone communication between Tien Tsin and Peking has been cut off and telephone communication within the city of Peking has been interrupted, according to an urgent message received today by a Japanese news agency. The situation in Peking is reported critical.

Communication to Peking was cut off following the return to the city of the eighth mixed brigade of the eleventh division, commanded by Feng Yuh Siang, messages here said.

Feng Yuh Siang is apparently allying himself with Sun Yo, commander of the 15th mixed brigade, who withdrew his troops from the Chihli lines and moved toward Peking a few days ago.

Wu Meets Disaster.

The Chang forces are reported to have defeated Wu in several heavy engagements with terrific losses in killed and wounded. It is believed that complete disaster has overtaken the Peking troops and that this isolation of China tells the story silently.

Reports from Canton show that Sun Yat Sen is on the job in that city crushing the remnants of the merchant's military forces.

It is not believed that the apparent defeat of the Peking armies and the victory of Chang will terminate the Chinese civil war. The great powers are watching the situation anxiously and it is not considered possible that a victory for Japanese influence which the success of the Manchurian warlord would indicate, could be considered in a platonic sense by England, America or France. Soviet Russia is opposed to all foreign intervention in Chinese affairs.

LaFOLLETTE SUPPORTERS JOIN KU KLUX KLAN IN EFFORT TO STOP DUNNE MEETING AT COLLINSVILLE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., Oct. 23.—For the first time a workingclass meeting was prevented from using the city hall here when the mayor last night closed it to the crowd gathered to hear William F. Dunne, candidate for governor on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket.

A hall was secured in the Miners' Institute building and Dunne spoke on the issues of the campaign to an audience among which were many delegates to the convention of Sub-District No. 7, United Mine Workers of America, in session here.

Walker's Brother Wants to Know.

Following Dunne's talk the meeting was thrown open for questions and after the speaker had answered several, James Walker, brother of John H. Walker, president of the Illinois State Federation, who attacked the Workers Party in the sub-district convention yesterday, asked the speaker if LaFollette was any different than when the Workers Party tried to endorse him for the presidency.

Dunne replied:

"The Workers Party laid down certain conditions for the support of LaFollette which, had he complied with them would have made not only his candidacy but his whole organization assume an entirely different character and no one knows that better than you do, Walker.

"You know, when you lied about the Workers Party in the convention this morning, that the Workers Party insisted on LaFollette's acceptance of the program of the class farmer-labor party, his submission to its discipline and management of his campaign. The Workers Party demanded that the rank and file of the workers and farmers be the dominant force in this campaign as against the treacherous and cowardly middle class business men and professional elements.

Disrupts Farmer-Labor Movement.

"The best proof," continued Dunne, "of the truth of the charges we have made against the LaFolletteites is the fact that their first step, after LaFollette launched his candidacy, was to disrupt the farmer-labor parties that had sprung up all thru the middle west and northwest."

Walker, inasmuch as Dunne had called him a liar, demanded the right to defend himself. Dunne replied that he nor any other official spokeman of the Workers Party had been present when the charges had been made in the convention, that this was a Workers Party meeting and he had no intention of turning it over to Walker or anybody else, but offered to debate with Walker or any other supporter of LaFollette at any time or place.

"The Workers Party," said Dunne, "is in this campaign to get the Communist program before as many workers as possible. Our speakers are only too pleased to debate these issues with anyone."

Challenge Not Accepted.

The challenge was not accepted and Walker subsided to the appalsue of the audience which appeared to thoroly enjoy this little passage at arms.

After the meeting it was learned that both LaFollette supporters and the Ku Klux Klan had urged the mayor to cancel the permit for the Workers Party meeting.

CLAIM MUCH HERALDED AMERICAN INDUSTRY WASTES $12,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—American industry suffers a loss of $12,000,000,000 annually due largely to preventable waste in manufacturing processes, it was announced today by the department of commerce.

The facts were compiled by Edwin Ely, government simplification expert.

The simplified practices bureau of the department announced that Ely's figures were conservative. A report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover placed the average waste in six major industries at fifty per cent, ranging from 28 per cent in the metal trades to 3 per cent in the building trades and 64 per cent in the manufacturers of men's clothing.

These statistics would put the industrial loss near $30,000,000,000, since in 1923 the manufacturing plants of the United States produced goods valued at $60,000,000,000.

This "largely preventable annual waste," using Ely's figures, equals the total debt to the United States, more than half the total national indebtedness, the total income of the United States for the last three years or nearly four times the federal taxes paid last year.

Thru the department of commerce studies are being conducted by the department to cut down the waste. Already, officials said the saving had been millions of dollars.

STONE MUM ON 'RED PLOT' DOPE OF SPOLANSKY

Atty. Gen. Dodges Personal Interview

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Spolansky's "red plot" newspaper articles, syndicated in the Coolidge press on the eve of the presidential election, have so distinct a flavor of administration propaganda that The Federated Press has offered to Attorney General Stone a chance to disavow them.

These questions were presented to Stone, in press conference, after his secretary—who was formerly secretary to Harry Daughorty — reported that Stone would not answer them in a personal interview:

Asked Four Questions.

1. In view of the attorney general's disavowals of any desire to employ the department of justice for purposes other than the enforcement of law in the regular way, does he not regret the use now being made of the name and prestige of the department in the Spolansky "red plot" articles in certain daily newspapers?

2. Will the attorney general make a public statement thru the press defining his present position with reference to the so-called "red plots" and the alleged danger of Communist uprisings in the United States?

3. Will the attorney general in this connection define his attitude toward the exploitation of past official connection with the secret service as a political campaign device?

4. Does the attorney general believe that the Spolansky articles are now being published without calculation of their political effect upon the LaFollette candidacy?

Stone read the questions, after first trying to avoid the subject by saying that "Spolansky left the service last January." That meant that he left some months before Stone came in and dismissed the force of "anti-red" detectives. After reading them, he said he had "nothing to say" as to the first, third and fourth.

To the second question he would reply only that the bureau of investigation is employed simply in the investigation and prosecution of violations of federal law. Presumably that meant that he was not concerned with "red plot" fears.

Tries to Protect Self.

After a while he came back to the questions, to say that Spolansky, having gotten out of the department last January, had had no access to the files of the department in preparing any press articles.

As a former dean of the law college of Columbia University, Stone has some regard for his own positive statements of fact. But as officer in the Coolidge-Mellon-Weeks cabinet, giving aid to Dawes and the political relics of the Daugherty gang, he will say nothing that can be construed as a rebuke to any of their propaganda of class fears and hatreds leading toward fascism.

As F. Hoover, who directed the arrest and persecution of the alien radicals in 1919-1920, remains at the head of the reorganized bureau of investigations. He hails from Pittsburgh, the home of Mellon and Gary.

RECOGNITION IS EXPECTED BY TOMORROW

Knotty Questions Will Be Discussed Later

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PARIS, Oct. 23.—France is expected to formally recognize the Soviet government today or, at the latest, tomorrow.

Premier Herriot is following the precedent set by the British government in first granting recognition and talking business afterwards.

Opposition from Washington.

One of Herriot's principal pledges in running for election against Poincare was that he would recognize the Russian Soviet Republic if victorious at the polls.

It is public knowledge that his failure to do so to date is chiefly due to opposition from Washington. It is said that Charles Evans Hughes went so far as to threaten France with an immediate demand for payment of the tremendous French debt to America in the event of Paris establishing diplomatic relations with Moscow.

The Soviet government made it quite plain to France that it did not want any recognition with strings attached to it. Unqualified recognition or nothing was the Soviet position. France was obliged to comply with the Moscow conditions.

The main obstacle in the way of resumption of relations between France and Russia was the debt owed to France by the czar. Most of this money went for the purchase of bonds issued by the czar to crush the revolution of 1905. The French middle classes are heavy holders of those bonds and the Soviet government frequently expressed a willingness to consider this condition without committing the government in any way to recognition of the czar's debts. It is questionable however, in view of France's continued war on Russia since the 1917 revolution, directly and by proxy, whether the Soviet government will be now in a position to take a similar view of the matter.

Another point at issue between France and Russia is the Georgian question. France has recognized the independence of Georgia, even tho the country is a contented part of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics with a Soviet government of its own. Only recently France spent one million dollars in financing a counter-revolution which was only a flash in the pan, yet caused the Soviet government the loss of millions of dollars.

It is not believed that the Herriot government will insist on this point, however, as Russia is now in a position to ignore capitalist interference with its domestic affairs, better than at any time since the November revolution. It is more likely that Herriot will raise the point and thus keep his promise to the czarist emigres and the Second International which delegated part of its capitalist dirty work to Herriot in return for its support in France.

A French ambassador is not expected to go to Moscow until some of the main questions at issue are settled.

Open French Schools in Turkey.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—French schools have reopened in Turkey, according to official advices received by the foreign office from Constantinople today.

CLAIM "RADIO KNIFE" WILL CUT MORTALITY OF CANCER OPERATIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The new "radio knife," invented by Dr. Maximilian Stern, of the Broad Street hospital, will lower the mortality of cancer operations, surgeons attending the clinical congress here said today.

The "radio knife" is a needle operated by means of an electric current. It causes little or no bleeding. The device looks like a yard rubber wand tipped with a steel wire.

A successful demonstration of the new knife was given before surgeons attending the congress.

HALF OF MINERS IN COLLINSVILLE FIELD JOBLESS

Figures Are Presented to Sub-District Meet

(Special to the Daily Worker)

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., Oct. 23.—The figures submitted by the secretary of Sub-District No. 7, United Mine Workers of America, whose convention is now in session here, show that 50 per cent of the membership is out of employment.

The figures are: 4,700 working, 4,600 unemployed.

The great majority of those registered as employed are working only two and three days per week.

Discuss Jobless Relief.

A picture of the misery of these workers is painted by the discussion during the first day of the session centering around proposals for unemployment relief.

Many of these miners with large families have been unable to get a single day's work in the mines since last March or April. Winter is near and they face it without clothes, food or fuel.

Considerable criticism of the last district convention and officials was voiced because of the failure to initiate a program of relief.

"What is to become of us?" was the question asked by almost every speaker who took part in the debate, and there is no disguising the fact that death from exposure and starvation faces hundreds of miners and their families this winter.

Quote from Dunne's Speech.

One passage from the speech of William F. Dunne, made last night in the Miners' Hall, is being quoted among the miners with considerable approval this morning. He said:

"You have thousands of jobless miners. You marched on non-union mines in West Virginia. Why don't you march on the Illinois state capital and demand of Len Small, this great 'friend of labor,' who has endorsed Coolidge, that he spend a few million dollars for relief of the miners as well as for hard roads for the relief of tourists?"

FOURTEEN ARE KILLED ON U. S. CRUISER TRENTON

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 23.—The cause of the explosion aboard the cruiser Trenton resulting in the loss of 14 lives and injury of a dozen other sailors, probably never will be known.

Navy authorities expressed the belief today that the board of inquiry will meet a "dead wall."

Friction is Cause.

"Any findings," they said, "can be but little more than guess work."

The most probable theory now advanced is that the three charges of old powder from the magazine of the Trenton "let go" when brought up to the 10-inch gun in the forward turret thru friction caused by contact with the hoisting apparatus.

No more deaths were reported by the naval hospital today. The condition of Seaman Thomas H. Bailey, of Erie, Pa., was good it was said and while not out of danger, hope is entertained for his recovery. Four other dangerous cases are being watched closely by naval hospital physicians.

CLAIM THE LITERARY DIGEST SPENT MILLION ON ITS STRAW BALLOT

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Senator Caraway of Arkansas has stated that he will call upon the publishers of the Literary Digest to explain to the campaign fund investigating committee the reasons for their expending nearly $1,000,000 on a Coolidge poll.

He says the poll is obviously not representative, and seems to be unjustified by any business return which the magazine might secure from the enterprise. He raises the question as to whether this is a million dollar gift to the Coolidge campaign fund, and if so, what motive promoted such generosity.

Y.W.L. ACTIVE IN SUPERIOR HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE

New Recruits Result of Active Campaign

By TOIVO TENHUNEN
(Special to the Daily Worker)

SUPERIOR, Wis., Oct. 23.—The Public Speaking class of the Central High school here was called upon to deliver speeches on the candidates in the present campaign.

Students volunteered to speak for Coolidge, LaFollette, Davis and the Young Workers League members chose myself and Otso Latvala to speak for Foster.

Distribute Handbills.

Prior to the rally we eight Y. W. L. members of the high school discussed Communism and Foster with a great many students.

Just before the meeting we distributed the following handbill:

"Your intelligence is in A-1 condition, if, after thinking over the fact that Foster is a workingman, a union man and a Communist and that Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette never were, are not and never will be—you vote for Foster."

The three supporters of Davis did not show up at the rally at all. One of them gave the reason that there was nothing to say about Davis. Otto Latvala gave a short history of William Z. Foster in the labor movement, explained what Communism and Foster stand for.

Foster Edges Davis.

I brought the discussion closer to the campaign and showed why class-conscious workers should support Foster. I compared his position to those of Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette in this campaign. Our speeches were very well received.

A straw vote was then taken of the candidates which brot the following results: Coolidge, 357; LaFollette, 587; Davis, 19; Foster, 15. Two members of the Y. W. L. were on the staff to count the votes.

Tremors in California.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 15. — An earthquake lasting approximately 40 minutes but not of major severity, occurrred last night at some point between 5,000 and 6,000 miles from here, examination of the University of California seismograph today revealed. The earthquake started at 8:11:9 and ended at 9:50 Pacific time. Indications were that it was somewhere on an east-west line with California.

Party Activities Of Local Chicago

Building trades group, Trade Union Educational League, will meet Friday, Oct. 24, 8 p. m. at Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., 2nd floor. Building trades workers! Get there!!

Meeting of branch industrial organizers of party, Friday, Oct. 25, 8 p. m., at Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., 2nd floor.

Workers in the United Custom Garment Shop, Madison near Green St., members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers have just sent in $30 to the Workers Party, Local Chicago, for the Foster-Gitlow campaign. Workers in that shop see that the real issue in the election is the Workers Party against the field of capitalist parties—republican, democratic and "independent" LaFollette.

The Workers' Athletic Association will play the Danish-American Club at soccer football next Sunday, Oct. 26, 2:30 p. m., at Douglas Park. Y. W. L. and party members should witness the workers' athletic club in action. The Workers' Athletic Association was formerly the Hungarian Y. W. L. soccer team. The Communist youth are now organizing into a national Workers' Sport Alliance in an endeavor to win the working youth of America away from the bourgeois sport clubs into the workers' sport organizations, and to win them for the political and economic program of Communism.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE conservative liberals and the tory leaders agreed to cut out three-cornered contests where such a situation would favor the labor candidate. But many liberals hate the tories more than they hate the laborites so the bargain will be all at the expense of the poor old liberal party. It is reported that Lloyd George is angling for a big position in a coalition government, but the tory leaders are supposed to be gunning for him and sharpening their knives for his scalp. The bible-thumping Welsh revivalist is not the kind of leader the cold blooded and dignified tories want.

THE German workers are getting ready to pass their judgment on the Dawes Plan. The nationalist party is openly out for the return of the Hohenzollerns. Now that Ebert has done all the harm he possibly could to the working class movement he is ready to step down from the presidency and turn his chair over to Wilhelm Marx, the Catholic. The social democrats and the centre party are supporting the Dawes Plan while the Communists are opposing it from the point of view of its effect on the workers. The socialists of Germany are the Dawes' Minute Men of the American bankers' plan to enslave the German workers.

LINN GALE, formerly of Mexico and other parts is again loose in Washington, D. C. He has opened a radical book store there and promises to publish a radical magazine in the near future. Gale is reported to have "talked" after his arrest, in return for a promise of leniency. He was arrested for evading the draft.

ADMIRAL Von Tirpitz who gave the order that resulted in the sinking of the Lusitania has written a book which proposes to "tell everything." Tirpitz is the leader of the nationalist party in the Reichstag—the gang that favors the return of Will Hohenzollern.

NOTHING in the Chicago Tribune about the "revolution in Georgia" these days. Perhaps the Tribune liar outlived his welcome in Constantinopole. On the other hand we read many interesting items about Soviet progress. The planned air line between Moscow and Pekin, for instance. Soviet Russia has an excellent air service to Vladivostok and arrangements are now made for a rapid mail service between Japan and Europe thru Siberia. So the Communists can do more than spread propaganda.

ALL is not well among the heir pretenders to the throne of the Romanoffs. The proclamation of Grand Duke Cyril of the Belrin al-Meywaye, got under the delicate skin of Marta Feodorovna, who thinks she is an empress. The royal lady isn't sure that the Czar and his brood are dead, and she thot is was rather indecent of Cyril to grab the throne. Another dissatisfied customer is Grand Duke Nicholaievitch, who prefers the royal cushions to the Paris catacombs. He joins the empress in taking a swat at Cyril. But in Moscow, the workers dangle a carrot before the Duke's nasal appendage, hoping he may follow it. In which case the poor Czar might have congenial company, tho it is reported they did not get along so well, while they lived in Petrograd. But that scoundrel Rasputin was to blame.

NEWSPAPER publishers, writers, bankers, multi-millionaires have joined with working people and men and women of progressive trend in saying "I'm for Bob," reads LaFollete campaign publicity. Among those listed, besides the old reliable multi-millionaire, Rudolph Spreckels, is Cornelius Vanderlip, Jr. millionaire California publisher. The others in the list are capitalist politicians and professional men—all beneficiaries of the capitalist system, but dissatisfied with the two old parties for some reason or other. These politicians are taking advantage of the discontent among the masses to ride into political office.

PREMIER'S SON PREDICTS LABOR PARTY DEFEAT

Coalition Will Wipe Out Liberals

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 23.—The labor government will fall in the polls of October, says Malcolm MacDonald, son of the British premier, who, with his team of Oxford debaters, met defeat at the hands of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, last night.

The young Oxfordian is himself standing for the commons and says he is in the running for success. He thinks he should be at home taking his share of the heckling instead of taking part in college debates on prohibition.

Mr. MacDonald believes labor will gain some seats in the coming election, but will not obtain a majority and that the threatened coalition between liberals and tories means the end of the former party. The present premier he says, will remain as the leader if his party is returned to power.

TRIBUNE'S REPRINT OF OUR EDITORIAL BRINGS US FRIENDS

We take this occasion to thank the Chicago Tribune for reprinting our editorial announcing Red Week from Oct. 26 to Nov. 2, and calling upon all workers to send in their orders to our literature department for Communist literature distribution week.

Whatever may have been the intention, the results are very satisfactory. Already we are beginning to cash in on this valuable publicity as will be noted by the following letter we received yesterday:

"Herein $1 for literature. Just got your address from the Tribune. C. H., 511 N. Peoria St., Chicago."

Fire in Danville Mine.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 23.—An investigation of the fire that destroyed the uncompleted shaft and works of the Devalley Coal company on the Urbana road, six miles west of Danville, Tuesday, disclosed the fact that the fire not only was incendiary, but that the bottom works were dynamited before the fire started.

Persons living near the mine stated that they heard muffled noises shortly before the upper works burst into flames. The loss will be about $9,000 without any insurance. The mine was intended for local sales of coal.

North Pole Expedition.

LONDON, Oct. 23. — Norwegian Lieutenants Larsen and Dietrichson are organizing a north pole airplane expedition under command of Roald Amundsen, according to a Central News dispatch from Christiania today. The expedition is to start from Spitsbergen in May, each plane leaving for the pole in different directions. It is estimated that the pole can be reached from Spitzbergen in about eight hours if traveling at full speed.

SCHOOL BOARD CONTINUES ITS LITTLE JOKES

Each Meeting Puts Off Important Issues

The board of education, thru the person of Supt. McAndrew is still playing its game of hide and go seek with the Chicago Teachers' Federation. At its last regular meeting it again postponed action on the Teachers' Councils and on six year term for principle's certificates which the federation is protesting. In the same dodging manner it is avoiding the issue on rules on secret markings, prohibition of receiving of notices by teachers of any sort other than those sent by the superintendent and principles and changes in teachers' pensions which includes the Sabbatical year and which has been ruled illegal by I. T. Greenacre, attorney for the pension board.

These last three rules are to come up before a joint committee on rules and administration which the teachers so patiently wait to meet and which is postponed indefinitely.

In the meantime, Supt. McAndrew has shot another target at the Teachers' Federation in the form of a dismissal of Miss Ida C. Calhoun, a teacher at the Wadsworth School, 6423 University avenue. He charges insubordination, reporting that she refused to perform extra duty outside of school hours.

Workers Party Opens Class on Imperialism; Manuel Gomez, Director

Imperialism, what do you know about it? Few busy Communists have time enough to read up about it. Here is a good chance to learn.

Lenin called it the final stage of capitalism. As such we must know more about it. Accordingly the Chicago local of the Workers Party is starting a study class on Sunday to go thoroly into the study of "Imperialism, the Final Stage of Capitalism."

This class will start next Sunday, Oct. 26, at 3:30 p. m. It will meet at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch boulevard, with Comrade Manuel Gomez as instructor.

A rich period of study and research is assured to all who will attend and take this course of classes seriously. For example, a glance at the outline of the imperialism class shows that the students will go into those phases of the subject as follows:

The struggle for empire. Rule of the banks; monopoly and the decay of productive forces; export of capital; exploitation of colonial peoples; the British Empire contrasted with one of the great empires of ancient times; foreign investment and foreign policy; the Dawes' plan; how Wall Street fights for domination in Europe, Mexico, South America and China; imperialism and Soviet Russia; coal, oil, iron and the next war.

This class is open to all readers of the DAILY WORKER and other radicals. The fee for the whole course is $1.50. It would appear that the new class is assured of an excellent season study.

War Vets Advertise Neglect.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. — Ex-service men rush thru New York subway trains distributing little green book containing jokes and cartoons, interspersed with thrusts on the cost of the war in money and men, the neglect of war veterans, and other pungent bits of disillusionment. Blase and bored commuters return the books when the khaki-clad youth returns, others follow the advice printed on the cover of the booklet and "give what you please." The statement that the booklets are sold by army and navy ex-service men for their own support tells the rest of the tale.

NEW YORK SHIRT MAKERS WIN BIG STRIKE VICTORY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The 5000 shirt makers on strike here scored a great victory today when twenty-eight bosses settled with the union granting all their demands. The 2000 workers who return to work today will receive a 15 per cent increase in wages, and full union recognition with shop committees control in each shop.

The shirt makers, a part of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, comprising 5000 Italian and Jewish workers, have been on strike here since Thursday. They have been meeting at the Bethovan Hall twice a day regularly since the strike and have been vigilantly attending to picket duty.

Today's development in the strike is considered as a real victory. A speedy settlement of the remaining shops is looked for within the next few days.

This La Follette Red Herring Also Distracts Labor From Real Fight

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the LaFollittes are furnishing a little comical sidelight to the presidential campaign by trying to expose the financial support of its opposition. What a confession of bankruptcy of principle! Nothing to do but grab off a little campaign publicity from a carefully nurtured "sensation."

LaFollette is a defender of capitalism. But he does not want the muti-millionaires, whom capitalism produces, to defend themselves thru the judicious use of their stolen wealth. Perhaps he would have them use their gold in a game of flipping coins in a back alley somewhere. But that would be forbidden, no doubt, under the anti-gambling statutes.

• • • •

One of LaFollette's most enthusiastic publicity men, Laurence Todd, the Washington correspondent of the Federated Press, recently spread the story that the Communists were raising a million dollar fund to promote the campaign of the Workers Party ticket, Foster and Gitlow. Todd went on seriously to inform the world that 25,000 Communists were contributing $40 each to the Workers Party campaign fund.

It is to the credit of Carl Haessler, the managing editor of the Federated Press, that he dumped this nonsense into the waste basket when it reached Chicago. It is significant also that the LaFollette probers have made no effort, as yet, to investigate the Workers Party campaign fund. If they did they would find that it is made up exclusively of contributions from workers in the United States; that the sums are exceedingly small due to the unemployment that is ravaging the land, the increasing cost of living and other scourges that LaFollette's capitalist system is continually visiting upon the plundered masses.

• • • •

It is interesting to behold the array of millionaires backing LaFollette. The only complaint the Wisconsin senator can have is that Coolidge's parade of plutocrats is a little longer than his own. Otherwise they are both in the same political puddle.

There is Samuel Untermeyer, the millionaire New York lawyer, big holder of stock in the Steel Trust, who has been called in to aid Attorney Frank P. Walsh conduct the LaFollette grill of millionaires backing "Cautious Cal."

This is the Untermeyer who believes in using the anti-trust laws against labor unions while his steel stocks bring him in huge profits from this Caryized industry. It should not be necessary again to name Rudolph Spreckels, the sugar magnate; R. C. Rawleigh, the patent medicine millionaire, and other wealthy supporters of the LaFollette campaign. LaFollette has not rejected any contributions from millionaires. In this respect he is exactly in the same boat with Davis and Coolidge.

• • • •

In the words of Lawyer Untermeyer, addressed to Samuel M. Vauclain, head of the "open shop" Baldwin Locomotive Works, "Money Talks." That is why the millionaire are using it; to make the next administration at Washington parrot their orders.

Money wants Coolidge It could get along with Davis. It would accept LaFollette in a crisis, just as it accepted Ebert in Germany, Herriot in France and MacDonald in Great Britain.

The big capitalists will spend just as much money as they have to. It is mere nonsense to investigate how much or how little they spend. If money will not make the elections go the way the big capitalists desire, then they have resort to other methods. Elbert H. Gary, head of the steel trust, is supporting Coolidge, but he has greater admiration for Benito Mussolini, the bloody Fascisti dictator of Italy.

If the Morgans, the Rockefellers, the Garys, the Schwabs, the Vauclains, the Stotesburys, the Grundys and the Folwells, cannot maintain their rule by buying up elections, they can set the elections aside and rule by their own might, thru their own Capitalist Dictatorship. In that hour LaFollette will be at Morgan's side; just as the LaFollittes in Italy lined up side by side with Mussolini against the Communists.

• • • •

The big fact for workers always to remember is that LaFollette is for the capitalist social order that enslaves labor.

Money, the army, the navy, the state militia, the whole police system of capitalism, are all weapons of the Capitalist State; Wall Street's Dictatorship.

LaFollette's investigations are mere sham battles. They do not hurt. They merely provide a Roman circus for a dull electoral struggle. In this instance they constitute another LaFollette red herring to distract the workers and farmers from their real struggle against the whole capitalist system.

• • • •

Only the Communist candidates present the working class issues clearly. Only the Workers Party, rallying labor, in the cities and on the land, to the Communist standards, builds the power that will abolish capitalism and all its evils. Only the victory of the workers in the class war against the capitalists will feed the mouths of the hungry and bring about the great change—that will usher in the Communist era—when both the use of money in elections, with LaFollette's investigations, will constitute equally interesting studies of how capitalism ruled in the days of its chaos and approaching collapse.

PATERSON TO SEE "BEAUTY AND THE BOLSHEVIK" FOR BENEFIT OF SILK STRIKERS' RELIEF FUND

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik," the new Russian picture that has been shown with tremendous success in New York City and Philadelphia, and which is to be shown thruout the country, is coming to Turn Hall, Paterson, on Saturday evening, Oct. 25. This will be a benefit performance on behalf of the silk strikers, the proceeds to be used for carrying on the splendid work of the strike.

An interesting and very important addition to the "Beauty and the Bolshevik" is a special motion picture taken by the Committee for International Workers' Aid of the Paterson strike, showing the men on the picket line and in many other vivid scenes of the strike. These pictures of the strike will be shown for the first time at this showing in Paterson. There will also be a special feature—the new, three-reel graphic picture of Russia's latest economic development—"Russia in Overalls."

The low admission price of 25 cents has been decided on in order that a large number of workers in Paterson may have the opportunity to see this extraordinary motion picture performance. There will be three performances: from 5 to 7, 7 to 9, and 9 to 11 p. m. Tickets are procurable at the hall only. A special musical program is being arranged for.

HUNDREDS of thousands of workers actively supporting the DAILY WORKER would make it the most powerful daily newspaper in the land. To achieve this goal is the ambition of the "Build the DAILY WORKER Campaign" now being carried on in all sections of the nation. The vanguard of militant labor is on the job daily, winning new adherents for the "DAILY WORKER Packinglayers' Union," that is busily engaged in building this power, that will help labor in all its battles, making victory in the workers' struggle quicker and more sure.

WOBBLIES VOTE FOR LONE WAR ON CAPITALISM

Hostile to United Front with Workers Party

A communication of the Workers Party, requesting the I. W. W. convention now convened at Emmet Memorial Hall, to elect a committee to meet with a Workers Party committee in a common fight against capitalist anti-labor laws, was rejected by the I. W. W. convention yesterday.

The letter, signed by C. E. Ruthenberg and William Z. Foster, suggests a basis for discussion of anti-syndicalist laws, and outlines plans for a nation-wide protest against imprisonment of members of the working class.

Keep Letter for Reference.

The I. W. W. convention filed the Workers Party communication after a brief discussion.

A motion was made by Albert Nelson, delegate from Industrial Union No. 310, that the letter be sent back. This was amended by Fred Mann, who moved that the letter be filed for future reference. Mann declared it would be an insult to the Workers Party to send the letter back.

Delegate S. J. Cole, of I. U. 110, thought the motion should be brought up under new business, but the letter was finally filed.

Wants Nothing Revolutionary.

Claude Erwin, the leading pacifist (in attacking the capitalist class) attacked instead the Workers Party, saying the he "had heard" members of the I. W. W. who criticised the Workers Party in California.

These I. W. W. had, so he "had heard," even made charges against the party members. But he brought no proof, either of the charges or of these "I. W. W. members" who had "been heard" to make them. Erwin is the delegate who has filed charges against several officers for advocating revolutionary principles.

Demand Release of Prisoners.

A telegram was sent by the convention yesterday to Governor Hart of Washington, demanding that he immediately pardon or grant a new trial to the class war prisoners now incarcerated in Walla Walla prison, on the grounds that they were illegally convicted in the Centralia case.

A communication from the Civil Liberties Union, signed by Roger Baldwin was read, stating that $500.00 would be loaned to the I. W. W. defense fund for bail purposes.

Several communications were received from various branches of the I. W. W. stating their position on the factional controversy now going on in their ranks. The minutes of the Chicago branch of Industrial Union 110 were read, recognizing the present convention as official and empowering the delegates to deal with all questions. The guilty persons in the controversy were ordered to be expelled without compromise or whitewash.

Get Vote of Confidence.

Industrial Union 120, Duluth branch, has gone on record giving the convention a vote of confidence.

The expulsion of Fred Bowerman and W. Raddock by I. U. 440 convention came on the floor of the convention, but was referred back to the industrial union, on the ground that no appeal has been made by these expelled members.

Four members of the I. W. W., Walter Smith, Charles LaRue, Thomas Saager and Pete Beasley, were ordered expelled from the I. W. W. if they did not make good their bail which they jumped in California, with-

Unity and Revolutionary Principle in the I. W. W.

(A Statement by the Red International Affiliation Committee.)

Two questions are of paramount importance for the I. W. W. convention. First, the unity of the organization and, second, the clarification and strengthening of revolutionary principles.

The chief enemies of unity are those reactionary elements who have resorted to the injunction or the capitalist courts and who, even today, are attempting to resist and defy the decisions of the convention delegates.

Every militant, class conscious and honest worker in the I. W. W. should see these elements in their true light and fight them to the end.

But not alone from the right wing of the I. W. W. does there come the menace of disunity. Some of the class conscious elements are showing signs of pessimism and impatience which might easily lead them into a false path. Some of these rebels who believe in revolutionary industrial unionism and have labored with an incessant zeal to realise revolutionary unionism by means of the I. W. W., are saying: "If this convention does not take a revolutionary stand, I'm thru, and there are thousands like me."

Such an attitude is a mistake, a mistake made worse by the fact that it is made with all the conviction of sincerely revolutionary workers. It is a mistake fought against by the adherents of the Red International and the Communists in ten thousand unions all over the world. It is the great error pointed out by Lenin in his book "The Infantile Sickness of Left Communism."

Reactionary policies in labor organization are not a new phenomenon. And leaving the organizations is not the way to overcome them. The class conscious workers must fight for unity and for revolutionary principles at the same time.

The Red International supports the revolutionists in the I. W. W. just as in other unions. But in order to make the fight successful it is necessary for all the class conscious and revolutionary elements to come forward with a program and to define their aims. The sooner this is done, the sooner will pessimism and confusion be overcome and the fight to revolutionize the I. W. W. take real shape.

The adherents of the Red International have a clear idea of what constitutes a revolutionary stand and of what the convention should do in order to adopt such a stand. Our views can be summed up in a number of definite points, as follows:

1. Unequivocal repudiation of the injunction.

2. Definite declaration that the "historic mission of the working class to do away with capitalism" means simply that the I. W. W. recognizes the fact that historical forces within capitalism, compel the whole working class to struggle against and finally to overthrow the rule of the capitalist class in both industry and government, and to establish a dictatorship of the proletariat for a period of time, during which ignorant and capitalist resistance is wiped out, and cultural and mechanical bases established for Communism.

3. That in the struggle between classes, power, and not any abstractions such as "justice" or "right," plays the decisive role.

4. That a distinction must be made between the revolutionary Communist Party and the political parties of the capitalists and of the reformist parliamentary socialists.

5. That democratic centralism and not federalism should unite the industrial unions of the I. W. W.

6. That the I. W. W. press of general circulation shall be open to any and all members upon matters of policy. That no person or officer shall have power to deny publication, and that when a responsible committee, which should be given the decision on all questionable cases, refuses publication, it shall furnish the contributor a statement of the reasons of refusal and publish such statement in the same publication to which the article was sent.

7. That a discussion be opened in the I. W. W. press of general circulation upon the question of International affiliation.

Some of these proposals are similar to or synonomous with the revolutionary aspirations of the rebel left wing in the I. W. W. The Communists in the I. W. W. will fight together with them for these proposals. But the Red Internationalists will not support any movement on the part of the revolutionary members of the I. W. W. to split away and form a sect, a "pure" revolutionary union.

There is no method of running away from the working class. The practice of the I. W. W. drawing out little handfuls of revolutionaries from other established unions to make an "industrial union" or a "one big union" of insignificant membership, is wrong because ineffective, and must be stopped. Just so, must any split from the left wing in the I. W. W. be resolutely opposed. The great goal to keep before us is the complete unity of the American labor unions on a basis of revolutionary struggle. To attain that goal, the revolutionist must accept the working class, backward as it is, just as it is, and work patiently and in an organized way to bring it to revolution.

For Unity and Revolution.

Red International Affiliation Committee.

in thirty days of notification of the action of the convention.

The convention has ordered that all court action by any I. W. W. member be discontinued. The injunction case comes up in Fred Bernstein's office this morning.

Seek Dismissal of Injunction.

The other important action of the day was the passage by the convention of a motion that its appointed temporary generals officers, as the highest authority of the I. W. W., should appear before the court where the injunction is awaiting hearing today, and ask the judge to dismiss it.

It is significant that two lumber workers, Dan Murray and Frank Grad, voted against asking the court to dismiss the injunction. This possibly portends a further falling away of these delegates, but leaves a minority of the Lumber Workers' Industrial Union still standing solid with the entire delegate body from all the other unions.

In Court Again Friday.

Charles Grey, reporting for the temporary administration committee, said that James Rowan's attorney had phoned him that Rowan has decided to go thru with the injunction proceedings on Friday before Master-in-Chancery Fred Bernstein.

Grey declared that Rowan has been charging that Doyle is still signing checks for the organization, when as a matter of fact Doyle has signed no checks since last Friday.

An auditing committee of six was elected to audit all books of the general administration which can be obtained, including those of the Rowan faction.

Hereafter secretary-treasurers of the small industrial unions will be elected by the membership instead of being appointed by the general executive board, following the passage of a resolution to that effect by the convention.

RUTHENBERG WILL SPEAK AT MONSTER RALLY IN CLEVELAND ON PUBLIC SQUARE SATURDAY

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 23.—C. E. Ruthenberg, national secretary of the Workers Party, will be the principal speaker at the Public Square on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 25, at 3 o'clock.

Every party member of Cleveland must be present at this demonstration. By your presence you must encourage and support the non-members who will be there.

The campaign committee of Local Cleveland has decided to make an effort to gauge the effect of our work in this campaign. We call upon all those who stand for the establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' government to participate in the demonstration on the Public Square of this city Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

SILENT CALVIN BREAKS SILENCE, TOUTS BUSINESS

Would Not Change "Cap" System for World

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—President Coolidge broke his long silence today by delivering a speech in praise of the rule of the business elements before a delegation of several hundred New York business men, who are supporting the republican party in this election.

Coolidge made it quite clear that he was absolutely opposed to any change from a system which was with many faults satisfactory to the ruling class.

"You gentlemen who have come here in behalf of business come to speak for an interest that far surpasses any other in the American community.

A Business Government.

"This is a business country preeminent in all kinds of business—industrial and agricultural and it wants a business government!"

After listening to the Coolidge speech one is not surprised that the big capitalists should be behind him. He is for the capitalist system without any reservation and has not even the initiative to suggest improvements in the structure of capitalist government, that might make it even a better capitalist instrument of coercion than it is. He is opposed to any kind of a change. He fears change.

Coolidge did not reply to the attacks made on him or on his administration by the opposition. He never mentioned the Teapot Dome, or any of the scandals that made his government stench in the nostrils of the people.

MacDonald's Son Takes Part in Debate on Booze

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 23.—M. J. MacDonald, son of the retired British Premier Ramsay, representing Oxford university took part in a debate here between the Westminster College of Fulton, Missouri debating team and an Oxford team.

The subject for debate was "Resolved that we are opposed to prohibition." Westminster took the affirmative and Oxford the negative.

Westminster debaters argued booze was poison and caused poverty, misery, crime, lunacy and death. Oxford replied prohibition did not prohibit that all kinds of booze was being smuggled in from Canada and else where.

The only argument worth while in the entire debate was one given by one of the Oxford debaters when he showed poverty was a product of the social system and not caused by

LOWER EAST SIDE IS SCENE OF LAST RED NIGHT IN NEW YORK

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The final "Red Night" in New York City arranged by the Workers Party has been arranged in the lower East Side, the 12th Congressional district, on Saturday night, October 25th. On this night the "Red Forces" will attack the lower East Side, the stronghold of the Socialists and will hold at least fifteen meetings thruout the district with a grand windup at Rutgers Square. The comrades are making all the necessary arrangements to have this "Red Night" in the old Socialist stronghold one long to be remembered by the workers in this section. The meetings on this night will be held on the following corners:

Rutgers, corner Madison street.
Henry, corner Clinton street.
Chrystie, corner Grand street.
Division, corner Clinton street.
Norfolk and rivington street.
Norfolk and Grand street.
Clinton and East Broadway.
Jefferson and aMdison street.

The final rally will be held on Rutgers Square at 10:30 p. m.

The main speakers at this final windup at Rutbers Square will be, Harry M. Winitsky, candidate for Confress; Moissaye J. Olgin, candidate for Senate; Boris Liphshitz, candidate for Fourth assembly district; Dr. Abraham Caspe, candidate in the Secon assembly district; Rose Pastor Stokes, Ludwig Lore, Juliet Stuart Poyntz, Rebecca Grecht, William Weinstone, Fannie Warshafsky, Alexander Trachtenberg, Schacne Epstein and many others in English and Jewish.

In addition to these meetings of the Workers Party the workers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, the Cloakmakers and the Furriers will also hold meetings with their own speakers for the Workers Party candidates.

It is expected that at least 35,000 people will be reached by this Red night and tons of literature will be distributed thruout the East Side.

Remembedr the "Red Night" on the East Side, Saturday, Oct. 25.

Spolansky Going Color Blind; Overlooks Russian of Deepest Red.

Maybe Spolansky is getting old. Or maybe it will come in later articles. But whatever the reason, he has not as yet uncovered in his syndicated "Red Exposures" a deep hued "Red"—a genuine Russian Red. The POWER COLUMN takes credit in presenting the scoop fully documented by photographic proof of the original letter received in this office day before yesterday which reads word for word as follows:

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 17.

Dear Comrades: Your letter, "bricks" and sub blanks received. As agent and member of the W. P. of A. I have tried and am trying to get new subscribers for the DAILY WORKER and the WORKERS MONTHLY.

So far I succeeded in getting 4 subscribers for the WORKERS MONTHLY only. It's very little comparatively with my desires but I hope that I'll be able to get more new subscribers in the near future.

Your letter states that as agent I am entitled to 20 per cent discount. I wish to state that I'm sending over the full amount of the subscription rates and would like better to receive the WORKERS MONTHLY.

I say again I'll try my best in the future. Fraternally yours,

P. S.—Enclosed find check for $7.25 and sub blanks with names and addresses.

All of which proves our contention. We have without question uncovered a man who has proven by his ACTIONS his desire to substitute our present democratic (or is it republican?) form of government with a Communist Soviet form of society. But there is more evidence. An additional sheet included and dated October 18 reads:

I had to stop and couldn't mail my letter last night. Today I got one more subscription. My check now is of $9.25.

TRUTH SOUNDS DIFFERENT FROM KEPT PRESS LIES

True and False About Soviet Russia

By M. A. SKROMNY.

Every time new prospects for recognition of the Soviet government appear, a howl goes up in the lying capitalist press the world over.

A few days ago it was announced that the French government was getting ready to recognize the Soviets. The same day appeared "special cables" about riots, strikes and famine in Russia.

Tribune Beats Them All.

The murderous press is telling about the bolsheviks shooting down the peasants or peasants killing bolsheviks.

The arch enemy of the workers' republic, the Chicago Tribune has outdone many of its competitors in printing the biggest and most ridiculous lies about Russia.

At the beginning of the revolution we read in this paper that the bolsheviks were preparing to proclaim the Prince Alexis Czar of Russia. The next day we read about them being in the pay of Germany's late kaiser. Today we read in the same sheet what purports to be a quotation from the Odessa Isvestia:

"Our Red Army last spring filled the mouths of 18,000 peasants and workers in the Kharkov district with earth because they killed the local commissariats and robbed the grain houses . . ."

At the same time, The Seaman, official organ of the Seamen's Union of that district (published in Odessa), reports that the grain for the aid of the stricken districts was collected a WEEK ahead of the schedule!

In the Moscow Isvestia of October 5, 1924 (the last one to reach us), Comrade Rykov, chairman of the People's Commissars, and chairman of the special committee to combat the results of the bad harvest, publicly thanks all workers and peasants who were connected with the collection, transportation and distribution of the grain for sowing purposes in the stricken districts, for the prompt and vigorous aid.

"Within a month it was necessary to collect and transport over 9,000,000 poods of grain for sowing," says Comrade Rykov.

"With unparalleled energy and swiftness the peasant committees prepared the grain, the railroad and water transport workers took up their task and about a week ahead of the schedule the work was finished.

Grain Delivered on Time.

"I traveled all over the affected districts and convinced myself that the grain for sowing was delivered in time. The peasants see in that a great aid from their Soviet government. They have more self-confidence. This timely delivery of the grain will not only save the sowing area but will increase it in comparison with last year."

In the report to the All-Russian Central Control Committee (Isvestia, Oct. 4, 1924), Comrade Kujbyshev touching upon the harvest states:

"The general figures of the harvest are 2,642 million poods against 2,758 million poods of last year. To this figure we have to add 162 million poods left over from former years. Thus we will have 2,804 million poods.

"The needs of the rural population are 2,286 million poods and of the cities—314 million, a total of 2,600 million poods. Thus we have a surplus of 204 million poods."

Does that look like a terrible famine with food riots and killings by wholesale!

These official figures given to government institutions of Soviet Russia for their guidance are also available to the brass check correspondents of the prostituted press. But they don't wait for authentic facts. What they want is stories about rebels buried alive, dogs feasting on bodies of the executed, disorders and riots, or bomb plots of the stool pigeon Daily News kind.

And it is not only the enemy press in the English language that is conducting this poison gas barrage against Russia, but also the so-called friendly press in the foreign languages.

Forward Still Busy.

The most notorious of the yellow sheets, the Jewish Daily Forward, is competing with the Tribune, and the local white guard Russian sheet is reprinting the lies of both and adding "home made" stuff to it. Thus the Russian sheet had a few days ago an editorial bemoaning the "requisitions" of grain from the peasants, conducted according to the Tribune by the bolsheviki. And this dirty sheet is receiving the Moscow Isvestia and has the facts in its possession!

LEWIS GANG IN PITTSBURGH USE SHADY METHODS

Officials Are Illegally Nominated, Charge

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 23.—True to the predictions of the progressive miners' committee, the crooked officials will, and are using all methods and crooked tactics to get the local unions to nominate their slate.

Not only this but a campaign of slander and lies is leveled at the progressive candidates, and the old over-worked cries of "red," "Moscow," "Fosterism" to "dualist."

The committee announced today that the officials thru their tools held an illegal meeting of local 818, West Newton, with but six men present and nominated the reactionary machine. This local is one of the most progressive locals in the district and at the next meeting it is expected the local will repudiate the action of the previous meeting and nominate the progressive ticket. The constitution is specific about the number of members which constitute a quorum, which is seven.

Officials Nominate Themselves.

Reports coming from the Wyano show what the officials are up to. Mc D. Eagan, board member of that subdistrict and labor faker par excellence gathered a handful of men and held a "meeting" at which the official slate was nominated. In both of these locals the membership knew nothing of the meetings until after the gang had gotten away with their crooked work. The officials would have no show in a local meeting with the men out in force.

The present board member of the sixth subdistrict is on the payroll because of the fact that he is a dependable machine man. The district constitution states that candidates must receive the nomination from three local unions before going on the ballot. In this sub-district there is but three local unions and at the last election the faker received two, and the progressive candidate one nomination. Still he went on the ballot "unopposed" and for the past two years has tried with the other fakers in turning in "expense accounts."

Used Threats.

The progressive committee is informed that a local meeting in the Charleroi section, the officials were there in full force and stated to the local that if they nominated the progressive ticket their charter would be revoked for supporting a dual organization.

The officials are centering their attack on several prominent candidates: Reports from West Newton state that the officials have spread the "confidential" information that Pat H. Toohey, secretary of the campaign committee had received a half million dollars from "Roosha" to lick the officials, and that the Guller-Harmison-Toohey aggregation are all members of an organization which are trying to overthrow the United States government.

Rank and File Snicker.

If the district officials only knew how the rank and file took this they probably would keep quiet for a while. Nevertheless the "rumors" are a source of laughter and amusement to the rank and file.

William A. Guller who is a candidate for district president for many years has been the chief thorn in the side of the fakers. He was largely responsible for the formation of the Progressive International Committee, and for years has been a leader of the left wing. Has been a member of the U. M. W. A. for nearly 30 years.

The committee will soon prepare an article giving the history of the candidates.

The Circle
A Mark of Accomplishment

No campaign of the DAILY WORKER to increase its circulation has received the success of the present one.

Thousands of workers with the progress of the Labor movement at heart have become active participants of the DAILY WORKER Bricklayers' Union and have sent us the load of subscription "bricks" that are pouring into the office to "Build the DAILY WORKER."

These workers believe that a most effective method to aid the American Labor movement is by working for the success of a Daily newspaper that has championed actively, aggressively the workers' cause in every struggle.

They believe that, and much more—and work for it. If you do also—and want to see the cause of Labor more effectively promoted, and reaching more workers, you will cut out this brick below and add directions and remittance. Around the length of subscription that you desire for the worker you have induced to subscribe—you will place a circle. Then send it to the DAILY WORKER.

That is your mark of accomplishment for the Labor movement.

Place the circle on this brick and

PEABODY COAL BOSS PAID TO SLUG MINERS

Farrington and Operators Blacklist Rebels

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Eleven.)

After the brutal slugging of the Collinsville delegation by the notorious "Jack" Brown, then boss for the Peabody Coal company at Andrew, Illinois, and at the present time a Peabody boss at Kincaid, who was assisted by Edward Maher and William Wall, the latter two now running for the jobs of legal investigators, now elective, but until the last convention appointive, the movement to organize the miners for the purpose of calling a special convention and kill the automatic fine clause, grew rapidly.

The state policy committee issued a call for a state-wide strike to be effective until their demands were met by the operators. Farrington having refused to accede to the demand of the rank and file for a convention, the policy committee issued a call for a special district convention to be held in Springfield, Illinois, Tuesday, August 19, 1919.

Convention Call

The call reads:

"Belleville, Ill., Aug. 13th, 1919.

"We the Policy Committee of the various local unions in District 12, now on strike for a readjustment of the wage agreement having been ignored in a demand for a Special Convention by the District Executive Board request that all local unions elect delegates to a convention to be held in Springfield, Ill., Tuesday, Aug. 19, 1919.

"The purpose of the convention shall be to devise ways and means to secure immediate adjustment of the wage scale and to transact such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

"Delegates are requested to present credentials from their local unions.

"All local unions are to continue on strike and ask all others to join the strike, subject to the action of the convention."

Angered Miners

While the miners in all parts of the state had grevivances which they wanted redressed it was the brutal treatment of the Belleville delegates by Farrington's sluggers and the actions of his paid gunmen thruout the mining regions that set fire to the discontent that was smouldering in the miners' ranks.

The following excerpt taken from a speech delivered by Delegate Kohler, at the state convention held in Peoria, from March 16 to March 20, 1920, gives a picture of the feeling among the miners over the outrageous conduct of the district president.

Kohler said, ". . . as a representative of Peoria I want to give you the true facts as far as I can. As you know, we have the Mooney headquarters in Peoria and we did all we possibly could to get Mooney free, because we were informed by our own officers that Mooney was innocent. We felt that man was innocent and that he had no business in jail; therefore we created a Mooney Defense League in Peoria. It was called the headquarters of the Mooney Defense League.

"When we came out on strike on July 4th the sentiment of the officers was against us, and as a consequence we were fined. We did not care so much about being fined, but we wanted it done in a legitimate way. We were under the impression that we had no agreement at that time. The International Convention afterwards showed that we were right and that we had no agreement. When the Belleville fellows came up here there was discontent in the Peoria field and it was easy to get them in line. We were told in the Peoria meeting that was held on Sunday that the delegation from Belleville had gone to Springfield and tried to get an interview with the district officers.

Farrington's Statement

"We were told that they were slugged, beaten up, and that the statement was made by the president that Belleville was too small to dictate to the state of Illinois. We take it that if Belleville had enough members to call for a special meeting they had that right. At least they had a right to interview the president, and if they could not get satisfaction from him they had a right to call a special convention.

"We contended that we had no contract, and on that account the Peoria fellows were in favor of having a convention. . ."

Thus Farrington's brutal tactics as much as the resentment against the automatic fine clause was responsible for the strike involving 75,000 men in defiance of the threats from Farrington's office. The reactionary officials were not able to handle the rank and file even with the aid of their gunmen, so the ocal operators and the government was called in to save them.

Gunmen Turned Loose

Deputy sheriffs were appointed from the ranks of the miners who remained loyal to Farrington. Gunmen and criminals of all descriptions were organize to terrorize the strikers. charters were revoked and the coal operators on Farrington's suggestion issued orders to the strikers that unless they returned to work their jobs would be forfeited. Here were the bosses and the government working hand in hand with strikebreaker Farrington.

Farrington henchmen were ordered to hire "union strikebreakers" to work in the struck mines. These gangsters went around with guns in their hip pockets, broke into meetings and subjected the wives of the insurgents to a continual stream of abuse. The union delegates who went from town to town carrying the message to their fellow workers were met on the highways by gunmen hired by Farrington.

Beaten on Highways

A statement was issued by these delegates, which sets forth the object of their mission and its peaceable character, telling of the treatment they received at the hands of Farrington's gunmen and winding up with: "We also appeal to the mine workers in every part of the state to rally to our support and defeat the aims of the Farrington machine that is now using the treasury of the Illinois Mine Workers to hire every crook and thug to defeat our efforts in the cause of humanity."

The Farrington strikebreakers were offered $6.50 per day and expenses." The manner in which Farrington paid his strikebreakers and the conditions under which they worked is shown from the following testimony given by Martin Bolen:

The Way it Was Done.

"I, Martin Bolen, president of local Union 1807, Kincaid, Illinois, depose and say: On or about August 14th 1919, Ed. Bowen notified me in front of the Kincaid Miners' Hall to go up to the Sub-District office in Taylorville, Ill. When I appeared there, the sub-district board was in session, the Sub-district President, Allen Haywood asked me if I wanted to be put on the payroll for the purpose of putting the striking miners back to work.

"I agreed and my name was put on the payroll. President Haywood stated to me that he had been instructed by District President Frank Farrington to put all the men he could get on the payroll to crush the rebellion. I further seen a list of the names of men in the sub-district office who were then on the payroll, among them appeared the name of Bert Savage and Mark Mason, of L. U. 517, Tovey, Ill., and John Brutowski, of L. U. 721, of Pana.

"The first check I received for this kind of work was in the Winton Hotel in Cleveland, O., the check was issued by Walter Nesbit, State Secretary Treasurer, was O. K.ed by Allan Haywood and the amount was $26.00 and stated 'Advance to delegate to National Convention.' I later received a second check which came thru Henry Houser, Sub-District Secretary-Treasurer, the amount was $29.15 and I receipted for same as 'doing field work for the miners.' When I turned in the time worked by me to the Sup-District President, he gave me a leter referring me to the State office.

From Post To Pillar

"I went to Springfield and presented the letter to Vice-President Fishwick as President Farrington was not in at the time. Fishwick referred me back to the Sub-District office, stating that the money for field workers would be sent there in bulk, and advised me to tear up the letter in my possession so as not to cause Henry Houser to suspect anything. I tore up the letter, but told Houser what Fishwick had said to me, as I wanted to keep Houser posted. I did not receive the money then, but was paid thru the Sub-district office. Fishwick told me to deny getting any of this money if ever asked about it.

"Signed: Martin Bolen.

"Subscribed and sworn to before me by the said Martin Bolen, this 7th day of November A. D. 1919.

"Signed E. D. Henry, Notary Public."

In the Selling Business

It is not surprising that Farrington would consistently sell the miners votes to the government of the state of Illinois. During the stormy daye of 1919, hundreds of special deputy sheriffs similar to those appointed at the request of Gary in the steel strike were appointed by the state and county officials at Farrington's request. These deputies were union strikebreakers and not paid by the county which appointed them. These deputies were paid out of the $27,000 fund of which Farrington refused to give an itemized report until compelled to do so by the International convention."

Here was the edifying spectacle of Farrington, president of a great labor organization paying officers of a capitalist government to put the members of his own union in jail. Wives of miners were thrown in jail, some of them with babies at their breasts. The coal operators got busy and hundreds were indicted and held on heavy bail.

Then John L. Lewis came to the assistance of Farrington. According to the International Constitution of the United Mine Workers of America the International President only has the right to revoke the charters of districts, sub-districts and locals, but Lewis delegated this right to Farrington in the state of Illinois with the result that the latter revoked the charters of 24 locals and made an agreement with the coal operators that none of these who took leading part in the insurgent movement would be employed in the mines. To use Farrington's own words: "It is our understanding that the operators will not pick the ringleaders in the strike, which has crippled the mines . . . If any do get positions and are admitted to a local we intend to file charges against them and oust them from the union."

The Final Blow

Thus the faker Farrington was using the operators to deliver the final crushing blow to the men who dared to stand up for their rights and who were proved to be justified in their position by the International Convention.

The sum used by the Farrington machine to crush the strike according to a report made by Secretary-Treasurer Nesbit at the Peoria State Convention in 1920, was $27,299.58.

Why should the coal operators bother about hiring gunmen when the president of the miners' union spends the money paid into the treasury by the members of the union, to put these very men in jail or beat them up or both?

The forthcoming articles of this series will cover other high spots in Farrington's career, but his part in crushing the 1919 strike is enough to damn him forever in the eyes of all honest workers.

WEINSTONE GETS EXCELLENT MESSAGE ACROSS TO WORKERS IN DEBATE WITH SOCIALIST

NEW YORK, CITY, Oct. 23.—William W. Weinstone, representing the Communist position in the four-cornered political symposium which turned into a debate between the Communist and socialist speakers, in the Community Church on Sunday afternoon, flayed the socialist party and its representative, Charles Solomon, candidate for lieutenant-governor, as having completely given up every shred of socialist principles in supporting LaFollette in the present election.

LaFollette Supporter of Capitalism.

Outlining the main issues in the present campaign, the menace of new wars, the growing unemployment, the use of the government against the workers, the capitalist offensive and the open shop drive resulting in low wages and long hours, Weinstone showed that for the two old parties and their representatives that spoke before him these issues did not at all exist, and that LaFollette's platform was entirely futile and impotent and would not solve a single one of these pressing problems of the working class. "LaFollette," he dclared, "like the two old parties, is a staunch supporter of the present system of private property." Referring to the former platforms of the socialist party and the declaration of their chief spokesman, Morris Hilquit, Weinstone challenged Solomon who was to follow him, to explain on the basis of socialist doctrines, why LaFollette should get the support of the labor party. He particularly called upon Solomon to state whether he believed in the platform of LaFollette which was a movement back to 1776—a return to the old individualistic competitive system of production with its miserable wage for the workers, long hours and sweat shop conditions a period in which labor was weak and poorly organized.

MacDonald Serves Capitalist Class

Discussing the MacDonald government whom the socialists support, Weinstone pointed out that MacDonald was continuing the policy of the capitalist politicians in enslaving the colonial workers, in using airplanes and bombs against the natives of Egypt and Irak, in bringing into existence the Dawes plan which was a policy of continuing the war against Germany with economic means, and which would lead to another world war in which America would play a leading part.

Wisconsin A Model of Capitalist Rule

Taking up Wisconsin, the speaker showed that as far as the working class was concerned this state which has been bossed by LaFollette, was run in the interests of the capitalist class in the same manner as in every other state of the union and that there the big trusts rule the workers as they do generally in the United States. He ended his speech with an appeal for the support of William Z. Foster as the candidate on the only ticket which stands upon the platform exclusively devoted to the interest of the toiling masses of this country.

Admitted Futility of LaFollette Platform

Charles Solomon, who spoke after Weinstone, evaded the issues raised by the Communist speaker and failed to answer the questions put to him. Admitting the futility of the platform of LaFollette, he pleaded that "we must give this movement a chance." He said: "The socialist party had at last applied common sense to its politics and that it should have taken the present stand years ago and gone along with the reform movements."

In his concluding remarks Weinstone replying to Solomon's argument pointed out again that movements, no matter who supports them, must be analyzed from the point of view where they are going and whether they are in the interest of the working class, and he further declared that the LaFollette movement was taking the working class off the path of independent working class political action onto the path which leads into the wilderniss of capitalist politics. "The socialist party, in adopting the so-called policy of common sense was acting the same as the old reactionary parties in following any policy which would bring votes," declared Weinstone.

In answering questions from the audience, Solomon resorted to the cheap debater's tricks of evading questions where he could not answer them and in one instance denying that the movement of LaFollette was supported by millionaires. The question was turned over to be answered by the Communist speaker who pointed out that not only did millionaires back him, but that the directing committee of the LaFollette campaign had as its leading members the drug millionaire Rawleigh, the sugar king Spreckles, and among other such representatives as John M. Nelson who voted for the war, the espionage act and the exclusion of Victor Berger from congress; and that the millionaire banker Vanderlip was the one whom Wheeler declared had "had conscripted him for candidacy to run along with LaFollette." "Such leaders," declared Weinstone, "showed that this was a movement of a section of the capitalist class who are using the labor movement as a cats-paw for their boss' interests."

The audience consisted chiefly of students of the colleges of the city which is a straw ballot, gave LaFollette 291 votes, Foster 34, Coolidge 15, Davis 13 and Eugene V. Debs 5.

Shaving the Injunction

The decision of the United States supreme court, holding that under the provisions of the Clayton Act those charged with a violation of an injunction in labor disputes are entitled to a trial by a jury, is a piece of political strategy of a very high order. It kills two birds with one stone.

The lower courts have refused the right of jury trial to workers haled before the bar of capitalist justice for violation or alleged violation of the infamous injunction. This summary treatment increased the resentment aroused among the working class over that very effective strikebreaking weapon.

But if there are some who believe that the supreme court decision impairs the efficiency of the injunction, they have jumped to a hasty conclusion. On the contrary the nine more or less wise and aged men who are considered capable of interpreting the laws in accordance with the constitution of the United States simply gave the injunction a clean shave and made it look respectable.

As far as the operation of the injunction is concerned the decision maintains the status quo. The clubs of the police and the rifles and bayonets of the national and state soldiery will be available for use against the strikers. The only difference is that whereas previously the trial court could refuse a worker, arrested for violation of the injunction, a trial by jury, the ruling of the supreme court make a jury trial mandatory on demand of the defendant. But it is not hard to get juries to convict and anyhow the injunction has done its dirty work in the meantime. It has broken the strike, unless the masses of workers ignore the injunction, which they should do.

From the standpoint of political strategy the decision proves that the supreme court is the willing servant of the American ruling class and particularly of its most dominant faction, represented by the elements supporting Coolidge and Dawes in this election campaign.

The two most vulnerable points in the G. O. P. front in this election fight are the injunction and the supreme court. Both are defended by the republican party without reservations. The bourgeois opposition, particularly the LaFollette party, have sounded the alarm on those issues in order to catch the labor vote.

This decision therefore has the double effect of polishing up the injunction, making it look more civilized and at the same time placing the august supreme court in the position of being the defender of the people's liberties and an impartial tribunal to which the workingman and the capitalist can come and have their disputes decided with the assurance that their rights under the constitution will be protected without regard to class or station in life.

This view of the decision may be taken by thousands. But it is the wrong view. The fact is that even an honest attempt to reform capitalist institutions is as futile as trying to change the nature of a tiger by clipping his claws. In order to begin the task of solving the social problem in the interest of the producers of wealth, the workers must first take the governmental power away from the capitalists and substitute for the present capitalist institutions the workers' own organs of government, the Soviets.

In this campaign the only presidential ticket that points out the way the workers must follow in order to win their emancipation from wage slavery and the exactions of capitalist rule including injunctions and supreme court, is that of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, the Communist candidates for president and vice-president on the Workers Party platform.

State's Attorney Crowe, "Big" Bill Thompson, Len Small and others of the Illinois G. O. P. had salt together a few evenings ago. The report did not say whether they rubbed the salt into the wounded feelings of the Chicago labor fakers who hate Crowe for his espousal of the Landis award. What about it, Messrs. Fitzpatrick and Nockels? How do you like your united front with Crowe, the blackest bird in Cook County?

Friendly liberals often charge the Communist press with excessive optimism and a faculty for seeing things as they are not. As prophets we are supposed to be excellent Tutologists. But Heber Blankenhorn, a "respectable" liberal, writing for "Labor" of Washington, from London, predicts that there will be no election in great Britain this fall. There will.

Editor Lochray of the Mid-West Labor News did not hit the bottom when he turned his rag over to Coolidge. Judging by the latest issue of the sheet, he is still going down. At the rate he is going, Jake Spolansky should have a rival by Christmas.

Ourselves and the Prince

A Canadian capitalist paper is terribly distressed because we took editorial cognizance of the perigrinations of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who recently visited the money hogs of Long Island, New York, and the four-footed species in the Chicago stockyards. What we had to say about Edward P. did not please the loyal ears of our Canadian contemporary.

What could we say about the prince except that he danced frequently, how well we do not know, but apparently to the satisfaction of the American female parasites who waited in line to receive the royal terpsichorean attentions?

We said the prince could punish his liquor, which is no disgrace to royalty considering the reputation enjoyed by "Merry King Hal." It is even rumored that Queen Elizabeth, the reputed virgin, could hide away a hooker of booze preparatory to embarking on one of her very unvirgin-like escapades. Indeed, we are afraid that her virginity was as mythical as Calvin Coolidge's wisdom.

What more can be said about a prince who has nothing to do? If he can drink and make life more agreeable for the female section of the parasite class, he is worth his booze money. For us he provided an excellent object lesson: to show the American workers how their masters live.

We can assure the irritated Canadian editor that The DAILY WORKER would like nothing better than to have half a dozen princes as dumb and as chronically drunk as the Prince of Wales making the rounds of our big cities from one year to the other. He would provide us with excellent propaganda material.

We hope the prince will drop around again whenever Haig and Haig loses its kick and the home-brew of our American patriotic law abiding bootleggers appeals to him. Ramsay MacDonald and the other socialists will look after his empire, so H. R. H. should worry.

The Bill Collector

While the stoolpigeons under William J. Burns and Harry Daugherty were busy investigating radicals, other investigators were on the job investigating the investigators. One of those whose past history was dug into happens to be Calvin Coolidge the mythical Samson of the republican party.

The current issue of The Searchlight, a Washington publication that noses around in the sewers of capitalism and likes it, is almost entirely devoted to telling "The Plain Truth about Calvin Coolidge." "Cal" has led such a colorless life, that there is not much to be told. But for the myth that his banker friends have built up around him, there would not be enuf of a story in his life to cover a postage stamp.

Coolidge was a very small bore lawyer. Even the corporations would not hire him. Tho they are not in the market for honesty, they insist on brains. Calvin's specialty in the legal line was collecting bills. He never got beyond that until Murray Crane, the Mark Hanna of New England republicanism picked him up as a likely cog in his machine.

His political career was the result of his "regularity" and the Boston police strike, which found favor for him in the eyes of the capitalists thruout the country.

As a president Coolidge makes a good bill collector for the capitalists and what more do they want?

Smoked Out

Congressman LaGuardia of New York is one of the cleverest demagogues in this country. In the early days of the world war he could not wait until Morgan was ready to jump in on the side of his millions, so LaGuardia offered his services to the King of Italy and had a fine time making recruiting speeches in that country with the nutty poet D'Annunzio. But after the war was over, LaGuardia kept his political ear to the ground and heard the rumblings of the workers' discontent against those who led them into the war and forced them to endure the privations of unemployment and want after the war.

The wily demagogue LaGuardia became a "progressive," the kind that progresses backward. He is now endorsed by the socialist party of New York, and the manager of this faker's campaign is the professional political pie-eater and yellow socialist, Marie MacDonald. LaGuardia's opponent on the Workers Party ticket is Juliet Stuart Poyntz.

Comrade Poyntz challenged LaGuardia to debate, but instead of debating with her, he incited the police to arrest her. He did not get away with it, however, as the workers began to look on him as a coward, so now he has decided to accept the challenge. Major LaGuardia will be shown what kind of a freak a capitalist progressive really is.

How did Spolansky learn that the fellow who exploded the bomb in Wall Street "rubbed his chin" as he peered around the corner of a building at the destruction caused by his act? Spolansky admits "he was observed by nobody" and was never arrested. It looks bad for Spolansky.

Coolidge looks after the nation's nickels, said Dawes. Perhaps—after they are gone. Silent Cal is just about the kind who would busy himself saving nickels while some Jess Smith was getting away with the dollars. "A nickelodeon for president" would make a good campaign slogan.

Destroy the LaFollette Illusion

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER
Workers Party Candidate for President

OUR biggest task today is to combat and destroy the LaFollette illusion. This is the greatest obstacle to the development of a working class conscious of its interests and prepared for serious struggle with American capitalism.

The LaFollette program accepts capitalism as its starting point. It completely ignores the fact that all the ills of the working class spring from the capitalist system and can only be abolished with the system that causes them. LaFollette wants to tinker around the capitalist machine and repair it. He wants to soften some of its more glaring evils and make it more beautiful and palatable to the masses. He wants to extend the democratic forms, and lead the workers to look to their reforms for relief, instead of struggling to establish their own power to control society.

Never, however, does LaFollette or his program touch the vital question of power—which class is to rule. He throws a mask over the brutal and obvious fact that the present system is a dictatorship of the capitalist class. He does not propose a single measure that so much as hints at overthrowing that dictatorship.

No Blows at Capital

LaFollette's backers boast that if out of 18 measures formerly advocated by him have been enacted into law. They were all of the same sort that he advocates now. One would think, from the boasts of the boosters, that these measures had been a blow at the rule of capital. Nothing of the sort. Capitalism is stronger today by a hundred times than it was when La Follette began his work, and his measures, so far from weaking the capitalist dictatorship have strengthened it.

Take, for example, the direct election of senators. Formerly senators were elected by the legislatures, and the corruption, the open purchase and sale of votes by means of which the capitalists determined who should fill the offices, constituted a festering sore and an incitement to revolt to the masses. LaFollettelism "cured" this sore, but did the capitalist lose their control of the offices? Not a bit of it. With their control of party machinery, of the press, of the schools, of the ideas and the means of spreading ideas to the masses, with their complete and undisputed control of industry—the capitalist class continues its dictatorship undisturbed, while the masses are fooled into thinking that something has been fundamentally changed. But it is the same old capitalist system, fitted out with a new dress by LaFollettelism.

It is a great mistake to suppose because the big capitalists oppose La-Follette now, that this proves LaFollette represents the workers. Capitalism is still arrogant, and thinks it can rule thru a Coolidge. German capitalism also used to oppose the social-democrats of Germany; they hounded and outlawed the socialists; but when their hour of crisis came, and capitalism could have been overthrown in Germany, the ruling class turned to the social-democracy, which deliberately saved capitalism, which shot down revolting workers by the thousands, and turned to patching up the shattered system. The capitalist class of America will similarly turn to LaFollette, and LaFollette will perform the same service for them in America that Ebert and Scheidemann performed for the German capitalist class.

"War Referendum" Is Joke

LaFollette says he is against war, but his program leads directly to war, just the same as that of Coolidge or of Davis. He proposes a referendum on war, but not the slightest move to control and remove the cause of war, capitalism. Such a referendum is more than a ghastly joke. It is designed as an instrument of war itself, for it will become merely a means of more effectively mobilizing the masses for the coming world imperialist war, by fooling them into thinking that they have something to say about the decision.

Even now, so early in the game, the capitalists are quite widely beginning to recognize how valuable LaFollette is to their class interests, and their antagonism to him is being softened a great deal, while a few big ones, like Spreckles and Vanderlip, actually go along and receive decisive voice in LaFollette's councils. But the workers are building up a Frankenstein, by supporting LaFollette, that will turn and devour them, just as did the monster of social-democracy with the German workers in 1918.

Again all this reformism and class collaboration the Workers Party, raises the slogan of the class struggle. We know from history that ruling classes cannot be driven from power by a slow process of reform. In every case that a ruling class has been deposed in the past, it has been thru the open struggle by the rising class. Capitalism itself came into being thru a series of revolutions, that made one world revolution against the prevailing feudal system. American, German, French, Italian and English capitalism were all born in civil war.

We live under the most ruthless, the best organized, the richest, the most intelligent and militant ruling class that world history has ever recorded. In can be absolutely depended upon that our ruling class will not yield its power without a struggle. Even if the workers should elect their own men to office, the capitalist class would throw aside its mask of democracy and resort to force to maintain its rule. We saw this happen in Italy, where, when the workers threatened the capitalist system, the murderous Fascisti, agents of capitalism, restroyed even the pretense of democratic government and drowned the workers' movement in blood. Th same thing is being prepared by the capitalist class of America, behind the protective mask of "progressivism," and the American working class must prepare itself to meet it.

Workers Must Take Power

There is but one way in which the workers will ever gain power, and that is thru sufficient organization, intelligence and militancy, to take power from the capitalist class in open struggle.

The world war was a crisis for capitalism. The working class could have won its freedom at this time by a bold and courageous struggle. But the LaFollettes, the Eberts, the Hendersons, the Vanderveldes, were controlling the workers' organizations. Instead of leading the workers to the battle against capitalism, they took up the battle for capitalism. They betrayed the working class, just as La-Follette will betray the working class.

But since that time a new power has arisen in the world. In all countries Communist parties have been organized, and have been crystallized in the Communist International. This is the greatest fact in history. For it means that when the next war, now, definitely in preparation, is launched upon the world by capitalist imperialism, the Communist International will raise the slogan of world-wide proletarian revolt, will lead the working masses against their oppressors, and smash once for all the capitalist dictatorship and the capitalist system, and will establish thruout the world the rule of the workers.

Workers Party Alone Fights Labor's Battles

By BENJAMIN GITLOW
Workers Party Candidate for Vice President

CAPITALISM in the United States is going thru a crisis. The winter of 1925 will see factory after factory shut down. The streets will be full of hungry men looking for jobs. About seven to eight million workers will be unemployed.

As a result of all this situation poverty and untold misery is confronting the workers. The campaign to reduce wages will be pressed with renewed vigor by the capitalist class. Workers in every line of industry will have their wages greatly reduced.

No Relief for Agriculture

Every attempt on the part of the workers will be brutally suppressed by the capitalists. The crisis in agriculture will not be ended because of the slight increase in the price of wheat because it is based on the economic demoralization of Europe.

The crisis in industry in America coupled with the crisis in agriculture will greatly intensify the class conflicts going on in capitalist society. The producers, that is, the workers and farmers, in desperation and revolt against the intolerable conditions that the crisis will produce, will become factors in big mass struggles against the capitalists who dominate the economic and political life of the country.

All Power to Workers!

The only party that is organized to battle in the interests of the workers is the Workers Party. It is the only party in the United States in the face of the crisis developing in the United States that has the courage to come out flatfootedly for the working class.

The Workers Party proposes to lead the workers in a struggle against unemployment, wage reductions and the attempt of the capitalists to smash workers' organizations.

The slogan of the Workers Party is work or relief for the unemployed at the union rate of wages. No wage cuts under any price. The solidification of the unions thru the organization of the unorganized and the amalgamation of the existing unions as a measure against the open shop war. Against the capitalist dictatorship, a workers' and farmers' government with all power in the hands of the workers and poor farmers.

The Workers Party is also part of the International Communist movement. The Workers Party, the Communist Party, is proud to adhere to the Communist International because the Communist International is more than an expression of international working class solidarity.

Organize World's Workers

The Communist International is a militant, revolutionary, international organization of the working class. It is preparing and organizing the workers of the world for the final struggle to wrest control of the earth from the capitalist exploiters and butchers of the workers.

The Communist International is that world organization of the proletariat that points out to the workers of the world the lesson of the last world war.

It shows the workers that war is the final culmination of capitalist glory, that it results in the butchery of the workers, and in the creation of untold misery for them. The Communist International shows the workers of the world how capitalism is leading the workers of the world into another imperialist world slaughter.

For the World Revolution

And the Communist International is the organization that will turn such a world war into a war against the capitalists. It will help the workers turn the war into a world revolution to abolish capitalism the world over.

Let the Battle Start.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. — Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States, declared in a speech here today that the world's greatest need was an international trade arrangement for the development of "an open door with a fair field and no favor" for all countries to all countries.

COMMUNIST ELECTION GREETING

FOSTER EXPOSES AMERICAN IMPERIALIST MOTIVES IN NAVY DAY DEMONSTRATIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24.—William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president on the Workers Party ticket, issued a statement here today exposing the new imperialist campaign inaugurated in the call for "Navy Day" celebrations.

Foster said, "The Communist of the United States, the Workers Party of America, in connection with the celebration of Navy Day, Oct. 27, by the American capitalists, assure the oppressed and exploited working and farming masses of the Latin-American countries that they will do everything in their power to arouse the American working class to decisive action, against the aggressive imperialist campaigns of the Wall Street clique.

"We Communists will leave nothing undone until the strikebreaking and revolution-crushing Yankee battlefleet is withdrawn from the Caribbean, where it is doing the dirtiest work for the United Fruit company and other giant corporations. It is only thru a union of the workers and farmers of the United States with those of Mexico and the other Latin American countries that the bloody hands of the international committee of bankers of Mexico can be stayed in their sordid manguver to crush our southern neighbor.

"It is especially interesting to note that it is the democratic candidate, John W. Davis, who has been the lawyer for this committee of international financial pirates. It is the republican, Warren, who was the American ambassador to Mexico, while the Yankee oil barons were forcing the Mexican government into an infamous agreement against the interests of the exploited workers and peons of the land. It is the progressives of the LaFollette fold who have not lifted a finger nor raised their voice in protest against, and in condemnation of these imperialist holdups against the Latin American countries.

"The American Communists are pledged to rid the world of this devastating scourge."

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

MESSRS Oneal, Feigenbaum and Solomon—(looks like a combination of shyster, lawyers) the trio whose names appear as editors and managers of the New York weekly, that inherited the shame of the deceased New York Call, sounds a note of alarm in an editorial in a recent issue of their paper. The three worthies fear that the remnants of the socialist party are so excited over the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign that they will forget the socialist campaign altogether. This is not surprising, considering the difficulty that even wide awake workers experience in seeing any traces of it since Debs handed his Red Flag to LaFollette for use as a handkerchief.

THE gentlemen named above are not too much concerned over the low visibility of the socialist campaign, as of their loss of prestige, provided there are not many votes cast under the torch on November 4. Unless the socialist vote hold its own, the power of the S. P. tites to insist on important positions in the coming bourgeois party, will be dangerously low. Of course, Oneal, who undoubtedly wrote the exhortation, appears in as disinterested a role as he knows how.

* * *

"WE believe that it is necessary to say this" warns Oneal "because there appears to be a tendency in some quarters to conceal our socialist identity (In this a rap at Hillquit, Mr. Oneal?) We have nothing to conceal. (You have already completely exposed yourself. All the rotten is has come to the surface). We are proud of our history. (So are William J. Burns and Harry Daugherty) Morever our contribution to the organization of a political federation like the British Labor Party depends in part upon our socialist vote." Precisely. The ability of the Hillquits, Oneals and Bergers to secure prominent positions among the Lord Haldanes, Viscount Olivers, Sirs and Dukes of the LaFollette party, depends on how many votes they can throw on "Bob's" auction block and say: "How much for the lot?"

* * *

THE socialist party does not believe in boring from within the trade union movement, except to land in official positions where there is a payroll job, but the aged step-father of perverted socialism, Karl Kautsky, believes in boring from within the League of Nations. He is loud in his praise of the Dawes Plan, and believes that the League of Nations will prevent war. He condemns the Communists for stirring up the people of the Orient against the capitalists

11,000 Coal Miners In Pittston District of Pennsylvania Strike

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 24.—Eleven thousand miners of the Pennsylvania Coal company in the Pittston district and at Underwood, Pa., went on strike today.

New French Ambassador.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—President Doumergue presided at a meeting of the French cabinet today which approved the appointment of M. Daeschee as French ambassador to the United States. He succeeds Jules Jusserand, who was previously dean of the foreign diplomatic corps at Washington. When M. Jusserand retires the Spanish ambassador will be the dean.

Can't Get Jury.

BOONEVILLE, Ind., Oct. 24. — No jury had been obtained at noon today in the trial of Bert Stanton and Tom Julian, charged with the murder of Wes Rogers, after twenty names had been exhausted the last to be excused was Ira Byers because he did not favor the death penalty.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—With only 1,100 polls to be heard from, the dry majority in today's election this afternoon stood at 37,000, election officials said.

SOURCE OF SPOLANSKY'S FAKE RED EXPOSURES WILL BE SHOWN

Nothing is too rotten for the modern labor-baiting fink business. Evidence that Spolansky's lying "anti-red" stories in the Chicago Daily News have not hurt him with the forces of the detective underworld, is contained in evidence which has reached the Labor Defense Council that Spolansky has secured a new job.

About a week ago he was offered and accepted the position of manager of the "radical" department of the Burns agency. The government knowingly makes use of men like Burns and Burns knowingly makes use of men like Spolansky. Obviously, Spolansky has not been hired because of his knowledge of the revolutionary working class movement.

His articles in the Daily News show that his knowledge is nil. He has been hired because he is an unprincipled "red"-baiter and an experienced, if somewhat crude, frame-up man. On what sort of information will Spolansky make his arrests for Burns? In Monday's issue of the DAILY WORKER, we will show where Spolansky gets his information for his fake "exposures" of the Communists. The DAILY WORKER will expose his stories of Communism as a conspiratorial movement and will explain proudly the clauses which drove the Communist Party temporarily "underground."

FIFTH FINNISH LOCAL OF WORKERS PARTY PUTS ACROSS OUR MOVIE SHOW

The influence of the publicity in the Finnish party press and the backing of Finnish organization units is shown in the recent booking of the fifth date for "The Fifth Year" in small-town picture houses. Kettle River, Minn. is the latest addition to the family of "Fifth Year" showers, others having been Sebeka and Lawler, Minn., and Hancock and Rock, Mich. The latter has contracted to take every picture program by our organization, and will run a "Red Labor Movie Night" once a month. Its second program will consist of "Beauty and the Bolshevik" on Nov. 2. The same picture shows in Hancock, Mich., Oct. 30, 31 and in Superior, Wis., on Nov. 5.

REPUBLICANS IN MONEY DRIVE ON NEGRO DENTIST

Received Check of $300 "To His Surprise"

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Dr. David A. Ferguson, a Negro dentist of Richmond, Va., republican bolter this afternoon startled the Borah committee by exhibiting a certified check for $300 from Joseph Crupper of Alexandria, Va., republican politician and federal collector of customs.

Ferguson said the check was mailed him without explanation after he wrote Crupper declaring he would not support the republicans because he regarded C. Bascom Slemp's appointment as secretary to the president as a slap in the face to Virginia colored voters.

"Did this check come to your order?" Untermyer asked.

"No, to my surprise," said Ferguson.

Additional information concerning the solicitation of republican campaign funds in Pennsylvania was sought this afternoon by Senator William E. Borah's investigating committee.

W. W. Atterbury, vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad, was the first witness.

Before Atterbury took the stand, Senator Caraway, democrat of Arkansas, said he wanted to subpoena those who were in charge of the straw vote poll being taken by the Literary Digest.

Work in Secret.

"Sensational testimony which might hurt the republican party," was promised to the committee by Samuel Untermyer, who said he had two witnesses here from Chicago to testify. He wanted to put the witnesses on in executive session. Senator Borah promised an executive session.

Atterbury said he was a member of the campaign fund committee of the Union League Club of Philadelphia, but that he had made no collections.

Find Its Crime to Publish Tax List After It's All Over

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. — Frank K. Bowers, collector of internal revenue here, today said he had received a telegram from Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair at Washington declaring it to be a violation of the law to make duplicates of the list of income taxpayers or to publish them. Such violations, the telegram said, according to Collector Bowers, were punishable by a fine of $1,000 or a year in prison or both.

Newspapermen who presented a list of names of prominent persons whose incomes they wished to ascertain were prohibited from examining the lists.

I. W. W. MEMBER STAGES QUEER ATTACK ON C. I.

Rumbaugh's Explanation Confuses Delegates

For some unfathomable reason, discussion of the Communist International and of revolutionary political parties came upon the floor of the I. W. W. convention thru statements made, unsupported by evidence, that Workers Party members had tried to have the I. W. W. as an organization affiliate with the Communist International.

This is, of course, not the fact. The only organization the I. W. W. has been asked to affiliate with, is the Red International of Labor Unions, which is separate and distinct from the Communist International.

Apparently forgetting that the Communist International is a political body that does not permit and has not asked the affiliation of industrial organizations such as the I. W. W., Hendrickson made a rather extraordinary and confused attack upon Workers Party officers. The general tenor of his talk was that the Workers Party, according to him, wanted to have the I. W. W. affiliate to the Communist International of political parties.

Rumbaugh Creates Confusion.

Rumbaugh followed this up by moving the insertion in the constitution of a clause preventing officers of any political parties from even belonging to the I. W. W. Evidently delegate Rumbaugh, who represents the building construction workers, is much worried at the natural connection and mutual membership of revolutionary workers in a Communist Party and the I. W. W., than he is over the numerous connections the I. W. W. has with capitalist political parties. The motion carried.

How Can an I. W. W. Run for Office?

One of the members of Rumbaugh's Building Construction Union is, indeed, running for congress, but not on a revolutionary ticket, in the state of Washington, while numerous members of the I. W. W. go about attacking the Workers Party but wearing LaFollette buttons and one very prominent I. W. W. member boasts of a $75 a week job from LaFollette. Nor was mention made of the I. W. W. member who is a candidate for governor of Washington, and is publicly supported by a subordinate part of the I. W. W.

However, Rumbaugh was not alone in this confusion, delegate Hendrickson giving the lead. "An officer of the Workers Party recently caused all

CANNON SPEAKS AT THE BROOKLYN LABOR LYCEUM MONDAY 27TH

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A special campaign rally will be held at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum at 949 Willoughby Ave., on Oct. 27. This will be one of the best meetings held in Brooklyn and will probably be the only chance of hearing Comrade Cannon, our candidate for governor, in this section of Brooklyn. In addition to Cannon, the following speakers will also address the meeting: Ludwig Lore, candidate for congress in Manhattan; Moissaye J. Olgin, candidate for senate; Paul Scherer, candidate for assembly in the 5th district, Brooklyn; Samuel Nesin, candidate in the 14th district, Brooklyn; Sam Liptzin of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, and many other speakers in English and Jewish. See to it that you are present at this meeting and bring your friends along to hear the message of the Communist candidate for governor and others bring the message of Communism to the workers of Brooklyn.

Remember: Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 949 Willoughby Ave.

Remember: Monday evening, October 27.

Watch the press for further announcements of Cannon meetings which will be held in the various sections of the city.

WORKERS PARTY FIGHT AGAINST CAPITALIST PARTIES EXPOSES ELECTION FRAUD OF RULING CLASS

In a telegram of greeting to the Workers (Communist) Party of America, Gregory Zinoviev, chairman of the Communist International, hails the election campaign now being conducted by the American Communists against the parties of capitalism as a political act and a courageous act.

Zinoviev points out that in addition to the double fraud perpetrated on the workers by the capitalists in the past, in the form of two capitalist parties, they have now a triple fraud in the third capitalist party, led by the most shrewd betrayers of the workers.

The message declares that the participation of the Workers Party in this election campaign is a "courageous act" and a "political act" and hails the Party and its candidate William Z. Foster as the leaders of the revolutionary workers of America. The telegram reads:

To the Workers Party: Dear Comrades, in the name of the Communist International we greet your independent fight against the power and the election machine of capitalism in America. It cannot be expected that the politically backward and unawakened majority of the working class of the United States can be aroused and won over by your party already during this year's election campaign. That requires more time and many more fights.

On this occasion, deceit and bribery will once again attract the necessary number of votes for an agent of the capitalist magnates, but the first militant appeal of Communism in the United States was enough to shake the old capitalist election fraud, the old double fraud had to be turned into a triple fraud by the introduction of a third party.

The leadership of this last reserve of the capitalist election machine is made up of the shrewdest betrayers of the working class in America. They no doubt know better than the vote catchers of the republican and democratic parties how to deceive the unawakened masses of workers and farmers. That is what they are there for. But this time the Workers Party will do its utmost to herald the truth about the proletarian revolutionary class struggle to the workers and farmers.

For the first time in the history of the United States a party of the revolutionary proletariat has put forward its own candidate in the presidential elections. Comrades, this is a political act, a courageous act of the vanguard of Communism in America. We are convinced that this struggle of yours will not be without its lasting effects.

Hail the fight of the Workers arty.

Hail Comrade William Z. Foster, candidate of the Workers Party.

Long live the Communist International.

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

(Signed) G. Zinoviev.

Won't Hurt Fur Workers.

CLEVELAND COMRADES BE AT PUBLIC SQUARE AT 3 THIS AFTERNOON

C. E. Ruthenberg, national secretary of the Workers Party and candidate for congress from the 20th Ohio district, will be the principal speaker at a tremendous campaign rally and demonstration at the Public Square at 3 p. m. today.

Every member of the party in Cleveland must be present at this meeting. Sunday, Oct. 26, Comrade Ruthenberg will speak at a mass meeting at Jaite's Hall, 6006 St. Clair Ave., Cleveland.

UNION WORKERS AID COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN IN N.Y.

Needle Trades Arrange Big Meetings for Party

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The needle trades workers of this city, aroused by the betrayal of their officials in endorsing La-Follette, have taken matters into their own hands and are staging one of the most spectacular and effective drives for the Workers Party candidates thruout the city, ever carried on in this city.

Won't Have LaFollette.

Members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union have organized a campaign committee and are holding a series of three and four meetings each night in the various congressional districts for the Workers Party candidates. The members refuse to have anything to do with the LaFollette campaign and are backing the Workers Party ticket as the only revolutionary ticket in the field.

Distribute Special Literature.

They are using as speakers their most active members and are distributing special literature which they have printed. They had a very successful meeting Thursday night at Stone and Pitkin Aves., Brownsville, Brooklyn.

Saturday night Harlem will see the main big rally at 110th St., and 5th Ave., where many speakers will address the meeting and literature will be distributed. There will also be big meetings Tuesday, Oct. 28, at Prospect and Longwood Aves., Bronx, New York; Thursday, Oct. 30, at Grand Street Extension, Brooklyn, and Saturday, Nov 1, at Rutgers Square.

Furriers Back Communism.

The furriers of New York City are also lining up for the Workers Party ticket and have organized a special Fur Workers' Campaign Committee for the Workers Party candidates in New York City. They have hired a number of trucks and have three platforms and will hold a series of five meetings in the various sections of the city.

The following is a schedule of the main meetings that the Furriers will hold:

Oct. 25, Longwood and Prospect Aves., Bronx; Oct. 27, 110th St. and 5th Ave., Harlem; Oct. 28, Stone and Pitkin Aves., Brownsville; Oct. 29, 10th St. and 2nd Ave.; Oct. 30, Rutgers Square; Oct. 31, 110th St. and 5th Ave., Harlem; Nov. 1, Stone and Pitkin Aves., Brownsville.

Cloakmakers Assist in Campaign.

At a meeting held last week by active members of the Cloakmakers' Union, it was decided to assist in the campaign that the Workers Party is conducting in this city. They have hired trucks and platforms and will hold many meetings in the various congressional districts in this city. The following is a list of the main meetings that they will hold:

Oct. 27, Stone and Pitkin Aves., Brownsville; Oct. 28, 10th St. and 2nd Ave.; Oct. 29, Grand Street Extention, Brooklyn; Oct. 30, Rutgers Square.

Open Forum, Sunday Night, Lodge Room, Ashland Auditorium.

FOSTER SPEAKS TO WORKERS OF READING SHOPS

Steel and Metal Trades Workers at Meeting

By JOSEPH MANLEY.
Campaign Manager, Workers Party.

William Z. Foster, presidential candidate of the Workers Party, addressed the largest revolutionary gathering held in recent years in Reading, Pa., a former stronghold of the socialist party.

Reading in the home of James Maurer, president of the State Federation of Labor.

Many of Maurer's friends were present at the meeting and their LaFollette enthusiasm was very much dampened when they observed the large gathering of workers who responded to the Communist address made by Foster. The socialist party of Reading formerly had fourteen hundred members now it scarcely has fourteen.

A feature of the meeting, which moved the audience deeply, was the appearance on the platform of Jacob Dolla, formerly sentenced to a term in the Eastern Penitentiary because of his activity in the 1919 steel campaign. Dolla made a stirring appeal. He was roundly applauded when he declared: "When they sent me to jail, I was only a trade unionist, but when I came out I was a communist."

Workers Understand Foster

To this strictly working class audience, composed mostly of railroad men from Reading shops, steel workers and metal trades workers, Foster in the language of the worker, got across the Communist message and the election program of the Workers Party. His castigation of Coolidge, Dawes, Davis, and LaFollette was none the less ruthless because of its touch of humor.

Speaking of LaFollette, Foster pointed out that the Wisconsin senator instead of attacking and destroying the force of capitalism's power, was attempting to patch it up. He derided the LaFollette plank advocating a referendum on war, and stated that. "This protector of capitalism is chasing a will o' the wisp."

Foster Attacks Navy Day

Foster dealt at some length with the question of imperialism, centering his attack upon the latest scheme of American imperialists to celebrate October 27 as Navy Day. Foster declared: "The meaning of the Navy Day is precisely the same as that of Defense Day. Both are steps by the employers to organize powerful armies and naval armadas with which they are to crush all opposition at home and abroad. The fact that we have special days set aside for the militarist and navalist propaganda shows clearly that our ruling class is beginning another campaign of preparedness."

New Wars Looming

"We have troops in six South and Central American countries today, protecting the investments of the capitalists. War with Japan is looming, because of the struggle by the American capitalists and Japan, for control of the Pacific." He declared: "Nothing can end capitalist war but a social revolution, the dictatorship of the proletariat, and the organization of soviets.

and placing temptation in the way of the great powers who may begin to knife each other again as they did in 1914. The League should not be judged by what it is today but by what it can be made in the future, he says. If Karl Kautsky will be judged by what he is today and not by what he was in the past, his place in history will be so low that Mussolini will shine like a star in comparison.

THE Workers Monthly is almost here. As the typewriter is clicking off these lines, the new magazine is coming off the press. You will like the cover, the everybody may not know what it all about. This does not mean that it is not an artistic design. That is the trouble. Artists take a keen delight in puzzling, the unartistic section of the working class, which comprises about 99 per cent. The Workers Monthly is a combination of three magazines:—The Labor Herald, The Liberator and the Soviet Pictorial. It is three in one.

THOSE who thot The Liberator had croaked and were pained in consequence will dig up a quarter when the cover design runs foul of their optics. Earl Browder, editor, of the Workers' Monthly and Jack Johnstone Assistant Secretary of The Trade Union Educational League confessed under a sever grilling that they could interpret the cover design, but refused to go into the details on the ground that, they were not artists. Jim Cannon on his way to New York to tackle Al Smith, refused to commit himself, suspecting some political plot. Others, less cautious, ventured various guesses. This is not a dirty Irish trick to get you buy the magazine: it's simply the way I feel about it. The picture is pretty.

* * *

NOW, for the inside of the picture. The less said about this the better. There is no reason why your delight should be anticipated. Suffice it to say that the place of honor will be held by G. Zinoviev who knows more about revolutions than Calvin Coolidge knows about nothing. If you are interested in the confessions of great criminals you will first read Alexander Bittelman's story, entitled "Exit Savinkoff." There are pictures, poems and editorial comment. Articles by the leading writers in the Communist movement, Dunne, Olgin, Foster, Ruthenberg, Minor, Lovejoy, and many others. A class war prisoner in Leavenworth writes: "We who enjoyed the Liberator, Labor Herald and Pictorial are anxiously awaiting The Workers Monthly." That comrade will receive The Workers Monthly. The Monthly has a very warm spot in its heart for the rebels of whatever workingclass organization, who are in the battle against capitalism, and particularly for those who are in the capitalist dungeons.

EVERY class-conscious worker will want to have the first issue of The Workers Monthly. It will be samething to treasure. But we can assure our readers that the first issue will make them long for the next. Therefore, if it has not occured to you before, subscribe and don't depend too much on newsstands. The manager informs me that only enough copies to fill the orders received and to cover the subscription list will be printed. Therefore send in your subscription immediately to The Workers Monthly, 1113 West Washington Blvd., Chicago. Send along a Two Dollar bill to keep it company.

ONE of the most interesting places in Chicago to spend a Sunday evening is at the open forum of the Workers Party, in the Ashland Auditorium. Harrison George, whose articles in The DAILY WORKER, the Labor Herald and other Communist publications, stamp him as the kind of a person who would make an audience comfortable waiting for the main speaker, is master of ceremonies. Comrade Ruthenberg opened the forum last Sunday, and J. Louis Engdahl, editor of The DAILY WORKER is scheduled to speak next Sunday evening. The time is eight o'clock. Admission is twenty five cents.

Bazaar Committee Calls for Help

The Chicago committee in charge of the bazaar for the benefit of the DAILY WORKER and Labor Defense has issued a call to all Workers Party comrades, branches and units and sympathetic organizations to speed up and intensify the work of getting donations, selling tickets and generally preparing for the affair. They point out that only four weeks remain, as the bazaar is to begin on Nov. 26.

The bazaar workers' conference, composed of delegates from branches, etc., is to meet Saturday, Oct. 25, at 3:30 in the afternoon, at 722 Blue Island Ave.

KLAN JOINS WAR ON SILK STRIKERS OF PATERSON, N.J.

Nightshirts Join Mayor Against Workers

(By The Federated Press)

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 24.—The Ku Klux Klan of Passaic county, New Jersey, has declared itself on the strike of silk workers which is in its third month in Paterson.

The klan announces support of Mayor McLean in his efforts to have noncitizen strikers deported and blames the strike "that paralyzes the silk industry, one of the industrial cornerstones upon which rests the prosperity of our city" on foreign-born workers.

Peddle Some Old Bunk.

The klan charges that "foreign agitators who are not American citizens, who are in this country solely thru the sufferance of our people and who in most instances have no intention of becoming American citizens" maintain the strike.

"Preservation of the constitutional rights of free speech to the end that it shall remain a matter of liberty and not of license to spread propaganda for the overthrow of orderly constitutional government and the establishment of bolsherism and a state of chaos or anarchy" is claimed as one of the "great principles of our noble order" in the preamble of the klan resolution against the strikers.

Associated Silk Workers' Union officers, in charge of the strike, say the klan charges are ridiculous and at variance with the facts.

kinds of disruption in our organization," said Rumbaugh in his speech. He did not say that the Communists love capitalist judges, and he gave no names or substantiation.

Grimth is Subdued.

James Grimth, who has been fired from the G. E. B. by Rowan, and suspended by the convention, is now very subdued. Altho he was the first to sign the original injunction, the convention has tamed him. Grimth has taken his books to the I. W. W. headquarters at 1001 West Madison St., for auditing by the convention.

The convention ruled that at the expiration of his final term of office no official of the I. W. W. general administration shall be allowed to work in the offices without a year's work in industry.

The Proceedings Drag.

The convention of the Industrial Workers of the World dragged along yesterday, again postponing investigation of the controversy in order to await the outcome of court proceedings, in the injunction brought by the Rowan-Bowerman group. Meanwhile Master-in-Chancery Fred Bernstein did not attend the hearing scheduled for yesterday, and no future date has been set for it, according to William Cunnea, attorney for the Doyle-Fisher group.

The convention has several times postponed action on the controversy between the two groups because of the impending court action, and the injunction hearing has been twice postponed during the sessions of the convention so far.

Fred Morris, making a report as suspended assistant secretary-treasurer, declared he had carried on no work in that capacity except to indorse checks. He said he was a "rubber stamp" or "pen and ink" officer.

A telegram was received from the Portland branch of Industrial Union 510, indorsing the convention and indorsing the statement sent out to the membership by the convention last week.

Discussion of reorganization of the General Defense was in progress when the convention adjourned at noon.

Hillquit and Berger in Political Circus Stunt Have Very Hard Going

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, in two states, the socialists in the political arena are performing the circus stunt of riding two horses. It is an interesting and spectacular sight. It is more hair-raising than anything ever provided by Barnum and Bailey, or the Ringling Brothers.

The same feat in this year's presidential struggle might be attempted by socialists in other states, if the socialist organization extended beyond the confines of New York and Wisconsin. But it doesn't. So we must be content to view the antics of Morris Hillquit, in New York; Victor L. Berger, in Wisconsin.

In the real circus the rider in the two-horse stunt has some chance of retaining his mounts. The horses are trained to do what is expected of them. They have a circular course they must follow. Everything is prepared before hand so that the act will be a howling success.

But how different in New York State. There Hillquit is astride the LaFollette presidential candidacy on the one hand, and the Thomas socialist gubernatorial candidacy on the other. But practically the whole of the LaFollette following, with the exception of a few rank and file socialists, is out for "Al" Smith, the Tammany Hall candidate, not Thomas, for governor.

Thomas is a good steed. He wants to carry his load. But he finds that he must fight the Tammany Hall-Compers labor politicians, who have been very successful in luring away the LaFollette wing of Hillquit's little political stunt.

The New York socialists are very angry that Communists should charge that they have been made with the Tammany Hall-Compers outfit for the support of the Smith candidacy against that of Thomas.

The daily service of the Federated Press from New York City has just arrived and reports that a list of "68 New York labor officials" have signed an appeal for the support of Thomas as against "Governor Smith, the hope of the Wall Street lawyer, John W. Davis." The report gives, as heading the list of names, the signatures of a few labor officials of lesser importance, practically unknown.

We scan the list in vain for the names of Morris Sigman, head of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union; Morris Kaufmann, of the Furriers' Union; Sidney Hillman, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and others who have come out for LaFollette. The only inference is that these so-called "socialists" are also out for Al Smith.

Election Day and after will find Hillquit riding his lone steed, Thomas, with his following exterminated.

Then there is Berger in Wisconsin. He is also trying to ride LaFollette for the presidency and his own candidate for governor. In Wisconsin the endorsement of Governor Blaine, for re-election by LaFollette, is open and energetic. LaFollette backed Blaine in the primaries against Berger's attack.

There can be no doubt, however, that the officialdom of labor, in Wisconsin, as in New York, will cut the traces that tie them to the Berger political combination, and give their support to Blaine, the LaFollette man, the "sure winner."

Rich fields of timothy and clover, warmed by the sun of political victory, is the tempting attraction that makes the little circus stunt of Hillquit and Berger impossible of success.

What is left of the socialist party in these two states will be stripped, on the side of LaFollette, Al Smith and Blaine, of all elements ready to continue their present treason against the interests of the working class.

New masses of workers and poor farmers, who come out of this political contest, with their vision cleared, having learned the lesson that they have gone wrong temporarily in their struggle for power, must turn to the Communist movement.

They will realize that political power cannot be achieved thru a straddle, with one foot planted in the capitalist political organizations and the other suspended in midair.

Labor must base its struggle for victory on Communist principles. It is learning that lesson thru dearly bought experience in this presidential campaign.

THE SEVENTH VICTORIOUS YEAR

Raise High the Banner

The Red Flag must fly its highest this SEVENTH anniversary of the RUSSIAN REVOLUTION.

Every mass demonstration held must be BIGGER and BETTER than all that have gone before.

And here is where you come in—you, the party member.

You come in—to help! Truth is you ARE IN TO HELP.

Rather, you're in the revolutionary movement, HELPING, or you're not in it at all.

You have heard of the lazy man who bought a decrepit Ford, so that while out taking the air, he would not have to knock the ashes off his cigar!

But you're not he—are you? And not being he you'll go to your local secretary at once and say—

"WHAT CAN I DO TO MAKE OUR CELEBRATION OF THE SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION THE TALK OF THE TOWN?"

OUT NOVEMBER FIRST!

FARRINGTON IS FORCED TO GIVE AN ACCOUNTING

Had Peabody Boss on Payroll in 1922

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.
(Article Twelve.)

Frank Farrington crushed the 1919 strike but it cost the district treasury $27,000 to do so, and of this sum he failed to give an itemized account as required by the district constitution, section 13, article 8, outlining the duties of the secretary treasurer, which reads: "He shall submit to the locals, quarterly, an itemized statement of salary and expenses of each officer and employe of the district organization in separate items, and detailing the receipts and disbursements of all money belonging to the district union."

This strike and the methods he used to crush it rose up continually to plague Farrington like Banquo's ghost to Macbeth. The president stated that he had never seen a bill for any part of the $27,000 yet every dollar of that amount if spent had to be legalized by his signature before such a check could be cashed.

Locals Appealed

Nesbit refused to give an itemized statement claiming that the executive board of the district ordered him not to do so. Several locals appealed to the International Executive Board against this decision and the case came up in Indianapolis on Dec. 3, and 4, 1920.

When the so-called outlaw strike was practically at the end President Farrington made the following statement: "They say a hundred men are on the payroll of the district organization in Springfield. A hundred men. Never did a story have less basis for a statement than that one. Not a single man has been placed on the payroll of the district organization in that district—I repeat that not a single man has been placed on the payroll of the district since the trouble began."

The locals which insisted on having an itemised report did not know but this statement may be true, so they were more anxious than ever to find where the mysterious $27,000 went to.

Committee Appointed

The International Executive Board appointed a committee to conduct an investigation into the expenditure of the money. The committee after holding conferences with all concerned in the matter made the following report.

"Mr. John L. Lewis, President, United Mine Workers of America.
Indianapolis, Ind.

"Dear Sir and Brother:

"The Committee selected by the International Executive Board to conduct an investigation and render decision concerning appeal of aforesaid local union, in which it accuses Secretary Walter Nesbit of improperly accounting for approximately $27,000 of the district organization funds expended during a so-called unauthorized strike which occured the summer of 1919, desires to submit the following report:

"We proceeded to Illinois as per instruction, conferred with Secretary Nesbit most extensively, relative to the matter and afterwards sought to arrange a meeting of all interested parties at Majestic Hotel, Sept. 15, which matured and was represented by numerous representatives of the local union together with representatives of various other local unions who had also registered complaint in this connection.

"The appellant local union alleges that the secretary in his quarterly reports seeks to account for expenditure hereinbefore named in lump sum, under title "Wild-Cat-Strike" instead of itemising same, basing their contention on Section 13, Article 8, District No. 12, Constitution (section quoted already given in opening of this article).

Paid From District Funds

"The secretary makes no denial of this charge, but in defense of his action he states that an insurgent organization became very active in Illinois during the summer of 1919, which resulted in the district organization employing, temporarily, several men to prevent such insurgents from interrupting the United Mine Workers; that such special employes were paid out of the district funds and that he has in his possession receipts for same, but the district executive board authorized him to enter this appropriation in his report in the way and manner he did.

"In view of Section 13, Article 8, District Constitution hereinbefore reproduced, if it has any meaning at all, we are forced to the conclusion that the District Executive Board was in error when it took occasion to authorize Secretary Nesbit to not publish an itemized account of the expenditures over which this controversy arose. Thus the appeal of the local union is sustained and we therefore, decided that the district executive board stand reversed and the expenditures shall be itemized."

The report was signed by the committee. Farrington appealed from this decision to the International Executive Board and the case was heard on Dec. 3 and 4, 1920.

Were Not Friends

Farrington and Lewis at this time were not on friendly terms as a transcript of the case shows. They had not then reached the conclusion that it was better for them to hang together than hang separately, so Lewis was quite willing to make his then hated enemy sweat blood over the $27,000.

After listening to a reading of the appeals from the various locals, Farrington stated that he did not think it was the business of the International union to interfere in any way with the manner in which District 12 spent its funds. He charged Lewis with putting out propaganda about the matter and repeated that "not a single man has been placed on the payroll since the trouble started."

But Secretary Treasurer Nesbit, made the statement that "I think we had on the payroll at the time between four and six hundred men who were going around denying statements those other men were making and persuading men to stay at work."

It was not surprising that Farrington and his henchmen were opposed to giving an itemized account of the expenditure of the $27,000 as it was later on learned when the miners forced Lewis to compel Farrington give an itemized report of the $27,000 that $320.50 was paid to one Jack Brown a boss for the Peabody Coal company at Andrews, Illinois, and that this money was paid to him for slugging the Collinsville delegates on the streets of Springfield.

This man Brown is still a Peabody boss at Kincaid, and is still lined up with Farrington, or at least was in 1922 as we shall show. We have already published the telegram notifying Farrington of the time of departure of the Collinsville committee, so that Brown, Maher and Wall, the slugging committee, could meet them. The miners were beaten in front of the hotel where Farrington stayed by the three thugs. Wall and Maher are running for the jobs of legal investigators in the district election.

A letter written by Harry Fishwick, vice-president of the Illinois Miners' Union, to the notorious crook Brown, on Sept. 1, 1922, is hereby reproduced, also a note mentioned in the letter. It should be remembered that at the time this letter was written by Fishwick and addressed to Brown that the latter was a boss at the Peabody Coal company of which Farrington is reported to be a member.

The day on which this letter was written coinsides with the time district officers were nominated, elections taking places every two years. The note came due six months from the date or just about the time Farrington announced the results of the last district election.

The rank and file of the miners of Illinois believe that Farrington has an invisible payroll, with bosses, gamblers and other criminals on it. These fellows must be paid without a record of such transactions appearing in the official publications of the union. Therefore the best and safest way to pay them is from the jackpot provided by padded payrolls.

Had Reason to Fear.

In view of the relationship between Farrington and the underworld on one side, and the bosses and Farrington on the other, it is not surprising that he should loathe the radicals who are out to rid the union of his crooked gang of looters. It is not surprising that he should hate the Communists and The DAILY WORKER for exposing his slimy trail in the Illinois Mine Workers' Union. The motley crew of payroll patriots who surround Farrington know that once the radicals get control of the miners' union their days of luxury and ease, louing around small town hotels, will be at an end and that their opportunity to share in the prosperity of the coal operators at the expense of the coal diggers will come to an end.

Farrington's henchmen are now skulking thru the Illinois coal fields denouncing The DAILY WORKER.

They have very good reason for this hate. The DAILY WORKER will not be deterred from exposing the labor fakers and Farrington is only one of the thousands with which this country is infested, but it must be admitted that while he has never risen to the heights that his once hated foe John L. Lewis has risen to (or sunk perhaps) as one of Coolidge's right hand labor fakers, Farrington is a distinguished member of the labor lieutenants of capitalism.

Sunk Low Enough

In politics Farrington has never gone beyond being a lackey for Len Small, one of the cheapest political crooks in the nation. For this dirty work, Farrington gets well paid. Len and Frank are birds of a feather; Farrington looting and wrecking the miners union while Len Small and his gang of burglars rob the state treasury.

After a hard fight Farrington was obliged to give an itemized account of the $27,000. Many facts were brot out at the Indianapolis trial which go to prove what kind of cattle were used to smash the 1919 strike.

It was shown that an embeziler named Lee, a member of the union, was appointed deputy sheriff by the sheriff of Sangamon County at the request of Farrington. Others who had stolen money from the union were beneficiaries of the $27,000 fund and roamed around the streets of Springfield unmolested. One of the district board members, a man by the name of Hutton, and one of Farrington's most loyal supporters, is now in the employ of the coal operators in Springfield, Ill. A man is known by his friends. Farrington friends are to be found among the coal barons.

The revealing correspondence between Lewis and Farrington and the latter's about face on the Howat case will be dealt with in future articles.

PARALYSIS CURE POSSIBLE SAYS NOTED SURGEON

Last Year Brot Many Successful Results

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A simple operation, discovered recently by two Australian surgeons, which will restore to normal functioning the limbs of sufferers from rigid paralysis, was announced here this afternoon by Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., Dr. Mayo is attending the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons here.

The operation, Dr. Mayo said, had been tried several times within the last year with success. Other doctors attending the congress predicted that, as a result of Dr. Mayo's description and his endorsement of the operation, it soon would come into general use in the United States.

Dr. Mayo gave warning that the operation was dangerous in the hands of inexperienced men and said that paralytics should consult none but surgeons expert in its workings. Mistakes, he said were apt to prove fatal.

LET'S MAKE A DATE!

If you were there last Sunday night, you'll want to come next Sunday night, too. If you weren't there, and don't know what you missed, you will come Sunday after next, if you come next Sunday night. This sounds like a habit, and it is. It is the excellent habit of coming to the OPEN FORUM at the lodge room (not the big hall) of the Ashland Auditorium, every Sunday night.

Next Sunday night, Oct. 26, at 8 p. m., the editor of the DAILY WORKER, J. Louis Engdahl, will speak on "Spolansky and the Reds" — which sounds interesting, don't it? Take the Metropolitan "L" to Marshfield station or the surface lines to Ashland and Van Buren. Enter hall from Van Buren street. Every Sunday night, don't forget.

"The American Boom Is at an End . . ."

Says Prof. E. Varga in his "The Decline of Capitalism," a pamphlet just received from Europe. Also: "Will not the militaristic-imperialist policy of Poincare gain the upper hand, which fact would lead to a new catastrophe of the mark, since the Rentenmark, as artificial creation, would by no means be able to withstand such a blow?" A Stupid Flunkey

Why the capitalists retain some of their hirelings whose stupidity is so painful that it becomes the butt of ridicule is somewhat of a puzzle. Of course they hang on to Coolidge, but "Silent Cal" at least knows enuf to keep his mouth shut, except for an occasional speech on the Bible which is a safe field to cover. The less one knows about anything in particular the more he is sure to know about religion.

There are capitalist flunkies who are abysmally ignorant, so much so that they insist on everybody knowing it. One is T. V. O'Connor, formerly official head of the International Longshoremen's Union and still the real boss of that organization. O'Connor is now chairman of the United States shipping board and a lusty ballyhooer for Coolidge.

While speaking in Buffalo recently, O'Connor made the astounding statement that Soviet Russia had sent a big sum of money into the United States via Mexico in order to bring about the election of LaFollette. This yarn was so fantastic that even the considerable moron population was not deceived by it. They had more respect for the political judgment of the Soviet leaders than to think they would put their money behind a capitalist politician like LaFollette.

O'Connor was supoenaed by the Borah investigating committee in Washington to prove his assertion. He blandly admitted that he did not have the slightest grounds for making such a statement except that he believed it himself. Since William J. Burns was booted out of the department of justice, T. V. O'Connor stands head and shoulders among his co-workers in the capitalist government as the biggest ass in the paddock. He is also one of the biggest crooks that ever "worked" the trade union movement.

A Hubbub in the Hub

The staid and dignified, even tho crooked, city of Boston, is all het up over a tempest that is raging in the Boston symphony orchestra, because of the use of "Leningrad" in the books of that organization.

The conductor's name being Koussevitsky, suspicion immediately centered on him and without waiting to ask Jacob Spolansky whether he was a member of the "Knights of the Red Star" or not, the Commercial Bulletin, owned by Courtenay Guild, a name suggestive of the Mayflower, opened fire on Koussevitsky, suggesting that he was an agent of Trotsky.

Koussevitsky, however, soon routed any suspicion that his artistic and musical soul had any love for the Soviet government. Did he not call one million dollars in American money his own in the glorious days of the czar, when Leningrad was known as St. Petersburg? And did he not lose that cold million when the Bolsheviks took over the country in the name of the workers and peasants?

This confession established Koussevitsky immediately in the affections of the wrinkled aristocracy of the Back Bay, and the newspapers opened fire on Leningrad.

The Boston Herald, owned by the United Shoe Machinery company, exonerated Koussevitsky, but deplored that the war on Leningrad by the supporters of the Boston symphony orchestra was rather fruitless, as Leningrad was a fact and St. Petersburg and Petrograd were not, any more than the czar and his regime. The worthy Herald, in true Puritan style, regretted this, but hoped for better days.

The venerable Transcript dealt historically with Leningrad and after cursing Lenin, in true New England fashion, suggested that out of consideration for the million dollar feelings of Koussevitsky, those responsible for drawing up the program should leave Leningrad out. The Transcript winds up with: "In the meantime it is open to all of us to look forward with a sigh to the time when Russia shall return to her senses and to a respect for the historical proprieties . . ."

The Transcript is hopeful, even more so than Boris Savinkoff who for years fed the fires of the Transcript's optimism, only to finally surrender, broken and hopeless. Soviet-Russia is so strong today after the worst the murderous capitalists could do, that every important government in the world has recognized or is about to recognize the Workers' Republic except that of the United States.

The million dollar soul of the symphony conductor must make the best of the unavoidable.

Nov. 7th Special Issues

The DAILY WORKER plans to issue two special editions this year in honor of the seventh anniversary of the Russian Revolution, the greatest event in all human history.

When the workers of Russia struck the shackles of yardom and capitalist rule off their limbs in November, 1917, even the most sanguine did not dream that seven years afterwards would see the Soviet Republic, firmly established, rapidly forging ahead on the road to prosperity for its producers and in a position to make the mighty capitalist nations of the world recognize her power.

Yet such is the case. Today Soviet Russia is a power to be reckoned with. Her influence thruout the world is increasing and the toiling masses of mankind are looking more and more to the Workers' Republic of Russia for inspiritaion and help in their struggle to free themselves from the yoke of wage slavery.

The best writers in the international Communist movement will contribute to the special anniversary Soviet numbers of The DAILY WORKER. Our readers should now send in their orders for extra bundles.

Using the Party Registration

By JAMES P. CANNON, Assistant Executive Secretary, Workers Party.

THE important task of registering the entire party membership is now nearly complete and the great majority of the party braches have sent in their returns. A large number of branches however are still behind in their duty, and this is causing some difficulty. The complete utilization of the registration requires that the whole party be registered and to this end it is a first duty of every party branch to see that its registration is completed and sent in the National, District and Local offices without delay. There can be no let-up in the campaign until every single branch in the party has given an account of itself.

The registration cards already filled out give us a fairly good bird's-eye view of the party. We can already get a fairly good line on its class composition, trade union affiliations, etc. This information is a prerequisite to the successful carrying out of a number of necessary activities.

How to Use the Industrial Registration.

The local and district offices should utilize the registration material to the fullest extent without delay for the carrying out of three cardinal tasks.

1. Classify the registration cards first of all according to industries and shops. Wherever the information discloses that a number of party comrades are working in the same shop or factory they should be called together and the preliminary steps taken to organize them into a shop nucleus which is to become a basic unit of the party. The detailed organizational steps for the foundation of shop nuclei, which will make allowances for the complicated problem of the existence of so many language federations in the party, is now being worked by the C. E. C. and will finally be adopted in the near future. In the meantime the local and district organizers should take the first steps of calling the comrades together and effecting a preliminary shop nucleus organization wherever possible.

Do not lose sight of the fundamental importance of this activity. The 5th Congress of the Communist International makes it mandatory upon all the parties of the International to completely reorganize themselves on the basis of shop unclei and declares that there is no such thing as a genuine Communist Party which has any other form of organization. Therefore, let us get to work at this task without delay. The information contained in the party registration affords the basis for a beginning.

Communist Trade Union Fractions.

2. A second most important work which will be greatly facilitated by a utilization of the registraton is the organization of Communist nuclei in the various trade unions to which party members are affiliated. In order to accomplish this it is necessary to rearrange the registration cards according to trade unions and industries. The best method is to make general divisions according to industry with subdivisions according to the different unions in the given industry. Wherever the information discloses that several party members, or even a single member, belong to a trade union, they should be brot together and organized into a fraction for work in the union. These fractions should be connected together and arrangements made for their systematic co-operation. The party members should be familiarized with our general practical program of work in the unions and they must be given special directions to undertakr the organization of a branch of the Trade Union Educational League in their union without delay. The various national trade union committees of the T. U. E. L. have worked out detailed practical programs for each trade and industry in printed form. These programs must be made familiar to our party members in the various local unions and they should set to work at once to create an agitation for them. The party must dig its root ever deeper into the trade unions and make itself more and more a part of their daily life. This work can be done systematically only if our party members are organized into fractions and carry out their work according to a general plan. The trade union work of the party should and will receive a tremendous impetus if the local and district offices will utilize the priceless material gained by the industrial registration for this purpose.

Getting Party Members Into Unions.

The Party registration will disclose that a very large percentage of our Party members who are working in organized trades are not yet affiliated to their respective unions, their value in the Party and their efficiency in the class struggle is thereby greatly decreased. The Party will make it its aim to enroll the entire Party membership, which is eligible, in the trade unions. There can be no slackness or good-natured toleration on this point. The comrades whom the registration discloses to be unconnected with trade unions must be called together and thoroly informed as to the Party's role and task and program in the trade unions and steps must be taken to enroll them in the unions without delay. In shops and industries which are not yet organized, the industrial registration will provide a basis for the organization of local unions in many fields. The great and necessary slogans "Organize the Unorganized," will get real significance when the Communists themselves take the lead all along the line in forming new unions. If the Communists take the initiative in actually forming labor unions, it can be safely calculated that they will succeed in permeating them with their spirit and doctrines and in directing their activities into the channels of the militant class struggle.

From the matters lightly touched on above it becomes clear that the industrial registration of the Party members is of the greatest value to the Party and provides the material for the beginning of some of the most pressing and necessary tasks of the Party. Local and district organizers must therefore persist in their efforts to get 100 per cent registration, to utilize the material of the registration to the utmost and to take special care, along the line of directions already sent to them, for the safeguarding of the Party membership in the registration.

That Funny Wobbly Editor

By HARRISON GEORGE.

THE French have a saying—"Voler au secours de la victoire"—meaning, "To fly to the assistance of the victors, after the victory is won." An amusing instance of this ironic situation is that of the demagogic editor of the Industrial Worker of Seattle, who, after waging a persistent war month after month to create a split in the I. W. W.—now, suddenly discovering that his injunctionite co-conspirators are losing out, rushes courageously into print in his editorial of October 22, to assert melodramatically "Disruption is silenced in the unity of the membership." And in the 'Student Corner"—"Jim loves his union."

It is too bad that this sycophant is not nearer the basis of Jim Rowan's headquarters, from whence the dauntless James marshalls his hosts of two lawyers and a corporal's guard of stool pigeons. Rowan's publicity department seems to have bet on the wrong horse and is now exclaiming that the dagger they came onto the stage with was not meant to stab the organizaion in the back, not at all and by no means, but merely to "rescue" the I. W. W. from those who from the beginning fought the injunction and urged unity, those Communists, those "politicians."

Facts are blithely tossed aside. That for months he ran the address of the injunctionites as the proper address of the I. W. W. headquarters, that he (and presumably the Industrial Worker Committee agreed) printed the convention call for 180 West Washington, a mere that J. A. Griffith confessed—and everyone knew—was a deliberate call for a split, that he editorially injected all sorts of arguments into the paper to uphold the injunctionites—that he ranted against Communists as "outsiders" while swallowing the "outsider" of a capitalist judge without batting an eye—these crimes against unity in the I. W. W. are tossed aside. "Can't you take a joke?" he asks, "Don't you see I was for unity all along?"

True enuf, this gambler for a split is a little apprehensive. He discovers an unusual reason, for him, for not printing any "news story." It is that he has "no information." This slight obstacle does not, of course, prevent him writing a long editorial concerning "politicians" and the convention. He needs no facts for that, indeed they are a positive detriment. But the one fact of unity makes him disturbed. "This is no time for guess work," he observes. And aside he adds, "It looks bad for me, this unity; but maybe it's an injunctionite unity. This suspense is awful. Why don't Rowan wire? I'll just write some attack on the Communists and say—'This is no time for guess work.' That means nothing, and whichever side wins, I'm safe."

But fear overtakes our Sir Galahad, charging to the rescue of solidarity. "If it means unity against the injunctionites and against Rowan, if they look at my 'Students' Corner' where I speak of a clause relative to its antecedent and see 'Those who are class conscious should be considered;' then it's curtains for me. So I'll write a plea for magnanity like this—'All the wild talk of punishments and expulsions egged on by interested politicians will disappear now.'" Whenever in doubt, attack the "politicians," such is the best effort of this amusing yet dangerous fool who is allowed to play with ink and paper.

Unions Endorse Workers Party Ticket

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 24.—Another local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of this city, Local No. 140, has endorsed the Workers Party candidates for president and vice-president.

Bakers' Union, Local No. 201, endorsed the Workers Party ticket and sent in a $15 check. A $15 check was also received from Upholsterers' Local Union No. 77.

The question of endorsing Foster and Gitlow was raised in the Amalgamated local after a delegation of the LaFollette campaign committee appeared before the executive board of that local asking for the endorsement of LaFollette. The matter was referred to a general membership meeting of the local in order to give a chance to the rank and file to decide the question. The general membership meeting rejected the motion to endorse LaFollette for president. A motion made by Brother Rubin calling for the endorsement of the Workers Party ticket then carried by a big majority vote. This is the second biggest local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of this city going on record in favor of Foster and Gitlow while the joint board rejected a proposition to endorse LaFollette.

Program of the Communist International

DRAFT ADOPTED AT THE FIFTH WORLD CONGRESS.

INTRODUCTION.

In the revolutionary fight against capitalist domination, the international proletariat must unite the efforts of its separate detachments and merge these detachments into one international proletarian army. The organization, which unites the fighting revolutionary proletariat, regardless of state boundaries, nationality, race, creed, sex, or occupation, is the International Workers' Association, the Communist International. The Communist International, uniting all the Communist parties and constituting in itself the militant world party of the proletariat, aims at the emancipation of labor from the yoke of capital; it openly advocates the violent overthrow of the bourgeois order by means of the Communist revolution, and thus continues the revolutionary tradition of the Communist association, and the First International founded by Marx. It entirely and unreservedly maintains the standpoint of revolutionary Marxism, which found its most complete expression in Leninism which is pure and simple Marxism of the epoch of the direct proletarian fight for the conquest of power. The Communist International is fighting on this basis for clarity in the class consciousness of the masses by placing its dialectic materialism in opposition to the teachings of the bourgeois ideology, and thereby leading the fight against any kind of bourgeois influence over the proletariat, such as religion, idealistic and non-materialist dialectic philosophy, the doctrine of harmony between capital and labor, socialistic opportunism—thereby consistently maintaining the basis of the class struggle. The Communist International formulates its entire fundamental principles, aims and fundamental methods for struggle on this basis, and in the program, which unites millions of toilers, explains the position of the oppressed under capitalist rule, and shows them the way to victory over the bourgeoisie, and to the construction of the Communist society.

I. Capitalist Wage Slavery.

1. General Characteristics of Capitalism as a System of Exploitation.

At the present time almost the whole globe is under the rule of capitalism. Only in the Soviet Union has the domination of capital been superseded.

This rule is based upon private property and the production of commodities for the market.

A small group of persons is in possession of the monopoly of the means of producing these goods, and of the means of distributing them, this group is the capitalist class. This monopoly assures to this class an undivided economic domination over millions of proletarians, who possess no means of production, and who are forced to sell their labor power.

The relation of wage-labor to capital forms the basis of bourgeois society.

The economic domination of the bourgeoisie is secured by its political rule, and by its state organization, which secures it a monopoly over arms and all other means of applying physical force.

The rule of the bourgeoisie is also secured culturally, for it possesses the monopoly of education, which is in the hands of the capitalists.

The working class, economically oppressed, subjected politically and culturally, is the wage-slave of capital.

The working class, which forms a constantly growing section of the population, thus serves as a living source of profit to the bourgeoisie, which exploits its labor.

2. Contradictions in the Development of the Capitalist System.

The hunt for profits forced the bourgeoisie to develop its productive powers continuously and increasingly, and to extend the sphere of operations of capitalist production. The fundamental contradictions of the capital system, however, reveal themselves at the same time with ever growing distinctness; these defects inevitably lead to the complete breakdown of the capitalist system.

Capitalist society, built upon the exploitation of an overwhelming majority of the population by an inconsiderable minority, is torn in two, and its whole history is one of conflicts between the classes.

The rule of private property imparts an anarchic character to production, and leads to blind production regulated by no conscious power. This is shown on the one hand in the severe conflicts between various competing concerns and groups of concerns, causing an enormous waste of energy; on the other hand the unregulated production—absence of proportion between its various branches, and the result of this anarchy of production—the contradiction between the increased production and the restricted consuming ability of the proletarian masses—causes periodically recurring crisis, accompanied by destruction of productive forces and mass unemployment among the proletariat.

The struggle of the capitalists for world domination leads to a special form of competition among the capitalist states, finally expressed in wars which are inevitable accompaniments of capitalism, as are crises and unemployment.

The extension of capitalist production, involving the development of productive forces, is accompanied by the decay of pre-capitalist economic forms in the competitive struggles, the decay of a part of the peasantry, by the disappearance of handicrafts, by the economic defeat of small and middle capital, and by the open plundering and merciless exploitation of the colonial countries. This process leads on the one hand to an accumulation of capital, to its concentration in the hands of a few millionaires, and is, on the other hand, accompanied by a tremendous increase in the numbers of the proletariat which, having passed thru the severe school of the capitalist system, become the deadly enemy of the bourgeoisie and its system of society.

The process of the concentration of capital, and of the extension of the capitalist system, constantly reproduces the fundamental contradictions of capitalism on an ever-increasing scale. The competition among small capitalists ceases, only to be replaced by that among big capitalists; where competition among big capitalists comes to a standstill, it widens its radius and becomes a competition between the gigantic associations of the millionaires and their states; the crises change from those of local and national character to crises extending over a number of countries, and finally to world crises; the local wars are replaced by alliances and world wars; the class war develops from isolated actions of single groups of workers, first to a national struggle, and then to an international struggle of the world proletariat against the world bourgeoisie.

The inevitable aggravation of class antagonism is accompanied by a simultaneous consolidation of the antagonistic class forces. On the one hand, the capitalist bourgeoisie forms its associations, secures its state power, and organizes its armed forces; on the other hand, the working class, brought into one camp and united by the mechanism of capitalist production itself, creates its own powerful organizations, which are sooner or later transformed into weapons of the proletariat in the war against the bourgeoisie and its main support—state power.

The natural course of capitalist evolution thus inevitably sharpens the contradictions of the capitalist system, and finally renders the existence of the system itself impossible. The living force which overthrows the capitalist system is the proletariat, which revolts against its bondage, annihilates the regime of capital, and organizes the systematic economics of socialism, the premises of which are created by capitalism itself.

These pre-requisites of the new form of society which have to replace capitalism, are: the concentration of the means of production, the powerful capitalist technique, the science created by capitalist evolution, the workers' organizations which will be able to furnish the first organizers of the new order of society; finally, the Marxian theory, the greatest weapon of the proletarian struggle, which is becoming a powerful force, as soon as it captures the masses.

3. Imperialism the Last Stage of Capitalism.

The last decades of the rule of capital are characterized by special features of evolution, rendering the internal contradictions intensely acute, resulting in the unheard-of war crisis of 1914, and leading to the mighty revolutionary crisis (beginning with the Russian October, 1917, revolution) and the general capitalist crisis.

Capitalism became world capitalism; a universally dominant force. The survivals of the social relations of the past— primitive Communism, feudal relations, chattel slavery, merchant capital, the simple exchange of commodities of the handicraftsman, peasant barter and commodity exchange—all these forms, scattered in the various parts of the globe, are being destroyed partly by force, and partly by "peaceful" means, and subjected to the rule of big capital.

The numerous private undertakings competing with one another and destroying each other in this competition, have been replaced by mighty associations of industrial magnates (syndicates, trusts, cartels and companies consolidated by the banks.) This new form of capital, in which banking capital amalgamates with industrial capital, in which the possessions of the large landowners also become a part of the general organization thru the agency of the banks, where there are cliques of enormously rich financial oligarchies almost possessing the character of hereditary dynasties, bears a sharply accentuated monopolist character. Free competition, which has taken the place of the feudal monopolist economics, now changes into a monopoly of finance capital.

This organization of capital, essentially monopolist in character, and frequently causing separate groups of the bourgeoisie of different branches of industry to unite, also gives rise to substantial changes in the type of competitive struggle. Instead of competing by means of low prices, there is a growing tendency to use force openly: boycotts and other forms of pressure within the country itself; high protective duties, tariff wars, the employment of armed force backed by state power in international relations. This increasing acuteness of competition is, in international economic relations, largely due to two facts: first to the general division of the colonies among the greatest capitalist states; secondly, to the extraordinary increase in the export of capital, accompanied by the increased endeavor to occupy and control the territories fully to which the exported capital flows.

Under such conditions state power and its armed forces assume a special significance for the bourgeoisie. The policy of finance capital is directed to rapacious activity of the utmost intensity (imperialism), requiring enormous reinforcements for armies, air fleets, and every description of means of annihilation. The gigantic development of competition is one of the causes of the increasing acuteness of the competitive struggle which ends in disastrous wars.

The process of the centralization of capital on a world scale has thus led to the creation of great powers of finance capital, which have become the center of the capitalist pressure extending thruout the world, of the capitalist predatory raids, and of the exploitation and enslavement of enormous numbers of proletarian, semi-proletarian, and peasant elements. The weaker bourgeois states exist in direct or indirect dependence on these mighty powers, and are at their mercy. A definite object for enslavement and exploitation is supplied by the colonies, which possess hundreds of millions of working and exploited inhabitants.

There are two main forces being organized under the hegemony of the proletariat against the mighty organized forces of finance capital; the workers of the capitalist states, and the peoples of the colonies oppressed by foreign capital. The basic revolutionary tendency is, however, temporarily paralyzed by the corruption of a considerable section of the European and American proletariat by the imperialist bourgeoisie. The bourgeoisie of the most powerful imperialist states, which have reaped enormous profits by plundering colonies and semi-colonies, have raised the wages of a section of their own workers out of the booty of their plunder, thereby interesting these workers in allegiance to the imperialist "Fatherland" and in its plunderings. This systematic bribery has taken special effect among the labor aristocracy (the workers in the particularly privileged trades, the highly skilled workers, the workers in state and municipal enterprises, and so on), and among the leading bureaucratic elements of the working class, social-democracy and trade unions, which have become absolute tools in the hands of the bourgeoisie.

The keen competition among the most powerful of the great powers for the possession of the colonies led to the world war of 1914. This war shook the foundations of capitalist economics to such an extent, rendered the position of the working class so much worse, destroyed so many imperialistic illusions among the proletariat, that it introduced a new historic phase in the disintegration of capitalist production, on a world scale.

Campaign Notes of a District Organizer

By ARNE SWABECK.

"LA FOLLETTE or Foster," said the secretary of the miners' local at Johnston City, Ill. to me, "is the issue amongst the Illinois miners in this election. As far as we are concerned the old parties are not considered, we are thru with them." He was a LaFollette supporter.

This statement vividly illustrated the distance traversed in rapid tempo during a short span of political development in this country. LaFollette versus Foster—the representative of the small capitalists and certain sections of the labor aristocracy or the representative of the revolutionary proletariat—that is the issue which demands a definite decision by the workers, not only now but after this election as well. It represents a certain analogy with conditions of the politically more developed countries of Europe. An intensive struggle for the leadership of the masses of workers between the socialist traitors and their supporters, the labor bureaucrats, and the petty bourgeoisie on the one hand and the Communists on the other, preceding the establishment of a real united front for the victory over capitalism.

Perhaps the beginning of this struggle was more clearly indicated thru the Chicago factory straw vote conducted by the local Workers Party. First the general break away from the old parties and secondly the heated debates as to the issue—LaFollette versus Foster.

The great majority of the factory workers canvassed by this straw vote and even a good proportion of office workers employed by the same concerns showed that they were thru with such outstanding tools of capitalist exploitation as Coolidge and Davis. While many would step up to deposit their straw, looking slyly at the canvassers, indicating that they had taken the "great step away from their old party" and voted for LaFollette, whom some of the bosses call radical, others would proudly announce "I am for Foster," knowing that theirs was the class conscious part. Those were also the ones who would immediately set out to convince their fellow workers that this was a class issue—Communism versus Capitalism—even tho the latter may wear the mask of LaFollette progressives.

Getting on the ballot by nominating petitions is tedious work. Yet the circularizing of petitions offers splendid opportunities to bring this issue to the workers. One of our Chicago party members confessed to me that nine hours' work on one Sunday for one of the Communist congressional candidates had netted him only 61 signatures, but he had missed no opportunity to explain to the workers the issues that were at stake. And then—nine hours, voluntarily, of such tedious work show the stuff that some of our party members are made of.

Evenings, when our party workers went out to get signatures, time was too precious to allow for lengthy discussions. One respectable citizen, after having signed his name to a Workers Party petition presented to him exclaimed, "I will sign for anybody except these d— bolsheviks." Our comrade was in a hurry to leave but he managed to leave a DAILY WORKER in this citizen's hands and get the promise that he would read it. Butting into another family this comrade had no sonner mentioned the word petition than the man of the house curtly informed him that there was only one kind of petition that he would ever sign his name to. "What kind?" queried our comrade. "Only a Communist petition will do for me," came the reply. Well, all adults in that family were immediately signed up.

Canvassing the outskirts of the city one young chap, in informing one of our party workers that his father was not home, said, "You may come back later. Of course, I cannot guarantee that my father will sign his name to your petition, you see, he is only a socialist."

Seemingly nothing could stop LaFollette in his own state, Wisconsin. Nay more—supported by the Milwaukee socialist party, bankrupted by the traitorous selling out of their official leadership, LaFollette was ready to annihilate all working class opposition. Although filing nominating petitions containing nearly twice the amount of signatures required by the state, his chief satellite, Attorney General Herman L. Ekern ruled that the names of the Worker Party candidates for president and vice president, Wm. Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow could not appear on the ballot. That privilege would be reserved only for LaFollette and Wheeler even tho they were nominated in the same manner. Meanwhile the police under the jurisdiction of the socialist mayor of Milwaukee discovered that the "restricted zone" rule could conveniently be applied against Workers Party street speakers, no matter what part of the city that might be. Never mind the regular republicans, the LaFolletteites and the Salvation Army that were holding forth in the same zones.

Our party fought both obstructions compelling a reversal of the rulings on the ballot, and our street speakers, interrupted now and then by involuntary visits to the Milwaukee police station, addressed thousands of workers. The names of our presidential candidates are now on the ballot while ever growing numbers of workers come to listen to the Communist message delivered by our speakers. Actual demonstrations teaching these workers that the capitalist face is by far the predominating part of the LaFollette movement. They are turning toward the leader of the revolutionary proletariat—the Communist Party.

Strange enough, precisely the same methods to hamstring the revolutionary workers attempted in the state dominated by LaFollette were pursued in Indiana, dominated by the steel kings, the Ku Klux Klan and home of the headquarters of the grandest collection of reactionary union fakers. But they failed just as miserably there.

The political lackeys and lickspittles of these dominant powers in Indiana secured an injunction restraining the Board of Election Commissioners from placing the candidates of the Workers Party with those of other so-called minor parties on the ballot, giving their usual flimsy excuses for such action. It is interesting to note that the injunction appeared as soon as nominating petitions of the Workers Party had been filed. But no matter how endeared the injunction weapon has become to this gentry, this time it could not stand the test. A demand for a rehearing finally resulted in a reversal of the injunction ruling in the case of our party.

Capitalist solidarity knows many methods. When one fails another will be tried. And so when our comrades of Gary, Ind., approached the banker who is in charge of the armory of that city to make arrangements to rent the premises for a meeting, bringing with them the necessary amount of money, he asked who was to speak and for what party. Upon being informed that the speaker would be Wm. Z. Foster, the candidate for president of the Workers Party, he said: "Nothing doing, Foster is not a good citizen." This was the verdict of a banker.

Nevertheless Foster will be on the ballot in Indiana and he will also speak at Gary. The steel workers will know that a vote for Foster means the first step toward class action. To many of them the issue LaFollette versus Foster has gone a long way towards complete clarification. The brutal capitalist exploitation, as particularly manifested in the steel mills, breeds class consciousness and continually, strengthens the foundation for the revolutionary movement.

Down in Christopher, Ill., the Ku Klux mayor and his Ku Klux helpers and sheriffs closed the hall on Mother Bloor, the Workers Party campaign speaker, and drove the assembled workers on the streets. He prohibited any Communist meeting in the town. Then the miners who filled the streets to hear the Communist message marched to the city limits followed by their wives carrying children in their arms. "A pathetic but impressive sight," said an eye-witness. Under the flickering glare of a lantern the meeting was held. That, however, did not end the fight. One week later Wm. F. Dunne, Communist candidate for governor of the state, spoke to a much larger gathering right in the heart of the town.

The mayor of Madison, Ill., issued the same sort of an edict against Communist campaign meetings and closed the halls. It only resulted in a bigger protest meeting addressed by Mother Bloor at Granite City which is virtually built together with Madison and ruled by the same steel trust. The numbers of this gathering was further increased at the subsequent meeting addressed by Comrade Dunne.

Surely great efforts are being exerted to line up the Illinois workers for LaFollette. Here is where this campaign is being particularly concentrated to attempt to carry in a popular sweep all the less conscious working class votes. But with this concentration the issue LaFollette versus Foster has become more pronounced.

Illinois is supposed to be a cinch for LaFollette. Undoubtedly the experiences of the great industrial proletariat of this state will manfest itself in a confused rebellion against the strike-breaker president and the Morgan-Rockefeller lawyer and all that they stand for. The vague desire for a labor party has prompted many workers to look toward the LaFollette movement believing that that is it. Said the secretary of the big miners' local of Staunton, Ill. to me: "I am for LaFollette because I believe it is the beginning toward a labor party. On most of the other progressive issues I agree with you fellows. I am with you in the fight to rout the labor fakers who have infested themselves upon our movement."

He did not realize that the LaFollette movement has served as the main factor to defeat the labor party.

While the LaFollette movement has two faces ready made, in Illinois it takes great care to appear primarily under its labor face, yet the state campaign committee is dominated by representatives of non-labor elements, progressive republicans, republicans, progressive democrats, Irish-Americans, German-Americans, etc. Not that this composition is anything incidental or for that matter different from any other state.

Nowhere has the manipulations in the pre-election maneuvers of the astute but visionless trade union bureaucrats become as politically corrupt as in Illinois. The labor endorsements of the "progressives" was skillfully engineered to include Governor Small; the champion among corrupt capitalist politicians; the "good roads governor" who builds hard roads in the state paying the workers 40 cents an hour, working ten hours a day. As the miners, due to unemployment were compelled to engage in this kind of work, they realized why these were called "hard roads." This Governor Small as soon as the zero hour for the filing of independent nominating petitions had struck, announced himself as a regular republican; a supporter of Coolidge and Dawes and all that Wall Street stands for. This, however, did not disturb the labor politicians in the least. They knew the game and are continuing their indorsements of capitalist politicians.

Meanwhile unemployment is increasing in Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois. The big factories are laying off help, steel production is at a low ebb and many mines have remained closed for months. The workers are feeling the realities of the capitalist method of production.

Two hundred Illinois mines have remained closed for more than six months, the remaining 197 are operating, averaging one-third time. Forty-three thousand Illinois coal miners have been unemployed for more than six months, the remaining 62,000 average two days a week. September, 1924, found 97,000 fewer workers employed in the factories of the state than the same month last year. The free employment agencies report 142 applicants for each 100 jobs while 68 per cent of the entire working population of the state are on less than full-time schedule—starvation and misery in prospect.

From the old parties nothing can be expected. From the captalist government or the capitalist manufacturers' organizations nothing but ruthless prosecution of the capitalist aims in the class struggle can be expected. The LaFollette movement offers no hope of relief for this prospective starvation and misery. On the contrary its avowed aim is to keep capitalism in power and maintain the capitalist system of production. Only the Workers Party organizes and prepares the workers thru a militant struggle for their immediate needs and for the overthrow of capitalism.

Are You Going to the Open Forum Sunday Night?

LETTERS FROM MOSCOW

By ANNA PORTER

A little incident in child-reclamation came accidentally to my notice the other day. The government is making headway slowly but surely in this respect as in most others, but the waifs do not take altogether kindly to being reclaimed from the gutters and their adventurous life, and being troublesomely civilized. It is so much easier in summertime to curl up in the angle of a wall at night in your dirty clothes, and not bother about baths and hair-brushing. But here the Young Leninists come in. These little folk af an age below that of the Young Communists—down in fact to the tots who struggle so valiantly to keep up in the processions, all understand, to the youngest, what their task is in building the new Russia. Several hundred thousand of these there are thruout the country. "Be prepared," is their salute, and quick as a flash from the tiniest comes the response with hand high, "Always prepared!"

The following incident shows one direction in which they are working,—"always prepared" to handle it efficiently. I had been having a sort of dinner-lunch—in the Russian fashion anywhere from three to six—in the co-operative restaurant across the way, under the Second House of the Soviets,—where officials of one sort or another are housed in the old Hotel Metropole,—with a Russian speaking comrade who is especially interested in the child problem. It was Sunday and as we finished, we saw great companies of the Young Leninists come marching from the Red Square,—so many that I think it must have been their "Day." Past and past they tramped with bands and banners, dressed in their varied gymnasium suits and uniforms, all united by the red neckerchief, until finally one company stopped just in front of our entrance, and went through their drills, interpretive posturing it might be called, in perfect accord with the music, while a half dozen little beggar boys who had been hanging about the restaurant dodging the manager, joined the crowd who stood to watch the marchers.

This last company then swung about and marched into the building to a clubroom or hall they have, and the crowd dwindled away, leaving us alone with the beggar boys. My companion tried to interview them. They were reluctant of course, but they gained courage and gathered around as he craftily shifted his attention to a young Pole who stopped and became interested. He had run away from a reactionary family to Russia he said, and joined the Communist Party. Then gradually the boys allowed themselves to be drawn in, but before we had made any headway, two Young Leninists, in their red handkerchief ties, a bright-faced stocky girl of perhaps fourteen, and a slender boy of the same age, came out from the hall, swooped down without warning upon the boys and carried them off by storm, herding them alone with loving arms about the ragged shoulders and dusty towsled heads.

All but one! The toughest of the lot refused to surrender—a bull-dogey little boy in a coat of ragged gunnysacking. We talked to him—to his back—as he tried to escape us by burrowing in a stone wall with his hand. Yes, he would like to go into a home and be fed—but he was grumpy and skeptical in the acknowledgement. Again we were supplanted by the two little Leninists of his own age, generalled by the bright-faced, competent girl, and after a very short comradely struggle, they carried him off in triumph—with a sulky reluctance on his part it is true—nevertheless they had him. It took childhood to capture childhood. These little folk are psychologists!

But what can they do with them? I asked. Is there any hope of helping them at once? Not all of them, was the reply. The children's homes are full, housing is hopelessly inadequate, all the energy at present—and funds—are put into repairing the old buildings to keep them from falling to pieces. Children are swarming in Russia inadequately cared for in groups, everyone is clamoring to send proteges into this or that home or colony which is already crowded. But at least the children can interest these and teach them, show them how the Leninists work and play, share the Communist ideal with them, and give them the desire to be the comrades of the other children. Above all show them active workers in the organization who have been reclaimed from the same wretched life. It seemed so hopeful, suddenly, getting a glimpse of the practcal work thru the children themselves.

And the older ones. The new psychology is working there even among the youth of the dispossessed. However much they dislike adapting themselves to the new life, they are learning to understand sympathetically. Recently I took breakfast at a small cafe near by—the kind of cafe which hangs a sign reading, "Do not give fees—Giver and taker are master and servant, and since October this must not be," and "October" means of course, Red October. Some misunderstanding caused the proprietor to ask a young man in a good-looking overcoat and soft hat—which marked his bourgeois caste!—to explain to me in French. When he found I spoke English, in which he was equally at home, he said, "Oh, I am so glad to meet English-speaking people. There are too many Russians here!" I couldn't help laughing at the unreasonableness of it. He explained in a discouraged way that he was furnishing the cafe with cakes his mother had made, and he got out a sifter and sifted sugar carefully over each layer as they were taken from the boxes. I waited for him and we walked down the street together. His father had been a rich merchant, and tho he was too young to understand much when the Revolution came, he made with his family, "great opposition." "I am not afraid to tell you," he sad. "They know me and I am doing my work and making no trouble and they let me alone." He is doing "dirty work" for the army—being a strong young fellow and not eligible during this probation, to the ranks—and is "learning." "There are only hundreds of us," he said, "and there are millions of workers benefitted by the change, but oh, if only the rest of Europe would hurry up, and help us, and so get things along." He understands the sincerity of Russia's "war on war," compared with the pretence of other nations. "We have our army, but Russia will never fight another imperialistic war." I said I supposed he had no chance in the university and he replied, "No, for there is not room for all, and that is dreadful for me, but then before, the workers never had a chance."

This is what he is "learnng," poor young fellow, learning with weariness and resignation, but I think with understanding and sympathy, for he is young and he too has a part in Russia's future, as big and interesting a part as he shall prove himself fit to play. But the old are not so easily reconciled. They are indignant and critcal and can only see that their pleasant and comfortable life has been upset, and that there is no immediate prospect of anything better than the present confusion of their lives. If, as the youth said, Europe would only hurry up!

MUSIC - LITERATURE - DRAMA

Old Compositions Jazzed up to Suit the Popular Taste

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

Paul Whitman, the emperor of jazz, gave a concert of jazz music at the Studebaker theater last Sunday. He opened his program with a composition played by the small five-piece dance orchestra of six years ago, showing what a foolish, insipid effect the quintet of blaring noise makes.

Then came Whitman's orchestra of today. Some thirty instrumentalists played over forty instruments. He showed how well-known standard compositions can be turned into comedy numbers thru burlesquing them. "The Carnival of Venice," turned into "So This Is Venice" and into good dance pieces by speeding up the rhythm.

There were a good many straight dance numbers, and a few compositions written expressly for Whitman.

The technique of the orchestra is astounding. One of the performers, Ross Gorman, seems to play all reed instruments. Clarinets, saxophones, oboes, English horns and a few outlandish instruments such as the octavin, the all but obsolete bass oboe, and a queer machine that looks like a cross between a saxophone and a sarrusophone, and sounds like a cow with a cold, have no terrors for him. He gets around them all, and seems to play them all at once. The effects in the brass instruments produced by various freak mutes range all the way from bull frog grunts to a finely spun out, silky violin like tone.

In short, the conclusion to draw from Whitman's concert is that while the rendition of jazz music is one of the finest of fine arts, the composition of it is a trade. After two hours of the popular songs of commerce, one has the sensation of being bathed in sugar up to the neck. There is no originality of invention in them, and the form is absolute and unvariable. Whitman's orchestra is as perfect an instrument as Frederick Stock's, but where Stock has an unlimited field of music to choose from, Whiteman has only a lot of plagiarism and burlesques of well-known music. The form of a popular song is as mathematically worked out as that of a locomotive, and variation in the number of bars allotted to any section of a jazz song is unheard of.

There exist, however, three pieces of music pointing a way out. Whiteman played two of them, a suite of serenades by Victor Herbert, and a "Rhapsody in Blue" for piano and orchestra by George Gershwin. Herbert's serenades are in conventional form, with a lively melody that sounds good no matter how played. But the arrangement for saxophones, gagged trumpets and trombones and percussion instruments handled as only a jazz drummer can handle them, makes the suite a real jazz work.

Gershwin has gone a good deal further. There are real jazz tunes in his rhapsody and the symphonic handling of them, combined with a sweeping, wild and excessively difficult piano part, knocks the highbrows off their feet. This is the first really serious and worthwhile handling of popular rhythms.

The third work mentioned above is John Alden Carpenter's "Krazy Kat." Carpenter has written a ballet around the familiar cartoon. Herriman, the cartoonist, designed the scenery and Adolph Bolm, who used to be the ballet master of the Chicago opera, has produced the ballet a number of times.

In other words, jazz must free itself from the quantity production of dance tunes and come out into worthwhile forms. The means by which such music can be played is here. And one "Rhapsody in Blue" is worth a thousand "Mother, Dixie and You" songs.

PHILADELPHIA TURNS OUT TO MOVIE TO AID STRIKE FUND

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(I. W. A. Service) Lulu Temple was jammed for two shows of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls." Both pictures came in for their share of praise, and the feature so interested the big crowd that its five reels ended all too soon. The local committee is so delighted with its success that it expects to put on the films again for a three or four day run in co-operation with other friendly labor organizations.

A feature of the showing was a collection of $345.19 for the benefit of the Paterson Silk strikers. The proceeds of the show will be about a thousand dollars.

Alex Bail, the able secretary of the Philadelphia committee for International Workers' Aid, writes: "A very successful showing of the new films, which is not surprising considering their character. We are very glad to hear of the plans to expand this work to the extent of producing and distributing American and German labor films. The field is fruitedful and as yet untouched. During a talk with the secretary of the Pennsylvania state board of censors a couple of weeks ago, he said 'The silver screen can be made a powerful weapon for revolution.' Be that as it may, we know that it is already a valuable instrument for working class education. All efforts to extend the work are greeted with enthusiasm in this burg and we will do all we can to help along this important work."

Watch The DAILY WORKER for information regarding the showing of this film in Pittsburgh and other Pennsylvania cities.

The Present World Situation

By A. STALIN
Secretary of the Russian Communist Party.

I think that in order to characterize the present international situation, there is no need to consider all of the important events and all the peculiarities of the present international situation. It is only necessary to consider the basic, decisive factors operating today. At the present time, there are, in my opinion, three such factors: a. the "era" of bourgeois democratic "pacifism"; b. America's participation in the London agreement of the entente; c. the strengthening of the left elements in the European labor movement and the growth of the international position of the Soviet Union:

1. The Period of Bourgeois Democratic Pacifism.

The entente has shown itself impotent to digest its military victories. They were completely successful in defeating Germany and isolating for a while the Soviet Union. They were also successful in drawing up a plan to rob Europe. The innumerable conferences and treaties of the entente are evidence of this. But in the fulfillment of the plan of robbery, the entente proved impotent. Why? Because the antagonism between the entente states were too great. Because they have not succeeded and will not succeed in agreeing on the division of the spoils. Because the resistance of the countries which are to be subjugated is becoming more and more powerful. Because the realization of the plan of robbery is fraught with military clashes, while the masses do not want to fight. It is now clear to "all" that the frontal imperialist attack upon the Ruhr, calculated to destroy Germany, has proved a danger to imperialism itself. It is also clear that the open imperialist policy of ultimatums intended to isolate the Soviet Union is producing opposite results. A situation has been created by which Poincare and Curzon, both serving imperialism heart and soul, have intensified by their "work" the growing crises in Europe, have aroused the masses against imperialism and stimulated them on to revolution. This makes it inevitable for the bourgeoisie to go over from a policy of direct attack to a policy of compromise, from open imperialism to masked imperialism, from Poincare and Curzon to MacDonald and Herriot. It has become unsafe to rob the world openly. The labor party of England and the left bloc of France have to cover up the nakedness of imperialism. Therein lies the explanation of "pacifism" and "democracy."

Some think that the bourgeoisie came to "pacifism" and "democracy" not from need, but by their own free will, by a free choice. It is assumed that the bourgeoisie, having defeated the working class in decisive battles (Italy, Germany) began to feel itself victorious and decided that it will go over to democracy. In other words, while decisive battles were in progress the bourgeoisie needed a militant organization, fascism; now that the proletariat has been smashed, the bourgeoisie no longer needs fascism, and can supplant it by "democracy" as a better means of consolidating its victory. From this the conclusion is drawn that the power of the bourgeoisie has been strengthened, that "the era of pacifism" will last long, and that the revolution in Europe has been indefinitely postponed.

This assumption is entirely erroneous.

First, it is untrue that fascism is merely the militant organization of the bourgeoisie. Fascism is not only a military-technical category. Fascism is the militant organization of the bourgeoisie, leaning upon the active support of the social-democracy. Objectively the social-democracy is the moderate wing of fascism. There is no ground for supposing that the militant organization of the bourgeoisie could achieve decisive victories in battles or in the government of the country without active support of the social democracy. There is just as little ground to suppose that the social-democracy could achieve decisive successes in battles or in the government of the country without the active support of the militant organization of the bourgeoisie. These organizations do not negate, but supplement each other. They are not antipodes, but twins. Fascism is the informal political bloc of these two main organizations developed under the conditions of the post-war crisis of imperialism and designed to fight the proletarian revolution. The bourgeoisie cannot maintain itself in power without the presence of this bloc. Therefore, it would be wrong to think that "pacifism" signifies the end of fascism. "Pacifism" under the present conditions is the consolidation of fascism with its moderate social democratic wing moved to the forefront.

Secondly, it is untrue that the decisive battles have already taken place, that the proletariat was defeated in these battles, and that the power of the bourgeoisie has consequently been strengthened. There have been no decisive battles because there have been no mass, truly bolshevist parties capable of leading the proletariat to the dictatorship. Without such parties decisive battles for dictatorship under conditions of imperialism are impossible. In the west decisive battles are still a matter of the future. There have only been initial attacks and they were repulsed by the bourgeoisie, a first serious test of force which showed that the proletariat is still too weak to overthrow the bourgeoisie, while the bourgeoisie is already too weak to disregard the proletariat. And just because the bourgeoisie is already powerless to force the working class on its knees, it has been compelled to abandon the frontal attack, to attempt flanking action, to agree to compromises, to resort to "democratic pacifism."

And finally, it is untrue that "pacifism" is a sign of power instead of weakness of the bourgeoisie, that "pacifism" will lead to the consolidation of the power of the bourgeoisie, to the postponement of the revolution for an indefinite period. Present day pacifism signifies the accession to power, direct or indirect, of the parties of the Second International. But what does the accession to power of the parties of the Second International mean? It means their inevitable self-exposure as lackeys of imperialism, as traitors of the proletariat, for the governmental practice of these parties can bring only one result: their political bankruptcy, the growth of conflicts within these parties, their demoralization and decay. And the demoralization of these parties leads to the inevitable demoralization of the power of the bourgeoisie, for the parties of the Second International are the buttress of imperialism. Would the bourgeoisie agree to such a risky experiment in "pacifism" without a special urge and of its own free will?" Of course not. Since the end of the imperialist war the bourgeoisie has experimented with pacifism twice: the first time directly after the war, when the revolution appeared to be knocking at the door, and the second time, now, after the risky experiments of Poincare and Curzon. Who would dare to deny that this running of the bourgeoisie from pacifism to brazen imperialism and back will not leave imperialism unaffected, that it throws out of the usual peaceful rut millions of workers, that it draws into politics the most backward elements of the proletariat, that it facilitates their revolutionization? Of course "democratic pacifism" is no Kerensky-ism, for a Kerensky regime presupposes duality of power, the collapse of bourgeois rule and the inception of the proletarian reign. But that pacifism signifies the greatest stirring up of the masses, their entrance into politics, that pacifism loosens up the bourgeois power and paves the way for revolutionary upheavals, hardly anyone can doubt. And precisely because of this pacifism must lead not to the strengthening, but to the weakening of bourgeois power, not to the indefinite postponement of the revolution, but to its acceleration.

Class Against Class

This does not, of course, mean that pacifism is not a serious menace to the revolution. Pacifism leads to the undermining of the foundation of the bourgeois power, it prepares the conditions favorable to the revolution. But pacifism must lead to these results only despite the conscious will of the "pacifists" and "democrats" themselves, only thru unswerving exposures by the Communist parties of the imperialist and counter-revolutionary nature of the pacifist-democratic rule of Herriot and MacDonald. As regards the will of the pacifists and democrats themselves, as regards the policy of the imperialists themselves, they in taking up pacifism pursue only one object, to fool the masses by ringing phrases about peace in order to prepare for new wars, to blind them by the glitter of "democracy" in order to consolidate the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie, to lull the masses to sleep by songs of the "sovereign" rights of nations and states, in order the more successfully to prepare interventions in China, slaughters in Afghanistan and Sudan, dismemberment of Persia, to dupe the masses by pompous chatter of "friendly relations" with the Soviet Union, about these or other "agreements" with the Soviet power, in order the more intimately to connect themselves with the ousted counter-revolutionary plotters to begin bandit raids upon White Russia, Ukrainia and Georgia. In this camouflage lies the chief danger of pacifism. Whether the bourgeoisie will achieve its object, to fool the people, depends upon the energy with which the Communist parties of the west and east will prosecute their exposing activities upon their ability to tear off the mask of the imperialists in pacifist disguise. Undoubtedly the events and acts will work in favor of the Communists, driving a wedge between the pacifist words and imperialist deeds of the democratic henchmen of capital. It is the duty of the Communists not to lag behind events and mercilessly to expose every step and every act of servility to imperialism and treason to the proletariat on the part of the parties of the Second International.

Jan Mirko's Poem - -

By JOHN LASSEN.

Jan Mirko was a poet. Not an ordinary, everyday poet but one for whom writing was the one wonderful thing in life. And yet Jan Mirko wrote but few poems, for his lot was bound up with the lot of millions of workingmen. He was a proletarian, a man who worked with his hands.

Jan worked on the beach where a bridge was being built. On Monday he had a day off. He stretched himself, walked along the beach, lay down upon the white sand, covered himself up with the tiny grains of sand and looked towards the bridge. Lying there he forgot his weariness . . . Tonight he is going to work. Seen from afar the crowd of human beings seemed beautiful to him.

And suddenly the feeling overcame him which he will call happiness, but which a poet like Jan Mirko calls ecstasy. In his soul a poem was born.

He wanted to form his ecstasy into words. What could he write about but work? Mirko's whole soul was filled by the glory of work. He forged and modelled the words.

Oh work, you who give fruitfulness to the earth and make the corn grow. Work, who shortens distances and makes the earth smaller. Work who controlls all forces: water, earth and air.

Oh work. . .

Who draws lightning out of the air and makes the heavens shake.

Who perfects the fruit of the earth and gives an exquisite taste to bitter food.

Work, creator of heat and of cold.

The sun's last purple rays made the white sand flame. . .

And work is building the new bridge

Mirko trembled. Caught in the throes of creation he understood the magic significance of the new bridge. And he thought: bridge of work, uniting men with the universe. Bridge of eternity, being built by tiny human beings upon the sand.

This bridge leads to the universe, its radiant arch spans the sea.

His breast heaved.

The song of work ought to be be written.

It was growing dark. The sun had disappeared, leaving but a pale ray of light. Here and there a small light was mirrored in the water. On the bridge lamps were being lit. A motorboat rushed along, a heavy rumbling noise sounded through the air.

Time to go to work.

Jan Mirko walked towards the bridge. He put on his overalls. His arm kept time

He did not feel the beauty of work any longer. He only knew that he had to pay attention, that he had to keep time with the other men: one . . . two. . . one. . . two. . .

If he forgets to keep time the chain of work will be interrupted He put out his arm, caught hold of the bucket, poured out the cement, passed the bucket on. The water gurgled.

On and on, the everlasting, monotonous gurgling of the water. Jan Mirko had forgotten all about work's splendid rythm, he only thot of the one. . . two. . . one. . . two. . .

All around the night was black and threatening, only the bridge was shining, the bridge of work.

Jan Mirko forgot his daydream. He felt nothing but unspeakable weariness. Fatigue crept into his arms and further down into his legs. His back ached.

When the new shift came Jan Mirko had lost all connection with human life, he was nothing but an aching body. He wanted to sleep, to forget.

Jan Mirko, the workingman-poet, dragged himself home. He was hardly able to undress before he tumbled into bed.

He slept. . .

Jan Mirko never wrote the song of triumphant work.

Preparing For the Coming Struggles

By ALEXANDER BITTELMAN

EVERYBODY is preparing for the coming struggles but the workers and the poorest sections of the farmers. The working masses of America seem to be living now in a fool's paradise, dreaming dreams and cherishing illusions which can profit no one except the enemies of the working class.

Big Capital on the Job.

Big capital knows its mind and is proceeding in a business-like fashion to entrench its positions. Take the Dawes plan. What is it if not a clever device by the big capitalists of Aemerica to extend their power abroad in order to make more secure their domination at home?

Or, take the presidential election campaign. See how cleverly the big capitalists have manipulated the affairs of the two old parties. Both have nominated for their presidential candidates servants of Wall Street. Both have formulated programs which, despite some differences in language, equally suit the interests of big capital.

Thus, no matter which of the two is elected president, republican or democrat, the interests of monopolized industry and finance capital will be in safe keeping.

Then see how resourcefully big capital is directing the election campaign. First the manipulations of the grain market. All of a sudden there was a general rise in prices of wheat and corn. The capitalist press seized upon this "news" to usher in a new era of prosperity for the farmers of the United States. Was it real prosperity for the toiling masses of the farms? Of course not. The only beneficiaries of this short-lived boom in the grain market were the grain speculators, big bankers and a small section of the rich farmers. But the psychological effect upon the farming masses was no doubt political confusion and hesitation, which was all that the big capitalists were aiming at.

Another example of the political strategy of big capital will be found in the recent decision of the federal supreme court "upholding" a provision in the Clayton Act which prescribes jury trial in certain contempt cases, namely, contempt cases which arise out of violations of anti-strike injunctions. On the face of it this ruling of the supreme court seems for workers who violate injunctions the right to a trial by jury. An important concession to labor, isn't it? The capitalist press is already sermonizing on the magnanimity and impartiality of the supreme court, attempting to prove that by this ruling the injunction ceases to be an unconstitutional method for breaking strikes.

But what is the truth? The power of the courts to issue injunctions has not been touched at all. The courts still enjoy that right. And once an injunction has been issued, all the powers of the government automatically come into operation to enforce the injunction, that is, to break the strike. Even upon superficial examination this ruling of the supreme court will be found to be nothing else but a political maneuver by big capital to confuse and demoralize the workers. Big capital is on the job. It knows what it wants and it knows how to get it.

Small and Medium Capital.

The small and medium capitalists have become very conscious of late of their respective groups and sectional interests. They, too, know what they want, and are working pretty hard to get it. The LaFollette movement is a good indication.

As between the big and small capitalists, the latter are naturally less resourceful than the former in defending their interests, for the simple reason that small capital is not a dominating class. Economically it is completely in the hands of big capital. However, when driven by necessity to political action independent of the big capitalists, the smaller capitalists in alliance with the labor bureaucracy have managed to execute a maneuver which strengthens considerably the political power and prestige of the middle classes.

This is the LaFollette movement. Led and dominated by the petty bourgeoisie this movement has succeeded in drawing into its wake large sections of workers and poor farmers. The petty bourgeoisie is leading, the masses are following. And what is the result? The bourgeois middle classes are forging for themselves a political weapon to be used in their own interests and against the interests of the working class. Why, even now, when LaFollette still needs the votes of the workers, he finds it possible to say, in a speech delivered recently in Omaha, Nebraska, that he "will not indulge in ill-advised experiments with government ownership of railroads." What does it show? It shows that in order to placate the bourgeois middle classes LaFollette is even now ready to go back on his own platform, to repudiate the only plank in his program which deals with important labor legislation.

The middle classes, too, are preparing for the coming struggles.

What About the Workers?

They are not preparing. They think they have found a political movement —the LaFollette combination—which will stand by them in time of need. Empty dreams. Baseless hopes. Illusions that are bound to be shattered at the first touch of reality. The working masses of America are living in a fool's paradise.

Gompers and his crew don't have to worry. As long as they can continue in "labor" banking, in class-collaboration with the capitalists through various schemes of arbitration on the economic field and in alliances with the petty bourgeoisie on the political field, these agents of capital in the labor movement are safely entrenched in power. True, this power of theirs is not absolutely secure, but as long as the masses do not actually revolt and begin fighting on their own initiative, the Gompers crowd need not become hysterical.

But the masses will revolt. The industrial depression is continuing. Unemployment is growing. The general standard of living of the American working masses is going down. We are fast approaching a situation where capital in the United States will again resume the offensive in new wage-cuts and open-shop campaigns. What will the masses do?

They Will Demand Leadership.

They will demand leadership in struggle, and they will find that leadership neither in the trade-union bureaucracy nor in the LaFollette movement. What will be the result? Spontaneous, unorganized struggles by the rank and file in defiance not only of the capitalists but also of the labor bureaucracy. The masses will be driven to fight irrespective of whether they have or they have not an organized and conscious leadership. They will create, if necessary, their own organs of struggle and will proceed to defend themselves.

What will be the duty of the Communists? What will be the task of the Workers Party?

To assume leadership of these struggles. To assist and encourage the masses in resisting the offensive of capital by the creation of direct rank and file organs of struggle (shop-committees, councils of unemployed, labor congresses, etc.), by compelling the amalgamation of craft unions into militant industrial unions, and by assuming direct charge of the daily proletarian struggles against capital.

The workers of America are entering upon a period of sharp industrial and political conflicts with their old leadership completely bankrupt. The Workers Party, as the vanguard of the American working class, must therefore prepare itself in time for the fulfillment of its duties. In entering this election campaign under its own name and with its own program and candidates, the Workers Party has merely laid the basis for more militancy and a greater measure of self-assertion of the organised Communists of America in the everyday struggles of the American working class. In other words, we only made a beginning. Now, let us follow it up.

Edo Fimmen Exposes Anti-Soviet Lies

(Extract from a speech delivered by Edo Fimmen on the 12th of September at a sitting of the Presidium of the Railwaymen's Union in Moscow.)

I should have been very pleased had I been able to appear officially in the name of the Transport Workers' International at the negotiations with the R. I. L. U. but unfortunately there still exists in the International of Transport Workers a very strong section which is of the opinion that connections with the Russian organizations can only be set up under certain definite conditions. I am glad to have the opportunity of being in Moscow in order to become acquainted with the achievements of the Russian proletariat. I cannot at present give a definite opinion as to the impression which Moscow and Soviet Russia have made upon me. In spite of this I must say that everything which I have seen up to now has made a very great impression upon me. The first thing which came to my mind, was that the silly gossip one hears in Europe, that in Soviet Russia there exists not a dictatorship of the proletariat but a dictatorship over the proletariat, is a brazen lie. The European workers would be very glad if they could enjoy the same freedom as the workers in Soviet Russia.

I hope that the European workers, including the non-party and even the social democratic workers, will become more and more convinced that the bourgeois press and even a portion of the labor press is deceiving them regarding life in Soviet Russia. The broad masses of the workers will sooner or later learn the true state of affairs, and when these masses have learned the truth regarding Soviet Russia the struggle for the unity of the trade union movement will receive a great stimulus.

You know that two years ago I was still like all other leaders of the European trade union movement, an opponent of the Russian trade unions and of the Russian Revolution. Now, however, I am personally convinced that this was a great mistake. I will not say that everything which has been said in Soviet Russia regarding the West-European trade union movement, and everything which you have undertaken in relation to the European trade union movement, was right in every detail. Many mistakes were also committed on our side. Your impatience is quite understandable. The workers in the West have not shown so much courage, they have not made so many sacrifices as the Russian proletariat. There the trade unions are partly bound by tradition and partly by their leaders. There they still seriously believe that it is possible to achieve something by negotiations, by going cap in hand to the bourgeoisie. Therein lies the greatest mistake of the European trade union movement.

I understand therefore why the Russian proletariat so sharply criticise the leaders of the West-European trade unions. They have a right to criticise them so sharply. I myself became convinced of this in 1922, when I began to follow events in Germany. The bourgeoisie replied to the Hague Trade Union Peace Congress with the occupation of the Rhur, and the European proletariat not only failed to take up the struggle for the liberation of the German proletariat, but it did not even make a single attempt to do so.

On the whole, I maintain that the Russian tactics were correct. It will only be possible to achieve anything when all sections of the trade union movement are working hand in hand. Only then will it be possible to overthrow the bourgeoisie and to establish Communism. When I arrived at this conviction I commenced the fight for unity. I set myself a definite aim and to this aim I will devote all my powers. I am convinced that unity must come, or else the labor movement is lost.

Two or three years ago there was in the Amsterdam International a united front against the Russian trade unions. Today the situation is otherwise. Today there exists in the Amsterdam International a revolutionary minority which considers it necessary to unite with the Russian trade unions. This minority varies from 10 to 40 per cent in the different organizations. But whatever it may be it is still a minority, and so long as it is only a minority, the Russian trade unions cannot be accepted.

With us in the Transport Workers International the situation is as follows: The question regarding admission of the Russian unions to the International Congress of the Transport Workers was dealt with at the sitting of the executive. The minority fought for admission, but the decision rested with the majority. This minority, however, is growing continually stronger and will soon be the majority; the International Transport Workers will then be pleased to admit the Russian unions into their ranks. I have devoted myself entirely to this struggle, I have entirely broken with the past and am convinced that we, along with the Russian organizations will be able to make a step forward on the road to world revolution.

"Pacific 231" Spurns Conventional Rules

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN

"Pacific 231," a description of a locomotive in action, was the novelty on the program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra last Friday and Saturday. "Pacific 231" is the work of Arthur Honegger, one of the so-called French "Six," famed for their disregard of the conventionalities of music. The title is the name of a certain type of French heavy duty railway engine. ly, and then "the change from the Honegger describes it chugging slow-lyric to the pathetic" in the aspect of a train weighing three hundred tons rushing along at a hundred and twenty miles an hour. He does this by a tremendous, powerful crescendo. The only thing one misses in his description is the persistent, jolting rhythm of a train.

The symphony of the evening was Rachmaninov's second. This is far below the standard of the composer's other works. It is too long for one thing, and too reminiscent of Brahms at his platitudinous worst.

Two lively and beautiful works opened and closed the concert, a fantastic bouree by Samuel Chabrier, and a set of dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor."

Workers Party Educational Department

Conducted by James P. Cannon, Educational Director

"Without a Revolutionary Theory a Revolutionary Party is Impossible."

Principles of Communist Education

Thesis Adopted by Fifth Congress of Communist International.

I. The Crises in the Communist Parties as Ideological Crises.

1. The political and organizational crises arising in the Communist International are at the same time ideological crises in the respective parties. All right and left deviations are due to deviations from the class ideology of the proletariat, from Marxism-Leninism.

The crises that arose at the second congress, and subsequent to it, were caused by the "infantile sickness of leftism" which betrayed an ideological deviation from Marxism-Leninism in the direction of syndicalism. (Dutch Marifism, Communist Labor Party of Germany, anti-parliamentarism, etc.). The present internal conflicts in several of the Communist Parties, which became evident at the time of the German October defeat, are the result of the influence of the remnants of the old social-democratic ideology which has been brought over into the Communist Parties. The way to overcome this, is: To bolshevize the Communist Parties. The bolshevization of the parties in this sense means: The final ideological victory of Marxism and Leninism (or in other words: of Marxism in the period of imperialism and the epoch of the proletarian revolution) and to reject the Marxism of the Second International and the remnants of the elements of syndicalism.

2. The complete and rapid bolshevizing of the Communist Party can be attained in the process of the deliberate revolutionary activity of the sections of the Communist International, by more deeply hammering Marxism and Leninism into the consciousness of the Communist Parties and the party members. Only by the theoretical understanding of revolutionary practice in this way can the Communist Parties become real leaders of the masses, conscious of their aims. Only by a real and organized assimilation of Marxism-Leninism can the parties reduce the possibilities of political, tactical, and organizational errors to a minimum and bring about the emancipation of the working class. "Without a revolutionary theory, a revolutionary movement is impossible." A party can play the role of the vanguard only if it is guided by a "vanguard theory" (Lenin). One of the first tasks of the Communist International and its sections consists in popularizing this vanguard theory—Marxism-Leninism—among the members. Cadres of party members must be formed who have complete command of this theoretical weapon and are able to train the widest circle of the party membership in the use of it. Particularly important is the greatest possible assimilation of this theory by the youth. Hence all necessary organizational measures must be taken by the sections for furthering the development of these cadres and this training for the youth.

The condition precedent for the development of propaganda work is that every Communist Party must realize the importance of theoretically mastering Marxism-Leninism. All Communist Parties must be careful to see to it that the activity for attaining practical results is not carried on to the neglect of the theoretical problems of the emancipation of the working class and of the demands of the theoretical struggle. On the contrary: the precedent for attaining practical results in the revolutionary struggle is a clear theoretical understanding and theoretical clarity among as great a number of members as possible.

3. The ideology quality of the leading cadres and of the masses in the Communist Parties demand continual self-control. Altho the organizational pre-requisite for such a control on the basis of concrete facts and material are not yet possible, it is nevertheless true that the extent and depth of the dissemination of the Marxism-Leninism idea is not keeping pace with the rapid growth of the influence of the party. Stagnation on the field of theoretical work in the spirit of Marx, Engels, and Lenin is observable in all sections of the Communist International. This is all the more dangerous because theoretical work by facilitating analysis of concrete conditions, and more definite formulations of the conditions and perspectives of the revolutionary upheaval, would render greater results achieved in the political work, of the parties. Only these circumstances and the indifference of some of the leading comrades towards the theoretical question make it possible for "theories" to arise within the Communist International, which stand in sharp contradiction to Marxism-Leninism. The immediate result of these "theories" is the confusion which reigns in the minds of the leading cadres and of the masses in the party on philosophic, theoretical-economic questions. Later they are naturally observed on the field of policy and tactics, in the form of "left" or "right" deviations. (The attitude of certain leaders of the Swedish party on the religious questions; the false conception held by certain leaders of the German party on the nature of the bourgeois state and on the class roots of opportunism among the labor aristocracy; the philosophical deviation of certain groups of intellectuals of the German Communist Party, who are seeking to rob dialectical materialism of its materialist aspect and put idealism into its place; attempts in the Communist Party of Italy to revise the economic theory of Marxism). Even the propagandist training of the party masses is also far from satisfactory. This is a natural result of the fact that the necessity of this propagandist work has not yet been understood by the party leadership. A very great percentage of the masses in the Communist Party joined the party because they became convinced empirically, in the midst of their everyday political and economic struggles, of the treacherous character of opportunism and reformism, and of the exclusively proletarian class character of the Communist Party. This fact represents a great advantage for the Communist Parties, and indicates the superiority of the Third International over the Second International; it means nevertheless that the proletarian masses of the party may themselves still be imbued with remnants of social democratic ideology. This social-democratic heritage cannot be eliminated mechanically, particularly among the party masses; it must be overcome, in addition to instruction in the principles of revolutionary practice, by systematic propaganda of the ideas of Marxism-Leninism, and of thoroly imbuing the minds of the broad masses with at least the fundamental principles and methods of Marxism-Leninism.

4. In the person of Lenin—the most orthodox of Marxists, who continued the theoretical and practical work of Marx—the Communist International and all the Communist Parties possessed a reliable guide indicating every "right" or "left" deviation on the field of theory and political practice. Only Leninism, which Lenin and his co-workers, the old bolshevist guard, developed as the theory of the proletarian revolution, can take Lenin's place. The death of Lenin must give as great an impetus to the propaganda of the theory of Marxism-Leninism, and to the diffusion and intensification of this propaganda in all the sections of the Communist International, as it did in the Communist Party of Russia.

In view of the ideological condition of the parties in general and especially because of the absence of cadres in the party capable of effectively guiding the work, this task must be assumed by the Communist International. As against the pseudo-Marxism of the Second International, Leninism the revival of revolutionary Marxism, does not contain a single sentence which is not of practical importance in the revolutionary everyday struggles of the proletariat. Thus one of the most important and urgent concrete tasks of the Communist International is the concentration of energy in the widest possible propaganda of these teachings and establishing organizational guarantees for the systematic development of this propaganda.

II. General Organizational Measures on the Field of Propaganda.

5. The most characteristic feature of the present state of propaganda activity is that up till now the Communist International and the various Communist Parties have not set up special organs for propaganda work, or where they have, they are inadequate. Too little has been done so far to carry out the decisions of the Fourth Congress on educational work, consequently no concrete results can be expected. In default of suitable organs, it was out of the question to speak of gathering and examining the experiences of the various sections, of summarizing, generalizing, and exchanging these experiences, or of systematically putting the propaganda work into shape; consequently the development of party organs and party institutions, of departments for agitation and propaganda, which must organize the propaganda of Marxism-Leninism, will still be a fundamental task of the Communist International after the Fifth World Congress.

6. A further obstacle to the propaganda of Marxism-Leninism is the insufficient dissemination of Marxism-Leninism literature. There is a dearth of original writings as well as of suitable popular text books which would facilitate the work. The classics of Marxist literature are bibliographical rarities in a great number of western countries. There are almost no new editions. Only very seldom do new books appear which indicate new developments of Marxism thought or of the broad popularization of the theory. In order to consolidate the propaganda of Marxism-Leninism, it is absolutely necessary that the literary works of Marx and Lenin (at least the most important standard works) for study purposes, and text books, supplementary books, and popular writings which discuss the methods of party training and study, be published in as many languages as possible.

7. Another obstacle to this work in the Communist International, is the inadequate co-ordination of the energies devoted to theoretical Marxian study work. There is not sufficient contact between the Marxists in the various sections of the Communist International active on the field of theory or deeply interested in theory, to render division of labor possible or an exchange of experiences, and consequently a fruitful development of the work. This circumstance, as well as the isolation from each of the few theoretical and propaganda periodicals that do exist, render impossible the utilization as propaganda of the results of the Marxian-Leninism investigation and the mutual examination and utilization of results obtained. The work of co-ordinating the Marxian-Leninist forces in the international Communist movement and the division of labor among these forces is also necessary to the organizational dissemination and intensification of propaganda work. It is necessary also to encourage the sections of the Communist International to publish theoretical and propaganda periodicals which would be suitable for satisfying the needs of educational work.

8. The immediate concrete tasks of the Communist International in centrally guiding and furthering propaganda activity are:

a) Organization and development of the department for agitation and propaganda. Furnishing this department with forces trained in Marxism-Leninism, and skilled in the organization of propaganda work. Systematic control of the propaganda activity of the parties. Generalization and exchange of experiences. Support of the parties in developing concrete methods and forms of party trainings.

b) Rearrangement and extension of the publication activity of the Communist International with the view to furnishing the parties not only with political literature, but also with theoretical and propaganda literature. Publication of the most important works of Marx, Engels, and Lenin, and the production of popular literature consisting of text books and supplementary books on the fundamental questions of the Communist program and of Communist tactics and organization.

c) Publication of a monthly propaganda periodical for the purpose of instructing party officials and above all, the propagandists. The task of the monthly must be to act as a medium for the exchange of experiences, in elaborating questions of program, in generally guiding and systematizing the educational work of the party, in elaborating papers and introductions, in investigating and working out the best methods and forms of propaganda work, in communicating systematic bibliographical material, and in suitably utilizing for propaganda the results of the Marxian-Leninist investigations. In providing instructive material, the periodical would also supply the needs of the agitators. The periodical should appear in German, French, and English.

d) In order to supply at least the most important parties with qualified theoretical workers, the Communist International will co-opt a number of party workers for some length of time from the German, British, American, Czecho-Slovakian, Italian, and French sections to Moscow, where they will devote themselves solely to the study of the theory and practice of Marxism-Leninism.

Comrades will be selected for this purpose (workers, if possible) who, under general instructions, will be capable of doing scientific work and of further educating themselves independently in Marxism-Leninism. The purpose of the study is to assimilate a more thoro Marxian-Leninist training and to equip these comrades for independent, theoretically well-grounded political work.

e) Convene and prepare for a conference of officials entrusted with propaganda work in the most important sections, and of conductors of the party schools, for the purpose of working out the most important concrete tasks of party training, and adequately specializing and co-ordinating the methods.

f) Effective support of the Young Communist International by properly organizing the training of Communist youth.

STARVATION WAGES DANGEROUS EVEN IN DAWES' GERMANY!

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A mild bombshell struck the foreign trade forum of the National Association of Credit Men here when J. Henry Scattergood, president of the American Dyewood corporation, who has recently visited Germany, said:

"A modern nation cannot continue with its workmen getting $7.50 a week. German labor is already in a disturbed condition and there will certainly be trouble if these starvation wages are not increased."

Geneva and Moscow -

By R. Merino Gracia

IT is well that the bourgeoisie tries to dazzle the working masses with its pacifist farce of the League of Nations. There is something of sincerity in this desire of France and England to reach an accord in order that, in the near future, new captalist wars in Europe might be avoided.

This desire is born from the fear that capitalism is beginning to have of the proletariat as a class that each day acquires greater political maturity and greater resolution to seize for itself the direction of society. The example of the Russian Soviet Union is sufficiently eloquent and speaks more clearly than all the tracts of social economy. Karl Marx never could have dreamed that his fundamental work "Capital," would find a citadel in the vast proletarian republic.

If, before October, 1917, the bourgeois classes neither feared nor believed possible the loss of their privileges, today they believe and fear it. If, before October, 1917, the proletariat was politically disunited and vacillating, today, united and compact, it marches with sure tread toward the accomplishment of its historic mission.

Against the revolutionary danger, against the proletarian menace, the governments unite in the holy alliance of capital and go to Geneva, to the League of Nations, to form agreements to avoid these disasters and to perpetuate their mutual domination.

It is an international tragedy that the liberties and rights of the people are locked in the wardrobe of "democracy." This has no other end than to perpetuate the rule of the Anglo-American banks, to form a bond of mutual protection against the workers and to continue the exploitation of these workers and of the colonial countries. And this farce is staged precisely by those most abject servants of the god of capital who, in other times, called themselves "socialists."

Look at MacDonald; he of the Spithead naval review, talking of the "peace union," of the "rights of peoples!" He, that organizes naval reviews to show to the London Conference! He, that brutally stamps upon the populations of Egypt, Sudan and India! He, representative of a "labor government," a worker, and confesses receiving gifts of $150,000 from a capitalist, his "friend from infancy."

Spain "Withdraws" from Morocco

Look at Herriot; he of the French Republic, a "democrat," etc., who has reddened Morroco with arms, who organizes enormous military maneuvers, with ends . . . . "pacifist," who tolerates the importation of colored workers into France to disorganize the proletariat meanwhile he sends French soldiery to the colonies to "civilize" and "pacify" with fusillades of artillery.

That is the League of Nations, the capitalist international, served by the reformists of Amsterdam. A bourgeois periodical has called the sessions of the League of Nations "The Parliament of the World." It is true, but there is need to add of "World Capitalism."

Beside that organism, which synthesizes the agony of the world bourgeoisie, we have something that is worth infinitely more. We have our glorious Communist International! We have, in the Kremlin, our Parliament of the World Proletariat! With the difference in our favor that our International is the dawn of a world being born, and the League of Nations is the expiring sigh of a world that dies; that dies slowly, but that dies.

The League of Nations has, moreover, as its primary purpose, the union of capitalist nations against the Soviet Union. Russia, the proletarian republic, is the only nation of the world upon which Anglo-Yankee capitalism dare not lay its despoiling hand. It is the only nation that has an international policy, clear, conscious, concrete. This policy is derived from its internal constitution. Russia is proletarian, and its international policy is an alliance of steel and a heroic defense of the whole world of Labor, of the working and oppressed classes, of the enslaved colonial peoples.

We can well understand, then, the hatred of the imperialist countries against the Sovet Union. International capitalism, that has in Asia an enormous field of exploitation of the natives, encounters now the Soviet Union, civilized, exemplary, and animating those oppressed peoples to free themselves from the tyranny of oppressing nations. England is unable to pardon Russia for making Moscow a Holy City for all the oppressed, the disinherited, the wonder city that gives asylum to the suppressed and exploited and which teaches them the way of liberation.

From the pale-cheeked workers of London, that falter of hungrer in the midst of a fastuous world metropolis, to the poor pariahs of India, lost in the jungles, all turn their eyes to Moscow, and pronounce the names of Marx and Lenin with fervorous ecstasy!

Geneva and Moscow! The League of Nationss, capitalistic, rapacious and oppressive! And the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics! Two worlds, between which there is stages a war to the death! A war that can only end with the triumph of Moscow.

This is the great battle of our time! Every worker should understand where his post is, and advance to occupy it, courageous and decided!

The Vanguard Group of the Junior Section has broken into the field of journalism. This group recently issued an oral paper, which was read at their affair. This activity is noteworthy and shows that the Juniors are not neglecting any opportunities to reach the children with Communist ideas. Below are excerpts from the paper:

NEWS TRAVELS FAR.

Several months ago, the Jewish Workers Relief Committee gave a bazaar. It lasted four days with one Saturday afternoon being set aside for a costume party the best costume to receive a prize.

The Juniors, under the leadership of Comrade Abe Harris were to give a drill. Dressed in their costumes, they first went to Humboldt Park with Comrades Harris and Bill Kruse. Comrade Kuse took moving pictures of the costume exercise.

Then, after we finished the drill, we formed into a group and Comrade Kruse took a standstill.

The pictures turned out good. The movies were sent to Soviet Russia. The standstills were sold to us at ten cents each. One Comrade bought three, one for herself, one to send to England and one to send to an uncle in Soviet Russia.

Her uncle sent back a letter telling what he did with the picture. What do you suppose? He gave it to the Young Communists' daily newspaper in Odessa! The picture was published in several newspapers.

And another thing, we got the first prize at the bazaar. It was a set of two books. E. S.

VANGUARD JUNIOR ORGANIZES A NEW GROUP.

One of our Comrades, Eva Stolar, has organized a new group which has named itself the John Reed Group of the Jr. Y. W. L. They elected officers after Comrade Rose Cohen, city organizer of the Juniors made a little speech.

Comrade Rose's speech proved to be interesting to the new Juniors. A Comrade from the Workers Party was also present. He helped the new Comrades very much.

At present the group has 25 members.

Youthful Communists At Minneapolis, Minn., Hold Junior Circus

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 24. — The Junior section of the Young Workers League in Minneapolis is preparing to show that the children of the working class are just as capable of entertaining the workers, as are even the well financed boys' clubs.

This Sunday they are to have a junior circus at the Labor Lyceum, 1426 N. 6th Ave., at 8 p. m. Here the workers of Minneapolis for the first time will be given the opportunity of seeing the juniors in action, as acrobats.

This is only one phase of their activity. The comrades have been preparing for many weeks and a good time is assured to all. Tickets are 15c for grown-ups and 10c for children.

Juniors! Wake up! Send in your news to the Children's Column of the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

There's No Law Against Throwing Bricks!

Not on a construction job. When you're hired and you have the job of assisting in the building of a greater newspaper (and subscription "bricks" will surely do it!)—there's no law against it.

Of course your boss won't like it. Neither will a Labor Faker who has "no use for them Bolsheviks"—but there's no law against it.

And it wouldn't matter if there was—if you have the Labor movement at heart. There's a "brick" somewhere in this issue.

4. The Results of the War and the Beginning of the Decay of Capitalism.

The war of 1914-18 brought about a destruction of productive forces unprecedented in history; it led to the immediate annihilation of gigantic means of production and of the best living forces of humanity; it caused an unheard of waste of energy as a result of the use of productive power for unproductive purposes.

The total disorganization of the world's traffic thus brought about, the chaos in the division of labor hitherto obtaining thruout the world, the collapse of the reciprocal and regulated modes of payment, the disturbed rates of exchange, and the unprecedented state debts, all these factors intensify still more the ruin of capitalist world economics.

The imperialistic economic system underwent essential changes, for the colonial and semi-colonial countries took advantage of the slackening of the imperialist grip to gain for themselves greater economic independence. This circumstance undermined the sources of the affluence of the mother countries, and intensified the general crisis.

All the above stated fundamental facts of the war and post-war periods are expressed in the diminution of the total income of society.

The diminution of the collective income of society led in the first place to an acuter struggle in the re-division of income, not only in the competitive struggles of the colonies with the mother countries, but in the class war of the proletariat against the bourgeoise, in which the intermediate groups display the tendency to join the proletariat in those cases where they have particularly suffered during the war.

The post-war position of capitalism can in general be characterized as being absolutely unstable in every sphere of its existence: economic, political, social, and even on the ideological and cultural fields; for in the background of the general crisis there appear obvious signs of the decomposition of the bourgeoisie, the return to religion, to mysticism, to occultism, and so forth, which demonstrate the coming fall of bourgeois civilization.

The period of capitalist decay will not be kept in check by part restoration of its regime and in the further development of productive forces. Every fresh development of capitalism at the same time develops its contradictions, revealing the inevitability of even greater conflicts, involving even more formidable and destructive methods (e. g. chemical warfare), and menacing the further existence of human society.

5. The Breach in the Imperialist Front and the Epoch of Social Revolution.

The growing intensification of the class war, which became apparent during the war itself, led to a breach being made thru the imperialist front at its most vulnerable spot—Russia.

The November revolution of the Russian proletariat, which was able to overthrow the bourgeois regime, thanks to specially favorable fighting conditions, started a new era of international revolution, and became the first link in the cha...

The proletarian uprisings which followed the Russian revolution, and which ended in the defeat of the proletariat after a brief victory (Finland, Hungary, Bavaria), or which remained standing halfway, owing to the treachery of the social-democrats who were actively engaged against revolutionary Communism (Austria, Germany), formed stages in the general development of international revolution—stages in which the bourgeois illusions are being shattered and the forces of Communist revolution are being mobilized and consolidated.

It is just for the above reasons that the mere fact of the existence of the Soviet Union is of such significance as an organizing center of the proletarian world movement. By the mere fact of its existence the Soviet Union drives a wedge into the capitalist system, since, with a fundamentally anti-capitalist structure, it comprises one-sixth of the globe. Besides this, it represents the most powerful vanguard of the proletarian movement, for here the working class has all the means and auxiliaries of state power at its disposal.

In the course of development of international revolution, social-democracy and the trade unions under its leadership became an extraordinarily powerful counter-revolutionary force. Not only did these abandon the interests of the workers during the war, in that they supposed their "own" imperialist governments (social patriotism and social chauvinism), but they also supported the rapacious treaties of peace (Brest-Litovsk, Versailles); they stood by the side of the generals (Noske), as an active force, when proletarian uprisings were being drowned in blood; they led an armed struggle against the first proletarian republic (Russia); they treacherously betrayed a proletariat which had already attained power (Hungary); they became members of the rapacious league of nations (Thomas); they openly took sides with the employers against the colonial slaves (the British "labor" party). The pacifist wing of the social-democrats (center) demoralized the workers by their varied pacifist illusions and anti-force propaganda, thereby providing capitalism with the best weapons in acute revolutionary situations. International social-democracy of all shades thus forms the last reserve and strongest support of bourgeois society.

Alongside social-democracy, thru which and by means of which the bourgeoisie either suppresses the workers or lulls their class vigilance, we see the emergence of fascism, another form of utilizing the discontent of the masses, and of directing this discontent into anti-revolutionary channels. Both these methods, which are unusual for "normal" capitalism and which betoken a general crisis of capitalism, at the same time check the onward march of the revolution.

The abandonment of imperialist illusions in the ranks of the working class has freed the proletariat from the influence of social-democracy and fascism, and forms the soil for the development of the Communist parties which are uniting in the course of the struggle in a mighty revolutionary association of revolutionary workers: the Communist International. From out of the chaos and the misery, out of the falling debris of decaying capitalism, out of the mad and monstrous new wars in which the bourgeoisie is ready to destroy millions of workers and the last remnants of its own culture—out of all this, the Communist International will lead humanity on to a new path, from the depths of death and destruction to Communism.

II. The Emancipation of the Workers and the Communist Order.

1. The Abolition of the Fundamental Contradictions of Capitalism.

The goal towards which the Communist International strives is the substitution of the capitalist order by the Communist order of society. The Communist order of society, prepared by the whole course of evolution, is the sole means of escape for humanity; it alone is capable of removing the fundamental contradictions of the capitalist system which lead to inevitable and unavoidable ruin.

The Communist order of socie y does away with the division of society into classes, that is, it destroys social anarchy. The opposing classes are replaced by members of one great equal working community. The gigantic unproductive expenditure caused by human beings combating one another, in a society composed of classes, now disappears, and the energy thus released is employed in the struggle with nature, and for the progress and development of the power and dominance of mankind.

By the abolition of the private ownership of the means of production, and the passing of these means into common property, the Communist society replaces the unregulated force of competition and the blind course of production by a rational organization and an appropriate plan. The abolition of anarchy in production and of competition implies the simultaneous disappearance of war. The colossal waste of productive energy, and the spasmodic development of society will here be substituted by a systematic utilization of all sources of help, and by a harmonious, painless, economic evolution.

The abolition of private property does away with the exploitation of one human being by another. The work done is no longer done for others; differences between rich and poor disappear. At the same time the organs of class rule also vanish, above all—state power. State power, which is the embodiment of class rule, vanishes in proportion to the vanishing of the classes. Together with it all standards of compulsion gradually die.

The abolition of classes will be accompanied by the abolition of all monopoly of education. All education, including the very highest, becomes general. Such a state of affairs in the first place renders a dominance of any group of persons over another group impossible, and in the second place, offers a wide field of selection and sifting of talent and genius in every branch of culture.

Here there are no barriers of a social nature placed in the way of productive forces. In Communist society there is no private property, no profit-making for personal benefit, no artificially maintained ignorance among the masses, nor poverty which retards technical progress in capitalist society, nor gigantic unproductive expenditure.

The uniting of technique and science, the scientific organization of production, statistics, social book-keeping, the utilization of every economic possibility (correct apportioning of enterprises, concentration, the best possible productivity of labor) set human energy free for the mighty task of developing science and art.

The development of productive forces is conducive to the improvement of the general wellbeing of the whole of humanity in the new society and consequently creates a degree of culture hitherto unexampled in history.

This new culture of a humanity united for the first time, and having now abolished all limits set by intermediate state boundaries, will be founded on clear and unalloyed reciprocal relations among human beings. Hence it will bury all mysticism, religion, and superstition for all time, and give a mighty forward impetus to the development of the all-conquering human mind.

GARY SCHOOL DENIED COMMUNISTS

SPOLANSKY AND HIS OLD PAL, 'BILL' BURNS, KING OF DICKS, CASTING THEIR LOTS TOGETHER

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Spolansky and his old pal, William J. Burns, king of the dick-fink underworld, are together again. Information has reached the DAILY WORKER thru the Labor Defense Council that about a week ago, Jake was offered and accepted the remunerative job of manager of the "radical department" of the Burns detective agency.

This is the final and sufficient commentary on the positive, out-and-out rottenness of the whole parasitic detective business. Burns, who has seen every one of Spolansky's "anti-red" stories in the Chicago Daily News, must appreciate now at least that he does not know anything about the revolutionary working class movement—because Burns himself was on the inside of most of the conspiracies that Jake "exposes" as "red" plots.

Jake is not being hired on account of his knowledge, which is nil. He is being hired because of his unscrupulousness, because of his extraordinary eagerness to prostitute himself, because of his long experience as a double-crosser and frame-up man.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

ANDREW FURUSETH, president of whatever is left of the International Seamen's Union of America is running for the official head of T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the United States shipping board. T. V. broke into print recently with an asinine statement about Soviet money being used to elect LaFollette. This got under the hide of canny Andy, who is one of the most rabid red-baiters in America and a hypocritical labor crook to boot. His sanctimonious looks may fool many but that is the kind of rogue who can do the most damage.

HOWEVER, when crooks fall out it is our duty to give them all the publicity they desire, as they usually tell the truth when mad with each other. Andy charges O'Connor with using $162,000 of government funds to break up labor unions on the Pacific coast in 1922. He makes other charges, but one is enough for us. Is it not strange that Furuseth did not go to bat with O'Connor on this issue until the latter turned his guns on LaFollette. It seems that faker Furuseth could look on the dismantling of the labor unions with equanimity, he could see strikes broken by the United States government without unloosing the vials of his wrath, but when the political fortunes of the capitalistic politician LaFollette were imperiled, then Andy got his dander up.

* * *

O'CONNOR is one of the most notorious and unabashed labor fakers in America. But what about Furuseth? Andy blames O'Connor for breaking up his union with money. The fact is that it was Furuseth's red-baiting policy that destroyed the seamen's union. Furuseth's conduct on the Pacific coast was just as filthy as that of O'Connor. The latter was an open agent of the government and openly used his power to smash the movement, that put him on the road to fortune, but Furuseth was a dirty stool pigeon, turning over members of the I. W. W. to the government and aiding the department of justice in putting radical members of his own union in jail. Between Furuseth and O'Connor there is only a choice between two evils.

* * *

THE seamen in Vancouver are well pleased with the way the DAILY WORKER handled the story on the conditions prevailing in the Canadian government merchant marine, written by Sydney Warren, Federated Press correspondent. The DAILY WORKER never pleases the capitalist class nor the labor fakers; it seldom pleases our liberal friends who look on our healthy hatred of the bourgeoisie as something indecent, and which has a

Try to Divide Workers.

Such are the qualities which Burns requires in his "radical department," the business of which is to disrupt the labor movement in the interests of the big capitalists, to frustrate strikes either by hook or crook, and to put Communist leaders in jail under one pretext or another. One of them was Allen O. Myers, the illustrious liar.

Myers, whose rapid-fire "confessions" and "repudiations" before the senatorial investigating committee are the talk of Washington, has a truly remarkable record. He has been indicted nearly a dozen times and only convicted once! Then there is Patrick Roach, another vigilant guardian of capitalist law and order.

"Pat" is now working for the government. He is in the military intelligence department, and has just gotten mixed up in an awkward scandal concerning blackmail and a few hundred casks of sacramental wine. Thus, in his new employment, Spolansky will have a free hand for his "patriotism."

Runs Out of Bunk.

Friend Jake is running out of bunk for his stories in the Chicago Daily News. He is now driven to relating accounts of the size and scope of the Communist movement in the United States, membership figures, variety of publications, etc.—all of which could much better be secured by any interested reader of the News, by glancing over the published reports of Workers Party officials, which they are by no means anxious to keep hidden away unsold. Full and detailed reports are contained in "The Second Year," a 130-page book published immediately following the national convention of the Workers Party, last fall. It sells for fifty cents, and copies may be secured from the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Day-to-day information concerning the activities of the Communists can be had by reading the DAILY WORKER. Anyone can get a six-months subscription for $4.50, or buy the paper on the news stands for three cents a copy.

Haven't Two Million Members.

Communists are scarcely interested in minimizing their strength. In fact the despairing yellow "socialists" try to make workers believe that we make a practice of systematically padding our membership figures. Nevertheless, we declare in all frankness that we haven't the 2,000,000 members Spolansky generously assigns to our language federations, that none of our publications has a circulation of 180,000, that our Negro membership in Chicago does not total several thousand, and that we were not responsible for the race riots in Chicago, Washington, D. C., Omaha, Neb., and Helena, Ark.

Spolansky affirms that the race riots were "traced directly thru the radical forces in the United States to Communist headquarters in Moscow," when he knows they were a direct out-

SWEET PROFITS IN CHOCOLATE

WASHINGTON.—Profits in the chocolate and cocoa-product industry were more than twice the total paid in wages and salaries, in 1923, according to the department of commerce, in the 58 chief establishments in the United States. Value added by manufacture was $84,588,404, while wages and salaries amounted to $11,465,811, leaving a gross profit of $23,132,593.

The wages amounted to $7,728,938, divided among 6,876 wage-workers, or $1,124 a year on the average. Salaries figured out on the average $2,497 a year for the 1,492 persons listed as drawing salaries in these 58 plants.

The Latest British Scandal

MACDONALD IS CHARGED WITH RUSS FORGERY

Sensational Charge on Election Eve

(Special to the Daily Worker)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Ramsay MacDonald, beneficiary of the millionaire Sir Alexander Grant, has taken a leaf out of Lord Curzon's book and startled Great Britain with the publication of a forged document, alleged to have been issued by the Communist International, and urging the Communist Party of Great Britain to prepare for a revolution in England.

It is admitted that Ramsay MacDonald was in possession of this document for a considerable time past, but that its publication was decided on when word came that the tory party was about to spring it on the public on the eve of the election.

Will Do Any Dirty Work.

COURT MAY TAKE ACTION IN TROUBLES OF THE I. W. W. TODAY

When the hearing on the injunction asked by the Rowan-Bowerman-Griffith faction of the Industrial Workers of the World is resumed before Master in Chancery Fred Bernstein this afternoon, the delegates to the 16th general convention, meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall, may find themselves thrown out of control of the entire machinery, property and funds of the I. W. W.

Should Bernstein grant the injunction which the Rowan-Bowerman group has asked, the temporary officers who have been installed by the convention would be forced to turn over use of the I. W. W. headquarters and all of the property of the organization which they now hold to the Rowan faction. That the Rowan faction will refuse to recognize the general convention, or that they will consent to recognize it only if it surrenders under the most humiliating conditions, is more than probable.

In that case, the formal hearing on the controversy, which the convention has planned to begin this morning, and which all of the parties to the controversy have been ordered to attend, will be cut short by the decision of the capitalist courts.

CANNON, OLGIN, LORE, STOKES AND OTHERS AT CLINTON HALL NEW YORK CITY, TUESDAY, OCT. 28

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 26.—The final week of the energetic campaign conducted in this city for the Communist candidates will be opened at a monster mass meeting at Clinton Hall, at which James P. Cannon, candidate for governor on the Workers Party ticket will be the principal speaker. The meeting will be held Tuesday evening, Oct. 28, at 8 p. m.

In addition to Comrade Cannon there will be speeches by many other well known speakers. Moissaye J. Olgin, candidate in the 14th senatorial district, recently returned from Russia, where he has spent over six months studying living conditions, will tell about Russia today. Ludwig Lore, editor of the Volkszeitung, candidate in the 14th congressional district, Abe Caspe, candidate 2nd assembly district, Boris Lipshitz, candidate 4th assembly district, Joseph Boruchowitz, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Rose Pastor Stokes and many others will speak in English and Jewish.

To take care of the overflow which is expected, the committee in charge has arranged to hold an open air meeting at Rutgers Square.

Come early and bring your friends to hear the message of the Communist candidates in your district.

REMEMBER, Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton St., Tuesday evening, Oct. 28.

PARTY CAMPAIGN MEETING TONIGHT ON NORTH SIDE

Johnstone Will Speak at Imperial Hall

Workers living on the North Side will turn out tonight to hear J. W. Johnstone, the first Communist candidate on the Workers Party ticket from the ninth congressional district, speak at the Imperial Hall, 2409 N. Halsted street.

Johnstone is the assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League and has for many years been extremely active in the labor movement of Chicago, particularly as leader of the stockyards labor council during and shortly after the war.

Near Campaign's End.

This is the first meeting of a rousing week of campaign speeches which will close the efforts of the Communist candidates in the congressional districts of the Chicago territory.

Meetings have been arranged during this last week for the other Communist candidates for congress and the senate. J. Louis Engdahl, candidate for senator, is scheduled to wind up his campaign with open-air meetings.

Other Meetings Planned.

Other meetings are planned for Gordon Owens, of the first congressional district; Joseph Podlulski, of the fourth district; Frank Pelligrini, of the sixth district; Sam T. Hammersmark, of the seventh district, and George Maurer of the eighth district. Workers Party members are expected to make note of meetings as they are announced and be actively present.

NEW MANIFESTO SPREAD AGAINST I. W. W. MEETING

Rowan-Bowerman Faction in Another Attack

By KARL REEVE.

Another manifesto has been broadcasted by the Rowan-Bowerman General Executive Board of the Industrial Workers of the World, refusing to recognize the convention now convened at Emmet Memorial Hall.

The attack on the convention, signed by Harry Trotter and P. D. Ryan, charges that over one-third of the delegates are in league with the Doyle-Fisher faction, and that the convention has been "accepting messages from the DAILY WORKER, which is a Communist sheet."

Call Convention Illegal.

"The meeting now in session in Emmet Memorial Hall is illegal and unconstitutional, and has not been recognized by the general executive board," states the manifesto, which was signed and sent by Rowan to every I. W. W. branch in the country in leaflet form. "One-third of the delegates have taken part in the controversy on the side of the Doyle-Fisher faction."

Charges are then made against S. Hendrickson, Samuel Obermann, August Walquist, Fred Mann, Charles Gray, Fred Fisher, Ruth and Elmer Rumbaugh, Albert Hanson, W. H. Thompson, Louis Chuba, L. McCarthy, recording secretary of the convention, and others.

All Charges Denied.

Gray is charged with attempted bribery, Fisher with being "a professional hanger-on around headquarters," Fred Mann with touring the harvest fields electioneering for Doyle and Fisher, and W. H. Thompson with being an expelled member. All the delegates have denied the charges.

I. W. W. Print Shop Errs.

Chairman P. J. Welinder explained that the DAILY WORKER had been sent a message by the convention, but due to a misprint in the I. W. W. print shop, the printed minutes had twisted the story.

The temporary administration was instructed to draw up a denial to these charges to be distributed to the membership, with a statement that further slanderous statements of the Rowan group will be ignored.

A discussion on the reorganization of the general defense occupied most of Friday's sessions. The debate became so prolonged that the convention became temporarily demoralized. One of the delegates, after listening to hours of fruitless squabbling, said he could stand such rot no longer, and left the hall for almost two hours.

The convention finally abolished the general defense committee, ruling that general defense work should be handled by the general secretary-treasurer. One delegate, evidently made nervous by the long debate, got into a jam with Chairman P. J. Welinder and took off his coat, demanding the floor. When denied the floor, he appealed from the chair's position, but the chair was sustained.

During the discussion of general defense policies, Fred Fisher objected to some I. W. W. members philosophizing about Tolstoi and Mahatma Ghandi and declared against the principles of non-resistance. He also argued against the "narrow policy of having each industrial union supporting its own defense committee," stating this form of organization to be rank decentralization.

UP! UP! AND STILL UP! GOES THE PRICE OF THE FOOD WE EAT

Prices are again on the upgrade, slowly eating into the purchasing power of wages. According to the monthly price index numbers of the U. S. department of labor there was an increase of 2 per cent in retail food costs between August and September bringing the total increase since April to 4 per cent. The cost of food absorbs more than one-third of a workers' wages. The cost of a worker's food budget is today 47 per cent above the average cost of the same budget in 1913, but it is still 2 per cent below the level of September a year ago.

Wholesale prices have also been rising steadily. The increase of more than 1 per cent during September, as reported by Dun's Review, brings the total increase since June 1 to approximately 4 per cent. Wholesale prices of foodstuffs show the biggest gains. Within a year wholesale prices of breadstuffs increased more than 19 per cent, while the average price of meats rose approximately 9 per cent.

LEN SMALL IN DEAL WITH THE KU KLUX KLAN

Turned Over Cavalry to Hooded Knights

(Special to the Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 26.—"God save me from my friends," declared Governor Len Small, when he was shown a copy of a paper, carrying an interview with Grand Dragon Palmer of the Illinois Ku Klux Klan, in which the latter boasted of having secured the use of the state fair ground and the state cavalry horses from the Small administration for his parade.

The Klan chieftain admitted that he was for Small and that the hooded knights held the balance of power and could force the politicians to give them what they wanted. It was also brought to light that the notorious Glenn Young, the murderer of Williamson county fame was on the stump for Small.

Small's Klan Deal.

The governor was suspected of having made a deal with the klan but Palmer's admission was the first confirmation so far, that the suspicions were well founded. What effect the news will have on Small's fortunes in Catholic, Jewish and Negro districts which are being urged to vote for him by leaders who have sold out to the governor, can easily be guessed.

The miners of Illinois are incensed against the klan, yet Frank Farrington, president of the union is boosting the klan-supported governor. The International Union is definitely on record against the knights of the bedclothes.

Klan Split Up.

Not alone may the information that Small has the klan on his side bring about his defeat, but the klan organization is torn to pieces over the efforts of rival Kleagles Kiokards, dragons and klailfs to sell the membership to the best paying capitalist politician. Palmer is reported to have expelled 14,000 klansmen from the organization and the 14,000 now threaten to have his head. The imperial wizard and the imperial Kleczeek are reported to be in Chicago trying to straighten the matter out.

Palmer is head of the Illinois Better government league, which consists of himself and another klansman.

Rhode Island Labor For Amalgamation and Workers' Rule

Resolutions calling for amalgamation and for independent political action by the workers were adopted by the Rhode Island state branch of the American Federation of Labor at its regular convention. They were ordered sent to Secretary Morrison with instructions to read them at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in El Paso, Texas, which begins on Nov. 17, with recommendations that the convention adopt these resolutions.

REFUSE FROEBEL HIGH FOR TALK BY WM. Z. FOSTER

Plan Huge Demonstration for New Auditorium

(Special to the Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Oct. 26.—An order of the superintendent of Gary's platooned schools has caused the withdrawal of the use of the auditorium of the Froebel high school from representatives of the Workers Party, who had rented the hall for a mass meeting to be addressed by William Z. Foster.

That the Workers Party, aided by the steel workers of Gary, will find another hall, and that the Foster rally will be only the more successful because of the attempts of Gary's servants to put a stop to the spreading of education that the steel trust knows is being eagerly absorbed by the workers here, is the unanimous opinion of Party members and Party sympathizers.

Fear Communist Education.

In coming to the aid of the steel bosses, the superintendent of schools has merely proved a fact which has more than once been shown by the DAILY WORKER—that the Gary schools are simply one more weapon of the steel trust, which has at its command the police, the courts and the press.

Further proof that Gary and his servants are beginning to fear the results of the propaganda of the Workers Party is shown in the arrest of two comrades who have been helping to distribute the DAILY WORKER, George Maravich and Jacob Rusak.

In spite of the stringent orders of the steel bosses that any employe found reading the DAILY WORKER is to be fired, the circulation of the paper among the workers continued to mount, and the next step of the bosses was to attempt to stop the distribution of the paper by arrests.

No Grounds for Arrest.

Confronted with the necessity of placing a definite charge against Comrades Maravich and Rusak, the court had to admit that there were no legal grounds for arrest. The comrades were released, and will continue to distribute the DAILY WORKER to the steel workers.

GITLOW DEMANDS JOBLESS AID AT LAWRENCE, MASS.

Workers in LaFollette's State Also Suffer

(Special to the Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 26.—Benjamin Gitlow, Workers Party candidate for vice-president, demanded that the textile industry do something for her thousands of unemployed workers in and around Lawrence, and presented the Workers Party program for the relief of unemployed at a large meeting here.

Gitlow urged the preparation by the half-starved and exploited textile workers here of shop committees and unemployment councils to face the coming depression in an organized manner.

Gitlow showed how the workers of Wisconsin are just as badly off as the workers of Lawrence, despite LaFollette's boasted labor reforms.

Most of the workers in Lawrence are entirely unemployed or work only one or two days a week, and many of the textile workers attended the meeting. John J. Ballam, candidate of the Workers Party for governor of Massachusetts, also spoke.

Many of the workers joined the Workers Party after the meeting and donated liberally to the collection.

CONNECTICUT IS HELPING RAISE PATERSON FUND

Collects Nearly $500 in Eight Days' Effort

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—The New Haven International Relief Conference organized Oct. 16, has, after a whirlwind campaign, raised in eight days a sum of $449,03 for relief of the striking silk workers of Paterson, N. J., and remitted it direct to the Associated Silk Workers' Union, 210 Market street, Paterson.

T. U. E. L. and Party in Action.

This was entirely due to the left wing group and the Workers Party members who got into harness and conducted a house to house collection in the face of organized opposition of various socialist groups which tried their best to discredit the conference and defeat the collection by circulating libellous rumors.

Collect Strike Relief.

The collection came off on Oct. 19, and was a great success, $425 being raised by door to door solicitation for the silk strikers.

The conference consisted of ten branches of the Workers Party of New Haven, the Lenin branch, the Fowota branch, and Branch 232, Workmen's Circle, together with delegates from Painter's Local No. 4, and Carpenters' Local No. 1742. It has open-ed offices at Room 6, 38 Howe street, and elected Ida Rothstein, chairman, and S. Gendelman, secretary-treasurer.

Workers Party on the Ballot in Washington; Nine Parties in All

(Special to the Daily Worker)

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 26.—William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow will go before the voting workers of this state in the coming elections.

The 11 partly tickets in the state have now been reduced to nine. Of these, six are national tickets. The Workers (Communist) Party ticket, the republican, democratic, progressive, socialist labor, and American (Klan). The farmer-labor, socialist and independent are state tickets.

A "LaFollette independent" group, which held a rump convention a mid-night with at least one paid delegate who was a nephew of the self-nominated chairman, was struck from the ballot by action of the supreme court. The mix-up here in the LaFollette ranks is typical of the situation all over the country. LaFollette has formed so many alliances with such diverse groups that every now and then one or another of the elements rebels at finding itself a political bedfellow of a group whose interests and aspirations are as far apart from its own as the poles.

MILITANTS IN MONTHLY MEET TO DISCUSS VITAL QUESTION OF POLICY AND LEFT WING FIGHTS

The regular monthly meeting of the Trade Union Educational League will be held at North West Hall, corner of North and Western avenues, on Wednesday, Oct. 29, starting at 8 p. m. prompt.

At this meeting the following matters of interest to all militants in the local trade unions will be taken up:

1. Report of the Carpenters' Convention by Jack Johnstone, assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League.

2. The left wing and the Machinists' Convention by Andrew Overgaard.

3. The left wing program for the A. F. of L. convention by Earl R. Browder, editor of the Workers Monthly.

4. The Amalgamated and the LaFollette movement by Phillip Aronberg.

All militant members of trade unions are urged to be present at this meeting. The only way that the reactionary bureaucrats now ruling the unions with an iron hand can be fought effectively is by understanding their moves and how to combat them.

MacDonald Charged With Forgery

send M. Rakowsky home. It is believed he is only too willing to do this in order to win out at the election.

The chief issue in the campaign has been the Russian treaty. The labor party officials were divided on the question, the leader of the bankers' opposition being Philip Snowden, prominent British socialist. Since the campaign opened MacDonald has been trying to dodge every issue that had a class character, and tho he was officially supporting the Russian treaty, even since this alleged document came into his possession, he now sends out orders to all the labor party speakers to knife the Anglo-Russian pact.

Until his assumption of office Ramsay MacDonald professed to favor a revolution in England. It had been the aim of British socialists and of late their most prominent leaders have repudiated this aim. The Communists openly declare their intention of overthrowing the capitalist system and its government at the first opportunity. There is no mystery about that and it did not require a "secret document" from Zinoviev to set the machinery in motion. The "Orders from Moscow" are so evidently manufactured that the stunt will not hold water tho it may stick until the campaign is over.

Forced to Sign.

The British bankers have been carrying on a strong fight against the treaty and it appears their work has borne fruit. In the first place MacDonald would never have signed the treaty but for the pressure of the left wing of the Trade Union Congress and the British Labor Party. A. Purcel, chairman of the British Trade Union Congress and E. D. Morel, M. P., have written a booklet entitled, "The Workers and the Anglo-Russian Treaty." The authors say: "The foes of the Anglo-Russian treaty are to be found among those who are the bitterest opponents of the rights, liberties and aspirations of the British working class."

MacDonald gained considerable prestige among the British workers as a result of his signing the treaty. How they will take his latest act of treachery is yet too early to state with accuracy.

The Big Problem.

Since the Dawes plan was put over on Germany, the main problem confronting the allied statesmen was to prevent the export of products from Germany from injuring their own home interests and their own markets. Naturally, unless Germany exports products, she cannot pay reparation. The only market the allied statesmen saw available was the Russian market, so they figured they could make more money out of the slave-driven German workers than by loaning money to Soviet Russia with which the workers and peasants of government could build up its own manufacturing machinery.

But there is much more than the Russian treaty involved in the latest scandal of the MacDonald regime. The "secret orders" document was issued by a permanent official of the foreign office. This alleged document was first secured, according to reports, when the German capitalist government raided the Soviet embassy several months ago. It was sent to the British government and held under lock and key. During this time MacDonald was indulging in words of praise of the Soviet delegation and finally signed a treaty with them, while knowing of the existence of the document about which he is now so excited.

According to the richly flavored yarn that emanated from the foreign office, the document captured in Germany was held unpublished pending the arrival of another which was expected from Zinoviev. Sure enough it did. Sherlock Holmes must have been on the job. On October 8 Zinoviev was good enough to accommodate the foreign office by sending a "document calling for the overthrow of the crown," wrapped inside an envelope with a few kopeks' worth of stamps on the outside. But even then MacDonald held his silence.

Defeat in China.

Political observers look upon the exposure as a campaign trick and something more. The British government has just suffered a severe diplomatic defeat in China. The Soviet-government has thwarted MacDonald's efforts to overthrow the national revolutionary government of Sun Yat Sen. Furthermore, Wu Pei Fu, supported by British money, has been defeated by General Chang, who before he entered the fray turned over the administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway to Soviet Russia. Within a short space of time Soviet diplomacy has established itself in China, to the great chagrin of the British.

India Watching Events.

It is reported that a treaty between Russia and Japan is about to be signed. The great strides made by Soviet Russia in China and its defense of the interests of the subject peoples of the Empire has created a feeling of unrest in John Bull's possessions. India, Egypt, Mesopotamia and other lands under the British yoke are watching Moscow. Advices from India indicate that the Hindoos are looking for a breaking of relations between London and Moscow, and revolutionary activity is increasing. There is suspicious activity at the war office and talk of strengthening the imperial forces in the East is rife.

The Georgian counter-revolution, which was financed to the tune of one million dollars by the British government, proved a complete failure. The surrender of Boris Savinkov removed the last capable Russian czarist from the list of active Soviet foes. Savinkov received millions of dollars from the British government for causing rebellions in Soviet Russia and for attempting to assassinate Lenin and Trotsky.

England In Delicate Position.

France and Russia are about to resume diplomatic relations and a treaty between the two countries is scheduled to follow shortly after de jure recognition. France is England's most dangerous enemy on the continent, and if MacDonald sends Rakovsky home, a beautiful prospect for the activities of Soviet diplomats will be open. It is unlikely that England will go too far, considering the present strength of Soviet Russia and the pro-Soviet attitude of the workers at home.

The success of British diplomacy in the East and the steady loss of prestige of British diplomacy coupled with the efficiencies of the election campaign are responsible for the desperate act of Ramsay MacDonald. The Daily Herald, a few years ago, proved conclusively that Scotland Yard forged copies of Russian papers, and the signatures of Lenin, Trotsky and Zinoviev. The present "document" is an even more shameless forgery.

Brand It Fabrication.

The British Communist Party after an executive meeting denied that they received such a document, and branded it as a complete fabrication. They claim it was manufactured by the Amsterdam International in an attempt to discredit the British Communists and kill the Anglo-Russia treaty.

What effect this stunt of MacDonald's will have on his political fortunes immediately is hard to predict. But there is no doubt but it will raise a storm in the ranks of British labor. The trade unions look to the purchase of machinery in England which the ratification of the treaty would speed up as one of the means of thinning the ranks of the unemployed. With the miners up in arms against the Dawes' plan, and the trade unions in favor of the Russian treaty, on both questions MacDonald being on the wrong side, it looks as if the premier would need his notorious automobile to get him out of harm's way.

MERELY CASE OF KETTLE CALLING THE POT BLACK

Farmer-Laborite Asks Light on Democrats

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—J. W. Anderson, candidate for U. S. senator in Montana on the Farmer-Labor Party ticket, has sent a sizzling telegram to the Borah "investigating" committee, characterizing as a "smoke screen" of the LaFollette democrat, Senator Walsh, the latter's rumors that other than republican funds were being used to defeat him in Montana.

Asks Probe of LaFollette Man

In Anderson's statement he cites the claim of Walsh, who is endorsed by LaFollette and Wheeler and is leading the farmer-labor party of Montana, that $100,000 was being spent to beat him, and declares that if any investigation is begun, it should be of the democratic funds.

These democratic dollars, and lots of them, are being used in Montana with the open endorsement of Wheeler and LaFollette to smash the farmer-labor party, of which Anderson is chairman as well as candidate for senator.

Will Capital Investigate Capital?

It is hardly possible that the "investigating committee" of capitalist party politicians will heed the plea of the farmer-labor candidate. The LaFollette machine in Montana, as in other states, is thoroughly capitalist, and completely a part of the regular capitalist machine, as shown by the democrat Walsh, receiving the LaFollette-Wheeler O. K.

"God's Eye" Club Asks Citizenship for Beer Hall Adolph Hittler

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 26.—A gang of nationalists gathered yesterday in the club called "God's Eye" and protested against the annulment of the citizenship of Adolph Hittler, of beer-hall fame.

Hittler is worshipped by the nationalists as the man who started the riots in Munich, Bavaria, by staging an attack in a beer-hall. He was later arrested and thrown into jail. He is now at large organizing the fascisti thruout Austria and Germany.

The nationalists protested against being ruled by Jews. At the end of yesterday's meeting they hurried into the streets and chased some Jews into cafes. A pitched battle followed, in which mounted reserves were called out.

Cigarmakers' Strike Not Ended.

TAMPA, Fla.—Reports circulating in the national labor press that the striking cigarmakers in Tampa have returned to work following conciliation are incorrect. The men and women are still out and are forming breadlines to continue the struggle. The bakeries of Ybor City nearby are offering free bread and adults and children stand in line for hours to get their loaf.

Altho the strike is not authorized by the Cigarmakers' International Union, the Tampa Central Trades & Labor assembly is planning assistance to the 15,000 union and non-union workers who are demanding a wage increase and adequate enforcement machinery for the agreements with the employers.

Miners Erect Hunter Monument.

STREATOR, Ill., Oct. 26.—John M. Hunter, president of the Illinois mine workers' union from 1897 to 1901, now rests under a granite monument erected by vote of Dist. 12 (Illinois) at Streator. He was known as Dad Hunter to the thousands of miners in the state. He returned to the mine after he laid down his office, and died in 1922 at the age of 81.

ARRESTING COMMUNIST DEPUTIES IN GERMANY 'TO SAVE DEMOCRACY'

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Desperate efforts on the part of the authorities here to prevent the rapid spread of Communist sentiment have taken the form of arrests of all Communist deputies to the Relchstag who can be found.

With the dissolution of the Reichstag, immunity has ceased, and yesterday the Communist deputy, Hoelein, was arrested. Four of the sixty-two Communist deputies elected to the last Relchstag have already been imprisoned.

The Communists charge that the Relchstag building was surrounded by secret service agents waiting to arrest other Communist deputies.

Labor Can Recognize Its Class Enemies in Those Who Villify "The Reds"

By V. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the "hell hounds of capitalism," as "Mother" Mary Jones, veteran fighter for labor liked to call them, bay louder than ever at America's Communist forces. The Denver Post, most powerful of subsidized dailies in the Rocky Mountain states, has joined the Chicago Daily News, the Washington Star, and other kept publications in the circulating of the fanciful tales of Jacob Spolansky about "The Reds." The pack grows. The howling increases in volume.

* * * *

But the workers know the Chicago Daily News, the Washington Star and the Denver Post, will not be troubled in the least by the noise. In fact they will take much delight in it. It will be sufficient indication to them that the growing power of revolutionary labor is frightening the capitalist enemy of the whole working class.

* * * *

Take the Denver Post for instance.

Frederick G. Bonfils is the owner of The Post.

Bonfils has been connected, in some way or another, with every crooked deal that has been put over in Colorado in generations.

He entered corruption on a national scale in the Teapot Dome affair. It was shown in the Washington disclosures that he put about $1,000,000 in his own pocket as the result of his connection with this scandal.

* * * *

But it is the part his paper has played in the long and bloody war on the workers of Colorado, from the Cripple Creek strike to the Ludlow massacre, that has made Bonfils notorious.

Bonfils and his sheet approved of the lawless kidnaping and deportation a score of years ago, of Moyer, Pettibone and Haywood, to Idaho, where they were placed on trial for murder and declared innocent.

It gloried in the more recent kidnaping and deportation of William Z. Foster, when he arrived in Denver to address local labor.

* * * *

Colorado is a satrapy of the House of Rockefeller, biggest stockholder in the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, of which Bonfils' Post is the local mouthpiece.

When Colorado's coal miners or steel workers go out on strike, or protest in some other way against Rockefeller rule, they are immediately attacked as "Red Heads." Mine guard rule in Colorado gave to the nation the employers' slogan, "To Hell with the Constitution."

This is the dollar dictatorship bulwarked by Bonfils in his Denver Post as 100 per cent American. It is the anti-labor reign of the biggest exploiters that Bonfils and his bought sheet seeks to protect against "The Red Menace."

It was the Bonfils' sheet that led the pack of "Brass Checkers" in the attack on the traction workers in Denver's street car strike of 1920. No struggle between the owners and the workers is too large or too small for Bonfils. He responds to every beck and call of his masters.

* * * *

It is well that the workers of the nation should know that such are the sheets of the employers now attacking America's Communists in the most recent "Red Scare."

The Chicago Daily News, the Washington Star and the Denver Post, among the others, express the thoughts of the class enemies of the workers. Only the DAILY WORKER carries on the fight against them.

Some of the militants of yesterday give up the fight. Conspicuous among these is "Mother" Jones, central figure of many a labor struggle, who now urges labor to support the strikebreaker, Coolidge. Today she is the ally of the Daily News, the Star and the Post. She stands side by side with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in his betrayal of the mine workers, in his open alliance with the worst enemies of the organization he heads.

This is the Lewis who supported his publicity agent, Ellis Searles, in conducting a "Red Raid," thru the columns of the United Mine Workers' Journal, that had the endorsement of the whole capitalist press.

* * * *

The broad front of the Anti-Communist attack extends from Rockefeller, the billionaire, to Lewis, his "labor lieutenant"; from Bonfils to Searles. It is an anti-labor front against which thinking workers must organize for the battles to protect their own class interests. Labor may easily recognize its enemies thru those supporting the attacks on "The Reds." It is a sign by which labor can develop its solidarity and march forward to its own class victory.

Young Workers of Philadelphia Start Factory Campaign

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 26. — Thousands of leaflets have been distributed at many factories here employing young workers in large numbers, inviting them to attend a mass meeting and concert at Eagle Temple at Broad and Spring Garden streets on Wednesday, Oct. 29, at 8 p. m. An attractive program has been arranged with Jack Stackel of New York, as the principal speaker. There will also be speakers in Jewish and Italian.

The leaflets distributed at the factories called upon all young workers to join in the fight with the Young Workers' League for the six-hour day, five-day week for young workers, for better shop conditions, for a workers' government, against imperialist wars and against child labor.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE ACTIVITIES.
LOCAL CHICAGO.

Monday, Oct. 27—Industrial Class, 2613 Hirsch Blvd., 8 p. m. prompt. John Williams, instructor.

Tuesday, Oct. 28 — City Central Meeting, 722 Blue Island Ave., 8 p. m. All new elected delegates must attend.

Thursday, Oct. 30—Class in Elementary Economics, 2613 Hirsch Blvd. Earl R. Browder, instructor. All league members should attend.

CLEVELAND COMMUNISTS ACTIVE DURING CLOSING DAYS OF THE CAMPAIGN

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 26. — Communists in Cleveland enter the final week of the campaign with plans for large literature distributions and numerous campaign meetings.

C. E. Ruthenberg spoke to an enthusiastic audience here tonight as the windup of his short stay in the city. Lotta Burke of Cincinnati, speaks Thursday night, at Royal Hall, 5217 Woodland Ave., on "The American Circus."

J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, will be the speaker at the final campaign rally, Monday evening, Nov. 3, at Bricklayers' Hall, 21st St. south of Prospect Ave.

Immediately after the campaign the Cleveland Communists will continue their party activities with a Soviet Anniversary Demonstration at Moose Hall, 1000 Walnut St., near 10th St.

Rice Riots Threaten.

TOKYO, Oct. 26.— The rice crops have been very poor thruout Japan. Following a few rice riots in Osaka, the regular army has been mobilized to subdue hungry mob riots. The poor hungry workers will be ordered to starve quietly by the Japanese government.

GARY'S SCHO... MERELY ADJUNCT TO STEEL MILLS

Children Are Forced to Hear Anti-Red Talks

Editor's Note—The following article by Jacob Rusack, DAILY WORKER agent in Gary, was received the same day Rusack was arrested by the tools of the United States Steel corporation for selling the paper to the steel workers. Elbert H. Gary and his friends, Calvin Coolidge and J. P. Morgan, know that if the workers learn the truth they will rebel and organize to better their conditions. Consequently, Rusack has earned the bitter enmity of the steel trust for his exposure of non-union conditions inside the steel mills.

By JACOB RUSAK.

(Special to the Daily Worker)

GARY, Ind., Oct. 26.—The public schools of Gary, from kindergarten to the last year of highschool, are run in the interests of the United States Steel corporation, and prepare the children to become more highly exploited after they graduate and enter the steel mills.

All grades are forced to take one hour of auditorium every day.

Speaks From Experience.

This means that one hour each day all the school children sit and listen to members of the chamber of commerce denounce the "reds" and talk 100 per cent Americanism. I know—I have been thru the public school system here myself.

Most of the lectures given to the Gary children contain praise of the steel corporation. On graduation week the principal of each school invites a member of the chamber of commerce or an official of the steel trust to lecture. The theme generally is about how much Judge Gary is doing for the workers who slave in his health-wrecking mills.

Before they graduate from grammer school the children's minds are poisoned with the bunk that every boy has a chance to become an official of the United States Steel corporation and president of the United States. Then they are forced after graduation to go out and do their bit to produce surplus profits for Judge Gary and his steel magnates. Not until they work several years in the most dangerous industry there is for the meager wage of 43 cents an hour, do they realize they have been handed a pack of lies in the "success talk" fed them at school.

Gary Visits Schools.

In May, 1922, for the first time since the Gary steel mills were built, Elbert Gary visited the Gary schools to see that the steel mill slaves were fed propaganda that would make them more valuable slaves to him.

The children were forced to line up out on the school grounds and made to swear their loyalty to the speed-up king who is now electioneering for the strikebreaker Coolidge. They were compelled to sing patriotic songs and a special song was written for the occasion by a Gary hireling. The chorus went:

"Hello Gary, you're a friend of mine. With your hands in your pocket and your little chain and locket. Hello Gary, you're a friend of mine. What's the matter with Gary, he's all right."

Mills Tell Another Story.

Gary smiled and winked, and seemed pleased. Not long after he fired several thousand fathers of these children when times were slack, and took the homes from those who could not keep up the exhorbitant payments on the Gary houses.

The children are fed hot air about equal opportunity, but when they get into the mills, they find themselves in the toils of a vicious feudalist slavery. They find their jobs, wages, hours and homes controlled by Elbert Gary, and they find he's not such a good friend after all when it comes to making profits in his steel mills.

Three Killed in Niagara Falls.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Investigation of the wreck on the Niagara Falls high speed electric line was begun this afternoon.

Medical Examiners Danser and Long, Erie county officials, began an inquiry of their own. Issuance of death certificates for victims of the wreck was withheld until they shall have finished.

The death list now numbers three, Isaac Markey, of Coatesville, Pa., having succumbed to his injuries. Three other victims of the wreck are expected to die.

Red Week a Blow to the Trinity

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

LET every fool keep cool with Coolidge! Let the mess-backs weep with Davis because he is slow in the race! Let every chronic progressive continue his pastime of trying to drive "reform" nails into the steel armor of capitalism! But let all thinking working men and women, let all poor farmers, who can straighten their backs long enough to look things in the face and ponder, give attention this week to Red Literature.

Red Week is on! And Red Week means that the red blood of hundreds of thousands of proletarians will course faster thru their work-worn bodies after reading, this week, that Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette are the trinity of capitalism, are the betrayers of the working class. The millions of pieces of Communist literature with which the country will be covered will tell the story.

The mobilization of Reds for a distribution of Red Literature during Red Week actually turned out to be a winner. We rang the bell! It was a home run! We kicked the goal! This ought to explain in ordinary American terms, what is meant. We did mobilize and the returns show it and prove it.

The $550 from New York City; the $200 from a single branch in Detroit; the many $25 and $35 remittances from branches in Chicago, Minneapolis, Boston and other industrial centers; the response from the smaller party units in smaller cities, in mining districts, agricultural territory; remittances from places where the Workers Party has no organization at all—this tells the tale. Red Week was put over.

And now for a conscientious distribution. Make every leaflet find a reader. Let every pamphlet make a student. Get a subscriber for every copy of the DAILY WORKER you distribute. Stick the stickers where workers will read, so that the slogans will stick in their minds. Into the shops! Into the homes! Make every piece produce.

THIS IS RED WEEK! YOUR 137-PIECE LITERATURE UNIT UNDER YOUR ARM AT ONCE! AND PIONEERING FOR THE REVOLUTION YOU GO!

FARRINGTON ON LEWIS AND HIS 'TAKING' FAMILY

Declares Crookedness Runs in the Breed

(Article Thirteen)

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

Of the many acts of treachery listed in the debit side of Frank Farrington's record, none is more damaging in the eyes of the miners of Illinois than this shameful desertion of Alexander Howat, who was putting up a splendid battle against the autocracy of the coal operators' man in the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America and is still waging the struggle. Tho Farrington's espousal of Howat's cause was never anything but a doubtful asset to the Kansas mine leader, his about-face, when himself and Lewis made peace, brands Farrington as one who is entirely thereft of even the least semblance of loyalty.

Alexander Howat, as president of the Kansas Miners' Union, fought the infamous Governor Allen of that state on the Industrial Court Law, commonly known as the Industrial Slave Law. Tho Howat went to jail during the struggle, he finally defeated Allen and killed the slave law.

Lewis With Operators.

In the course of this fight, one of the ablest agents of the coal operators, whose orders Allen was carrying out, was John L. Lewis, International president. Under fire from the president of the union and the state government, Howat and his district executive were fighting under heavy handicaps, but the dogged determination which is so characteristic of the miners, who are the best fighters in the industrial army of labor in America, enabled them to hold their ground until Governor Allen threw up his hands and had to release Howat and his associates.

At this time it happened that Lewis and Farrington were bitter enemies. There was no charge sufficiently strong for them to hurl at each other. Farrington was merely using the Howat case in order to force Lewis to come to terms with him.

Fought Aid to Howat.

The Illinois miners got behind Howat to the limit of their ability and backed him with some three hundred thousand dollars of their funds. The International president declared this was an illegal use of funds to support a strike the International had not approved of. But so far Lewis has failed to force restitution of the money in the way provided by the constitution.

In view of the united front between Lewis and Farrington today, it is interesting to go back a few years and read the nice things they said about each other. Speaking at a special convention of District 21, Oklahoma, on May 15, 1922, Farrington exhausted his generous vocabulary of vituperation in flaying Lewis for his treatment of Alexander Howat. Here are a few excerpts from his speech:

". . . the men in that district (Kansas) are the victims of the most treacherous, highhanded outrage that has ever been committed not alone on the United Mine Workers of America, but on the organized labor movement as a whole, and I say to you that those who are defending the conduct of the International Union in that instance cannot successfully defend their position if they will strip their argument of all the beclouding, befuddling conditions that have been introduced in the Kansas situation.

Branded as Disrupter.

President Wilkinson of the Oklahoma district had charged Farrington with trying to disrupt the United Mine Workers, the same charge that Farrington hurls at his enemies in the district. Farrington replied: "My friends, I confess here now before you that if John L. Lewis is the International Union of the United Mine Workers of America, then the charge made by Wilkinson is true!"

Again Farrington said: "I would have no trouble in the Miners' Union if I would get in John L. Lewis' bandwagon. I could go along just like Wilkinson and Dalrymple and Bitner and Frampton and the rest of that crew."

Evidently Farrington was having enough trouble with the rank and file of the union without having to fight Lewis as well, so he got on his bandwagon.

Fighting Slave Law.

Continuing in the same speech Farrington said: "If there is one indisputable thing in connection with the whole thing that disproves completely beyond any possible doubt whatever, that Howat was not fighting the International Union, but that instead he was fighting the industrial court act in that state, that outstanding indisputable truth is, the fact that Alexander Howat is serving a term in jail, that he is now in jail. If he was not fighting the industrial court law, but instead was fighting the International Union, you ask yourselves what the hell he is doing in jail.

"Does the International Union send men to jail who oppose them? They do about everything else to them but I have never known yet that they send them to jail. . ."

Farrington As Jailer.

When Farrington made that statement he was after crushing the rebellion in the Illinois Miners' Union and had paid out $27,000 to gunmen and criminals of various kinds to slug and beat up the progressives and he aided the sheriffs thruout the state in putting them in jail, yet here he was pleading for Alexander Howat, whom he afterwards deserted at the most crucial moment of the fight for his rights in the U. M. W. of A.

Again Farrington said: "I am not trying to destroy the International Union, but am trying to destroy John L. Lewis, the man who is doing more to destroy the United Mine Workers of America, than any other man I know of. . . . and he will not have my support as long as he is using the power of his position to crucify men who won't jump thru the hoop every time he snaps his fingers and tells them to do it."

Changed His Mind.

Farrington no doubt had forgotten this pledge when he aided Lewis at the last convention in Indianapolis in crucifying Howat even tho every delegate from District 12, except the payroll brigade were solidly behind the Kansas miner. Farrington was appointed by Lewis, chairman of the scale committee. Even at that Howat thought he could not sink so low as to go back on him after his many promises, but he did.

The retraction made by Farrington of statements he made against John L. Lewis in 1910, was used by John L. Lewis to show that Farrington's word did not mean anything. Referring to this, Farrington said that he knew the retraction was not true, but that his original statements were true, and that he signed the retraction for particular reasons.

John's Thieving Brothers.

"I could say that you should support the Kansas Mine Workers," said Farrington, "because I proved that three of John L. Lewis' brothers were nothing but petty larceny thieves; I did that. They were all members of the Panama local union and for years they were engaged in the profitable, but unwholesome pastime of systematically looting the Panama local union, and it became my duty as president of that district to send auditors into that local union to find out what was going on, and they made their investigation and their audit, and their audit developed the fact that three of John's brothers had been systematically looting that local treasury for a number of years, and that they and others that were employed in it had succeeded in doing so to the extent of something over $3,000.

Cause of Lewis' Hatred.

"And, as president of that district, it became my duty to force them to make restitution to that local union. And I did it and from that day to this John has not liked me very well.

"I don't mind telling you this, too, that there are lots of men in the Panama local union who believe that John's brothers were simply operating under the scheme that John himself established when he was the power in that local union, and before he became your president. . . . I might say this, too, that there seems to be some evidence that the trait runs in the family, because just as soon as John became president of our International he appropriated for himself 30 per cent more salary than he was entitled to under the law.

It Runs in the Family.

". . . I am telling you these things in order that you may know that there cannot be any peace or harmony between John L. Lewis and myself, because John L. Lewis has an undying hatred in his heart for the president of the Illinois miners, because it became my duty as president of that district to expose and to bring to account his three brothers who were systematically looting the Panama local and he has never forgiven me for it and I don't suppose he ever will."

Those were harsh words indeed for one official of the U. M. W. of A. to say of another. No charge made by the progressive miners against John L. Lewis are more serious than those made against Lewis by Farrington. Yet these two labor agents of the coal operators and the republican party have found it possible to bury the hatchet in the body of the United Mine Workers of America, which is now bleeding to death over the wounds inflicted on it by these two capitalists' executioners.

Case of Hanging Together.

Farrington and Lewis can come together and forget the past because they have a common basis for agreement against their progressive opponents. Like the robber capitalist nations, who, tho always quarreling among themselves, unite at the first sign of danger from the ranks of the working class, the two rival "tuchuns" of the miners' union can put up a united front in order to save their jobs out of which they can buy grand homes, automobiles, orange groves and shares in the coal companies that are fighting for the union whose interests they are sworn to serve.

As Farrington retracted this charge against T. L. Lewis, he also swallowed his accusations against John L. Lewis and those already given here are not the worst by any means. To use a popular phrase: "The worst is yet to come."

Saved Walker's Hide.

It may be of interest however, to learn in whose behalf Farrington claims to have retracted his statements against T. L. Lewis in his written apology which was afterwards used by John L. Lewis against him. We have already shown in previous articles that John L. Walker saved Farrington's bacon on more than one occasion. This pair evidently had an entente or an understanding to come to each other's aid whenever the fortunes of either one were in jeopardy. It was a sort of "gentlemen's agreement" something like the kind of a secret agreement sometimes made by capitalist nations with each other; the kind that would not look so well in print.

It appears that T. L. Lewis had something on John L. Walker in 1910. Walker was then president of the Illinois Miners' Union. It is reported that T. L. Lewis threatened to "get" Walker unless Farrington, Walker's friend, withdrew the charges he made against Lewis at the Belleville convention in writing.

Knew Apology False.

At the Oklahoma convention where Farrington made the speech from which the above quotations are taken, he admitted that he knew the charges made by him against T. L. Lewis were false, yet he signed a complete and unqualified retraction. Why? The following reply does not answer the question. It only raises another: What had T. L. Lewis on John L. Walker?

Farrington was asked by Delegate Doyle, as the special Oklahoma convention asked Farrington the following questions:

Delegate Doyle: "Referring to the controversy that you mentioned in your agreement in 1910, the retraction that you made, were you not then, at that time a member of the International executive board, when you made that retraction?"

Farrington: "Yes."

Delegate Doyle: "And you made it, did you?"

Farrington: "Yes, sir."

Delegate Doyle: "In the interests of John L. Walker?"

Farrington: "No, in the interests of the Illinois miners."

Delegate Doyle: "John L. Walker was president of the Illinois miners at that time?"

Farrington: "In the interests of the Illinois miners at the behest or request of John Walker, who was at that time president."

Forgot His Promises.

The loyalty to the cause of Alexander Howat which Farrington so loudly proclaimed at that time was soon discarded, when the Howat case no longer served his crooked purpose in his factional fight with Lewis. When the labor fakers of the United States felt the growing power of the Trade Union Educational League led by William Z. Foster, endangering their graft, they closed up the ranks and joined forces against the common enemy.

Fear Basis of Pact.

This is the secret of the "peace" between Lewis and Farrington. There is no reason to believe that they love each other now any more than they ever did, but they love the progressive miners less. They fear the Howat case as the rallying center for the mass protest against their treacherous acts. Therefore Farrington decided to let Lewis have Howat's head while he got his axe ready to chop off the political head of Duncan McDonald, former secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Miners' Union, who is feared and hated by Farrington as Lewis hates Howat.

Other interesting correspondence between Lewis and Farrington will be given in subsequent articles and also the attempts of the Illinois "tuchun" to oust the progressives, particularly those in the Springfield sub-district. Farrington's success in securing the suspension of Duncan McDonald is likely to prove his Nemesis. Why he fought McDonald and how the Illinois miners are fighting for McDonald's reinstatement will be the subject of a special article.

Carry Out London Protocol.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The French foreign office today published an interallied decree suppressing allied exploitation of Ruhr and Dusseldorf bridgehead gages, mines and coking plants on October 28, in accordance with the London protocol.

Also, the decree authorizes German customs and forest licensing authorities to resume functioning immediately.

A CALL TO ACTION.

ON Election Day, November 4, the workers of the various industries will not work in their shops as this is a legal holiday, therefore we ask you to work for the party and for COMMUNISM.

We must have hundreds of comrades to report to their section headquarters on election day to be assigned to work in the polling places as watchers and as canvassers outside of the polling place. The law permits you to stand 100 feet away from the polls to instruct workers how to vote and to pass out literature to the voters. All comrades can do this work and should immediately report to the section headquarters and register for this work. We also must have comrades who are citizens to act as watchers in the polling places.

It is not enough to have the workers vote for the Communist candidates.

We must have comrades at the polls to see that the votes are counted for us.

We must have comrades near the polls to distribute literature to the voters.

We must have comrades near the polls to instruct voters how to vote for us.

New Manifesto Against I. W. W.

the general defense told the convention that the form of the defense work is changing and from now on publicity will be the I. W. W.'s biggest defense weapon. Morris said the liberals are no longer willing to support the I. W. W. defense, and advised a campaign of agitation on all I. W. W. members.

Joe Fisher, suspended secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World, recommends the abolishment of the general executive board of the I. W. W. and its election in the future by the membership. Fisher says in his report just printed by the I. W. W., that by changing the character of the general executive board, future controversies will be controlled and the sickness of "industrial patriotism instead of revolutionary action" will be avoided.

Sees Dangerous Effects.

Fisher says in part:

"The present make-up of the G. E. B. tends toward far-reaching dangerous effects upon the general organization of the I. W. W. The G. E. B. members have a two-fold character, being chairmen of their industrial unions and G. E. B. members at the same time. This leads to petty politics in a contest for advantage."

In speaking of Bowerman's actions as G. E. B. member, Fisher pointed to "the defeat by Bowerman, Trotter and Vangsness of a motion to continue the exposure of the Burns' detective agency in Solidarity." Fisher further censors these men for "the motion introduced by Bowerman and Trotter to rescind action previously taken by the G. E. B. in expelling Burns' agents, Spear and Haines, alias Harris."

"When the G. E. B. was called into session by the general organizer to consider the charges of disruption which had been preferred against some of the G. E. B. members by William Hanley and John M. Reilly, they ignored the meeting entirely, and went on with their rump session." Fisher's report continues. "Finally the G. E. B. members were forced to enforce the last general convention ruling on matters of a controversial nature, and Bowan, Ryan, Trotter, Anderson and Bowerman stand suspended members of the I. W. W. until this general convention."

"The injunction applied for by Bowerman and inspired by Grady and others has done much to bring the I. W. W. into disrepute and has effectively paralyzed its functioning as a labor organization."

Recommendations by Fisher.

Fisher recommends:

"1. That the constitution be made adaptable to meet the existing conditions from time to time.

"2. That the one-year clause be stricken out from the constitution.

"3. That the G. E. B. as at present constituted be abolished, and G. E. B. be elected by and from the general membership.

"4. That a clearing house system be established to the I. W. W.

"5. That all credentials and supplies for the delegates of all I. U.'s be issued from the general headquarters, and delegates must remit all finances to general secretary-treasurer.

"I further recommend to the delegates on the present controversy:

"That after thorough investigation is made by you delegates in this present controversy, all those guilty officials and members who support those who violated the principle and carry on the dissention in the I. W. W. must be expelled thru the referendum vote of the entire organization."

Spolansky Casts His Lot with Burns

growth of the vicious, scab-herding methods of American capitalism.

As to taking up the fight for the exploited Negro, the Communist movement is not ashamed of its activities in that direction. The fight of the Negroes is our fight, and the fight of all workers, of whatever race or color are not ashamed of enlisting Negroes in our ranks. We only wish Spolansky's figures were true.

Now about the "secrecy" business. Apart from Spolansky's confused nonsense in the Chicago Daily News, there are a number of erroneous conceptions which have got abroad, and which have been diligently spread by the friends of capitalist exploitation. These need to be cleared up.

An Open Movement.

The Communist movement is now an open movement, and was an open movement when it started. The Communist Party and the Communist Labor Party were organized in 1919, adhering to the Communist International, and making their appeal to all workers. In January, 1920, ex-Attorney Palmer, a willing tool of capitalism, began his series of spectacular and brutal raids against radicals, making liberal use of "under-cover" men, stool pigeons, finks and frame-up experts, of the type of William J. Burns and Jake Spolansky. These raids have already been exposed in the DAILY WORKER. Nearly 7,000 warrants of arrest were issued and upwards of 10,000 workers were arrested—a great part of them members of the Communist and Communist Labor parties. The Labor Defense Council is still defending cases arising out of these raids and is collecting funds at its office, 166 W. Washington street, Chicago, to carry on the fight.

These mass persecutions forced the Communist parties to organize underground to escape annihilation. The movement was forced to lead an underground existence for three years, not by romantic mystery or secret instructions from Moscow, but rather by the brutal, vindictive terror of the United States government in the service of American capitalism. It is true that the Communists did not meekly surrender when attacked, but were determined to keep a revolutionary working class movement alive and functioning at all costs.

However, it is ridiculous superstition or ignorance to believe that a Communist party must always be underground. In France, Germany, England and other countries, we have Communist parties with hundreds of thousands of workers in their ranks, quite openly organized. It is only in the most backward countries, such as Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, Poland, Hungary, Finland, and in Italy which is plagued with fascism, that the brutality of the government has condemned the Communist parties to an underground existence.

Have Nothing To Hide.

The Communist underground organization was not a means for hiding anything from the workers. The Communists said this clearly and emphatically, as far back as 1922, in the very Labor Day manifesto which Spolansky misquotes:

"The Communists are not a sinister secret band of conspirators. Our aim, the liberation of workers, the abolition of wage slavery, working class control of industry, and state power, can only be achieved if the great masses of the workers stand with us.

"Workers' rule is only possible when the millions of workers support the Communist program. It is an essential feature of the Communist program to convince the majority of the workers of the truth of the ideas of Communism. . .

"We have nothing to conceal from the workers. We once more appeal to the workers to look upon the persecution of the Communists as a matter concerning all workers as well.

"The Communists are today outlawed because the capitalists are planning to outlaw the whole working class. When William Z. Foster was forcibly run out of Colorado, Adjutant-General Hamrock declared that he did so 'for the best interests of the state.' And then he added, 'No law was consulted.'

Capitalists Break Own Laws.

"The capitalists break their own laws whenever their interests demand it. If the workers will not defend the advance guard, the persecuted Communists, then the workers will have to get ready to have the whole working class face the same declaration from the Hamrocks, Hardings, Daughertys, Pershings—that the organized workers must be crushed 'for the best interests of the state'—and in this instance also 'no law will be consulted.'"

The conditions of the class struggle made it absolutely necessary for the Communists to exist as an underground organization during the years 1920-1922. But the change in conditions has made it possible, and therefore necessary, for the Communist Party to be dissolved as an underground organization. Today we no longer have an underground Communist Party in the United States. The Communist forces have united in the Workers Party of America, which is fraternally affiliated with the Communist International. The Workers Party fights openly for Communist principles. It is leading the fight against reaction, in the trade unions, in the shops and factories, in all phases of the political and industrial struggle. Its candidate for president in this election is William Z. Foster, leader of the great steel strike of 1919, the man whom "Pat" Hamrock once deported from Colorado, for the best interests of Rockefeller and Rockefeller's friends.

WHILE attending the sessions of the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, the question most frequently put to me about America by the leading Russian comrades, was: "How is the circulation of the DAILY WORKER growing?" They know the value of a big circulation for a revolutionary daily. Therefore I cannot too strongly urge upon our members and friends the importance of getting into the present "Build the DAILY WORKER" campaign in real earnest. It is Communist work of the first order and the kind of work that will surely bring lasting results.

JEWISH HARLEM BRANCH WINNER OF SILK BANNER

Presented by Foster in Daily Worker Contest

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 26.—The red silk banner, which had been offered to any Workers Party or Young Workers League branch making the best record in the DAILY WORKER New York subscription campaign, was awarded to the Jewish Harlem branch by William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, at his meeting in Arcadia Hall here.

This branch led the list with 139 subscriptions. The English Harlem branch took second honors with 120 subscriptions. The Y. W. L. branch No. 18 came third with 106 subs, and the English Williamsburg branch fourth with 77 subs.

All Branches Participate.

Nearly every branch in the city sent in some "subs" during this campaign. Altho all the reports are not yet in the total subscriptions secured during the campaign since Sept. 1, already runs over 1,500.

Every member who still has one of the special campaign "subs" folders should turn it in immediately to the DAILY WORKER agent of his branch or to the N. Y. agency at 208 E. 12th St., so that a complete and final report may be made this week. The sale of the special campaign "subs" must now stop, and only subs at regular rates accepted.

DAILY WORKER on News Stands.

Beginning Wednesday, Oct. 22, the DAILY WORKER appears on the news stands of New York to compete there with the capitalist dailies for the attention of the workers.

Every class conscious reader will understand what this means, and will do all in his power to support the DAILY WORKER in this struggle for "a place under the sun." Call the attention of your friends and fellow workers to the DAILY WORKER. Urge them to buy it at the news stands, and set them a good example yourself.

Pastor Jars Money Men in His Flock by Attacking Capitalism

(By The Federated Press)

WELLINGTON, New Zealand.—Speaking here on the relationship between organized labor and organized religion, Rev. Dr. Gibb launched an attack on the present day capitalistic system.

He said that our present social and industrial regime, under capitalism, was one which involved a huge proportion of the poulation in poverty. Great masses of the people were underfed, spent little on clothing, and were badly housed. Tho the power to produce wealth was greater than at any previous time in history, thousands of people died from underhourishment every week.

Poverty, he said, was the lot the masses under capitalistic rule. The existence of poverty was a burning shame and an abominable scandal. Human society today was arranged for the benefit of the profiteers. The masses were mere sport and playthings of the money kings whose sole motive was self-interest.

Dr. Gibb's speech created consternation among the wealthy supporters of his church, who very naturally resented his exposure of the system under which they lived upon the backs of the masses.

Looks As If Ku Klux Klan Is Busy with Torch at Herrin, Ill.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 26.—An "arson squad" operating to prevent the reopening of places in Williamson county closed for violations of the prohibition laws today was held responsible for five mysterious fires which this week have destroyed five resorts the injunctions against which would shortly have expired.

All the places burned were closed for one year following Ku Klux Klan raids last December.

An investigation of the fires is being made by the company of national guardsmen on duty here to prevent further outbreaks between the Klan and anti-Klan factions.

LABOR PRESS BOOSTS LABOR FILM

The increased publicity given to Labor Film by its "big sister," the Labor Press, shows effect in the new interest taken in the pictures all over the country. Already several big cities have opened negotiations for the newest film, while small theatre managers in the Iron Range are writing directly for rentals. This is the case even where we have not a single branch or member. Negotiations for showing the "Beauty and Bolshevik" in Detroit, Chicago and Milwaukee are progressing rapidly. "Politkushka" is expected to have a revival in Chicago, while the "Lenin Memorial" reel will probably feature the Nov. 7 program in Milwaukee.

The Workers Party in Action

CHICAGO PARTY ACTIVITIES

Four shop nuclei were reported as definitely organized, and charters applied for, at the last meeting of the City Central Committee of the Workers Party, Local Chicago, Oct. 21. This marks the beginning of reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei. It is a big step forward and will, no doubt, bring excellent results, politically and organizationally.

To further hasten the development of shop nuclei organization the next meeting of the City Central Committee will have as its main feature a discussion on shop nuclei, Comrade Abern leading the discussion.

The party members in the clothing trades are forming the basis for the beginnings of shop nuclei organization, and meetings are being held regularly for this purpose.

Resolutions Adopted on Food Workers and Metal Trades

Resolutions dealing with the activities of the food workers group in the recent elections in the union, and the difficulties of party members in a particular machine shop were adopted. These resolutions are printed in another section of the DAILY WORKER.

Discussions on industrial policy in the City Central Committee is resulting in clarification of the membership. Reports were also made on the situation in the building trades and the necessity of comrades attending every union to carry on the struggle therein.

The industrial registration is now being compiled and will be available for T. U. E. L. and Party use in a few days. A few branches have failed yet to send in their registration.

Join The Party

Thirty-two new members were brought into the Party at this last C. C. C. meeting. They were accepted into the following branches: South Side Scandinavian one member; North Side English, one; Douglas Park English, two; Spanish branch, two; Mid City English, 3; Irving Park English, one; Czecho-Slovak Cicero, Womens', seven; North West Jewish, two; Shop Nucleus No. 4, one; Shop Nucleus No. 2, two; Douglas Park Jewish, two; Ukrainian No. 1, three; Ukrainian No. 5, three; Russian No. 1, one. Among these were twelve union workers: seven from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and one each from the Carpenters, Sheet Metal Workers, Machinists, Printers and the I. W. W.

Educational Activities

On education, Comrade Gomes reported that comrades had been secured to appear before the branches on theses of the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, and also to address all new comrades entering into the Party. See other columns.

The Young Workers League at Work

The Y. W. L. has completed its reorganization on the basis of working area branches, is developing a drive on the mail order houses and is campaigning to aid in establishing a weekly Young Worker by the 1st of January. There are fourteen Junior Groups in existence.

City Organization to Take Over Literature

Very shortly, in order to increase the sale of literature and to centralize its distribution, the city organization will take over the sale of literature to the branches, and the National Office will no longer deal with the branches direct. The Literature Department is working out a plan for efficient sale of literature at unions and other meetings.

Final Election Campaign Drive

In the last two weeks of the campaign, local Chicago is trying to put over a large number of meetings, indoors and outdoors, in all districts. Mass meetings are to be arranged in every congressional district and the branches are to co-operate towards their success. Details will appear in other columns.

Work At The Ballot Box, Nov. 4th.

Poll-watchers will be required for the elections on November 4. Branches should send in names and addresses of comrades able to help us out.

Towards A Greater Activity

At the last City Executive Committee meeting discussions were held with representatives of the Hungarians and the Russians on means of developing work in those units. Shop nuclei especially were discussed. At the next meeting a representative of our Finnish comrades will report.

A Committee on International Workers Aid was appointed.

The Labor Defense—DAILY WORKER Bazaar is progressing, with every hope of huge success.

Special DAILY WORKER Edition for Seventh Russian Revolution Anniversary

A special edition of the DAILY WORKER will be gotten out to aid in making a huge success of the November 7th Celebration, and also to continue systematic propaganda. Distribution will again be mainly at factories, and comrades able to help will please send in their names to the Local Office.

Sacco-Vanzetti and the Foster-Gitlow meetings on October 12 were successes in every way.

Very briefly, these reports indicate that local Chicago is steadily increasing its activities. Membership is growing, shop nuclei organization has started, clarification of the membership on political and industrial questions is growing, which will bring about more united and understood, as well as live, activities. The road from isolation to the masses, to control and leadership of the workers, lies thru greater shop nuclei work, trade union activity, work on the job, organized efforts everywhere the party conducts its activity.

Next City Central Committee Meeting Wednesday, Nov. 5.

The meeting of the Chicago C. C. C. will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 5, 8 P. M., at Workers Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave. The change is made because of election day on November 4. Comrades, please take note of change of date.

Martin Abern, Secretary.

ST. LOUIS COMRADES SELL DAILY WORKERS AT CAMPAIGN RALLIES

By A. B. MASN.

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 26.—We organized a DAILY WORKER newsies' squad of twenty comrades who do the large campaign rallies of all the political parties. At a LaFollette meeting we sold as many as 600 copies and at the last Davis meeting held here one comrade standing on the corner of the streets of the meeting sold 156 copies just by shouting at the top of his voice "For once in your life, buy a Workers' Paper!"

PROFESSOR URGES LA FOLLETTE AID TO BLOCK CHANGE

Thinks Wisconsin Man Can Stop Revolution

By T. D. F.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 26.—The trite anti-working class character of LaFollette movement is becoming clearer and clearer as the election campaign is progressing. Speaker after speaker, representing LaFollette, are compelled to come out with the goods and state their position on various issues.

Two Professors Argue.

A discussion between two professors, followers of Davis and LaFollette recently took place at the Swarthmore college not far from Philadelphia. Prof. Brooks, who spoke in favor of Davis, laid special emphasis on the fact that neither the republican nor LaFollette party have any plans which would prevent another bloody world war.

Against the Revolution.

Professor Holms, who spoke for LaFollette, let the cat out of the bag when he stated that LaFollettism is the only way which can prevent a "red revolution."

He even made use of the slogan "Workers of the World Unite! You have nothing to lose, but your chains."

Wants to Try Again.

Against this slogan, Prof. Holmes issues the slogan: "Liberals of America, unite! You have nothing to lose but the republican party."

When his attention was called to the fact that democracy when put to a test has always failed and had to be replaced by a dictatorship, his answer was short and simple: "We will try again."

Fimmen Gets Big Reception from Labor In Soviet Russia

MOSCOW, Oct. 26.—Edo Fimmen, general secretary of the International of Transport Workers, who has come to the U. S. S. R. to get personally acquainted with the Russian trade union movement and the industrial position of the country, has been met with much sympathy at workers' meetings and sessions of various trade union organs and is welcomed as representing those circles of the international trade union movement which support the aspirations of the U. S. S. R. trade unions to restore the unity of this movement.

Speaking at a meeting, Mr. Fimmen expressed his assurance that the transport workers of the world will do all in their power to prevent the powers which are preparing intervention in China to bring arms into this country, in the same way as they had at the time hampered the transport of arms and munitions to Poland, for a struggle against the Soviet republics.

CENSORS SEE AND FINALLY PASS THE 'BEAUTY--BOLSHEVIK'

Two more censor boards are added to the list that have passed the new Russian comedy feature film, "The Beauty and the Bolshevik," after both took a longer time to make up their minds than is usually the case.

The Ohio board, which is a subdivision of the department of education, passed the feature and its accompanying educational subject, "Russia in Overalls," without charge. The Chicago board, which operates under the police department, did the same altho holding the film for a second showing to convince some of the board that it was quite all right.

The only authorities thus far to demand any change in the film have been the Pennsylvania state board of censors. For dates for these two remarkable pictures write the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

SOVIETS BUY UP OIL EQUIPMENT IN THIS COUNTRY

Place Trial Orders for Million Dollars

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—That American oil interests are giving Russia considerable industrial and commercial recognition, whatever the state department may be doing, is brought out in trade figures furnished by A. P. Serebovsky, head of the Russian government oil trust.

Trial orders for a million dollars of American oil equipment have been placed by Serebovsky and he announces that many millions of orders may be expected.

Plan Long Pipe Line.

A proposal is under negotiations, he said, for a pipe line from Baku to Batum, the Black Sea oil port, to be built by the Sinclair Oil Co., with the Sinclair people putting up $20,000,000 of the capital for the pipe line and a refinery at Batum.

"The building of a pipe line would be of great importance to Russia in enabling her to market oil to all parts of Europe more advantageously."

Have Four-Year Program.

Russia's oil reconstruction program will take four years, says Serebovsky. He attended the International Petroleum congress, holding its annual sessions at Tulsa, the first oil representative from the new Russian regime.

Gary Has Hopes for Return of Pittsburgh Plus As Price Basis

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Members of the American Iron and Steel Institute, meeting here today were "beseeched" by Elbert H. Gary, president, to give the abolition of Pittsburgh-plus price basis for iron and steel products every chance before attempting to reinstate the former method of making steel prices.

Judge Gary expressed doubt that the order of the federal trade commission, directing abandonment of the price fixing method could have been upheld in the courts.

Another Army Scandal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Charges that the U. S. war department lost $392,000 by selling surplus army garments in Brooklyn last August are published by an unnamed complainant in the Times, a letter to Secretary of War Weeks declares that the government official in charge sold the goods at a third of a million less than the "upset" or minimum price first put on the consignment and that previosly the government refused to sell under its quoted price.

IN WITH THE DOLLARS!

TWO weeks and the presidential election campaign will pass into history except the counting of votes and the scramble for the pie, which this time may be stretched out over a series of weeks in congress.

However, many dollars can still be collected in the two weeks still left to work in. Every Workers Party member, every sympathizer, is asked to make these two weeks count heavy for the cause of Communism. Use the contribution lists in your possession. There is nothing better that money can be spent for at this time than Communist propaganda. In with the dollars.

Contributions received during the last several days, exclusive of receipts in district offices follow:

Decide Against Cut.

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PITTSKIELD, Mass., Oct. 26.—The Renfrew Manufacturing company of Adams has given up its plans for a 12½ per cent wage cut now, fearing a strike by its cotton mill workers. The cut had been announced as part of a program under which the employes would be guaranteed at least three days' work a week. The American Federation of Textile Operatives is represented in the mills.

BOXER TREATY ROUSES IRE OF CHINESE LABOR

Send Protest to Great Britain's Premier

CANTON, Oct. 26.—A mass popular demonstration, directed against the Boxer protocol of 1901, as an instrument and a symbol of the enslavement of China by the imperialists, was held in the city here.

Tens of thousands participated, the crowd consisting of workers, students of military schools and farmers.

Rally Against Imperialism.

Mr. Tam Ping-San, who presided, depicted the forcible policy of the imperialistic powers in China, calling on all the oppressed peoples to rally against imperialism which was fettering the Oriental peoples not only by force of arms but economically, too.

Speakers representing the Central Committee of the Kuomintang Party, the Farmers' Section of Youth, the organizations of workers, students, women, students of all the military schools, farmers and the "Young Guard," explained in their addresses the painful situation of oppressed China, calling upon all those who love their country to organize unions for fighting imperialism, for the repudiation of the Boxer Treaty, the abolishment of foreign extra-territoriality, the boycott of American and English goods.

Parade Thru Streets.

The appeals and resolutions were met enthusiastically by all those present. After the meeting was over, the demonstrants paraded thru all the city with music, flags and banners bearing numerous slogans and catchwords.

A special newspaper was issued in the Chinese language, with articles of an anti-imperialistic nature by prominent members of the Kuomintang party; this paper was broadly circulated by members of the demonstation. A telegram was also sent, in the name of the latter, to Premier MacDonald, of Great Britain, protesting energetically against foreign intervention in China.

Jail and Prisoner Burn.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 26.—A fifty year-old Negro man was burned to death when the Moultrie town jail burned to the ground. The Negro had been placed in the jail, which was a regular fire trap, on a charge of drunkenness. The jail was on the outskirts of the town and had no attendant.

FARMERS COME FAR TO LISTEN TO MINOR'S TALK

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WILLISTON, N. D., Oct. 26.—A remarkable meeting was held in the Court House here.

Despite the fact that nearly all farmers in this vicinity were busy threshing, about 125 came to town to listen to "Bob" Minor explain the principles and tactics of the Workers Party.

Family Comes 50 Miles.

One family drove thirty, another fifty miles, to attend this meeting. When a farmer is busy threshing he never goes anywhere. He only works, eats and sleeps.

Minor pointed out in his talk that the farmer would not get enough out of his so-called big wheat crop this year to pay taxes and interest on his debts, that it was impossible for the farmer to beat the capitalist game. He also showed that LaFollette did not stand for the farmers and the workers but supported the small business class. His speech was very well received.

A good deal of party literature was sold at this meeting and subs taken to the DAILY WORKER. Considering the circumstances under which the meeting was held, it was a big success.

Urge Legislative Candidates.

The Workers Party has two candidates in the field here, A. C. Miller, running for state representative, and Andrew Omholt, candidate for sheriff of Williams county. The local, reactionary league pussyfooters and politicians have repudiated these two candidates for the reason that they are Communists, but this sort of tactic has not much influence with the rank and file of the farmers, the majority of whom are supporting Omholt and Miller.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF I. W. W. NATIONAL CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

The official report of the convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, for its eighth day, signed by P. J. Welinder, chairman, and Ed Delaney, press committee, follows:

16th ANNUAL CONVENTION
(Day by Day)

Perhaps more constructive work was done on the eight day of the convention than on any other day, thus far. After the roll call and the reading of the press committee's report, in the morning a motion was passed giving fellow worker Maurice Daly, secretary treasurer of I. U. 120 the floor. He stated that he had been refused the property in 1001 west Madison street, by the temporary officials, when he had called for it, after the convention had passed a motion which would automatically release any claim that anyone in headquarters may have had on it. Several motions were made relative to this request, which the chair ruled out of order. However, a motion finally passed to the effect that the convention go on record of lifting the restraining order that is now on 1001 West Madison. The chair ruled on the motion stating that it was to be understood that the convention had nothing to do with putting the restraining order on the building and property and as such could not get it released, and that it was up to the party or parties who had secured this order to see that it was released.

After that matter was settled a communication was read from Tom Doyle suspended secretary-treasurer Joe Fisher, suspended general organizer, and Charles Gibson, suspended general executive board member of I. U. 230 in which they stated they were willing to abide by any ruling that this convention might make and that they recognized it as a lawful body.

Next came the reports of officers. Fellow worker Charles Gibson, G. O. C. member of I. U. 230 and suspended G. E. B. member of that industrial union reported first. He reported verbally to some length, mentioning the ballots he had voted on, and various actions taken by him while in office. Practically every delegate had questions to put to him. The questions dealing with his activity and with the present controversy. His report was tabled until the controversy is settled.

Following him, came fellow worker J. A. Grimth, suspended alternate general organizer, he reported at some length, submitting a written report and financial statement. He too, was questioned in detail. His report following the same course as that of Gibson, except that his recommendations were referred to the resolution committee. His recommendations in the main were a plea for the establishing of a clearing house, investigation of two issues of the Pioneer and a general audit of all books in general headquarters.

F. W. Joe Fisher, suspended general organizer then read his report which was of some length and dealt principally with his activities since taking over the office. He was questioned for some time relative to his activity, by the majority of the delegates present. His report was ordered tabled until the grievance committee had been heard from and his recommendations were turned over to the resolution committee. He recommended the publication of three new pamphlets, the establishing of a clearing house system, the expulsion of all members who were found guilty of creating dissension and a plan whereby all credentials would be issued directly from the main office.

Suspended Secretary-Treasurer Tom Doyle, came next. He read from a written statement, several faults and offered recommendations. He stated at the outset that his report would deal with his activity and recommendations alone, as he understood that the controversial matter was to come later. He was on the floor over three hours, practically every delegate questioning him on his recommendations or on the figures which he submitted. He also recommended the establishing of a clearing house, the bonding of all officials, the publication of several new pamphlets and urged the convention to devise ways and means of providing a budget system. He also reported that general headquarters would have to move from its present location as the lease expires next April and the building has been condemned. His report and suggestions took the same course as that of the other officials who reported today.

Following him, the convention moved to nominations and installations to fill vacancies on two committees. Adjournment was made at 5:30 P. M. —Edward Delaney Press Committee.

CALL FOR UNITY ISSUED BY LYNN SHOE WORKERS

"Together Under One Roof" Is Appeal

By M. SHARAF.

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 26.—As a result of the recent vote cast by the membership of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers to change the form of their organization from a national union into a district union, the general council instructed the secretary-treasurer to send out a letter to the Independent Shoe Workers' Union in Lynn to get together under one roof. Copies of this letter were mailed to individual members of these locals.

Unite Against Open Shop.

The militants of Lynn are urging the locals to come together first for the purpose of amalgamation and second to fight the open shop movement which is menacing the shoe workers of the country, and particularly in Lynn where the manufacturers are waging a bitter fight against the active members of the union.

The letter reads in part:

"In view of the fact that the majority of our locals are located in Lynn, it would seem to be the part of wisdom for all unions in this city to become affiliated with and function in one organization, solidifying the shoeworkers into one compact body, thereby strengthening their position to the extent of at least being able to present a solid front to our opponents when necessary. As it is today in Lynn, we appear to be hopelessly divided, four different forms of organization functioning with their members working side by side in the same industry, when one is only necessary for the welfare of the workers, thus proving to the world that something is radically wrong."

Interview With Officials.

In an interview lasting for several hours with the general officers of the amalgamated, they admitted to the DAILY WORKER that the state board gave the shoe workers of Lynn a rotten deal. The president when asked if he would oppose the state board when the next agreement comes up, said, "I never favored the state board. The referendum ballot calling the board into Lynn was issued by the joint council."

The secretary took occasion to flay the Nudick proposition in Haverhill where the shoe workers are compelled to pay five thousand dollars yearly as their share of the $10,000 received by Nudick as an impartial chairman. Nudick by the way, has rendered only one decision in favor of the union against many decisions favorable to the manufacturers.

Both officials admitted that mistakes have been made in the past and expressed a willingness to forget all the hard feelings for the sake of unity for the shoe workers of the country and particularly in Lynn.

Big Cotton Mills in Rhode Island Cut Wages 12½ Pct.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 26.—Announcement of the big B. B. & R. Knight Co., largest cotton mill operators in the Pawtuxet valley, that the Artic Mill at Artic and the Royal Mill at River point would reopen at a 12½ per cent lage cut stirred the workers in the valley. These mills, employing 1,350 workers, have been closed for several months, as have the dozen other Knight mills in the calley. No move has yet been made to reopen the other Knight mills.

The wage cut decision was said to have been made at the instance of the bondholders, who hold the $7,500,000 bonds of the Consolidated Textile corporation, which controls the Knight company. Chase National Bank in New York is the leading factor in the situation. William M. Wood, president American Woolen Co., is chairman of the board of both the Knight and Consolidated concerns.

Strike talk is in the air. The Amalgamated Textile Workers' Union has a local at Artic and conducted the strike in this vicinity in 1922.

A wage cut recently went into effect in the Manville-Jenckes mills in the Blackstone valley in northern Rhode Island. Here the United Textile Workers' Union is in the field and announces that action will be taken to force a restoration of wages. The Knight company and the Manville-Jenckes are the largest cotton manufacturers in Rhode Island.

UPHOLD STAND OF I. W. W. MEET IN FACTION WAR

Class War Prisoner Gives His Views

Several communications have been received by the convention of the I. W. W. now meeting in Emmet Memorial Hall, commending its decision not to recognize either faction.

The convention has received a telegram from the Spokane branch of the I. W. W., stating that it concurs with the statement of the convention to the membership, and with the majority of the delegates.

Letter From San Quentin.

A letter received and filed by the convention from Fred Bannon, class war prisoner in San Quentin, declares:

"To the Special Convention.

"Fellow Workers:

"Up to the present time I have refrained from expressing my opinion or making any suggestions to those on the outside. But under the present circumstances, I don't think it amiss to do so.

"I believe that the convention should be informed as to the real attitude of those that are in prison. As I am quite well informed by first-hand experience of the disrubtive tactics used by one Blossom, I fully concur with the action taken by Fisher and Doyle in regards to Blossom et al. Further I believe they should be expelled for all time.

"I also wish to say that I expect the convention to repudiate the injunction and deal with those responsible in such a manner that it will serve as a warning in the future.

Discuss Prison Controversies.

"The matter of prison controversies should be dealt with in such a way that it will be impossible for designing or ignorant individuals to involve the organization in personal quabbles and petty grievances as has been the case in the past. It should be realised that the labor movement will go on whether those of us in the various prisons ever get out or not. So, put your energy into organization efforts and not so much into a collection agency for the relief of darned bellyaching sisters.

"Also, I think it would be a very good policy to have all class war prisoners go and stay at least one year at the point of production after release, before being allowed to hold any responsible office, elective or appointive, as it is sure to take at least that long to get over the prison grouch and adjust one's self to prevailing conditions. This is the opinion of a good many here, and is considered very important in order to avoid the childish controversies we have had in the past. A prison record does not give any fanatical individuals the privilege of disrupting the whole organization. In conclusion I wish to state that I will not accept any dictation from outside these walls and intend to use my discretion in all matters pertaining to my imprisonment.

"Yours for the I. W. W.,
"Fred Bannon, San Quentin, Cal."

Demands "Get Together"

The communication from Wilkes Barre, sent by John Di Vincenzo, says:

"Wilkes Barre, Penn., Oct. 13, 1924.

"Greetings to all delegates of the General Convention. Fellow Workers, much and great work ahead of you at this time. Hoping the convention will be constructive with old-time spirit. Remember that the East needs much attention and a clean house. Yours for action. John Di Vincenzo."

The telegram from Duluth was addressed to James Rowan. It stated, "Jas Rowan, Chicago, Illinois. Get together one convention. That's final. Ed Carleton, Duluth, Minn."

BIG BUSINESS INTERESTS COOK UP "MADE-TO-ORDER" PROSPERITY TO KEEP COOLIDGE IN WHITE HOUSE

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Mellon's Pennsylvania and New Jersey, an important province of the militant anti-union National Metal Trades Assn., are hitting the ball in the artificial Coolidge-for-president industrial boom. According to the Oct. 13 statement of the Philadelphia federal reserve bank, employment in Pennsylvania in September showed an increase of 2.2 per cent over August. In New Jersey the increase amounted to 2.3 per cent.

Evidently the industrial region which produced Collector Grundy and his $600,000 slush fund to swing western states to Coolidge and Dawes is also ready to pour out more money to persuade doubting workers that a full dinner pail depends upon reelection of the above-mentioned friends of capital.

Slump After Election.

The latest report from the department of commerce indicates that the forced spurt in production has been immediately reflected in an upward turn in stokks of commodities on hand. Barring unforseen events this should mean that after election there will again be a slump whether the republicans get a new team of office or not.

The report covering Pennsylvania shows that industrial activity in that state has increased about 10 per cent since July. This means an increase not only in emploment but also in percapita earnings.

Pennsylvania industries reporting inportant changes in employment and wages between August and September included: automobile, increase of 6.1 per cent in employment and 1.5 per cent in average wages; electrical manufacture, increase of 15.2 per cent in employment and 11.3 per cent in wages; foundries and machine shops, decrease of 2.7 per cent in employment and 0.4 per cent in wages; steel works, increase of 3.1 per cent in employment and 1.2 per cent in wages; structural iron works, increase of 5.4 per cent in employment and 4 per cent in wages; carpets and rugs, increase of 27.8 per cent in employment and 3 per cent in wages; clothing, increase of 9.7 per cent in employment and 2.6 per cent in wages; knit goods increase of 2.7 per cent in employment and 10 per cent in wages; building materials, increase of 1.7 per cent in employment and decrease of 1.5 per cent in wages.

Showing in Home of Trusts.

The New Jersey report reflects an expansion of 4 per cent to 5 per cent in industrial activities within the month, including an increase of 2.2 per cent in average pay.

Between August and September New Jersey industries showed important changes in employment and wages as follows: automobile, increase of 1.3 per cent in employment and 8.3 per cent in average wages; electrical manufacture, decrease of 1.8 per cent in employment and 3.. per cent in wages; foundries and machine shops, increase of 0.4 in employment and 5.7 per cent in wages; steel works, increase of 2 per cent in employment and 13.7 per cent in wages; clothing decrease of 0.1 per cent and 6.6 per cent in wages; knit goods, decrease of 0.9 per cent in employment and 7.2 per cent in wages; building materials, increase of 1.3 per cent in employment and 6.8 per cent in wages; paper, increase of 26.3 percent in employment and 0.6 per cent in wages; rubber, increase of 0.5 per cent in employment and 20 per cent in wages.

Both reports show that aside from the industries which normally reflect the pre-Christmas rush the important increases result from the pressure which the big corporations are applying to elect their candidates.

Strike Prevents Textile Cut.

PALMER, Mass.—Five hundred textile operatives at the Thorndike company here won their strike against an 11 per cent wage cut. Agent Charles A. Tabor announces that the plant will reopen on a six-day basis without the reduction against which the workers had walked out recently. The strike took place when the company, which had been operating on a three-day a week basis notified employes that the working days would be raised to five at the 11 per cent reduction. Tabor says no wage cut will be made until the company finds what other concerns are planning.

WOBBLY WINS 3RD COURT FIGHT IN CALIFORNIA

Prosecutor Asks Case Be Dismissed

By MAUD McCREARY.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—Each time that Roscoe Thurman, I. W. W., goes to the mat in court with the authorities who are attempting to block his activities against the California syndicalism law he comes out of the scrap a little more to the good.

Oct. 6, the case against him at El Centro, Imperial county, charging him with criminal syndicalism, was dismissed on motion of the prosecution.

Thurman was tried twice before on the same charge. The first case resulted in a conviction reversed on appeal. The second with a hung jury.

Prosecutor Wakes Up.

It is believed at I. W. W. headquarters that the district attorney of Imperial county, after reviewing the 52 reversals of similar cases, decided it was unwise to spend taxpayers money on evidence likely to result in a reversal on appeal.

Herbert W. White, secretary, California branch, General Defense committee (the I. W. W. body) says: "The I. W. W. have had a hard battle in San Pedro for 3 years. First they had to combat the criminal syndicalism law. After showing to the world that they never did violate that statute, one judge made a new law, to wit the Busick injunction. Now that this also does not seem to cover the I. W. W. the servants of the employing interests again take recourse to that time honored vagrancy law."

Go On Hunger Strike

Declaring that the food served to them was unfit for even a dog to eat 25 I. W. W.'s in the Lincoln Heights stockade in Los Angeles went on hunger strike Oct. 3. Most of the men are charged with violating the injunction against distribution of I. W. W. literature. Some are serving sentences. Their fines paid. Explaining their hunger strike, prisoners declare that their frequent arrests are made merely to harass them and because of political prejudice and that if most of their time must be spent in jail, they at least deserve decent food.

Japs Promote Jingoism.

TOKYO, Oct. 26.—The department of education here is taking advantage of the Japanese exclusion to instill nationalistic sentiment in the civilians. Five hundred students representing fifteen high schools of Tokyo, have been ordered to attend the military drills in Yoyogi Field, where nationalistic speeches will be delivered to the students and soldiers.

The Poor Taxpayers

That Calvin Coolidge should be popular among America's millionaire class because of his war on high taxation is not surprising in the light of the story told by the income tax figures for last year, made public by the Internal Revenue Department.

Andrew Mellon, whiskey Secretary for the Treasury, paid a tax of $1,173,987.85 on his income for last year. William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago, the chewing gum magnate was a close second to Mellon, with $1,134,420. Some of the most important returns from the New York millionaire colony are:

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., $7,435,169.41.
John D. Rockefeller, Sr., $124,266.47.
George F. Baker, $660,371.52.
George F. Baker, Sr., $678,664.16.
Eugene Myer, Jr., $152,466.60.
Frederick A. Clark, $172,405.58.
John T. Underwood, $258,617.65.
Henry H. Rogers, $373,297.22.
T. W. Lamont, $847,820.44.
J. P. Morgan, $98,613.67.
E. H. Gary, $473,464.20.

Despite the law which declares that income tax lists must be made public newspapers had a hard time gaining access to the returns. The capitalists hold that the less information the workers get about their swollen fortunes the better for the former. Correct. But somehow or other the workers get the information.

The New York millionaires raised a terrible howl when the papers gave the news of their belongings to the public. But Mellon made a virtue of necessity and said the will of congress must be done. Judging from the tax returns, Andy is the second richest man in America, but perhaps J. P. Morgan is holding back something.

Small and the Klan

Governor Len Small of Illinois is reported to have the open support of the Ku Klux Klan in this state. There is very good reason for this belief. In fact the statement of Charles E. Palmer, Grand Dragon of the gowned night prowlers leaves nothing to the imagination.

It has been stated quite frequently that at a klan parade held in Springfield recently, state and federal-owned military horses assigned to Illinois National Guard cavalry were loaned to the klan. Grand Dragon Palmer openly admits receiving the use of the horses from the Small administration and boasts that the klan now holds the balance of power in the state and can get what it wants.

Palmer declared it was none of the public's business who gave the klan permission to use the horses or other government property. "We have been doing this right along in Indiana and not alone using horses but army trucks and other paraphernalia."

The governor gave the use of the state fair grounds to the klan and two of Small's meetings in Vernon and Williamson were organized by the notorious Glenn Young who urged his hearers to vote the republican ticket straight. The miners of Williamson county who have experienced the terrorist methods of Young and his bloody murder fiends will be interested to know that Len Small, backed by Frank Farrington, "Honest" John Walker, John Fitzpatrick and the other labor fakers is supported by one of the Fascisti organizations of the United States.

Gary's President

Speaking before an audience of steel magnates on the effect of the discontinuance of the "Pittsburgh Plus" policy of the United States Steel corporation, Judge Gary, declared that "the future success of the iron and steel industry in this country is assured if the managers will keep their heads, and further if the approaching election results shall be satisfactory."

According to Gary a "good" president should have the following qualifications: "He should be modest, plain and simple and still courageous, dignified and wise."

Calvin Coolidge is the ideal president of Judge Gary. About the only one of the qualifications mentioned by Gary that Coolidge posesses is that of simplicity. He is simple to a fault. He displayed his lack of courage during the oil expose. His silence charitably hides his ignorance. A small bore nonentity like Coolidge could not be dignified if he tried. As for modesty, if he possessed that alleged bourgeois virtue he would be take himself to his father's farm and stay there.

The one virtue possessed by Coolidge which outweighs all others is his loyalty to the capitalist system.

In the Enemy Press

COARSE MALICE
(The Ottawa Journal, Canada)

A disagreeable but interesting tribute to the work done by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales in promoting goodwill is the peculiar malignity with which the revolutionary press has followed him. The Chicago DAILY WORKER, the official organ of the Workers Party of America, for example, has been unable to keep its tongue off him. Since his visit to this continent was announced it has referred to him in sixteen separate issues, on some occasions publishing two attacks on the same day, and its utterances have been marked by a grossness of personal calumny which in many instances defies quotation. This coarseness and bitterness, it is to be observed, increased as the Prince's popularity became more and more apparent. The Toronto Worker, the Communist weekly which some time ago got into trouble by the foulness of its language in commenting upon Armistice Day, expressed its annoyance because

"The wastrel and idler spawn of the British King is allowed, even invited to defile the land of Coolidge and 'democracy' with his presence."

Such persistent pursuit must have a reason. These devil's disciples abhor international goodwill, and thrive on hatred and discontent. They eagerly expect a war between the United States and Japan, and hope for a conflict between the British Empire and the United States, just as they prefer that times should be hard, and the laboring classes in distress and penury, and are exasperated by any prospect of the return of prosperity. It is clear that His Royal Hizness on this visit has won the liking of the American people—as it incidentally has exploded the absurd legend of his bad horsemanship—and alarm and anger speak in the reviling.

One question is raised by the Toronto outburst. It would be a pity to signify this venomous sheet by holding it to the letter of the law against sedition. None the less this is vulgar abuse which it would be dangerous to utter against any private citizen. The eminence of the object of this insult protects the person who emits it; and that seems a pity.

AS WE SEE IT - -

By T. J. O'Flaherty

tendency to make us too partial to the workers.

* * *

BUT the toiling slaves of capitalism know that we always give them the breaks. We are for them in all their battles. With us they are always right when they are fighting the enemy. We confess that the DAILY WORKER is partial and we don't care who knows. The DAILY WORKER is one sided; it is concerned with the welfare of the workers only and the hatred of the master class and their labor lieutenants or the superior attitude adopted towards us by the liberal-radical does not phaze is a bit. But we are concerned with the attitude of the workers toward us. We are here not to please them but to serve them.

* * *

THE British tories are complaining that the workers do not recognize the right of free speech. Now, this is funny. For once the shoe is on the other foot. The British workers who have fed the capitalist dungeons for centuries now muster up enough courage to throw over-ripe tomatoes at the capitalist blatherskites when they get up to speak. This is not nice, but, it is a war rehearsal, and wars are not pleasant as the workers and a few of the capitalists have learned. Later on the British workers may not be throwing tomatoes at the capitalists, but something harder.

* * *

LADY Nancy Astor, the millionaire virago from America, was forced to quit the campaign. She was vigorous in her attacks on the workers. But the workers are many and the Nancy Astors are few, so it is not surprising that Nancy got the worst of it. Things are coming to a pretty pass in England when a millionaire parasite who has the entry to Buckingham palace is obliged to shut her trap in an election campaign.

* * *

THE tories are not at all sure that the election campaign will bring them a very big victory. They will gain seats to be sure at the expense of the liberals, but the masses are not falling for their rabid attacks on the Soviet treaty. It is reported that the tories are astounded at the pro-Soviet sentiment among the British population. It seems that the rantings of Snowden, Thomas and other capitalist lackeys, led the tories to believe that there was a big anti-Russian sentiment among the workers. But they found an entirely different situation.

* * *

NOW the tory strategists are calling on their campaigners to stop scolding Russia and to say something about the issues that the workers are interested in. But they have no solution for the problems of the workers. Neither does the labor party make any attempt to solve the problem. It merely competes with the capitalist parties in making promises. The British Communist Party has a program. It calls for the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Soviet form of government, while in the meantime putting forth demands that would bring the workers into battle against their masters But the labor party is now dominated by the bourgeois psychology of His Majesty's socialists and while it welcomes titled aristocrats into its ranks it has no welcome for the Communist Party.

* * *

TWENTY six counties of Ireland, being under the Free States, and nominally independent of England, the general election is confined to only the six counties of Northern Ireland. Eamon DeValera announced that he would go into Ulster and stand as a republican candidate. The Orangemen promise to arrest him. In the rest of Ireland, there is considerable excitement over the boundary question, but the only force that could solve that question, the labor movement is in a state of civil war, without any prospect of either side being able to offer the Irish working class any leadership.

THE old leaders who inherited from James Connolly, a movement that bore promise of great things, have sold their birthright for a mess of pottage. They are neither with the Communist International nor with the Second International. While putting up a fake opposition against the Free State government, and mildly protesting against the crimes committed by that government during the civil war, they took no active steps to intervene in the orgy of murder carried out under the Irish flag in the name of freedom, by the servants of British imperialism.

UNFORTUNATELY the opposition to the reactionaries which had a splendid opportunity to rally the masses behind a revolutionary program, was cursed with a leadership so stupid that language fails to describe its blunders. Instead of following the trade union policy of the Red International of Labor Unions, these crasy strategists entered on a campaign of secession in the best O. B. U. of Canada style, until today the Irish labor movement is a cock pit of trade union civil war, with the organization that Connolly gave a backbone and a policy to, slowly bleeding to death, and nothing but "vapor" as a substitute.

* * *

STRIKES are taking place, not against the bosses but between two rival sections of the workers' industrial movement. Jurisdictional strikes, the curse of the craft-ridden American labor movement have again reappeared in Ireland. The most regrettable feature of the situation is that radicals who have no excuse to be ignorant of the trade union policy of the Communist International are involved in these escapades. The policy of staying within the existing unions applies with equal force to Ireland and to Germany or America. In fact the opportunity to get the Irish Transport Workers' Union into the hands of the radicals, looked very bright but for the stupidly criminal tactics of a few ego-maniacs, who only tolerate the co-operation of sycophantic poodles, who are always ready to fawn on those in power.

* * *

ACCORDING to a report appearing in one of the Irish papers, an educational society called the James Connolly Workers' Republican Club is formed in Dublin. Since the Communist Party of Ireland was liquidated shortly after James Larkin's return to Ireland there has been no communist propaganda put forth in that country. The official organs of the Irish Transport Workers' Union and Larkin's dual union, the Workers' Union of Ireland, are chiefly devoted to shooting mud at each other. The only hope in the present dilemma of Irish labor is that a left wing under constructive and revolutionary Communist leadership will develop out of the muddle into which the leaders have led it into. The Red Trade Union International has shown the way.

The Daily Worker is the Organ of Our Party

By ELLIS CHRYSSON
Editor of Empros,
Greek Communist Weekly

THE DAILY WORKER is the official organ of our party. It is the only Communist daily in the English language. It is true that our members did not realize yet the importance of a mighty English daily. Before the DAILY WORKER had been published our members were eagerly waiting the first issue, because they were not satisfied at all seeing the Federations with daily organs and the Party with a weekly paper, The Worker.

There are many comrades, and many among the subscribers of Empros who read English, but still they are not subscribers to the DAILY WORKER. The DAILY WORKER is not only the organ of the American comrades, but the organ of our Party. Therefore our members must become subscribers not only themselves, but they must secure subs from their shop-mates and friends. We are all in a position to build up our mighty organ, if we realize the services it offers to the awakening of the class-consciousness of the workers of America.

Wherever you are, in the shop, in the restaurant, try to get a sub for The DAILY WORKER. We must support The DAILY WORKER just as much as we do the Empros.

Our adherence to our principles and to our Party must be proved by our energies and activities, becoming real builders of a powerful daily.

The capitalists having colossal daily organs at their disposition, poison the minds of our fellow workers, and lead them against their own interests. They keep them ignorant, because then, the workers serve their interests because they thus perpetuate the system of exploitation.

When The DAILY WORKER increase its circulation—when we, the class conscious workers will devote our time and energy for it, then the number of the militants in the trade unions, will also be doubled, and then the workers will get rid of the reactionary leadership of Gompers and Co., who sell the organized workers of this country to the capitalist parties and the capitalist government, who use the workers as war material for their imperialistic plans.

Forward, comrades. Let us increase the circulation of our daily.

Long live our Workers (Communist) Party and its official organ, The DAILY WORKER.

STAY AWAY

By ABRAM JAKIRA

LOOKING over the October issue of "The Painter and Decorator," the official organ of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, my attention was attracted by several timely notices bearing the same headline "STAY AWAY." Here are a few of them: "Stay Away from Niagara Falls," as work is very slack there and no hope for improved conditions in the near future. "Stay Away from Cleveland, Chicago and Tampa, Fla., is prominently displayed in a box on another page. "Stay away from Kelso and Longview, Wash.," owing to difficulties being encountered there. "Stay Away from Los Angeles," for work has fallen off fully 50 per cent in the past six months, with no indications of its becoming normal for some time to come.

Thus appeals to "Stay Away" come from trade unions from practically all parts of the country—from Florida to Washington and California. According to these appeals the worker of the unemployment stricken towns has one of the two ways to choose. He can either hire a Zeppelin and take a trip to Mars to try his luck there or he must remain quarantined in his home town and starve until his employers will again find it profitable for them to give him a job, until the "conditions will again become normal." But there is another way of solving the unemployment problem, the way proposed by the Workers Party: Abolish capitalism which causes unemployment by creating a Workers' and Farmers' Government and meanwhile make the bosses and their government pay the unemployed.

Any worker can readily see that there is no need for him to take a flying trip to Mars, neither is there any need for him to "Stay Away" or starve. The employers who make enormous profits out of the sweat of the workers in "normal" times and who alone have the right to hire and fire must be made to pay the unemployed to whom they cannot give work. It is the duty and within the power of the government to tax the industries for the purpose of maintaining the unemployed and thus keep them away from starvation.

Organized labor has the power to make the bosses and their govern ment pay the unemployed. What is needed is the will to do it.

BRITISH "RED PLOT" BRAZEN FAKE

Hamburg Communists Defeat Socialists

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Ku Klux Klan is dying even more rapidly than its predecessors, the Knownothing and A. P. A. movements. It is still a political factor in some states, but it is so rotten that the inside and devoid of principle, that every time a whiff of fresh air gets inside it, the result is very damaging to the Klan. One year ago the capitalist politicians feared it and therefore catered to it. Today, they are stepping on each other's toes in their hurry to place their objections to it before the public. Only those who are really hard up and find some plausible excuse for evading the issue keep silent. "Silent" Cal is one of these.

THE latest politician whose relations with the Klan promises to get him into dirty water is Governor Len Small. The papers reported over a week ago that federal cavalry horses, assigned to the Illinois state militia, were loaned to the Klan for a parade in Springfield, Ill. The Klan was also given the use of the state fair grounds. It was assumed, of course, that this was done with the governor's knowledge, but there was no direct evidence until Grand Dragon Palmer of the Illinois night ghouls, brazenly admitted that the Klan was given the horses and the use of the state fair grounds by the Small administration and wound up by asking defiantly: "What of it?"

* * *

PALMER announced that the Klan was with Small and it was learned that one of the governor's most enthusiastic campaigners is the notorious Glenn Young, of Williamson county fame. The Klan dragon boasted that his organization holds the balance of power in Illinois and can get what it wants by threats. It looks as if Small feels that he must have the Klan with him to save his political neck in this election fight.

* * *

BUT all is not well with Dragon Palmer. Tho the klansmen like the Nordic breed and the protestant religion much, they love their own meal tickets more. Before Dragon Palmer got on the job, a McGhee had to make room for him. This leaves McGhee very excited. Now, McGhee and Palmer hate each other more than they hate the Catholics, Jews and Negroes. McGhee says: "The organization for which we would die is disappearing like the mists before the sun." The sooner it disappears, the better.

* * *

PALMER is charged by one faction of the Klan with sending Glenn Young into Herrin and Small is accused of taking orders from Young and Palmer. State's Attorney Delos Duty accused Small and Adj. General Black of being klansmen during the latest murders in Herrin. Neither denied the charge. The anti-Palmer faction of the Klan now charges Small with playing with both anti-Klan and Klan factions in Herrin. He succeeded in antagonizing both sides. In view of the latest revelations there is no longer any doubt but Small is lined up with the Klan quietly for political purposes, and as in the case of other leaders of secret and fraternal organizations who support the capitalist system, it appears that Grand Dragon Palmer has tried to deliver the Klan vote to Small in return for either cash or a promise of a state job. He is competing with Frank Farrington of the miners' union.

* * *

THE positive proof that the Small administration is lined up with the Klan in this election raises another point, and that is, the relations of the labor leaders, particularly the alleged anti-Klan, Catholic leaders with Small. They are supposed to be

BALTIMORE TO SEE BIG FOSTER RALLY TONIGHT

W. P. Literature Squad Gets Big Crowd

(Special to the Daily Worker)

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 27.—There will be a LaFollette meeting here tonight, the night just before our own big campaign rally for William Z. Foster, candidate for president on the Workers Party ticket comes off. Foster will speak on Tuesday, the 28th, and will show up LaFollette along with the rest of the capitalist gang," Coolidge, Davis and Co.

Newsies Worry LaFollette.

All party and Young Workers League members have been mobilized to distribute thousands of party platforms and leaflets at this LaFollette meeting and also handbills announcing the Foster meeting. The comrades here have been doing splendid work along the lines of distribution of party literature at all LaFollette meetings to the utter annoyance of the free speech liberals of the LaFollette following.

At a LaFollette meeting held Sunday, October 18 a large number of Workers Party and Young Workers League members distributed party literature. They were immediately spotted by the watchful committee in charge.

One of the patriotic LaFollette spirits of 1776 came tearing out of the hall and yelled "Look, there are some more of those revolutionists." A small crowd gathered around us. We answered: "Yes, we are always on the job." The result of this little conversation was a more rapid distribution of our leaflets.

Begs Police to Arrest Communists.

After many threats and abuses he disappeared and another LaFollette gladiator took his place. This one had entirely new tactics. He walked up to the nearest policeman and whispered to him. We heard the patrolman shout a reply "Say you can't tell me what to do. I take my orders from the sergeant." The gladiator entered the hall and presumably did some more whispering, this time to the sergeant for the policeman soon came out and ordered us away. By that time, however, we had distributed all our literature.

As a result of this literature distribution campaign, the Foster meeting will see a tremendous audience of not only party members but many workers who will be interested to learn more about William Z. Foster and the Communist movement he represents.

Fire in Stockyards Firetrap Takes New Toll of Human Life

Two men are believed to have been killed today in a disastrous fire at the Armour & Company plant at the stock yards which started with a terrific explosion of a big feed pipe connecting two buildings.

The blast smashed in the walls of a four-story brick building and sent the roof crashing down into an accumulation of debris.

Hasn't Got Much.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The anti-saloon league of America has expended $1,052, out of a total contribution of $2,400 to assist in electing dry congressmen, according to a report filed today with the clerk of the house of representatives by Andrew Wilson, treasurer of the league's campaign committee.

YELLOWS LOSE SIXTEEN SEATS; REDS GAIN 7

Coming Election May Kill Dawes Plan

(Special to the Daily Worker)

HAMBURG, Oct. 27.—The success of the Communist Party at the polls yesterday exceeded all expectations.

They gained seven seats while the socialists and all other defenders of the Dawes Plan went down to defeat; the socialists losing sixteen seats.

All parties who opposed the Dawes' plan gained at the expense of its supporters. If the Communist vote in Hamburg is a barometer of the revolutionary sentiment thruout the country, the Communist vote in the general election should be materially increased since the last election when they polled over 4,000,000 votes.

The Communists made their election fight on opposition to the Dawes' plan. They branded the socialists as agents of the American financiers and called on the German workers to seize power and establish a Workers' Republic under the dictatorship of the proletariat.

The masses frequently howled the socialists down calling them traitors, and murderers of the German revolution.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SOCIAL PROBLEM CLUB WILL HEAR CANNON

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 27.—James P. Cannon, candidate for governor on the Workers Party ticket in New York City has been invited to be the main speaker before the Social Problems Club, at Columbia University Thursday, Oct. 30, at 4 p. m. Comrade Cannon has been booked to address two and three meetings a day until the end of the campaign, and will speak at all the indoor rallies arranged by the campaign committee of New York.

Cannon Speaks at New Star Casino on Friday, Oct. 31.

Friday evening, Oct. 31, Cannon will address a large mass meeting at New Star Casino, 107th street and Park Ave. In addition to our candidate for governor, the following will also address the meeting: Juliet Stuart Poyntz, candidate in the 20th congressional district; William Weinstone, candidate in the 17th assembly; Abraham Markoff, candidate in the 18th assembly district; Ludwig Lore, Harry M. Winitsky, Nathan Wilkes and others.

Fire Destroys Much Cotton.

LOCKHART, Texas, Oct. 27.—Fire of undetermined origin that has already destroyed cotton valued at almost $1,000,000 was still raging within the farmers' union warehouse after 24 hours here today.

CASTOR OIL RULE OF AMERICANS IN MEXICO IS FATAL TO MANY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—The American owners of the Mexican silver mines in Pachuca believe strongly in castor oil as part of their special Taylor efficiency system.

When the quantity of silver mined is below expectations the workers are suspected of stealing and given strong purgatives several days in succession, until the official in charge convinces himself that the worker is not guilty, has not swallowed any metal. And for such "small offenses" against the Mexican worker the foreign owner is not prosecuted.

A worker rarely lasts more than six years in these silver mines. The American owners pay a starvation wage. The heavy mine cables often break, killing many. The miners who break ropes are made to work without protection for the eyes. Many go blind each year.

Too Busy to Enforce Law.

DAYTON, Ohio.—With law enforcement the major issue of nearly every public office seeker, Dayton labor men have turned up a glaring example of law defiance which none of the candidates has seen fit to attack. Men are being employed ten and sometime twelve hours a day on street work despite a very specific state law limiting the hours to eight.

Appeals have been made to municipal and state authorities, but the law "enforcers" are too busy campaigning on the issue of law enforcement.

The next meeting of the Northwest English branch will be held Tuesday, October 27, at Workers Lyceum, 2735 Hirsch Blvd.

CHRISTIANS MAY KILL IN JUST WARS, EDICT OF LUTHERAN CHURCH

Christians may be soldiers.

The Lutheran church of America in its 54th biennial convention here took this stand today in a resolution defending "just" wars which was adopted after a stormy debate in which the pacifist element of the church was decisively defeated.

DRIVE IN SIXTH DISTRICT

A concerted drive on the sixth congressional district is on the calendar for tonight, Tuesday. Street meetings will be held, under the direction of the Foster-Gitlow conference, at Roosevelt and St. Louis, Sixteenth and Kedzie, Roosevelt and Marshfield, Twenty-second and California, Twenty-sixth and Homan, and Fourteenth and Forty-ninth Court.

If you live in the sixth congressional district, whatever your street address may be, you won't have to go far tonight to hear a good Communist speech!

CONTROVERSY IN COURT HOLDS UP I. W. W. MEETING

By KARL REEVE.

Investigation of the controversy between the two factions of the Industrial Workers of the World came to a deadlock before noon adjournment of the I. W. W. convention in Emmet Memorial Hall yesterday, the officials involved either refusing or unable to be present.

Two of the men who have placed charges against the I. W. W. officials, Frank Burns of Industrial Union No. 210 and John Kenny, refused to testify because they were not satisfied with the way the convention was proceeding.

Altho the controversy was made the order of business yesterday, the combination of injunction proceedings now going on in Fred Bernstein's court room and the refusal of all Rowan-Bowerman officials to participate has so far effectively blocked progress toward settling the controversy. Delegate Joe Jordan charged that "certain delegates are jockeying for position."

Demand Officials be Present.

John Kenny refused to elaborate his charges against I. W. W. officials on the grounds "that they are not present, and I refuse to testify until the officials charged are here." Frank Burns, an adolescent youth wearing a wide felt hat that hides most of his face, said he would not testify until the convention told him whether they were going to do the expelling of guilty officials or whether the matter would be put to a referendum. Chairman Welinder told Burns to sit down if he did not want to testify and Burns complied.

This refusal to talk, together with forced absence of Thomas Doyle and Joe Fisher, who were defending them

MOSCOW DEMANDS APOLOGY FROM LONDON ON CHARGE OF VIOLATING ANGLO-RUSSIAN TREATY CLAUSE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Oct. 27.—There is no longer any doubt that the alleged Zinoviev note, which burst with the force of a bombshell on the British public on the eve of the election, is a forgery.

It is also becoming quite clear that the forgery is the work of the permanent officials of the foreign office.

Ramsay MacDonald, labor premier, placed in a very uncomfortable position and has not yet stated definitely whether he believes the document is a fake or not.

Most of the other Labor Party speakers cast suspicion on it and the workers generally agree with M. Rakovsky, the Soviet representative in England, that the letter is a forgery.

Speaking today in Cardiff, the premier said: "The alleged red plot letter did not reach the foreign office until October 10 and I challenge my enemies to produce evidence that the government had any previous knowledge of a serious plot."

MacDonald Miscalculates.

It is now safe to state that J. Ramsay MacDonald made a political miscalculation in assuming that his Curzon-like attitude toward Russia would be popular among the workers.

The foreign office is entirely in charge of the old tory functionaries and Gregory who signed the offensive note to Russia, is a notorious stool-pigeon of the tories and has an undying hatred for the Soviet government.

Opposition Parties at Odds.

Lloyd George is trying to make political capital out of the affair and is charging the labor government with withholding information of the "red" plot. But Lloyd George is completely discredited and people no longer take him seriously. As election day approaches the entente between the tories and the liberals is cracking and the scramble for office is reviving the old bitterness between the two sets of old party hacks.

Arthur Ponsonby, under-secretary for foreign affairs, interviewed at Sheffield, declared that in his opinion the Zinoviev letter was a forgery.

Neither J. H. Thomas nor Philip Snowden dared to assert that the letter was anything but forgery. J. R. Clynes was equally evasive. C. P. Trevelyan, minister of education, declared: "The letter looks like a fake and the usual white lie from Riga." He also declared that Zinoviev was not a member of the Soviet government and always acted independently.

Even granting that the letter was genuine, and that Zinoviev instructed the British Communists to spread anti-capitalist propaganda inside the army and navy, the fact that the British Fascisti are fully armed and offered under the nose of the British government leaves the anti-Communist ranters without a leg to stand on.

Lloyd George Gives His Views.

David Lloyd George declared the document was issued without MacDonald's knowledge. It was signed by Gregory "in the absence of the prime minister."

A resolution was passed at a big Communist meeting in Trafalgar Square in which the document was branded as a forgery, emanating from the white guardist agencies of Soviet Russia, and called on MacDonald and all other members of the government to withdraw at once the British note, apologize to Russia, disclaim all responsibility for the incident and secure the dismissal of the functionary responsible.

It is worthy of note that the most reactionary leaders of the British labor party have retreated from their belligerant attitude of yesterday. This resulted from the feeling among the workers and from the general public suspicion of "red" plots discovered by the foreign office which are of the type made infamous by the American fink, William J. Burns.

Rakovsky Sends Stiff Note.

Christian Rakovsky, Soviet charge d'affairs in London, sent a stiff note to the British foreign office, addressed

RUSSO-ANGLO FLURRY LEAVES FRENCH COLD

Going Ahead with the Recognition Plan

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The "red" plot exposure in England is taken for what it is worth in the French metropolis and is not interfering in any way with the work of making final preparations for the recognition of Soviet Russia by France.

Nobody here has the slightest doubt but a straining of relations between England and Russia would be looked on with equanimity by France which would then seek to make commercial arrangements with the Soviet Republic at the expense of its rival across the channel.

Charlie Hughes Busy.

It is reported that severe pressure has been exerted against the Herriot government by American capitalist agents and representatives of Charles Evans Hughes in an eleventh hour attempt to hold off Soviet recognition until after the American elections on Nov. 4.

It is believed that French recognition of Russia would be a black eye to the foreign policy of Secretary of State Hughes, and that it would react on the Coolidge fortunes at the polls.

Unusual Secrecy.
